Stalin Says War No Nearer Than It Was 3 Years Ago

Answers Group of U.S. Newspaper, Radio Editors

New York, April 1 — (AP) — Premier Stalin sent a message today to a group of United States newspaper and radio editors saying a third world war is no nearer — then it was two or three years ago.

The message suggested a meeting of the heads of great powers might be helpful.

Stalin declared the present moment opportune for the unification of Germany.

James L. Wick, chairman of the board of the Wick, Ohio, Daily Times, said two Russians delivered the message to him here today. He said it appears to be a reply to four questions the editors sent to Stalin.

Questions and Replies

Wick said the questions and replies were:

"1. Is a third world war closer now than two or three years ago?"

Reply: "No, it is not."

"2. Would a meeting of the heads of the great powers be helpful?"

Reply: "Possibly it would be useful."

"3. Do you consider the present moment favorable for the unification of Germany?"

Reply: "Yes, I do."

"4. On what basis is co-existence of capitalism and communism possible?"

Reply: "Peaceful co-existence of capitalism and communism is possible if there is a mutual desire for cooperation and if there is a readiness to fulfill the undertaken obligations, if there is observance of the principles of equality and not interference in the internal affairs of the other states."

Wick was one of 19 editors who returned to the United States after a tour of Europe. He said the editors returned today from a tour of Europe. He Wick said the Russians came to his house and identified themselves as S. B. Tarapkin, alternate Russian representative to the United Nations, and A. K. Startsev, second secretary to the delegation.

Nothing New in Statement

There was nothing essentially new in Stalin statement. He said a third world war need not be considered inevitable. United States officials, in general, have said Stalin does not want to go to war under the present conditions of soviet control.

A proposed meeting of the leaders of the big powers — such as Stalin suggested — Truman and Prime Minister Churchill — has been a subject of speculation since Stalin said in January, 1949, he said good relations between the Soviet control. But Truman has said he was willing to talk it over in Washington.

If anything, today's response that "possibly" such a meeting would be useful is an indication that Moscow may be interested in such a meeting than it was a few years ago.

As for the unification-of-Germany question, the Soviet Union has refused to admit to East Germany a United Nations commission designed to find out if an honest all-German election can be insured. The western powers have insisted that such a determination must be made before the integration of West Germany with Western Europe can be considered. West Germany is presently under British, U. S. and France. Russia occupies East Germany.

The fourth of the Stalin statement — on the co-existence of capitalism and communism — is a typical Soviet view. It says, in effect, that capitalism and communism can exist in the world so long as they live together in satisfactory relations to Moscow.

Before receiving the messages, Wick had told newspaper men at Idlewild airport that the editors encountered little fear in Europe of a war with Russia. He said the war fever seems to center in the United States.

"No one in Europe seems to think that we are going to war with Russia," he said.

Wick also remarked the chilly tour and he was surprised at the support he found for a "United States of Europe."

Cash Signals New Series Of Atomic Tests

Las Vegas, Nev., April 1 (AP)—Flash of fire, clearly visible in the bright daylight, signalled the start of a new series of atomic tests today.

The blast was timed at 9 a.m. PST (noon EST) and apparently was an aerial burst. Strength of the explosion could not be accurately determined by observers here.

The blast was fired at Yucca Flat, in a wide, desert flatland 80 miles northwest of this southern Nevada city.

A reddish orange sheet of flame against the horizon was visible from Las Vegas.

There was no shock or sound noted immediately in Las Vegas.

Ten Communist MIGs Shot Down In Raging Battle

Seoul, Korea, April 1 — (AP) — U.S. Sabre pilots today shot down 10 communist MIG-15 fighters in the second highest bag for any day in the Korean war. They also probably destroyed three other MIGs and damaged 10.

The greatest number of MIGs destroyed in one day in the Korean war was 13 on Dec. 17.

The U.S. Fifth Air Force said five of the Russian-made planes were knocked down just south of the Yalu River, Manchurian-Korea boundary. Then 20 Sabres ambushed 16 MIGs about noon.

Col. Francis S. Gabreski, commanding officer of the 51st Fighter Interceptor Wing, got one of the MIGs and became the eighth U.S. jet ace.

The bill raised his total for the Korean fighting to 5½ MIGs. Five Sabres make up the rest.

"The MIGs never saw us," said Gabreski, a leading ace of the Second World War. "We had a perfect 'bounce' and we dived right down into their midst."

U.S. losses in the battles, if any, will be announced in a routine report.

The red probed Allied lines in seven places between dawn and Tuesday. There were also a few scattered patrol clashes.

Allied warships pounded both coasts of North Korea Monday. Carrier based naval attack planes attacked communist rail and road networks and supply installations.

MINERS TAKE HOLIDAY

Pittsburgh, April 1 — (AP)—A traditional April 1 holiday fell over United States coal fields today with some 475,000 miners taking a holiday to celebrate establishment of the eight-hour day in the pits. For the past several years, the United Mine Workers have had the April 1 lay-off written into their contract with the coal industry.

Teen-Agers Admit April Fool Joke After Fake Documents Cause Furore

London, April 1 (AP) — A spy scare involving an atom-bomb research centre was exposed late today as an April fool joke.

Three teen-agers let the cat out of the bag when they learned they had caused a considerable stir in the government's ministerial level.

Last night Harry Pilbeam, 14, and Neville Thompson, 13, showed up at the Highgate police station with documents marked "Harwell Atomic Research Establishment" and "Burn After Reading." There were, in fact, a number of blueprints and mathematical notations.

The Highgate police put in a call to Scotland Yard.

"We couldn't tell whether it was a joke or bona fide atomic energy or lemonade," a detective said.

Scotland Yard called in experts of the supply ministry, which runs the atomic establishment at Harwell. They were almost certain the papers hadn't come from Harwell.

"Of course this might be the work of some independent private researcher."

Meanwhile newspaper men ran down young Silber.

"Last night I met Victor Mehrs at the Highgate Youth Club," he said. "Victor's 15. He showed me a buff-colored folder. Inside were the blueprints and some arm symbols and signatures in ink. There was also a note in German script.

"Victor said I should take them to the police."

Victor, an apprentice draftsman, told reporters:

"I didn't think it would go as far as this. I made up the bumbs as an April fool's joke at lunchtime yesterday."

At London evening papers headlined the inquiries into the "mystery."

HOWE SEES ATOM SOON HARNESSED BY INDUSTRY

Says Dividends Coming For Millions Expended

Ottawa, April 1 (CP)—Canada, pumping millions annually into atomic energy developments, soon may start collecting dividends on investments.

Production Minister Howe, predicting that large-scale industrial application of atomic energy is closer than many expected, told the Commons yesterday that one field alone may repay Canada for the millions spent on atomic developments.

"There are many who feel that the dividends from the isotope field alone may well repay all the money spent for atomic energy," said Mr. Howe.

The radioactive isotope, is byproduct of the atomic pile at Chalk River, Ont., is finding increasing use in industry, in medical science, and in research and development.

During the last year the Chalk River plant has made some 800 shipments of more than 70 different radioactive isotopes to industries, to universities, to research institutions and to hospitals.

"It is expected that this field will expand rapidly in the immediate future," said Mr. Howe.

He added:

"Within the past year our experience in research, development and operation has made us feel that the large scale industrial application of atomic energy is nearer at hand than we had expected."

No Active Steps

He referred to reports that the Atomic Energy Commission of the United States has announced the stockpiling of five essential strategic metals for the development of propulsive power for use in subsonic aircraft.

"While no active steps have as yet been taken in Canada to design and build complete power plants, efforts to develop component parts that will be necessary to the solution of the over-all project are being made," he said.

Killed by Blast

Old Port, Mich., April 1—(CP) —A 23-year-old father of four was killed by a shotgun blast early Monday in the home of his landlord who had just evicted him from his home.

John Conley was shot in the back near his left shoulder. The charge ripped through the corpse, 50, is being held at the sheriff's office at nearby Mancelona, Mich.

Conley's wife, Grace, 26, said the family was preparing to leave Saturday for a Midnight eviction deadline when Norayka arrived carrying a shotgun. An argument ensued and the shotgun discharged.

If they get one of each, however, they will not be allowed to hunt with firearms during the regular season.

Queen Juliana of Netherlands With Husband and Party Leaves for United States

Schiphol Airport, Amsterdam, The Netherlands, April 1 (AP) — Queen Juliana of The Netherlands cheered by thousands of her subjects—left by plane today for a month's visit to the United States and Canada.

The 42-year-old monarch's four-engine Constellation left the sunny, snow-pitched airfield just before noon. The Queen is due in Washington at 4 p.m. EST tomorrow after an overnight stop in Gander, Nfld.

Traveling with her are her husband, Prince Bernhard, Dutch Foreign Minister Dirk U. Stikker and 11 others.

A main purpose of her trip is to say "thank you" for American aid to The Netherlands since the war. In Washington, where she will stay, she will make a three-day state visit, the Queen will be the first guest of President and Mrs. Truman in the refurbished White House.

Her program in the capital includes a speech to Congress, visits to Mt. Vernon and Arlington National Cemetery, three receptions and two state dinners—one given her by the president, the other her head-and-butler-party for the Trumans.

After three weeks in the United States, Juliana will spend a week's private visit in Canada, where Princess Margriet—the third of her four daughters—was born during the Dutch Royal Family's wartime exile.

The Queen will return home just in time for the April 30 national holiday celebrating her 43rd birthday.

Howe Sees a $5,003,000,000 Capital-Investment Program During the Coming Year

Ottawa, April 1 (CP)—Canada's 1952 investment program is shaping into a peak $5,003,000,000 prosperity-making project with greater emphasis on federal spending.

Trade Minister Howe, tabling in the Commons yesterday his annual forecast for public and private investment, estimated the program will be boosted by $422,000,000 from the previous high of $4,581,000,000 in 1951.

The 9-per-cent increase forecast a $227,000,000 increase in federal government expenditures, compared with a rise of $172,000,000 by private business.

Provincial governments plan to boost capital-investment programs by some $12,000,000 and municipal governments by $11,000,000.

Total investment by private business is forecast at $3,545,000,000, but, with $3,373,000,000 last year, investment by all governments is expected to increase by $1,458,000,000 from $1,308,000,000.

The forecast of a $5,003,000,000 capital-investment program is exclusive of spending by the defence department of military equipment.

Mr. Howe, who recently told a labor delegation that inflation appears to be working in reverse, estimated that prices generally are expected to be somewhat higher in 1952."

Whether the program will be realized will depend on many factors, including available supplies and the confidence of industry in prosperity.

Some Supplies Scarce

Some supplies will be scarce said Mr. Howe, but on the whole, shortages likely will not prevent completion of the program.

With many Canadians still finding it tough to raise enough money to finance new home-construction, housing is expected to decline to $758,000,000 from $840,000,000 last year.

A report signed by M. W. Sharp, associate deputy minister of trade and commerce, and tabled by Mr. Howe said supply of most building materials will increase this year. There should be sufficient materials to permit the realization of the two-to three-per-cent volume increase in the construction program indicated by a survey of investment intentions.

Structural steel, concrete reinforcing bars and steel pipe are likely to remain in short supply and cement deliveries will be slow during the summer and early autumn. Deliveries of rigid insulation board and of a few types of electrical equipment may also be slow.

A production increase of more than 10 per cent is expected for hot water storage tanks, gypsum products, cement and concrete blocks, and clay products. An increase of from three to 10 per cent is expected for furnaces, cast-iron radiators, sanitary ware, cement pipe and tile, non-metallic sheathed cable, mineral wool products, rigid insulating boards and asphalt shingles.

Decline in output is anticipated for steel pipe and tubing, galvanized hot water heaters, sawn lumber, building brick, structural tile and builders' hardware.

There will be plenty of copper tubing.

FACE JAIL

Rome, April 1 — (AP) — For the first time in Italy's fiscal history, filers of false income tax returns face jail. Ezio Vanoni, Italy's finance minister and chief architect of the nation's tax reform, said the government plans to inflict such penalties in the second round of filings, beginning today.

CONVICT RIOTERS QUIT QUIETLY AFTER 45 HOURS

Show of Force Made Prisoners Give Up

Trenton, N.J., April 1 (AP) — Twenty-three of the meanest convicts in New Jersey State prison surrendered to their keepers last night after a 45-hour display of defiance and violence.

Sullen, hungry and cold, the 23 trooped single file from a three-storey segregation building they had all but gutted in a desperate bid for privileges they said were denied them.

Killers, thugs and sex offenders, they had been placed in the building with 28 others to keep them all from mingling with the prison's 1,300 other inmates.

Early Sunday morning, a riot broke out in the building. The men, demanding better treatment, smashed cell doors, ripped out plumbing, set mattresses afire, broke up beds.

Six prisoners assigned trusty posts in the building were held captive. Prison guards lobbed tear gas grenades into the building, but they had no effect. By dawn a detachment of state police was on hand. The show of force convinced 22 who surrendered.

Trusty Kept Prisoner

The others held out. They kept the trusty prisoner. Inside, they fashioned weapons out of lead pipe and electric cords and fended prison guards to come in and get them.

The gang shouted complaints about food and medical treatment. Warden Alexander Gardiner tried to talk to them until they named a spokesman.

Two Trenton fire trucks pumped heavy streams of water into the building for two hours. The convicts huddled against walls to avoid the water.

More tear gas was hurled into the building by prison guards. But the gas floated harmlessly through broken windows.

Then, slightly, the convicts were dickering with Carty. They reduced their demands to one.

"They wanted us to make some promises, but we would not," said Sam Hirst, state commissioner of institutions and agencies.

Hirst said he would release the trusty group. Finally, after more bargaining, the holdup convicts gave up.

APPROVE DEBENTURES

Sault Ste. Marie, April 1—(CP) —Taxpayers yesterday voted approval of debentures totalling $600,000 for the building of a 90-bed addition on Plummer Memorial Hospital.

Balance of cost for, the $1,000,000 addition is to be raised by government grants and private donations. The new addition will bring to 147 the number of adult hospital beds plus 72 infant beds and an eight-bed isolation unit.

A similar extension is being planned for the city's second hospital.

Ottawa Approves Compensation For Cattle Shot

Livestock Slaughtered In Drive to Stamp Out Disease

Ottawa, April 1. (CP) — The Commons last night approved parliamentary appropriations for payment of $311,449 to Saskatchewan farmers for livestock slaughtered in the drive to stamp out foot-and-mouth disease.

The amount covers recompense for 1,091 head of cattle, 127 swine, 97 sheep, one goat, 1,686 hens and 13,272 eggs, all destroyed since the outbreak of the virulent disease was discovered in the Regina area.

The vote was contained in supplementary estimates of $246,000,000 for the fiscal year just ended.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said the $311,449 total was approved by the federal cabinet on the basis of the recommendations of a board established in Regina to fix compensation for farmers whose animals were slaughtered.

The figure, he said, does not include payment for feed and farm buildings lost as a result of the outbreak. Those payments will be computed and placed before parliament later.

While approving the vote, opposition members suggested the amount should be considered merely as a "token" payment in the livestock industry for losses suffered in what they termed the "saddest emergency."

Harry Harris pressed Mr. Gardiner to announce a floor price for beef, but he said he could not do that until after his conference here Wednesday with the provinces. He could make no announcement before Friday, it then.

Average Not Given

Mr. Gardiner told Hazen Argue (CCF—Assiniboia) he could not give the average payment per head for cattle, though he did state that the payments ranged from $300 to $700 a head for purebred livestock.

The Compensation Board, unanimous in its recommendations, fixed the value of a purebred bull at $700, a 10-year-old purebred cow at $350, a four-year-old grade cow at $320 and a grade male calf at $80.

The largest amount paid to an individual farmer was approximately $45,000.

Of more than $20,000 to be paid to the Burns Packing plant in Regina, where the slaughter also broke out, $13,160 was for 49 head of cattle destroyed, $6,340 for 24 steers in fair shape, $239 for a six-year-old cow, $1,140 for 57 grade cows and $240 for one calf.

Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary East) said he questioned why prairie farmers were "not too dissatisfied" with the payments for cattle, but were dissatisfied with those they were to receive for hens.

Mr. Gardiner said he did not have the average hog prices available.

He reported that no new cases have been uncovered during the last three weeks and expressed hope there will be no further outbreaks. All areas which have suffered the disease or might have been contaminated had been destroyed.

Truman's Financial Position Better Than When He Entered White House

Washington, April 1 — (AP) — Harry Truman seems likely to be more comfortably fixed financially when he leaves the White House than he was when he entered it seven years ago.

That is the picture now available on how much of his pay the president had been able to rob from his salary was generally believe it's considerable.

Mr. Truman, who announced Saturday night he wouldn't accept nomination for another term, has been drawing a $100,000-a-year salary since January, 1949 — plus a $50,000 annual tax - free allowance.

When he took office April 12, 1945, the presidential pay was $75,000 a year — all taxable. As vice-president under Franklin D. Roosevelt from January until April of that year, Truman was paid at the rate of $20,000 a year plus $2,500 for expenses. Alben Barkley $30,000 and a $10,000 non-taxable allowance.

The White House in 1949 seems to have heeded one of the economy recommendations of Mr. Truman's Hoover Commission. Out of the White House with a heavy personal debt.

In addition, there were the three years Truman lived at Blair House — from November, 1948, until March, 1952, while the White House was being remodelled.

Mr. Truman were spending at the temporary living quarters across Pennsylvania Avenue. Less during the period he was president, there was a big saving on entertainment.

Truman is a frugal man and can be expected to live modestly when he returns to private life.

Truman's decision to bow out means a new tenant at Blair House. government will be looking for a new presidential home. For example, the president's army aide, Maj.-Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, undoubtedly will be out with his chief.

In the cabinet, only the Secretary of the Treasury, John Snyder, is generally regarded as living in the category of presidential cronies.

A new president will want to select his own cabinet, so there probably will be some new cunning the top departments.

Crowds View Whistling Swans

Port Rowan, April 1 —(CP)— Folks came for miles around Sunday to have a look at the swans.

Lines of automobiles, sometimes two miles in length, filled all roads leading to Long Point marsh where the big white whistling swans annually stop off briefly on their way to their Arctic nesting grounds.

As many as 318 birds were counted in one flock, Ken Ramsay, 18, also estimated $2,000. However, by mid-afternoon they withdrew duly from view of the gaping crowds.

The swans have been arriving for the past week and it is expected the yearly visit will extend another seven days. Some of the birds have wing-springs of more than eight feet.

Port Rowan is on Lake Erie, 30 miles east of St. Thomas.

It said the "meritorious effort broke the endurance record and the two "dedicated their marathon to President Peron and his wife Eva." It identified them as Angel Amadeo, Dino Suriano and Americo Andreoli.

Trenton Swimming Facilities Said Threatened by Methods Of Disposing of Sewage

Trenton (Special) — Citizens who believe that the youth of the town should have adequate swimming facilities are up in arms over the decision of the town engineering staff to empty the sewer at the foot of Dufferin Crescent into the bay at the point. The beach at the grove is the last place children have to swim, an irate citizen maintains.

Not many years ago, youth would swim in numerous places along the river or in the slip which has been replaced by beautiful Fraser park. But since the population of the town has grown and more industry has located and sewage disposal is one of the real problems confronting the town fathers, youth have been asked to refrain from unlawful potluck waters. At times refuse and raw sewage can be observed floating in the river and the waters of the harbor.

The Trenton Recreation Commission is attempting to correct the situation by holding classes in the tank of the air station. However, only a limited number can be accommodated at one time and canvassing for Saturdays local classes interfere with air force operations.

The sewer to serve residents of the south end of Trenton and along the Carrying Place road has been needed for years. It was only installed after much discussion and sacrifice of town funds from other contemplated projects. An extension of 200 feet out into the bay may carry the sewage off into deeper water and down the bay.

Not far west of where the sewer will empty into the bay residents have built up a real community of summer homes and holiday retreats. The present system was built to serve a community of summer homes and holiday retreats. The present system was built to serve a community of summer homes and holiday retreats. TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 1 (CP) —Western oils continued a steady advance today in early afternoon stock market dealings but other sections made little headway.

Trading was heavy as oil speculation dominated exchange dealings. High Crest Oil was a standout as it climbed strongly while more than 500,000 shares changed hands.

Western oil gains ranged from pennies to more than $1. Anglo-Canadian, Calgary and Edmonton, Canada Southern, Devon - Leduc, Pacific Petroleum, Security Free, Trans Empire and Canadian Williston climbed strongly.

Steels, foods, refining oils and manufacturing companies led industrials upward with a scattered list of fractional advances. Banks, liquors, and agriculture also drew firm support but retail stores eased.

Base metal leaders eased. Bauvue, Eureka, Golden Manitou, Labrador, Pearl Dwelle and Sherritt Gordon slipped. Anacon and Opemiska were firm.

Senior golds were mixed. Junior issues posted a slight majority of penny losses but prospects were firm.

NAVIGATION OPENS

Owen Sound, April 1 — (CP)— The freighter Algowen cleared the harbor here early today, opening the 1952 navigation season for this port.

The ship goes to bound for Michipicoten Island to take Superior to pick up a load of ore for Lake Erie ports.

Two other freighters were expected to clear here later today.

SPOILS LANDSCAPE

Cranbrook, B. C. (CP)—Indiscriminate dumping of tin cans and other rubbish along highways and secondary roads was severely criticized at a Chamber of Commerce meeting. Investigation of ways of enforcing regulations against the practice will be undertaken.

Question of Permits for Occupancy Of Residences Under Construction Referred to Planning Committee

The city planning committee will discuss the advisability of the building inspector issuing occupancy permits allowing home owners to occupy residences still under construction.

A public works committee recommendation asking for such a permit saw considerable discussion yesterday by council members before it was referred back to the planning committee.

In speaking to the recommendation Alderman Don Thomas noted the policy of allowing home owners to occupy their residence before completion had been started following the war to ease the housing shortage. In some cases, however, advantage was taken with result that homes remained unfinished for a number of years.

Might Create Hardship

Alderman Rollins objected noting that the committee decision would give the building inspector a lot of authority. He wanted to know what kind of completion would be necessary before such an occupancy permit would be granted and said it may create a hardship on young couples striving to get a home started.

In reply Alderman Thomas stated that any home in a decent shape to live in would be "okay". He said the recommendation was merely to prevent an owner from living indefinitely in a partially-completed home.

Alderman Argue suggested that a $300 deposit be taken from the owner at the time of issuing the building permit, the deposit to be returned when the house was completed.

Alderman Rollins argued that this would make it even more difficult for a young couple to get a home. "We should encourage people to build homes, not discourage them," he said.

Proposal Referred Back

Alderman Temple was of the same opinion as the previous speaker that the recommendation would give too much power to the building inspector. It would also prevent the starting of homes.

The matter was referred back to the planning committee when it was pointed out by Mayor Haig that such a recommendation passed without due consideration might result in an undesirable situation.

The planning committee consists of Alderman Porter as chairman, and Aldermen Smith, Lattimore, Tice and Temple, will also consider building by-laws with the view of writing in proper building restrictions for various parts of the city.

Alderman Rollins noted that a Winnipeg manufacturer was interested in purchasing property in the Veterans' housing area south of the highway to construct a plant. There would be no noise or smoke nuisance from the plant, he said.

No Action Taken

It was pointed out building restrictions for the area had not been decided on and no action was taken by council when setting the price for the three building lots de-fowl, cattle, swine and other animals inside the city. Horses and sheep were excepted.

One councillor asked if cats and dogs would be prohibited by the by-law but it was pointed out this was not intended.

A representative of the Belleville Theatre Guild appeared before council with the request for financial assistance to take members of the Little Theatre to St. John, N.B. where they had been invited to stage their one act play. The matter was referred to the hospital and publicity committee.

A lot vacated in the Bayview Heights district protested against any proposed construction of a motel in the district. He said he had bought property with the understanding the area would be strictly residential.

Mayor Haig explained a recommendation would be passed calling for no building permits other than residential be issued for the area unless the application was first reviewed by council. Such a recommendation would serve notice that it was council's intention the area should be residential, it was pointed out.

Informal Talk On Tobacco Given Rotarians

The growth and development of tobacco, both as an industry and in the field, was the subject of an informal talk by Quenton H. Cook to the Rotary Club yesterday following the luncheon.

The speaker stated that tobacco had been grown in this country for over 400 years but that it was not until 1720 that any record was kept and not until 1886 that it was grown in any quantity in a particular district, that being in Essex county. "In 1914, it started to spread," he said, "and soil tests indicated that the Delhi area was ideally suited for the crop."

Mr. Cook told of the advance in acreage of tobacco, more particularly in the 1930's until it was realized by those nearest the market that some kind of control was needed. This led to the forming of a governing body and marketing board to allot acreage. "Today", he said, "there is a tobacco budget of over $60 million over a comparatively small area, mostly because of the high yield per acre," Lake Erie."

Outlines Numerous Operations

The speaker then went on to elaborate on the numerous operations which go into the production of tobacco, describing them in considerable detail. Mr. Cook told of the beginning of the tobacco plant in greenhouses, preparation for seeding, pulling the plants, preparing the land, the planting procedure, cultivation, hoeing, topping, succoring and eventually the harvesting.

"To harvest a kiln of tobacco it takes a crew of about 14 people," Mr. Cook said, explaining the duties of primers, leaf handlers, tiers, and tobacco kiln drivers. He told of the kiln processing, grading and the various storage operations.

Buyers Purchase in Fall

"Buyers negotiate and visit each farm during late October," Mr. Cook said, "and the farmers either sell or store the market to become better. After the sale, the product is graded as to color, processed, baled and delivered to the plant."

At the conclusion of his talk, Mr. Cook showed a short film which showed the various operations which he had described.

The speaker was introduced by W. J. Morrison with the appreciation of the club being expressed by Joseph Bothwell.

James Bell of Colborne was the only visiting Rotarian attending the meeting and was welcomed with the official song.

A birthday rose was presented to T. Y. Wills on behalf of the Rotary Club by Joseph Shortt following which Mr. Wills was requested the birthday song by the members.

President Court Miller reminded the Club members of the annual Ladies' Night on April 18th and also of the District Conference in Niagara Falls during the latter part of April.

A primary ballot was taken during the luncheon to choose 8 members to form the board of directors for the coming Rotary year.

He said the hospital is the first in the nation specifically for adolescent narcotic users.

Warden, County Clerk Guests Of Kinsmen Club

Members of the Belleville Kinsmen Club know more today of the county in which they live as result of a visit of two county officials to their dinner meeting Monday evening. Guests at the dinner table were Hastings County Warden Lee Grills, and Clerk-Treasurer Eric S. Denyes.

Speaking briefly to the club members, Warden Grills surprised many of the club members with the size of Hastings. He noted that although the width of the county extended only a short distance along the front, it would extend in length a distance nearly to Toronto. Mr. Grills told club members of the operation of county council and listed many of its points of interest.

Clerk-Treasurer Denyes also spoke briefly to the club members.

Reports were heard on the progress of the club swimming pool with plans for the official opening of the pool on June 21st. It was reported on the successful club bingo held Friday night.

Plans for staging a repeat performance of Showboat Days were discussed. Rehearsals for the show will commence this week, it was stated.

Kin Ross Bailey introduced the two county officials with thanks being expressed by Kin Bill Fraser.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Everyone would like to know whether we are likely to become involved in a war with Russia and her allies. Many of the leaders of the western countries seem to believe that war is more likely than not.

But here and there there is a dissenter. One dissenter is Gerard Pillon, one of the editors of the French-language newspaper Le Devoir. Mr. Fillon is no fellow traveller nor does he differ from the majority in assessing Russia's ultimate objectives.

"If Moscow had wanted war," Mr. Fillon says, "Russia could have declared war to her own advantage two years ago, when the western front was dismantled. Probably, however, Russia had, and has, other projects in mind. Communists or not, the Russians remain Russians. The Russian army always has been more powerful on the defensive than on the offensive. The Russian soldier is admirably brave in defence of his own country but he becomes weak and flabby when engaged in a war of conquest.

"It is on revolution rather than on war that the Soviet counts to attain its objective, which is universal domination.

"The western proletariat, crushed under the weight of taxes and suffering other injustices, eventually will revolt and, with the clandestine support of the Soviet, throw off the yoke of the bourgeoisie. And that is why a too heavy burden of defence costs, unjust taxes and a general lowering of the standard of living will create an atmosphere favorable to the expansion of Communism on this side of the Iron Curtain."

Whether Mr. Fillon is right in his predictions as to what is likely to happen we are not prepared to say, but what he says about what is supposed to be the real thing that western nations should constantly guard against.

Red Communism and its subtler ally, Pink Socialism, made gains in western Europe and elsewhere after the war, but there are considerable evidences that these gains have been halted in some countries and a reverse trend is in progress.

The plain truth, however unpleasant that truth may be, seems to be that, while the western countries proceed with their preparations for war, the Russians are not only proceeding with similar warlike preparations, but continuing their efforts to recruit supporters and sympathizers on this side of the Iron Curtain.

A CASE OF PREJUDICE

Because the province of Alberta refuses to allow the insurance companies formed by the C.C.F. government of Saskatchewan to do business in Alberta, Elmer Roper, Alberta C.C.F. leader, has accused Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta of "unreasoning prejudice."

Premier Manning apparently, did not even bother to deny the accusation. He merely stated that it was the policy of the Social Credit government of Alberta to prevent any provincial government from operating a commercial business in Alberta.

Whether Premier Manning's prejudices are "unreasoning" we are not prepared to say, but we do know that he and the rest of the Social Credit cabinet entertain strong prejudices against any government operating a business in competition with a privately-owned concern which is required to pay taxes.

The citizens of Alberta have also displayed prejudices on occasion, for example, they are prejudiced in favor of Premier Manning. They elected 50 Social Crediters in a total of 57 seats in the Alberta legislature, at the last provincial election.

Albertans are also prejudiced against the C.C.F., since they elected only two C.C. F.ers to their legislature at the same election. Probably Mr. Roper thinks that the attitude of Albertans to the C.C.F. is also one of unreasoning prejudice too, but that is just a matter of opinion.

ARE WOMEN WORSE?

Are women more thievish than men? If figures supplied to a Vancouver newspaper by a large food-retailing company mean anything, they are.

Of 360 persons who were caught trying to get away with parcels which they had not paid for in this company's stores in the unstated period of time, no less than 335 were women. Young things, aged 17 to 25, were the worst offenders.

The store detective who provided the newspaper with its information explained that it was incorrect to refer to a well-to-do shoplifter by that title, and even worse to call one a thief. A well-to-do offender is called a kleptomaniac.

The difference between a kleptomaniac and a shoplifter, it would seem, is akin to the distinction between an agnostic and an ignoramus.

JUST FOLKS

APRIL FOOL

I've downed my share of salted tea.
For the I've phoned the zoo.
Today in what occurs to me
I'm sure there will be nothing new.
And should I kick an old silk hat,
Against a brick to bruise my foot,
I'll say when first I fell for that
That was nearly fifty years ago.

I'll give to all these tales belief
Your foot is torn! Your shoe's untied!
Oh, you have dropped your handkerchief!
Ask Isaiah—he'll, "April fool!" is cried.

Should I be told a tire if flat,
Concerned, I'll rush outside to see.
The first time that I fell for that
Was back in nineteen thirty-three.

I'll stoop to get the purse once more
That wouldn't be snatched away.
I've done that many times before.
It's just a trick they like to play.

I know their pranks. In one and all
By long experience I'm full!
But willingly for them I'll fall!
I'm rather fond of being fooled.

"I'll marry you provided you promise never to say 'I got my wife in an antique shop'!"

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

HIT 'EM AGAIN

One of America's most prominent social workers has given an opinion recently on the theory that property values would decline if a "non-Caucasian" moved in.

The law was on Sing's side (the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that non-Caucasian housing clauses are illegal), but Sing decided to lay a little democracy. He asked the neighbors to vote, said he would abide by the decision. Only one took place, and that 174 of the neighbors objected to Sing Sheng and his family. Only 28 did not.

The opinion which I find unreasonable is that of Dr. Local B. Granger, president of the Society for Constructive Work. Dr. Granger believes that Sing Sheng used poor judgment.

"You don't go around and ask for permission, and then shove it," he said. "That balloting in Southwood was a misapplication of the democratic idea.

"Racial prejudice is an expression of fear," he went on. "Sure, if you ask, 50 scared people if they are scared they'll say yes. But you can't prove that it is foolish is by psychological tests. Besides, Sing Sheng should have exercised his right and lived in such a way as to win his neighbors they were foolish."

* *

Dr. Granger is wrong, I feel, because the Sing case has, in fact, become a landmark in America. No other incident in recent years has encouraged the championing of equality. And, because of that, a nasty little subversive movement has become another milestone in the long road to decency.

Consider what would have happened if Sing and his family had simply moved in, as Dr. Granger suggests.

The neighbors had promised that they would make life miserable for them, hinting that their children, even the sins of the fathers, would throw garbage on the lawn and break their windows. Sing and his family would have been forced out. Another enemy group in the city would have been created.

Sing used democracy. Because of the result, I think we know that democracy is a good deal healthier and has more evidence available in Southwood.

* *

You may say that this is a purely American affair, but the case—and Dr. Granger's opinion—interests me. It demonstrates that the only way to overcome bigotry is by dramatizing it, by making an issue of any individual case that comes along.

In every Canadian city there are suburbs like San Francisco's Southwood. Whatever laws or bills of rights may be passed, covert "restricted" areas will continue until the hard bright light of publicity is thrown upon them. And that light is only possible when there is some individual Sing Sheng to make a public issue out of it.

In every Canadian city there are private businessmen's clubs and golf clubs which bar Jews and other minority groups. Yet very few citizens are aware of the stench of hypocrisy and intolerance that steams up from these places. They are unaware because no one dares make an issue of it. Let just one—just one!—member of such a club openly fight these unwritten laws and that much closer to the democratic dream.

It's no use being smugly that progress is being made, as Dr. Granger does. Of course progress is being made. But it is only made when the individual or the minority is there, prepared to stick out his neck.

* *

Here in Vancouver we have a fine example of this. Some of the students at the University of B.C., we are told, have failed to launch an attack against fraternities because of the supposed o snobbery but of racial discrimination.

People who think of the university have been saddened for years by the social record of fraternities and sorrorities. But again, it took militant action to do something about it.

A mass meeting of the student body, a petition, and a demand that these bigoted groups be expelled if they continue to bar students because of race or their constitutions. It is a healthy sign. We have come to believe that may be replaced by unwritten laws or "gentleman's agreements" But this movement is a sign that the majority of the student body is behind the minority.

The point to remember is that these fraternity boys don't know any better. They, as the children of the people in Southwood, they've been brought up to believe that they are automatically a superior breed to the coloured races. Only through ignorance and the suspicions of their fathers can we keep this "Colgotten" signs on their exclusive clubs.

These people can't always be educated to overcome their prejudices, however they preach. Only in that way can we expect to overcome that particular kind of poison.

Beating intolerance is a long and exhausting task of wearing down the old ideas, but, as every fighter knows, the best way to wear down an opponent is to hit him hard whenever he lowers his guard.

PEOPLE JUST WON'T BELIEVE IT

Eastern reader writes that he is 62 years of age and in excellent physical condition except that he has had a mild arthritis for nearly seven years. For the past two years. Following a suggestion in this column he has been taking calcium gluconate (190 mg. approximately 3 grains), dicalcium phosphate 800 mg. (approximately 4½ grains) and vitamin D 375 units, combined in the form of capsules, (sugar-coated pills like capsules), six of them every day, I suppose. It isn't work's while to take less.

The reader must have taken them for 50 days—he says he bought a bottle of 500 and has used 300 to date.

Six such capsules daily supply no more calcium, phosphorus and vitamin D than what is required for optimal nutrition.

The reader writes:

"All traces of pain have disappeared and I am almost certain that these supplements have turned the trick. I thank you from the bottom of my heart for the suggestion..."

So far everything is fine and dandy, I'd say. But I'm puzzled suddenly I hi' the ceiling and bounced on in I'm going to snarl and growl.

"Should I continue till I have used the remaining bottle by rules? Could too much calcium cause hardening of the arteries or deposits in the joints..."

I believe 6 such capsules twice a day or a dozen once a day for ten weeks can do no harm. In my opinion, else I wouldn't recommend it.

So, my friend, you haven't had the halt of it yet, and you are not sure that what you have gained merely because you have listened to and followed the calcium gluconate-dicalcium phosphate-vitamin D "chocolate in the arteries" or "deposits in the joints."

Calcium deposits in the artery walls, in and about the joints, and elsewhere in the body mark the advanced stage of physical degeneration. That is to say, when the body can no longer replace damaged or worn out cells with new, functioning cells it has to make the best repairs it can with new, functioning cells it has to make the best repairs it can with fibrous tissue and calcium. This is a normal process that for three days were blamed for the landslide, nine miles from Seattle.

At least 30 injured were taken to hospitals.

Rescue parties labored in pelting rain to free crushed bodies from the mountain.

Tons of rock, loosened by two days' downpour, struck the third-class passenger-car section of the train.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SLOW AND STEADY

The truce negotiations in Korea are testing the patience and tireless persistence not usually thought of as typical of our national character. A more popular theme often less practical, way of settling problems is the dramatic, the sudden, the spectacular, the ultimatum, the brilliant diplomatic triumph, the overwhelming military victory. Regardless of what we have thought of the Korean situation, our representatives have revealed our willingness to put aside impatience and work slowly and painstakingly toward our goal.

Most of the personal problems that we would like to solve quickly are very dramatically, too. Unfortunately, advertisers and makers of moving pictures are consistently encouraging us to hope for such quick solutions. Our financial woes may be relieved by winning a fortune or receiving a bequest from a long forgotten rich uncle. Our physique may be miraculously altered in three weeks by special exercises, even often less practical, ended by the right combination of soap and toothpaste.

But the wise man knows this is not so. We can change our lives or our fortunes, appearance, habits. We can become better and happier if we really want to. But the change will not come by our sitting and waiting for the miracle to transform us. Instead we must begin now, making small gain today and another tomorrow, mindful of our future goal to encourage us through our present difficulties. That way lies success.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Aircraft now carry water bombs to fight forest fire. They are paper bags of a special design containing several gallons of water each. A forest fire is usually is a pretty monstrous and amusing case against which a few paper bags full of water must seem a very trivial measure of control. But fire fighting in the forest is nowadays a highly scientific enterprise, with millions of government and private money back of it. And in all forest fighting, the greatest factor when a little water, dropped at some particular strategic point at the right moment, stops the fire.

No other public property pays as well as do the forests. Besides the national income from the forest industries such as pulp and paper, lumber and wood products it is the forests which bring 300 millions dollars worth of American tourists into Canada each year. They do not come to see paper pavements and buildings.

Only a few years ago, there numbered in the pulp and paper operators looked askance at the growing tourist industry in Canada. They did not fancy the intrusion of a lot of careless amateurs in the campers into the precious wilderness. But the tourist industry has brought roads and highways. And apart from the value of roads as a means of transporting wood from the forests, it is now recognized that they are the greatest factor in the control of forest fire. A thousand tourists may cause a dozen number of fires. But one lone camper, who starts a fire making an issue of any individual case that comes along.

In every Canadian city there are suburbs like San Francisco's Southwood. Whatever laws or bills of rights may be passed, covert "restricted" areas will continue until the hard bright light of publicity is thrown upon them. And that light is only possible when there is some individual Sing Sheng to make a public issue out of it.

In every Canadian city there are private businessmen's clubs and golf clubs which bar Jews and other minority groups. Yet very few citizens are aware of the stench of hypocrisy and intolerance that steams up from these places. They are unaware because no one dares make an issue of it. Let just one—just one!—member of such a club openly fight these unwritten laws and that much closer to the democratic dream.

It's no use being smugly that progress is being made, as Dr. Granger does. Of course progress is being made. But it is only made when the individual or the minority is there, prepared to stick out his neck.

* *

Here in Vancouver we have a fine example of this. Some of the students at the University of B.C., we are told, have failed to launch an attack against fraternities because of the supposed o snobbery but of racial discrimination.

People who think of the university have been saddened for years by the social record of fraternities and sorrorities. But again, it took militant action to do something about it.

A mass meeting of the student body, a petition, and a demand that these bigoted groups be expelled if they continue to bar students because of race or their constitutions. It is a healthy sign. We have come to believe that may be replaced by unwritten laws or "gentleman's agreements" But this movement is a sign that the majority of the student body is behind the minority.

The point to remember is that these fraternity boys don't know any better. They, as the children of the people in Southwood, they've been brought up to believe that they are automatically a superior breed to the coloured races. Only through ignorance and the suspicions of their fathers can we keep this "Colgotten" signs on their exclusive clubs.

These people can't always be educated to overcome their prejudices, however they preach. Only in that way can we expect to overcome that particular kind of poison.

Beating intolerance is a long and exhausting task of wearing down the old ideas, but, as every fighter knows, the best way to wear down an opponent is to hit him hard whenever he lowers his guard.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YOU CAN BE HAPPY

Ever since the world began human beings have been searching for personal happiness. There have been many theories proposed for its attainment, but the simplest seems to me those other than this: "Lend yourself to others." There is no such thing as selfish happiness."

The Good Samaritan, in the parable, found happiness by setting aside the road in a fellow creature who had fallen among thieves. Others had seen the poor man in trouble, but passed him by. Not so the one to whom he had decided to serve. What a thrill of happiness must have come to him when he found of that kindly man who did not only bind up the wounds of the victim of the Golden Rule. That always brings happiness.

There is peace and peace, beauty and inspiration at Walden Pond, but the distinguishing mark of discovery of joy that has brought an appreciation of nature and her immortal truths to millions of human beings all over the world was inspired by the revelations of Thoreau.

We create our own happiness within us, but that happiness will come from what we plant in others. The farmer who plants abundant harvest, but first he must plant the seeds in the good earth. We may live in a convenient alone, if we hope for happiness. We must continually be giving and sharing of our own selves and possessions.

I can understand why it is that naturalists are such happy people. They have a sense of beauty, revelations, mysteries, and discoveries. Every insect or animal is busy. The birds sing out their happiness. We can relax and wonder in the great out-of-doors. Nature is forever giving. It takes nothing from us. And if we are watchful we can learn lessons in nature that a whole library of books could not teach us so well.

If you would be superlatively happy you must do more than perform dance and yourself you can give away without missing anything.

Believe Scores Killed as Slide Crashes into Train

Lisbon, Portugal, April 1 (CP) — A landslide sent huge rocks crashing down on a railroad train and a bus during a violent storm yesterday.

First reports said more than a score of persons, including women and children, were killed. Many were injured.

The six-car electric train en route to Lisbon, was reported full of passengers. Heavy rains fell in a territory into which there is no easy access for men and equipment to fight it can do a thousand times more damage than the thousand hundred miles the roads. Paper bombs of water have their emergency use. But they cannot control lies in numerous roads.

PRESENTED WITH ORCHIDS

Galt, April 1 — (CP) — Orchid corsages, direct by air express from Hawaii, were the "piece de resistance" presented to Rotary Anns, guests of honor recently at the annual ladies' night dinner given them by their Rotarian husbands.

Belleville Presbyterial Woman's Missionary Society

The twenty-seventh annual meeting of the Belleville Presbyterial of the Woman's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada met in Grace United Church, Tweed, on last Thursday. The theme of the conference was "Stewardship." President, Mrs. T. D. McCallum, presided throughout the day and at various intervals read extracts from "The Fine Art of Using."

Mrs. Charles Johnston, president of the hostess church, graciously welcomed the 300 delegates representing 26 auxiliaries, four circles, 72 Mission Bands and 39 Baby Bands with a membership of over 5,500.

Speakers

Mrs. Gordon Watts, Toronto, Dominion Board Secretary of Christian Stewardship, was the guest speaker. Beside French, home missionary from Glace Bay, N.S., were the speakers for the day, and were each introduced by Mrs. A. Empey, past president of the Presbyterial. Mrs. Watts in her morning address on "Stewardship" gave many illustrations to show that stewardship may be practised in each life; and the money, when received from it, is the personal practise of Christian Stewardship. While Mrs. Watts was in Tweed one day with a couple of small children, one of them picked up a nasturtium and said, "What are those things?" the answer brought another question, "Why can't you make it take an oak tree to grow?" The W.M.S. has taken a very large but it has grown steadily. It has been planted in wonderful soil and it has all the strength of the oak. Pointe-aux-Trembles, a residential school for Protestant French Canadian girls, was founded in 1846 and now has an enrollment of 175 boys and girls from eight to 18 years of age. The testimony of many graduates as well as that of the principal, herself who found help and kindness when they needed it most, is a great challenge that now a new portion is being built to replace the old one. It has withstood the test of more than a century's wear.

Accept Christianity

The young Indian Princess reputed for her beauty, intelligence and high birth in British Columbia, a name of romance given for her, as was the custom in those early days, Gertrude Amelia Sparrow Simpson. She and her husband were commanded to go to Victoria by the Queen to take charge of wisdary for an impending ceremonial. While waiting through the streets in the city, she was attracted by the sound of cheerful singing and went in to a little small Christian Mission. It was the first time she had ever heard the Gospel, and she was so enthralled by the music that she felt her heart was full of joy at the meetings. They both became Christians and on their return stated that their return with the Gospel instead of the eagerly awaited whiskey was more than a very much enthusiasm. But they breathed a silent prayer of thanks, partly because of their important position in the village, and partly because of the least scale of lities of leadership.

And so Mrs. Thomas Crosby went to work in Port Simpson. A group of women in Halifax in the east sent the first $300 to the Crosby home in the west. Women and children gave what they real, sent their contribution across the Dominion to help their sisters.

Wonderful Century

"It has been a wonderful century we have lived in. It came in with the Victorian era and went out with electricity. It came in with the horse, it went out with the motor car. It came in with the quill pen, it went out with the multiplying machine. That is progress! We are living in the age of progress. Even if we don't like it we must accept it. The women did not have so many diversions in the last century. They did not live with the same sort of pressure as we live today. There was a sense of urgency but no sense of pressure."

"Today the large cities there is a great recognition that the thing we have been leaving out of our life and taking time about is Stewardship. God is the owner and we are the stewards. There are two things in our life we cannot get away from no matter where we go or what we do—adjustment and decisions. It is to our benefit to make these adjustments and decisions that our lives are fulfilled to us."

Mrs. Watts gave illustrations of adjustments—"When we cannot make adjustments we lose wonderful opportunities." She told of a young couple who came to Canada from England. Due to the fact that the wife did not make her adjustment, the husband who was capable and efficient became remorseful and neglient at his work and finally was discharged. A lost opportunity!

To Serve Humanity

A little girl of four became a polio victim. The mother was young and charming with gifts of drama. She had to reconcile the fact that her little girl was a cripple but she also had to her self-adjustment. When the child returned home with her crutches and sheet about the mother taught her the art of setting up her own theatre stage and using her dolls as great actors and actresses, the mother is using the talent God gave her to develop the talent of her crippled child, opening up a vision that she can serve humanity.

"In our W.M.S. every department of the work is important. Everyone who hold an office in their auxiliary should feel their part is most vital. It is just as much work as you want to make it. It is just as important as you want to make it. The chain is only as strong as the weakest link in it." Mrs. Watts recalled that great things can be achieved through stewardship of the talents. The supply work is an important task. Many will be much need of knitting and sewing in the near future.

She mentioned the effectiveness of the Port Workers meeting the immigrant ships and trains and the Community Friendship secretary can help these strangers make their adjustments to life in a new society itself has adjustments to make. Many of the most successful big homes on the lovely streets of larger cities have been converted into apartments and duplexes. And some people have had to learn to live contentedly in small, even cramped quarters sharing their homes with others. All this calls for church extension.

First Self—Then Money

"If we do not give these new people the church and Christ which is going to make them Christian. We have already reaped some of the unfortunate results when the church has recognized this need. The 'oak tree' of our W.M.S. has grown, has spread out all over the world. We have Christian men and women in responsible posts at home. We have the "Stewardship of Responsibility". It is our responsibility to continue to prayer and care for this great and glorious use by "Stewardship of Experience", talents, time and money; the crux of it all. First you give yourself completely to Christ and then you give your money."

The speaker, urged her congregation to let prayer be a 'force' in their lives. "Too often the prayer form is used, Just talk to Our Father. He will listen to the most humble prayer. In our perplexity He will show us the way; He will open our eyes to see things to do. He takes the dimness from our souls that we just give ourselves fully to Him."

Medium of Prayer

During the afternoon, Mrs. Watts held an open forum at which time she made suggestions, gave suggestions and answered questions that arose out of a fifteen minutes departmental conference. Again she stressed the stewardship of prayer. "If a Mission Band leader is needed get the auxiliary to form a prayer group for a stated period of time during the day and pray earnestly and sincerely and God will direct and answer your prayers. Other leaders may be secured through the same meditation prayer." She urged the senior women to recognize the potentialities of the younger groups, she also recommends reading W.M.S. literature and what a wealth of it there is.

Following the choir's lovely anthem, "Seek Ye the Lord", at the evening service, Mrs. Watts again spoke briefly. Each must come to the end of a wonderful day, a day each will treasure, as we received information, inspiration and fellowship." For a closing thought she said, "The solution to problems of life are 'Adjustments' and 'Decisions' and the more we are strong in a napkin; or we can take our talents and hold them as symbols of fame for ourselves; or we can put our whole self and soul in the joyous fellowship with Christ as Paul and the early Christians did, showing the magnificent possibility of all the elements of character of which might be the finest of womanhood. When we make our decisions under God's guidance we make no mistake."

Opportunities Unlimited

Miss Bessie French captivated her audience with stories of her work among the Canadian Indians. Her theme was "Opportunities Unlimited". She referred to Dr. M. C. MacDonald's book, "From Lakes to Northern Lights", and pointed out unlimited opportunities of making Christianity prominent in every nook and corner of the nation. "I plead that the church where it does not now exist. "What can we do? What have we done and which are we doing", she asked, "to respond to that challenging statement?"

Miss French worked with the Canadian Indians six years in an out-station in Glace Bay. Their homes were small, dirty and poor. In boarding schools and school homes much can be carried on and the matter of teaching the child to know Christ is the greatest aim in the world. Visiting in the homes, meeting the people of all ages, from babies to grandparents, a most interesting

In Canada's North

There are unlimited opportunities in the northern part of Canada. She gave an illustration of being unable to speak the language she did not speak, at the Gander airport but their gratitude was most demonstrative even for the slightest bit of kindness. There are opportunities unlimited in institutional work and many young teen-agers are being helped right many times while she assisted it there were responses to the calls.

Opportunities are unlimited in the hospitals. She mentioned being called one night to a hospital two and a half miles away to visit a sick women. She walked over the rough road in the black of late night to sit beside the patient, and found opportunities unlimited for silent recompense. The husband was amazed that the Protestant church rendered such service. Twenty-four nurses are needed for this kind of work in Canada immediately but only two are available.

The Oriental work in Canada also presents unlimited opportunities and she gave an illustration of organizing and conducting a vacation school among the 2,000 men, women and children salmon packers on the Skeena River, in British Columbia, where it was most difficult to obtain the good will of the manager of the sardining plant. In primitive living quarters great things were accomplished from year to year. So popular had the project become, that it is faced with the problem of lack of leadership. The speaker appealed for the prayers of her audience. "We do not tap that great resource of prayer sufficiently", she said. "We have opportunities unlimited and the opportunity of prayer is within the reach of all."

Miss French's evening address was built around the boy. Indian boy whose life was made richer and his reserve home made a better place because the W.M.S. provided a school where he could be taught Christian ideals. His father brought him when nine years of age, sixty miles, by canoe. The art of table setting, washing of face and hands, eating with knife, fork and spoons and sleeping in a bed was all new to him. But Thomas was most eager to learn and when the other boys were out playing he was in the class room. He would say "I wish there was no language but Cree." "Why is it we don't see the stars in the day time?" "Why do two and two make four? Why not five?" It was an awkward of thing for an Indian boy to reach the entrance class but Thomas determined to try and successfully started his Grade IX work. By this time he would be good help to his father and as was expected, one day the father came and took him away. But after some time Thomas came back. He wanted to go to High School. He was sent and each year he was successful. Finally he graduated and went back to his home reserve as a lay preacher and Worker. Miss French said, "But we were not half as proud of him as his father. His whole life had been changed and what a great loss had there not have been a church and school, no interested workers, no money to send Thomas on his way."

Stewardship of Time

The morning worship service was taken by Mrs. M. Denton, Belleville, who spoke on the "Stewardship of Time". She asked, "How much of our time is given in glorifying God; how much of our time is spent in discussing Him and His loving care over us? We ought to be able to do this when we meet our friends just as freely as we are able to discuss the every day events. We waken in the morning with a new day before us, new opportunities —a new day brings us a chance to do things, to do something worthwhile. Our Heavenly Father says to us that the demands of time are accommodated to our limited strength.

Christian Stewardship includes more than temporalities, it extended to the entire being, mental and to their whole life. We are responsible to God for our time as well as for our money. Only the use of our physical energies as well as for proper cultivation of mind and heart, but we must be borne in mind that personal consecration must precede purse consecration, self - consecration must go before wealth-consecration. Why did the Macedonian Christians, out of their pitifully small resources contribute far beyond their ability in order that other poor folk might have? Because they knew how much God had given Himself. "He became poor that they, through His poverty, might become rich."

John D. Mott writes, "With whole nations and races impoverished and oppressed, how startlingly incongruous it is for any Christian to waste time." How can we dawdle away the hours when great causes are waiting for our help. Let us take one long searchlight, inward look today and see how complete has been our stewardship; examine the faithfulness of our stewardship, that God might not only have all there is of us but that He might be able to use all He has, and that, in His own way, at His own time and for His own purpose, all is sacred, time lost can never be redeemed."

Stewardship of Talents

Mrs. Fred Montgomery, of Odessa, gave the afternoon worship service on "Stewardship of Talents". "Each one of us has been given a talent or gift of some kind or something. Are we using that gift as God would have us use it? Some have only one talent, some more and two or more. Our talents are a trust from God to be used in His service for the benefits of all mankind. Are we have wasted them we have lost the golden opportunity to be His Stewards. What we are is God's gift to us, what we make of our talents is our gift to God. Through prayer we enter into fellowship with Him. Pray not for great opportunities but rather to do the little things in a great way. God reveals Himself to us when we share our talents with others." She concluded her with a quotation, "May we live so that at last we will know the things for which we have lived shall never die."

Stewardship of Possessions

Mrs. George Greer, of Trenton, took the evening worship service which included the beautiful solo, "The Lord is My Shepherd", sung by Miss Doris Sills, of Trenton. The theme was "Stewardship of Possessions" and she read for a Scripture Lesson St. Mark 10:17-20. Mrs. Greer referred to the story in Isaiah of the pagan who gave his left-overs to God. She wondered if this were not true of today. "Do we not give to our God only what we can easily spare? Is He given priority in our lives or just the remnants of our time? In our country the Gospel is not opposed, it is just pushed aside. David Livingstone left the world a shining example of what it means to have a religion which is not custom but a passion for service. He gave not only his possessions but his whole life."

Training School

Mrs. Charles Shaver, of Cherry Valley, gave an informative quiz on the United Church Training School and was assisted by Misses Ann Anderson and Marguerite Tripp. This is the only school in Canada for training women for church work at home and abroad. All our women doctors, nurses and deaconesses are trained to study here before going out on their field, the missionary is a full time church worker of the W.M.S., the deaconess is one employed by a self supporting church. The course is of two years' duration and professional training degrees are given on graduation. A new building is required now because of having to vacate the present premises. The new building has been started and will accommodate 60-75 women all under one roof and near the university campus. Women of every congregation throughout the Dominion are asked to support the campaign for funds because it is believed it will be an opportunity and a thrill to have part in the building but said it is hoped girls from every congregation in the country will avail themselves of the advantages provided in the United Church Training School.

Mrs. Fred Bell, of Moscow, gave the benediction. The choir was given and had a splendid display of song.

Memorial Service

A beautiful memorial service presented by members of the Evening Auxiliary of Grace Church, Napanee, concluded the morning session. The service, which was conducted, was assisted by Mrs. N. Hutchinson and Mrs. W. Barnard. Mrs. H. D. Pollard sang the appropriate solo, "I Would Be True". The theme was given in three parts with meditations and prayers:

Mrs. Delbert Carman, Madoc, read the resolutions from the auxiliaries to be presented to the conference branch. Mrs. W. B. Hay, Bridge Street, Madoc, is Mission Band awards and the Johnstown Mission Band gave a Mission Band demonstration of what is accomplished in the work of the Mission Band. The children were present. A blind Chinese girl found sight. A lame boy found health and a disfigured headdress was made to walk gracefully. A poor and ostracized girl was lost but found her way. All were helped by the Missionary Band and were encouraged to go with the others to their countries and tell the people that "God is Love."

Colored Slides

Following the dinner Miss Mabel Willows, the North Hastings representative, showed many colored slides of the work on that field. W.M.S. missionaries have achieved a great deal in that part of the country. They have built, renovated and remodeled as they found necessary. Some of the appointments and the standard of living has been raised to a new degree. others who have served this President, and today we want to say a sincere 'thank you'".

Gen. Eisenhower In Tough Spot If He Wins

Washington, April 1 — (AP) — Should Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower be nominated for president, the range of topics he could discuss in campaign speeches could be governed by whether he retires from active duty or resigns his commission.

Some of the things he could talk about as "Mr. Eisenhower" would be different from matters he would be privileged to discuss as a retired officer of the United States army.

A retired officer continues subject to army regulations. An officer who resigns ceases to be subject to army regulations. He also forfeits retirement benefits.

Some possible issues in a campaign include subjects which bear security classifications. Should Eisenhower, as a retired general or officer of similar status, discuss subjects still classified he would be guilty of violation of army regulations.

But as a civilian he would be committing an infraction of army regulations. He would be guided only by propriety and his own determination of what he should not disclose.

In a decade of holding some of the most responsible military assignments in United States' history, Eisenhower has been privy to international and national decisions of transcendent importance.

How much should he tell of the communications and documents he saw, of the conferences he attended?

Either "Mr." Eisenhower or "General" Eisenhower will have the honor of being the become the Republican nominee.

An abundance of fine talent has been assembled for the April Contact Club's "Variety Night," which is to feature the outstanding all-male fashion show which is truly amazing in its comedy and artistry.

The ticket brought by Ann Jenkins, in charge of printing, were given to the ticket conveners, Allison Brunton and Thelma Saunders.

The girls, volunteering to sell cokes on Variety Night were: Dorothy Hallsey, Marjorie Bunnett, Hilda Smith, and Margaret MacInnis. It was decided to have a white elephant table and mystery gift package table at the June tea.

After the business period, an evening of Military Whist was enjoyed with nine tables in play, the winner being, Dorothy Sloan; Jean Adams, Thelma Saunders, Florence Lennox.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Ann Jenkins, Margaret Wiggins and Hazel Pugh.

Women's Activities

BRIDGE ST. WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION

The regular March meeting of the Women's Association was held in the church parlor last Friday, with the president, Mrs. Wray, presiding.

It was decided to hold the "Spring Tea" at the parsonage in May.

Miss Clazie announced that any new or used clean clothing, excepting shoes would be accepted at the church office for the W.M.S. sponsored "Clothing for Korea".

The program was under the direction of Mrs. Grills' and Mrs. Tice's group. Mrs. Phillips led the devotional based on Matt: 5:1-20.

Mrs. Templer, of Holloway St. Church, favored with two songs, appropriate to the Lenten season, "When Jesus Came" and "His Loving Father". Mrs. Guthridge accompanied her at the piano.

Mrs. Finkle gave a short talk on the life and work of Dr. Albert E. Cliffe. While trained as a chemist and nutrition expert, Dr. Cliffe, although a layman, now devotes his entire time to furthering the Gospel as a practical faith in practice. Many chronic illnesses are due to fear, resentment, jealousy and hate, of the individual. "Learn the truth and the truth shall make you free", Albert should look more for the good in everyone and not the faults as all sins so prone to do. Mrs. Finkle recommended the reading of Dr. Cliffe's two books "Lessons in Living" and "Let Go and Let God."

Appreciation of the Association to Mrs. Templer and Mrs. Finkle was expressed by Mrs. Adsett.

Refreshments were served following the closing of the meeting.

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The March meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S., West Huntingdon, was held at the home of Mrs. A. Bassall, was well attended.

The Scripture, John 4:1-40, was read by Mrs. J. C. Hills and a few timely thoughts on the meaning of "Lent" were given by Mrs. Bassall, Living Water

Mrs. Reuel Wilson gave an interesting and inspiring address on the keyword "Water"—basing her remarks on John 4:14.

"But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up unto everlasting life".

Bread and water are two daily necessities of life. Just as water quenches thirst and is also used as cleansing so the living water is necessary to spiritual life, and cleanses the heart from all sin.

Mrs. Wilson told the story of Jesus asking the woman of Samaria for a drink of water. Because of the long standing feud between the Jews and Samaritans, picture the woman's astonishment, her cleansing and running to tell others of Jesus, the Christ, as the Fruit of the Spirit.

The fruits of the Holy Spirit are all manifested in a spirit-filled life. Once one has tasted of the living waters, it forces one to tell others of His love and forgiveness.

A solo "It is No Secret" was given by Mrs. John McInroy. A duet was also conducted by Mrs. Lindsay Sills. Miss Beatie Fleming told of the work of the Mission Bands and Explorer groups in Kingston Presbyterial and of the meeting to be in the church at Miss Lily McArthur, Children's Work secretary, on April 3rd.

Business relating to the meeting was dealt with.

Miss Beatie Fleming on behalf of W.M.S. members thanked Mrs. Hassall for opening her home and Rev. W. H. V. Wade closed the meeting.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Hassall, assisted by Mrs. John Wright and Mrs. J. Hassall.

Wellington on the Lake

THE SUMMONS OF THE SPRING

Today the wild geese passed to northland flying,
Their cheering honk, honk! thrilling all the plain,
Oh! sweet the sound above the March winds sighing—
A message that the earth will bloom again.

They heard the call while in the southland faring,
And hastened north on eager, joyful wing,
Oh! that my heart their glad impulses sharing
With them obey the summons of the Spring.

—Helen B. Anderson.

Wellington.—March at time of writing is favoring us with bright sunny days. Boys on bikes and some playing ball, girls with skipping ropes and some on roller skates, farmers with trucks hauling silage home, and housewives revealing the house-cleaning fever—these are among the evidences of the coming of spring. But the most cheering signs of spring are the songs of robins, the cry of the killdeer and the honk! honk! of the wild geese as they make their way to their summer home.

The Women's Association of Wellington United Church met at the home of Mrs. Clifford McFaul, on Tuesday afternoon for the March meeting. The president, Mrs. H. Nash, was in the chair. There was a large attendance of members. All enjoyed the interesting program. An invitation was received from Rose Hall W.A., to attend their meeting on April 9. The hostess served refreshments at the close.

Mr. D. K. Redner, Centre Ameliasburg, was in Wellington on Thursday and called on Mrs. W. H. Anderson and Mr. Harry Clemenson. Mr. Redner is the author of those interesting historic articles on Prince Edward which appearing in The Picton Gazette.

Mrs. C. Wannamaker spent a day recently with her daughter, Mrs. Howard Palmer, Consecon Lake and assisted in a quilting under the auspices of the local Women's Association. A pot-luck dinner was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Luffman are enjoying a new television set in their home Maple Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Morton and Mrs. James Morton, Melville; and Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Clapp, Hillier, were recent callers at Mrs. W. H. Anderson's.

Mr. C. Wannamaker of Salem, Ameliasburg, who is spending some time in Georgia recovering his health, writes an interesting letter from the sunny South. He writes in part:

"Today is very hot here like our summer heat in Prince Edward County. The sun is shining bright in a blue and cloudless sky. I am awakened in the early morning by the singing of a mocking bird in the tree outside my window.

"Pecan trees have been in bloom for more than a week. The rolling countryside is dotted here and there with beautiful groves of southern pine, one sees a farmer plowing with a single plow and a team of mules getting ready for a crop of cotton. The soil here is very red, unlike anything ever seen in Ontario, badly run down with too much planting of cotton. I have been here twenty days and my health is improving every day. I have made many friends both among white and colored people."

I agree with the writer on the friendliness of the people of the south.

On the evening of Sunday March 23, Miss Mary Lumb and her niece, Miss Gladys Lumb, entertained at the tea-hour at their home on Bay Avenue, in honor of Miss Mary Lumb's birthday. A delicious tea was enjoyed and a fine birthday cake decorated with candles. Guests present included Mrs. W. H. Anderson and Miss M. Blakely. All wished Miss Lumb many happy returns.

Harmony Club Holds 'Intermediate Night'

Mrs. Leonard Dandeneau, president of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association, was guest speaker, who spoke on the origin and advantages of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association and of its importance to parents when selecting a music teacher for their children, as much harm may be done in a wrong beginning.

Mrs. Dandeneau also gave a resume of Mr. Geen's (Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto), talk on the art of practice which he gave to teachers and parents while in last visit to this city.

Refreshments were served later, resulting in a close a most enjoyable evening.

Age Has No Terror For Edna Hopper

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York, (AP)—Edna Wallace Hopper, the loest of Broadway at the turn of the century, is still fighting a winning battle against woman's worst enemy: age.

She is one of a quartet the theatre of another century produced—beautiful ladies who believed that eternal youth was possible, and who spent less proved it.

Elsie De Wolfe Mendl, in turn stage, interior decorator and international hostess, was 84, when she died last summer at Versailles.

Fanny Ward died of old age in January. (She may have been 79 —or 84.

Two hardy perennials remain: Miss Hopper and Mistinguette, France's lady with the famous legs.

The two women, dissimilar in every other respect, are alike in two things. They seemingly defeat age by simple denial of it, ignoring it. Secondly, they won't tell their ages.

An old theatrical record states that Miss Hopper was born on Jan. 1, 1874. But she equally good source makes her 88.

Whatever her age, Miss Hopper isn't discussing it.

"People have been guessing and saying 1874," she said. "I just let them go ahead. All records of my birth were destroyed in the San Francisco fire."

Tiny and bird-like, Miss Hopper has the figure, unrelieved hands and legs and agility of a young woman. She lives quietly in a mid-town Manhattan apartment. Six days a week she goes to the office of Wall Street Journal, where in a full day's work she takes care of her investments.

Her secret? she says: "It's leading a normal, full life. I keep busy. I take exercise. I've never smoked. I don't drink. I eat sensible things—lots of protein—no fats. I get to bed early during the week—not later than 9:30, and I get up at 6:30. Weekends I entertain or am entertained. I go to the theatre a lot."

Dogwood Season

By TRACY ADRIAN

THESE gay and whirling petticoat-wise circles are the latest thing with the younger set this year. This one consists of a circle skirt and a matching camisole slips bodice both made of pink poplin.

A life size felt branch of blooming dogwood climbs from the bottom of the skirt to the top of the bodice. The top of the bodice and hem of skirt are edged in a row of zic rac and a tiny band of felt. A wide cummerbund clips the waistline and makes for a sleek silhouette. All in all, this party dress is as fresh as a breeze and as romantic as a southern moon.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE UNDER-RATED HER RIVAL

It's hard for a person who is naturally honest, straight-forward, unselfish and loving to realize that not everybody is like that. For qualities such as these are simple and effective, while their opposites are unusually complicated and devious. Hence the possessor of the first is unable to think in the same terms as the party of the second part, taking it for granted — until shocked into disillusionment by some stunning blow — that honesty will be met with honesty, kindness with kindness, justice with justice.

The truth of this unhappy fact is brought home once again in a letter which tells a bitter story. The writer is one more woman whose selfless generosity of character left her totally unequipped to cope with its opposite in another woman—and in the man who is her husband. For had she not instinctively assumed that her own inherent loyalty, sense of honor and generosity would normally find their counterpart in others, she would not have so under-rated her rival's — and her husband's — capacity for double dealing.

Here is the story as she tells it:

"Ten years ago, I met my husband. At the time, he was married, but his wife had left him with two children to care for and had gone away with another man. So he had taken his children and gone to stay with his mother, with whom he had been living for two years before I met him.

"I loved him from the start, and after going with him for two years, he decided to get a divorce. Two years after that, we were married. In the meantime, he had gone into the air force, and every cent of my allotment check I saved, putting the money along with my own savings, as I was working then and still am. When he got his discharge, we bought a home — I had enough money to make the down payment and some left over for furniture and the children came to live with us. He had a lot of debts left over from his first marriage and I helped him pay these off, also.

"We all got along fine, and I kept on working to help out with the household expenses. The children were then 12 and 10, and they loved me and I loved them. My husband says I am better to them than some real mothers are to their children. We now have our home almost paid for, and the children are very happy."

You might think, wouldn't you, that any man would be so grateful to a wife like that as devotedly, so eager to show his appreciation of all she had done that he would be watching every moment of the day for a chance to do something for her.

But was he? Not at all.

Once he had shifted his responsibilities to her willing shoulders, he felt free to play around a bit. So he began going out with a girl he met at the place where he worked — a girl whose husband had gone off with another woman, leaving his wife and their baby to shift for themselves.

Oh, of course they had something in common. The fact that both of them had been given the same sort of deal by their respective mates would naturally awaken an interest in each other. But should that necessarily mean that the two of them should join forces in wrecking the home and happiness of the kind of wife who had come to the man's rescue?

When his wife first heard about the situation — through the busy gossipers — she made a big effort to take it in stride.

"I'm not the jealous type," she says, "so I just asked my husband about it, not angrily, but just to tell him people were talking. He said then that the girl didn't mean a thing to him because he loved me."

When a year had passed, during which the girl turned up "every place we went," the wife asked her husband "how come." To this he replied that they were in love with each other. He told her to speak to the girl about it if she liked, and she did. She told the interloper "that she was only doing harm to herself, every one else and that I'd never give him a divorce because I loved him." All she got in return from the girl was notification that she was planning to divorce her wandering husband and that "she might leave town, and if my husband left too, I'd know where he had gone."

So that's how things stand now. The girl hasn't left town yet, but the husband spends all possible time with her. He tells the wife who has so sacrificed herself for him and his children that she is "perfect"; that "he has no fault to find with me at all, but that he just doesn't love me any more and he is only staying with me on account of the children." As for the children, "they know of our quarrel and they say if he leaves, they are going to stay with me."

In concluding her pitiful tale, she puts three questions. Here they are, with my answers:

"If he loves this other woman so much, wouldn't the decent thing be for him to leave now, instead of maybe later? Yes, unless he can make up his mind to break with her, however much he may believe he "loves" her, and put her completely out of their lives and out of his conversation and even thoughts. I doubt if he has the decency to do this.

"Am I wrong in refusing him the divorce he has asked for?" To my mind, yes. Not for his sake, but for her own. For if he really wants to go, she will never find any happiness in forcing him to stay, and if she really wants him back, letting him go is the quickest way to make him realize what he has given up. Ten to one, he'll be on the doorstep before long, begging to be taken in. For if he doesn't tire of his girl friend himself, she'll probably make his life miserable with her jealousy and suspicions, eternally expecting him to be as faithless to her as he was to his wife.

"Do you think it would do any good to speak to her parents, with whom she is living?" No, I don't think it would be a great mistake. All it could do would be complicate the problem by increasing the number of people involved.

If he wants to go, she will be far better off if she puts no obstacles in his way. She has shown she has character and grit. With these, she can mend her life no matter what happens.

Food for Thought

By Mary Moore

Foolproof Old-Fashioned Jelly Roll

Your facetious family may think it is April Fool's Day for them—but you, you poor old Jill-of-all-trades—are not permitted the privilege of fooling over their precious dinner. You have to come through with foolproof food.

For the same reasons that you might decide to do it—because there were plenty of eggs in the refrigerator and because the eggman was due to arrive next day and because eggs are cheap—I made a four-egg old-fashioned jelly-roll.

We had four people for dinner and they ate the works. I had forgotten that homemade jelly roll could taste so good.

It seems like such a tricky little number for just an ordinary homebaker to manipulate, but believe me girls, I think it is foolproof.

Don't be timid about this recipe —for I have given careful details that even a green bride can follow with confidence.

Clear the decks for Operation Jelly Roll.

FOUR-EGG JELLY ROLL

One and one-half teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 3-4 cup cake flour, 3-4 cup sifted sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, about 1 cup any flavor jelly or even jam, 4 eggs, sugar.

In rather large bowl put the measured baking powder and salt, then the eggs. Stand this over a slightly smaller bowl containing hot water. The top bowl should be touching the water a little. Beat with rotary or electric beater until eggs are as light as possible—about 10 minutes. Now while beating add the sugar gradually until the mixture becomes light colored and thick. Remove the top bowl from hot water.

Sift the flour over the mixture and gradually fold it in. Add vanilla. Butter a pan which is approximately 9x13 inches. Size of pan is important because of exactness of baking time and tradition, at shape of jelly roll. Now line buttered pan on bottom within 1-2 inch of long edges with buttered wax paper. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for 13 or 14 minutes or until cake just shrinks from sides of pan. Have ready a tea towel sprinkled generously with icing sugar. Immediately turn cake out on towel. Quickly cut off long edges which are crisp and would prevent cake having a smooth appearance at ends. Spread at once with any flavor of jelly or lemon filling, and roll up at once. Wrap towel around it and cool on cake rack.

LEMON FILLING FOR JELLY ROLL

This is good, of course, for filling for layer cakes too.

It must be made before cake is made because it must be cold before spreading on hot cake.

In top of double boiler mix 5 tablespoons flour, 3-4 cup sugar, and 1-8 teaspoon salt. Stir into them 1 egg. Now add 1-2 cup hot water and stir over boiling water until thick, then cook for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Remove from heat, add 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1-4 cup lemon juice and 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind. Stir well and chill.

For extra rich cake and extra special occasion fold 1-2 cup cream whipped, into the cold lemon filling before spreading on cake.

BEAUTY

HELEN JAMIESON

Correct Dress Disguises Overweight.

If some fat women didn't try to make themselves look thinner they wouldn't look so fat. Just as some of the old girls look older when they use the wrong means to try to look young. One should dress according to one's figure and according to one's age.

For the plump body to be squeezed into skin-tight attire is to reveal every bulge and every curve. It is bad enough when the adipose tissue has been evenly distributed, but more often fat cells form colonies on one portion of the feminine frame, while other areas are normal.

Some women are too busty, but have neat legs. Others become hippy while the bust may not even be normal. There are those who are short-waisted and long-legged; while others are the other way round.

It is possible for the lines and colors of attire to make these women appear to have more pleasing lines. A fashionable dressmaker knows how to solve these problems. That is how she won her laurels, made her name, became an authority.

Correct corseting is important. A foundation that is too tight at the waistline, particularly over the abdomen and diaphragm, pushes the flesh upward, increasing the apparent size of the bust area, at the same time, making it appear larger by contrast with the constricted waist and hipline. The properly fitted corset molds the figure into unbroken lines — smooth, flowing curves instead of shelves. It allows the flesh to assume a nearly normal position, but restrains it to smooth, fine contours.

It is important that the bra be the right kind; an extreme uplift may make the large bust seem more conspicuous, and that is certainly not desirable, especially when the rest of the body is fairly slender.

A narrower skirt will emphasize the upper part of the figure. The heavyweight should wear skirts with a bit of flare. Horizontal lines are favorable for the illusion of slenderness.

Soft, loose, graceful collars are particularly becoming to plump necks. Round lines give accent to the short neck; the V line makes for a more slender appearance.

A light colored blouse or bodice, worn with a dark skirt, makes the upper part of the body seem larger and heavier than the lower.

An entire dress or coat of one color tends to equalize the proportions of the figure.

How to address an Easter Card to the clergy

To a Protestant minister with out a scholastic degree:

The Reverend John Ely Brown

To a Protestant minister with a scholastic degree:

The Reverend Dr. (or The Rev. Dr.) Paul Robbins (or The Rev. Paul Robbins, D.D.).

To a minister and his wife:

The Rev. (or The Rev. Dr.) and Mrs. John Sargent.

To a Roman Catholic priest:

The Reverend Joseph Richard Kenny.

(This is the correct form of address also for Greek Orthodox priests and Anglican priests who are addressed as "Father ——.")

The initials of the order may be added:

The Reverend Joseph Richard Kenny, S.J.

To a Monsignor:

The Right Reverend Monsignor Joseph D. Murray.

(Or "The Very Reverend Monsignor," depending on his rank.)

Important Note: The word The should always be written before the word Reverend used with the name of a minister or priest or rabbi. Never Reverend Brown. Reverend Dr... The Right Reverend. The Very Reverend. Why? Because "Reverend" is not a title. . .not a title like "Mr." or Dr."

It is an adjective, an adjective of courtesy used in addressing those in spiritual profession. So, when you address the envelope, never write "Reverend John Reverend (or The Rev.) John Peter Smith.

Wife includes Easter greetings from her husband, in overseas service

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to send out some Easter cards. My husband is in the service overseas. Would it be at all proper for me to include my husband's name in the signature?

—Beatrice M.

Yes! Please do this. for naturally he would want to be included in the greeting, just as he would if he were home. You might add a message worded somewhat like this: "Even though Tom is so far away, I know, and you and Bill will know, too, that he would want me to include his Easter greetings with mine. So . . .our greetings, our best wishes, and our devoted love to you both. Tom and Beatrice.

(This might be a wonderful time, too, for you to send your husband's address to those to whom you are sending cards, asking, "I'm not sure that you have Tom's latest address. . .here it is, and do, please, write him. Any hope he would be to have a note from you!"

Cobra Venom Donors Put On Weekly Show in Snake-Pit

Bangkok, April 1 (CP)—The King Cobra reared its head, spread out its hood and hissed.

Lat Tapnol, 28-year-old snake handler at Bangkok's Pasteur Institute did what mothers sometimes do to naughty children. He slapped it briskly on the head. The hissing stopped, but the hood stayed open.

As spectators gasped over the snake-pit barricade, Lat slowly extended a hand, grasped the reptile gently two feet below the mouth, rubbed it slowly with his fingers, then raised it. The hood subsided slowly.

Gradually, hand over hand, Lat worked his grasp toward the cobra's head. Then he quickly seized the nine-footer behind the jaws, expertly planted a bare foot on its tail and forced the jaws wide open.

His chief, 47-year-old Kamchat Byrchai, chief handler at the institute, inserted a circular glass slide between the cobra's jaws. Yound fat forced them down upon it.

A clear, colorless liquid squirted onto the slide—enough to fill an eyedropper and enough to kill a man or an elephant.

The venom extracted from a week from the milk. The milk is picked about four inches down the cobra's throat. Kamchat squeezed the liquid in. Lat worked his fingers over the cobra's gullet, helping down the milk.

EXTRACT SNAKE VENOM

Lat Tapnol, 25-year-old snake handler at Bangkok's Pasteur Institute, holds a number of Brandred Krait snakes from which venom is to be extracted. The extracted venom is used to treat patients who have been bitten by any of Thailand's 13 species of poisonous snakes. There are 14,000 cases of snakebite in the country a year. (CP PHOto).

Weekly Chore

Venom is extracted once a week from the cobra's milking cobras 127 common cobras, 12 branded kraits and 12 vipers in the institute pits. They are fed twice weekly with rats of smaller species are left in the pens as food.

Kamchat, here 15 years, has been bitten once only. He says it was his own fault.

"It was a hot day and the perspiration running down my forehead got in my eyes. I was holding a snake with my two hands and as I shook my head to clear my eyes I frightened it. It bit my arm."

Lat, here only six years, has been bitten three times.

Thailand has five species of snake, including the python which here reaches 18 feet in length. There are 13 kinds of poisonous snake, commonest of which is the King cobra which moves rapidly along the ground, head reared several feet. The demand for the common cobra's meat as food has reduced its numbers.

Kamchat maintains that usually a snake won't attack a man unless it is frightened, nonetheless there are 14,000 cases of snakebite a year in Siam, and the Pasteur Institute's serum goes to treatment centres throughout the country.

The institute also produces anti-cobra serum. In this centre alone more than 100 patients are treated daily. Killing of animals is contrary to the Buddhist religion and dogs that elsewhere would be rounded up and killed are left at large.

Treatment at the clinic is free, but patients are expected to offer payment if they can afford it.

Sutton and Kling Guilty of Robbery

New York, April 1 (AP) —An all-male jury today found Willie (The Actor) Sutton and Thomas (Scup) Kling guilty of the $64,000 robbery of a Queens bank two years ago.

The jury returned its verdict at 5.45 a.m. EST after deliberating more than 10 hours.

Kling and Sutton, a fortious bank robber and jail breaker were found guilty on counts of robbery, burglary, assault, and grand larceny.

They were remanded for sentencing at an unspecified date.

Sutton, 51, and Kling, 45, were charged with holding up the Sunnyside branch of the Manufacturers Trust Company in Queens on Mar. 9, 1950.

Each of the defendants faces up to 30 years in prison. Taking into account their previous records, the penalty could be considerably stiffer.

Malsiained Innocence

Sutton and Kling were accused of pulling off the robbery with John De Venuta, 37, who won a separate trial at a later date by turning state's evidence and testifying against Sutton and Kling.

Both Sutton and Kling maintained their innocence.

Sutton, for five years the nation's most sought bank robber and jail breaker, was arrested in Brooklyn last Feb. 18 after a young clothing salesman spotted him on a subway train and pointed him out to police.

The salesman, 24-year-old Arnold Schuster, was shot and killed outside his Brooklyn home on Mar. 8.

Police, still seeking the slayer, took extraordinary security measures at the trial. They fear the killer might be a pathological hero-worshipper of Sutton.

For Sutton, the jury's verdict is academic. When arrested, he pleaded guilty to the illegal possession of a gun. It was his fourth felony, and under New York State law a fourth offender faces life imprisonment.

Another Outbreak Foot-and-Mouth Disease Confirmed

London, April 1 (CP) —Another outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Britain has been confirmed in East Sussex, it was learned yesterday.

Under the strict policy of destroying diseased animals, the 132 sheep and 107 cattle involved in the outbreak were slaughtered. This brings the total of British farm animals killed since last November to more than 15,000.

Agriculture Ministry officials, meanwhile, are reported investigating the possibility that the spread of the disease in southern and eastern England has been caused by migrating birds.

One theory is that the Yellow Wagtail, now crossing Europe from West Africa, picks up the virus from feeding troughs and pens on the continent and transmits it on landing on English fields.

The Lancashire countryman calls the wagtail the "cow bird" because of its habit of hovering around the hooves of cattle in search of flies.

Traffic in Bangkok Proves Nightmare to Western Visitor

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Bangkok, Thailand, April 1 — (CP)—The air hangs heavy in the temple of the emerald Buddha.

From without comes the tinkle of vari-toned bells. The temperature is 95 degrees, the humidity 100 per cent.

But over the 500-year-old Buddha, carved from a solid piece of jasper, is a jewelled cape reaching from his neck to below the crossed legs—the idol's "winter" costume. He has other costumes for hot and rainy seasons.

This is a hot country, and they say the best time to come is December.

That's a cheap place to live. A white sharkskin suit, made to measure with two pairs of trousers, is produced by a tailor in 48 hours for $30. Light cotton-mix shirts cost $2 each and while canvas-topped shoes $2. The oriental hotel's table d'hote dinner is $1.25. There are cocktasnts and coffee for 30 cents each morning at the same place.

But it is neither the warmth nor the economy of Bangkok that melts the visitor's heart. That is done by the people. Their manner is serenity, charm and directness of approach that seem unique in the east.

Travellers call the Siamese the "French of the Orient." (The Japanese are likened to the British and the Koreans the Irish.)

When the Siamese says "hello" he doesn't bow like other Orientals. He clams his own hands, palms together and fingers outstretched, and smiles his greeting. An acquaintance or a friend will be greeted with the hands clasped somewhere between the waist and the forehead, depending on the degree of respect or feeling but before Buddha the clasp is above the forehead.

Gives Straight Answer

The Siamese gives a straight answer to a question. He isn't servile, obsequious or fussed up in social protocol like the Japanese. It's refreshing to be in a place where the foreigner is treated as a man and not as an overlord.

But Bangkok traffic! Sort of a midway roller-coaster there isn't a thrill to match it. Tokyo and Rome aren't in the same league. A Paris taxi driver is a softie by comparison.

Driving is by the left and there is no speed limit. Commonest and most popular form of transportation is the samlor—a foot-powered tricycle cab in which the front wheel does the steering and the engine is suspended between the rear wheels. It trickles to drive than it looks.

Driver Calls the Tune

In Bangkok traffic it's the samlor driver who calls the tune. He hugs the middle of the road. If he moves over he will under no circumstances go so far as to cross the street-car tracks, which are at the extreme left of one side of the street with "up" and "down" services on one track and double-track islands at intervals for passing.

Streets are wide and traffic usually moves two abreast with passers in each direction trying to make it three. The result is havoc, noise and shattered nerves.

Actually, accidents are few—thanks to the samlor. Everyone's afraid of hitting one, because their drivers have an understanding. The motorist who damages a samlor and doesn't stop, or the one who stops and doesn't accord the right treatment, is not for further reference. Within a few days he is likely to be waylaid by a representative samlor group and taught to mend his ways. The same goes for pedestrians who try to pay less than the proper fare.

Most samlor drivers are young men, for the heavy vehicles are hard on the heart and a driver must look for easier work by the time he is 30.

Bangkok's speed of traffic that few are hurt in traffic accidents. They are usually killed.

Back-Bencher Suggests Plan For Revising Provincial Aid

Toronto, April 1 — (CP) — A government back-bencher suggested to the Ontario legislature yesterday a plan for revising provincial aid to municipalities.

Elmer Brandon (PC - York West) said he felt municipalities would be happy to pay the whole cost of direct services such as police and fire protection if the province would assume total responsibility for education, hospitals, welfare and relief.

At present, responsibility for all these lies with the municipalities, although the province pays grants.

Mr. Brandon, speaking in the budget debate, said municipalities welcome grants, which next year would total $18,000,000 above last year's figure.

But costs such as education and welfare were a "perpetual headache" to municipal councils, which had to pay for them from taxes on local real estate.

Opposition during yesterday's study of labor department estimates came solely from the only communist member; J. B. Salsberg (Lab-Prog-Toronto St. Andrew).

Laws Being Used

Mr. Salsberg said the laws are being used "by an increasing element in industry" to delay certification of unions and settlement of contract disputes.

Referring to a handful of newspaper clippings reporting union criticism, he regretted "Many people in the province are coming to the conclusion that important sectors of industry are not prepared to bargain in good faith."

Labor Minister Daley countered that delaying tactics were "not the attitude of most of the employers in the province."

Opposition should be a delaying process, Mr. Daley said. "While prosperities are going ahead, nobody is hurt." Strikes were avoided and the final agreement usually provided retroactive pay increases.

Mr. Salsberg also charged that the government did not see fit to defend its Labor Relations Act when Mr. Justice G. A. Gale quashed an order of the Labor Relations Board certifying the Toronto Newspaper Guild at the Globe Printing Company, Toronto.

Attorney-General Porter said it was not the government's duty to defend the legislation "The court is there to see what it means."

A bill introduced by acting Highways Minister Dunbar will open the way for United States trucks to carry loads in bond across the province.

Trucking companies in Michigan have urged such a step, which would permit them to cut more than 10 miles from the trip to Buffalo by going across southern Ontario rather than around the south shore of Lake Erie.

Premier Tito Warns West On Trieste Issue

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, April 1 (AP) — Premier Tito warned the western powers today that they may "lose the sympathy of our peoples" by supporting Italian territorial claims in the free territory of Trieste.

From the floor of the parliament he called upon Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi to answer the question: "Do you wish to be friends or enemies?" He served notice that Yugoslavia never will accept a dictated settlement of the Trieste dispute in favor of Italy.

Simultaneously he demanded joint administration of Trieste by Yugoslavia and Italy and "protection" for the Yugoslav minority in Italy.

Trieste, a pre-war port of Italy, now is governed in one section by British and United States military authorities and in another smaller section by Yugoslavia. Italy and Yugoslavia are disputing the future of the Adriatic port and its surrounding territory.

Britain, the U. S. and France urged in a 1948 declaration that Trieste be returned to Italy. At that time Yugoslavia was a member of the Moscow-dominated cominform. Since Tito's break with the Russians, the Allies have not pushed the issue.

Last week, however, after pro-Italian demonstrations broke out in Trieste and spread to Italy, the western Big Three agreed to discuss with Italy the sharing of that zone's administration. The Yugoslavs objected.

Jewish Party Claims Authorship Of Bomb Attempt

Paris, April 1 (Reuters) — Paris newspapers today received a copy of a typed letter purporting to be from a "Jewish partisans' organization" claiming it was responsible for last week's parcel-bomb attempt on German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

The letter was dated Zurich, Switzerland, and had been mailed in Geneva.

It said: "Our comrades carried out their first action on German soil on March 27."

"A book containing explosives was sent to Dr. K. Adenauer, Chancellor of the people of murderers," the letter added.

"The German people must know that there can be no pardon for their crimes. We shall pay them back all they deserve for their crimes. We have just sent them the first gift: others will follow."

An unidentified man handed the "book bomb" to two boys to mail to Adenauer in Munich last week. The boys were suspicious, took it to a police station. There it went off, killing an explosives expert and injuring four other persons.

Police Believe Truck Ran Over Man Twice

Aurora, Ont., April 1 — (CP) — Police said today that what was believed to be the same truck which ran over Norman Sheridan Saturday night returned to the scene of the accident and ran over him again.

The 37-year-old carpenter from nearby Snowball died of his injuries.

William Harrison, 32, of Aurora, has been charged with manslaughter and drunken driving.

Sheridan had obtained a job 3 days ago after being unemployed three months. He was married and the father of three children. He was walking two miles to his home after shopping for new tools.

Sheridan was struck twice within 10 minutes as he lay on the Aurora side road. The second collision was in view of a witness, Stanley Walker of Aurora, who said he tried to wave the oncoming truck to a halt. When the truck did not stop, Walker said he jumped clear and saw it crash into his own car, then swing on to the road again and pass over Sheridan's body.

Police said the driver of the truck which struck Sheridan proceeded for a quarter of a mile, turned the vehicle around to see what had happened, only to pass over the body a second time.

Canadian Dollar Highest Since '34

New York, April 1 (AP) — The Canadian dollar continued its upward climb today, trading here at its highest level since December, 1934.

By mid-morning it commanded a price of $1.01 3/16 in United States currency, after opening at a premium of 1 1/16. The closing price Friday was $1.01.

New York trading quarters said today's rise appeared to stem from intensified European and Canadian buying.

Earlier, the growing strength of the Canadian dollar had been attributed to the stepped-up tempo of U.S. investments in Canadian enterprises.

Wage Talks Postponed

New York, April 1 (AP) — The steel industry and the United Steelworkers (C.I.O.) today postponed indefinitely their wage talks.

The union has threatened a country-wide strike April 8 unless it gets the 17 1-2-cents-an-hour wage raise recently recommended by the War Stabilization Board.

The union was to have met with six major steel producers here today for the first time since the U.S.S.B. handed down its controversial findings in the bitter dispute.

An industry spokesman said the indefinite postponement was asked by John Stevens, vice-president of United States Steel.

Two Nurses Aides Prevented Panic Among Cripples

Stouffville, April 1 — (CP)— Two nurses aides Sunday prevented panic among 27 elderly crippled patients before they were rescued from the third floor of the smoke filled Brier Bush Private Hospital.

The patients were carried to safety by Uxbridge and Stouffville firemen, assisted by citizens on their way to church.

Six patients were made ill by smoke which came from a small fire in the basement of the hospital, a converted house on the limits of this village 30 miles northeast of Toronto.

Fire Chief Del Jennings credited Nurses Aides Lois King, 17, and Helen Grose, 35, with keeping the patients calm and quiet.

A mother and two new-born twins on the first floor were aided by Rev. H. S. Hallman of the United Missionary Church who left a Sunday school service to help in the rescue.

Three hours after the fire a mother was taken to the smoke-darkened hospital to give birth to a premature baby in the emergency ward.

BEST OF LUCK!

At full strength and with the addition of Davy Jones the Junior Hawks left for Weston by bus this afternoon where they take on the starry Dukes in the final game of the Junior "B" round robin series tonight. Actually the game does not mean a thing as far as the records go since Barrie was ousted. The tilt merely rounds out the round-robin series with the Dukes and Hawks finishing in that order.

The Hawks were far more confident than they were preceding their first meeting with the highly-rated Dukes. They have met them in combat and know what they are up against. But the little Maple Leafs will be tough to beat on their own ice and tonight's tilt, meaningless as it is, should be a strenuous dress rehearsal for things to come.

The teams enter a series, probably four-of-seven, for the right to enter the finals against either Hamilton or Waterloo. Dates of the semi-final series will be decided after the game tonight.

EVEN STEPHEN!

Marmora Millionaires capitalizing on Trenton RCAF penalties in the third period slammed home two goals while the air crew were shorthanded and romped home with a 9-7 victory 'to even the Trent Valley three-of-five finals series at one game each here last night.

The village crew, far more confident than in the first game, carried the attack to the Flyers throughout. They were far more effective in net-front than before and they checked harder and much more effectively.

It was fast clean hockey with the exception of the second when Pumpie clipped a Millionaire over the noggin and drew a major. That was the game, for Marmora roared in and scored two goals while the Flyers were minus the big defencemen. The third game is scheduled for Wednesday night here.

UP AND OVER!

Next Saturday nearly a quarter million stoical British race fans will watch the turf classic, or one of them, of the year at Aintree.

The most terrifying race of all British turf epics, the Grand National is the most colorful of its kind, not even the blood-and-thunder-loving Americans being able to stage anything that remotely resembles it.

Few horses finish the dread-inspiring four and one-half mile course with its thirty-four fearsome jumps. The most fearsome is Becher's Brook. This was named after a Captain Becher a horse of the Peninsula Wars. He rode his horse to the top of the hedge then plunged into the moat beyond. The captain didn't carry on the edge but hastened for protection into the deep water alongside the heavy-rooted hedge. He shivered.

"How deucedly cold water is without a spot of brandy in it" was his soulful remark.

The hedge is five feet high on the approach side and gardeners have turned every shoot inside. Hence the hedge either sets like a brick wall for those who try to burst through or like a rubber band which snaps at all legs which don't clear it cleanly enough. Oh yes, lest we forget, there is a six-foot ditch beyond which has the added complication of being two feet lower than the take-off side.

Another fear-inspiring jump is the Canal Turn. Here horses must turn so sharply that they almost meet themselves coming back. Last year Jock Whitney's Arctic Gold got by the Brook all right but came a cropper at the Turn.

The first winner of this most famous of all races was appropriately named 'Lottery'. He won it in 1839. The most bizarre winner was that of 1949 when Russka Hero triumphed. Only one expert picked him 66-1 shot and he was motivated by loyalty than strict adherence to form. Because Stalin can do no wrong, the racing expert of the London Daily Worker picked Russian Hero to win. He'll never be that correct again.

Many strange stories have been told of the Grand National and its entries. There was the strange case of the Australian horse Moaua who was shipped from "down under" in 1904 on threeabouts. Coming at Australian prices the ship carrying the horse was overtaken by a gale. Moaua who was in a deck stall was washed overboard near the coast of Ireland and presumably lost.

The next morning two Irish fishermen saw a strange shape straying in the water off their fishing grounds. They ran for help like the superstitious Irishmen they were. The shape was Moaua. He was brought ashore, shipped to England and carefully nurtured and trained for the "National". That's right. He won.

There will be one American-owned and one Canadian-owned starters in Saturday's race. The Canadian entry is "Tanfivy" recently purchased by Charles Burns, Toronto investment dealer. "Tanfivy" will wear the first Canadian colors to appear in the Grand National, white with a green maple leaf "front and back". He's a 100-1 shot.

The American entry is Sam Small's St. Kathleen II a small Irish-bred mare. A lot of Americans have taken a shot at the Grand National but only four have won. One was Stephen (Laddie) Sanford who could have had three more winners with a dash of luck.

Sanford while attending Cambridge fell in love with a steeplechaser "Sergeant Murphy" who was quoted at a sale price of 1,000 pounds. But Poppa Sanford said "no" when Laddie wired for the necessary funds, "Sergeant Murphy" won the race.

Later an Irish breeder wrote Laddie he had two Grand National prospects up for sale. Sanford sent two experts to look them over. They advised him not to buy. He didn't. One was Gregalach the 1929 winner and the other Grakle, victor two years later.

Betting on the Grand National is strictly a "gamble". There isn't any form to the race. Last year the winner was Nickel Coin, a 40-1 shot which trained on duck eggs and Irish beer. Three horses finished that day, one of them after throwing his rider and being remounted. There were 36 starters which meant that 34 spilled. In 1928 Tipperary Tim was the only finisher that didn't fall.

Toronto Yet to Lose Playoffs With Four Straight Losses; But This Is April Fools' Day

By BUD WEEKS

Boston, April 1—(AP)—Can the Boston Bruins keep up the speedy hard-checking play that brought them from their first playoff victory over Montreal Canadiens after losing the first two contests?

That's the big question as those two National Hockey League rivals meet in the fourth game of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final series tonight in the Boston Garden.

Coach Lynn Patrick of Boston says the Bruins finally won (4-1) after dropping two games (3-1 and 4-0) because his crew did what he told them to do—namely, throw some bodychecks.

Also the Bruins took pride in the whole team for its increased speed and hustle. A combination of youth and age turned the trick here Sunday night for Boston.

Farmhands Go Well

Patrick got a good game out of young defenceman Bob Armstrong, the winger Leo Labine—a couple of farmhands from the Hershey club of the American Hockey League. Young Fleming Mackell came off the sick list to add zip to the Bruin offensive.

On the veteran side, Boston had great performances from bespectacled Hal Laycoe, sometime Canadien—Bill Quackenbush, Murray Henderson, Sugar Jim Henry, Woody Dumart and captain Milt Schmidt.

"Getting that first goal was a big help, too," said Patrick. "That's something we couldn't do in the first two games at Montreal."

Both clubs should be at full strength for tonight's clash, although the final word on Brain Ed Kryzanowski won't be known until late this day. He accidentally got whacked by Dolly St. Laurent's stick in the first period Sunday and suffered a one eyed up tight.

Jumping, a rugged six-foot 180-pound defencemen, suffered a shoulder bruise in the final minute of play Sunday but should be in shape.

For Canadiens rookie forwards Boom Boom Geoffrion and Dickie Moore both suffered banged knees Sunday but are expected to recuperate fully by game time.

It is possible that Irvin may try another alignment of his forward lines, since they have not looked so good since centre Kenny Mosdell was lost with leg fractures in the second game.

Among the sporting gentry, the odds are 10 to 8 in favor of Boston on tonight's tilt but the Canadiens are favored 20 to 7 to take the series.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

Los Angeles April 1 (AP)—Whatever else may be said for Ty Cobb's recent magazine flogging of modern baseball players, it at least may be said for certain that the old Georgia Peach's outburst has supplied a ready topic of conversation within the fraternity for the last couple of weeks.

We've heard him blasted as a soured eccentric whom the world has passed by and we've heard some smart baseball men warmly support his contention that the game and its players have gone to the dogs. But we haven't in a single baseball gathering heard him ignored.

Those who played with or against Cobb appear still to be fascinated by the immortal Georgian, whether they liked him mildly or hated him intensely, as many of them undoubtedly did, they love to talk about him and to recall incidents from his fiery career. We must have heard a score lately that were new, at least to us, and they all were good.

Ever hear about the time he came into the clubhouse bleeding about the face and-ears and with his shirt ripped off? He began to change into his uniform and one of his teammates asked him what had happened, possibly hoping for the worst.

"Nothing much," Ty replied, "I just got tired waiting to get into the phone booth outside and so I reached in and yanked this fellow out by the collor. Turned out he had done a lot of professional fighting. He was real good."

Whether they liked him or not, they concede Cobb was a fearless man. At one gathering, a former player said he had heard of Cobb backing down, but he was heavily outvoted by the other oldtimers present.

"Don't kid yourself," one of them said. "Cobb was unbeatable. Fans were so sore at him about something he had done the night of 10 cops escorted him into the park. There had been a lot of threats on his life. Once they were inside the park, old Ty shook off his escort and stepped proudly up to the plate to take his batting licks, shoving a teammate out of the way, inch-ing gently. Then he turned to the crowd and told them what he thought of them, both with words and gestures. He was a brave man."

Doug Bentley Leads Quakers To 4-3 Victory

(By The Canadian Press)

Playing coach Doug Bentley's goal at 11:23 of the second overtime period in Edmonton last night gave Saskatoon Quakers a 3-2 victory over Edmonton Flyers and a berth in a Pacific Coast Hockey League semi-final against Tacoma Rockets.

The victory was a personal triumph for Bentley, veteran campaigners with Chicago Black Hawks. He took over as Quakers' playing mentor early in the season. He figured in all three goals of his team's goals, scoring two and setting up the other.

Saskatoon's other goal was scored by Bob Manzon. Edmonton goals were tallied by Hartley, (Gus) McLeod and homebrew Colin Kilburn.

Quakers won the best-of-five quarter final three games to one.

Pembroke, Ont., April 1 (CP)—Pembroke Lumber Kings and Jonquiere City today moved their Allan Cup eastern semi-final series to the northeastern Quebec town, tied 1-1 in games.

Aces tied it up last night with a 5-3 victory at Ottawa. The clubs meet Thursday in the third game of the best-of-five series.

Jonquiere came from behind one goal deficit three times in regulation play to force overtime. Then Bob Mudie's fast, rising shot got away from Pembroke netminder Fred Murphy early in the overtime to put Aces ahead 4-3.

Masterminding by playing coach Cully Simon backfired when Mudie was penalized a few minutes later. Simon pulled Murphy for an extra forward but put him back in after Jules Racette scored his second goal on a breakaway.

Senators May Sign Buck 'Bobo' Newsom

Orlando, Fla., April 1 (AP) — Buck Newsom, who admits to being 42, was close today to being signed to the Washington Senators pitching staff.

President Clark Griffith said he's not sure the decision is up to manager Bucky Harris. Harris has praised Newsom's pre-season performance and, showing unusual interest yesterday, examined him.

"Take it easy—you're working too hard."

Newsom, an ex-Senator, has been in the Southern Association for the past three years.

Chuck Dressen Wants to Beat 'Leo' But Realizes He Has Difficulties

Miami, Fla., April 1 (AP) — After a long winter of explaining "how we blew a 13 1-2 game lead" Brooklyn Dodgers are eager to get even with New York Giants.

Manager Chuck Dressen, slightly chastened but bearing no visible wounds of the 1951 Polo Grounds disaster, is anxious to vindicate himself.

"If you're picking on form, you'd have to say the Giants are the team to beat," Dressen says, "after all, we lost a 29-game winning streak in Don Newcombe."

"If Clem Labine pitches like he did last year, our pitching will be better than last year, despite Newcombe being in the army. Labine can start and relieve both. And we've got some great looking kids."

Despite the "great-looking kids" and Labine's promise, Dressen realizes the difficulties in making up Newcombe's 20 wins. That is why trade rumors persist in the Dodger camp.

Rumors Persist

Dressen is counting on Preacher Roe 22-3, Ralph Branca (13-12), Carl Erskine (16-12), Labine (5-1) and Chris Van Cuyk (1-2) as his starters. Van Cuyk, jumbo-sized left, may turn out to be the surprize of the staff.

Billy Loes, back from service, and Clyde King (14-7) probably will divide the relief work with help from rookies John Rutherford and Ben Wade.

The rest of the club is the same as the 1951 gang that scored 100 more runs than anybody in the league, hit 11 points higher with a .275 average, led the league with 184 home runs—but lost the pennant to the Giants on Thomson's homer off Branca in the dramatic playoff finale.

Gil Hodges on first, the Jackie Robinson-Pee Wee Reese double play combination and Billy Cox at third give the Brooks the best infield in the league. In reserve they have Rocky Bridges, Bobby Morgan and handyman Bert Hass, just brought up from Montreal.

Same story in the outfield—best in the league—with Andy Pafko in left, Duke Snider in centre and Carl Furillo in right, George Shuba .310 thumper at Montreal last year, won a job with his fine spring work.

Despite the off-season confusion about catcher Roy Campanella, refusal to undergo an operation on his elbow, the catcher looks as good as ever.

Brockville Edges Ottawa Flyers

Brockville, April 1 (CP) — Brockville Maroons edged Ottawa RCAF 7-6 here last night in the opening game of their best-of-five Ottawa District Hockey Association Intermediate A finals. Second clash is scheduled here Wednesday.

Ron Trussell led the Brockville attack with a pair of goals while Jerry Messier and Charlie Richer tallied two each for the air force crew.

Major Loops Get 'Once-Over' Here's How Experts See Them

By ED CORRIGAN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

With the start of the major league season only two weeks away, there is shakedown time. The managers are quiet experimenting with rookies and now are starting their journeys north and east with the hopes of getting the regulars in shape.

A quick look at the progress or lack of same of each of the teams in the "order" listing the clubs according to their 1951 finish, here's what has happened.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

New York—Casey Stengel's operatives still are the ones to beat, even with the loss of Joe DiMaggio and the probable departure of Jerry Coleman to the Marine Corps. The Yanks still have a top pitching staff, backed by plenty of power and some amazing newcomers, namely young Andy Carey, who probably will take over third base.

Cleveland—The Indians have the best "big four" pitching staff in baseball, and if any team is going to beat out the Yanks, it should be the Tribe. Bob Feller, Mike Garcia, Bob Lemon and Steve Gromek are the best team on any ground staff.

Boston—This is a puzzle. The Red Sox have been hitting, but haven't been getting much pitching, their trouble down through the years. There's a feeling around the Grapefruit circuit that Lou Boudreau isn't satisfied with the team he inherited. The suspicion is that he'll give it a year or a change and if they don't come through, he'll try to get rid of them.

Chicago — Manager Paul Richards seems to be in the same boat as last year when he was almost one and all in the first half of the season, then watched his club run out of steam. He says it will be a running team. But the pitching staff is questionable like Bill Pierce and Saul Rogovin come through? Most observers doubt it.

Detroit—No power, and manager Red Rolfe knows it. He's hoping he can get a long ball hitter to back up a fair pitching staff. Art Houtteman ought to be considerable help to the hurlers.

Philadelphia—This is the team that was old last year and is older this time around. Some experts are consigning the A's to the cellar.

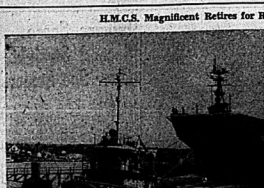
Washington — The Nats, says manager Bucky Harris, are a dozen games better than last season. They have a couple of top pitchers in third baseman Eddie Yost and outfielder Irv Noren who ought to draw in the trading mart.

St. Louis—The Brownies have a new manager in Rogers Hornsby, a new shortstop in Marty Marion and a whole crew of question mark pitchers like Tommy Byrne and Gene Bearden. If they come through in line, Ned Garver, one to watch, won't be surprised to see the Browns jump a couple of notches.

National League

New York — Pitching won it for the Giants last year, and manager Leo Durocher apparently is going to rely on his elbowmen again. He lost his top infielder, Eddie Stanky, and can only hope that Davey Williams fills the gap. Time will tell how much Stanky will be missed.

Brooklyn — Here's the club that was rebel tops all through the season last year. Don Newcombe, who won 20, has been lost to the service, and manager Chuck Dressen is hoping Clem Labine and Chris Van Cuyk can take up the slack. Otherwise the team is substantially the same.



St. Louis — Like the dark Horse. The Cards have the power, and the word is that all they need is some pitching. They've been getting it all spring, and if young Willard Schmidt keeps up at his present pace, they'll make things tough for the rest of the league.

Boston — Manager Tommy Holmes has not even decided on a line-up yet. He would like to go along with a group of rookies and youngsters, but he knows he'll be somewhat doubtful yet. Best bet is that he'll stick with veteran assignments.

Philadelphia — The Phils have shown more spark this year than last, and are heartened by the fact that Curt Simmons is back on out of the army. They have good hitting, like Del Ennis, but with Simmons back, though, they'll be contenders.

Cincinnati — This looks like a three-man team. Ewell Blackwell, who won 16 games last year and outlasted Ralph Kiner, has won 16 games last year and outlasted Ralph Kiner, has won 16 games last year and outlasted Ralph Kiner, has

The Kibitzer

Refuse to believe a partner like Steve. He has a spectacular flair. With hands that look sick he doubles real quick to see if opponents will scare.

Some players enjoy an occasional effort to confuse opponents with a double that is shy its needs. Not always do they get away clean. Times are when they are trapped by a redouble.

South opened with a heart and west doubled for takeout with this hand:

♠J 7 4 2
♥ 4
♣Q 7 4 2

You can see, of course, that west was far short of the stuff that is promised by such a signal. His double promised a hand as good as an opener. He is far from being that good.

He may have thought he could fool the opponents into ending at an under-game contract.

maybe he thought partner might turn up with a long suit for a cheap sacrifice.

However, north stepped in right then and there with a redouble. And now, if east happens to have a weak hand, he and his partner are in a fix. They are boxed between two good hands.

The redouble by north is a weapon available to an opponent of a doubler. And a player who fudges on his doubles simply gives opponent an opportunity to make use of the redouble for big gains.

In such a spot, what should east do? He had better come in fast with a bid of some kind. What he should do is show his best suit. If he fails to do this his pair may keep floundering in their worst suit.

If east comes in with a bid, his response to the double is just as he would reply if no double intervened. He may never get a better chance than right now, but fast.

As you can see, a redouble that means business is a threat over a player who gets fresh with his doubles. That larra 'em.

A redouble sours a fresh double.

RAWDON

Mr., Mrs. Ivan Sine Honored by Many On Eve of Departure

Rawdon — Over 100 patrons of Shamrock Cheese Factory on the Frankford Road, with friends and relatives, gathered at the River Valley school house on Wednesday evening and tendered Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Sine and children a farewell before their departure to Eldorado.

Ivan has been cheesemaker at Shamrock for the past four years and Mr. and Mrs. Sine have attended many social events in the community during their residence in this locality.

Mr. J. L. Donohoe was master of ceremonies and spoke briefly wishing Mr. Sine every success in the Eldorado district.

Mrs. Harry Morrow was pianist for the evening and Mrs. George Heasman conducted the singsong.

Program

Mr. George Carlisle read a poem entitled "Neighbors."

Carol and Kalvin Sharp of Mount Pleasant sang two numbers, "Daisy Bell," and "Slow Poke," with Mrs. Mac Sharp as accompanist.

Mrs. H. Morrow contributed a piano instrumental "In the Sweet Bye and Bye," and Mrs. Roy Bush gave two readings, one about "Old Fashioned Days," and the other "The Modern Trend."

Mr. Douglas Sine, with his step-dancer, Joe, delighted with his audience, followed by Mrs. Ernest Carr who presented a series of Irish Jigs.

Messrs. Gordon Morrow and Ernest Rosebush, piano and violin, contributed a couple of musical numbers.

Brief addresses interspersed the program and were given by Mrs. George Pollard in the absence of her husband, who was at Kemptville, and by Messrs. George Heasman and C. M. Sine.

Address and Presentation

An address of appreciation to the honored family was read by Mr. George Carlisle and signed by himself, also Messrs. Robert Philp, Edward Heasman, Roy Bush and Kenneth Malcolm.

Mr. and Mrs. Sine were presented with two upholstered occasional chairs and a scatter rug and their twin children, Barbara and Bruce, received a box of Easter bunnies.

Ivan graciously voiced their thanks, after which all sang "Auld Lang Syne" followed by "The Queen."

Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Sine and children are moving to Eldorado next week where Mr. Sine has been engaged as cheesemaker in the new factory.

Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Atton, of Toronto, were visitors last week at the home of their son, Mr. C. Atton and Mrs. Atton.

Mrs. Archie Sinclair Sr., and Mrs. Vincent Sinclair and Wanda, visited the former's brother, Mr. Basil Robbins, who is in hospital at Peterborough.

Master Stephen Hunter was taken to Belleville General Hospital last week to receive treatment for a sinus ailment.

MELROSE

Melrose — Owing to the treacherous condition of the roads, Rev. L. Scott did not reach the Melrose appointment on Sunday morning. Quite a number did manage to get out for Sabbath School.

A group of members of the Y.P.U. attended the rally in Belleville Sunday afternoon and evening.

The play put on by the Empey Hill young married couples on Wednesday evening was well attended and much enjoyed.

The adult films shown at Melrose school on Tuesday evening were good, but the attendance was only fair.

Mr. W.M. held its quilting at the Township Hall. Two quilts were completed. A fine pot-luck supper, to which the men came, concluded this busy day.

DESERONTO

Y. P. U. Presents 'High School Daze'

Deseronto—A capacity crowd was present on Friday evening for the Irish musical program and play, "High Schools Daze", sponsored by the Young People's Union of the United Church.

The program was varied enough to appeal to all and the audience showed its appreciation in a most satisfactory manner.

Rev. T. F. Townsend was chairman for the evening and his amusing anecdotes added to the entertainment.

Varied Program.

A sing-song, led by Gayner Rendall opened the program. This was followed by vocal solos by Misses Sharon Burley, Jessie Cochrane, Mrs. B. Herrington and Mr. W. C. Cochrane. Vocal duets were given by Mr. and Mrs. Gayner Rendall; piano solo by Miss Mary Rendall; reading by Mrs. T. F. Townsend; saxophone solo by Mr. Reg. Pearson and a musical trio by Mrs. W. C. Cochrine, Jessie and John Cochrane.

Accompanists for the evening, were Miss Beverly Burley, Mrs. L. E. Tunnicliffe and Mrs. W. C. Cochrane. A short film, shown by Dale Babcock completed this part of the program.

"High School Daze", a one-act comedy was presented by the Young People. The characters were well cast and worked together to produce a smooth running play which was well receiv-ed and thoroughly enjoyed by the audience.

The cast included Misses Marion Aylesworth, Mary Rendall, Doris Twiddy, Nora Cochrane, Jessie Cochrane, Estelle Burley and Roy Smith.

At the close of the play Don Fingland, president of the Young People's Union, expressed appreciation to all who had contributed to the success of the evening and to the audience for their hearty approval.

Mrs. Gayner Rendall was presented with a gift in appreciation of her work in directing the play. The Young People are hoping to enter their play in the Drama Festival at Belleville and all wish them success in their endeavor.

AT THE CAPITOL — Academy Award winner and best actor of the year, Humphrey Bogart, appears with Marta Toren and Lee J. Cobb in the adventure action drama "Sirocco," showing today and Wednesday at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program for the first half of the week is "Storm Over Bengal" starring Robert Mitchum, Ava Gardner and Melvyn Douglas.

AT THE BELLE — The Roman warrior, Marcus Vinicius, is attracted to the Christian hostage, Lygia, in this scene from "Quo Vadis," starring Robert Taylor, Deborah Kerr, Leo Genn and Peter Ustinov, MGM's spectacular Technicolor production, revealing three great love stories, now on the Belle screen, continuing until Thursday. Continuous showings daily.

"I thought it would be interesting to play a warm, simple character for a change," he observed. "But for my next picture, I want to go back to a real comedy."

Critics Already

The Kaye role as Hans Christian Andersen is unique in movie history in that it has already been criticized — before the picture has even been finished. The Danish foreign office indicated it was planning a strong protest over the casting of Kaye, previously known as a clown, in the role of the Danish writer.

Kaye has remained calm throughout the controversy.

"I don't know what they're complaining about — since they haven't even seen the picture," he commented. "We're not attempting to show the life of Andersen. We're just presenting an incident which could have happened during his life."

FAMED ENGINEER

Best known for the Eiffel Tower at Paris the French engineer Alexandre Eiffel also designed the immense locks of the Panama Canal.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 1 — (AP) — Danny Kaye, unlike the usual run of top-flight comedians, remains aloof from television.

His colleagues make upwards to three movies a year; Kaye averages less than one. Other funnymen would break their necks to land a radio slot; Kaye displays no interest.

Now the Brooklyn-born redhead is going far out on a limb to play a relatively straight role in "The Christian Andersen." While he has comic moments in the film and sings 10 numbers, the film will display nothing of tricks usually associated with Kaye.

Taking a Chance?

"Yes, sir, (I'm) Goldywn's taking the chance," he says. "It's his 4,000,000 bucks, not mine."

Kaye doesn't think playing straight roles will become a habit.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look for the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, APRIL 2, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Very good vibrations for home, family interests, also military, government activities, matters generally requiring vigor, endurance. But extra caution for finances, investments, confidential affairs.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Fine Venus and Mars aspects now encourage your personal interests, artistic professions, difficult matters needing purposeful, vigorous action. You should feel stimulated for action.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Mercury's position stresses forethought, patience in all purely mental work, legal affairs, signing important papers, etc. Otherwise stay in fine for regular work.

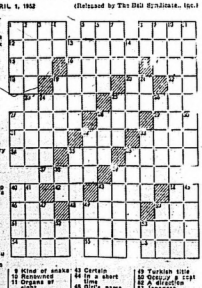
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Valid for most matters except home and private interests which are more strongly favored. Stay extra study, harder to get through some tasks. Be careful, too, in agreements.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Mixed vibrations, some stirring, others taking slower pace. Common sense plus is urged. Engineers dealing in machinery, tools, metals, building materials; transportation can advance appreciably.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Be serene, plan carefully and don't over-strain. Thus have clearer vision, better judgment for tricky problems. Be content if you accomplish even a little, and you can.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Good prospects for today but as with most of us, you'll need to be careful where your signature is required. Aim to encourage heart, home interests.

October 24 to November 22 (Sagittarius) — Your Jupiter vibrations agitate carelessness in little things and taking success for granted. You will have to think, plan, work for fresh attainment, but it is possible. Good luck!



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Neither too helpful nor obstructing influences now, it's up to your own astute management and planning how you will get along. Laborious work, private affairs both favored.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Some sort of indications as Capricorn today. If ambitious yet careful how you manage, you should turn in a good record. Hard work, wise planning will count most.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Our sextile forces and government activities are highly sponsored: educational, literary and judicial work will require extra effort, patience. Personal gains possible. Don't fret.

YOU BORN TODAY: Engaging personality, bright intellect; unusual managerial ability. Important you keep spiritual development pace with temporal advancement. Prayer, kindliness, graciousness will bring you true inner contentment and further your interests in every way. You have, if living true to your inherently good qualities, the assets to advance in whatever your life's work. Can be a leader in business, social groups, church and community activities. Intensely ambitious, willing to work vigorously for gains. Birthdate: Hans Christian Andersen, Danish poet; author of fame, fairy tales.

MARMORA

St. Paul's Anglican Church Installs New Floor and Carpet

Marmora — Work has recently been completed on the installing of a new steel floor of tile and a rich Wilton rug in the sanctuary and choir of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora. This accomplishment was made possible through the generosity of relatives and close friends of the late Dr. and Mrs. Hamilton Crawford.

The bequest was entrusted to the rector, Canon J. M. Brownlie, in appreciation of many kindnesses to them and in loving memory of them both. The entire floor of the nave has been relaid with plywood, then covered with tile squares in keeping with the decorative scheme of the church interior.

New Carpeting

The entire sanctuary and aisles are covered with deep piled Wilton which is cushioned with onile padding to produce a pleasing effect. The members of the congregation are justifiably proud of the church's interior and realize that with due care the floor and carpeting will endure for many years. The work was carried out by a Peterborough firm.

CANADA SOON

"It is hoped that within the next 10 years we may see in this country as well as in the United States and in the United Kingdom, the first atomic energy power plants in commercial use," Mr. Howe said.

Mr. Howe spoke during study of supplementary estimates of expenditure for the fiscal year ended yesterday. One item transferred ownership of the assets of the Chalk River establishment from the federal government to a new Crown company to be known as Atomic Energy of Canada Limited.

The company begins operations today under Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, former president of the National Research Council. N.R.C. has been directing Chalk River along with its other research activities.

Expected to Reach Peak

C. D. Edgar-Williams, Richard Steele, former vice-president of N. R. C., replaces Dr. Mackenzie as president.

Besides the discussion on atomic energy, the day brought these other developments in the Commons:

1. Mr. Howe tabled a report showing that public and private investment in Canada this year is expected to reach a peak $5,003,000,000, an increase of $442,000,000 over 1951.

2. Mr. Howe tabled a second report which predicted that an improvement in supplies of building materials this year will permit completion of "practically all" planned construction.

3. Mr. Howe also tabled the annual report of his defence production department. It showed that in the last nine months of 1951, the department distributed about $1,500,000,000 worth of defence orders.

4. Members finally voted $246,000,000 in supplementary estimates of expenditures for the 1951-52 fiscal year. Progressive Conservative members again criticized what they described as attempts of the government to have estimates passed with "machine gun" rapidity.

5. Agriculture Minister Gardiner said the federal government has authorized the payment of $311,449 to Saskatchewan farmers for animals slaughtered since the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease. The amount covers compensation for 1,001 cattle, 127 swine, 97 sheep, one goat, a number of hens and 13,000 eggs.

Rearrange Financial Structure

6. Mr. Howe disclosed that the federal government plans to rearrange the financial structure of Polymer Corporation, the synthetic rubber-producing Crown company at Sarnia, Ont. The assets, now held by the government, will be vested in a Crown corporation.

During the atomic debate, Howard Green (PC-Vancouver-Quadra) urged that a committee, similar to the one functioned in 1946, be established to study advances in atomic energy.

Mr. Howe said if members felt they wanted a committee he would not oppose it. But he would not be "very enthusiastic" for or against a committee.

One of the reasons was the situation pertaining to the exchange of information with the United States. The Americans were "jealous" about information on atomic energy.

"Our chances of obtaining some depends largely on our ability to keep the secrets that we have," said Mr. Howe.

"All our people are working in-

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

We threw a few more questions at Mrs. Ring. She could swear that there was no one in the space where where the trees stop and the cliffs began besides Ames Warburton—no one within at least 30 feet of him. She left, nose tilted at an angle, suggesting that she accused us of plain little-girl lies about her story, and the more fools we.

After she had gone Cravath sat silent a moment, lips pushed out, long strong fingers drumming the arms of his chair. "Well," he said at last "what do you think of that?"

"I think," I said "that Mrs. Ring is sincere, at least. She honestly believes that Warburton didn't go over that cliff accidentally or voluntarily."

He shot me an apprehensive look from under tufted iron-grey brows. "Murder then?"

"That's what she seems to think."

He got up, paced the floor. "Look Orth! I was fond of that boy. If there's been monkey business here, as Ring suggests, I'll pay zeal, money to clear things up. Do you"—his light-blue eyes seemed to pop at me—"understand?"

I understood. The agreed fee for bringing in whoever was gunning for Cravath, and a bonus for the murderer of Ames Warburton —if indeed there was a murderer. I nodded.

"Yes," I said. "Could be that we've got to deal with just one—ah, operator."

He stopped pacing, took Scotch and glasses from a cellarette. There wasn't any ice but the water was good and cold.

I sipped whisky and said: "I've got a theory about why Warburton was out there. He was looking for his watch."

Cravath stared at me. "So! Practically on the edge of the cliffs! No, that's good. He couldn't have thought he'd dropped it in a place like that."

"Well," I said, not too confidently, "it's just a guess. But it could have been dropped there by that little dachshund of yours. Isn't he a bit of a kleptomaniac?"

"Yes." Cravath said slowly, "I hadn't thought of Fritzie. And the little devil does steal things all the time. But look here! You're suggesting that Ames gets shove in the dead of night and starts roaming around the grounds, looking for his watch. To my mind, that's pretty farfetched."

"It's farfetched, all right," I agreed. "But it's the only explanation I can offer as to why he might have been out there at all."

Cravath shook his head unbelievingly.

"Well," I continued stubbornly, "the fact remains that Warburton didn't have his watch before dinner. But it turned up when he's found on those rocks. Okay. Warburton was seen to climb the fence and then stop down. He's seen the watch and was getting it. Then he either stumbled or slipped or . . ."

He wrestled visibly with this idea. It was plain that he didn't want to accept it. "Pushed or struck," Ring thinks. Well, what with. The police we'd gone over ground thoroughly and found nothing out of the way. There wasn't anything to find. Except that the grass was scuffed up quite a lot. Ames' feet when he tried to save himself, I suppose."

"I shrugged. "I don't know. But listen, Mr. Cravath! Presumably only you and I and Mrs. Ring know that she saw anything at all tonight. The murderer, if there is one, doesn't. So . . ."

He got it at once, and interrupted. "So if he were to find out, Ring might possibly be in danger. Well I don't think he will. Ring's very, close-mouthed. Screwed, I'll put a flea in her ear."

"Yes." I said. "And keep your own door locked tonight."

I was glad that he called the discussion off. Vaguely, as we talked, the desire to look over the end of the Peacock Path for myself had come, and grown. Now it was translating itself in terms of a must. And I knew too, that I had to do it immediately. To wait for daylight would be unwise. In the first place, if the police had missed anything, the presumed murderer would have more time to find and remove it. Secondly, as a guest here and supposedly a fairly feather-headed one I wouldn't want it thought that I evinced incriminate interest in this affair.

Of just what I hoped to gain, I hadn't the foggiest idea. But while I've got plenty of respect for the police I thought their examination could stand a check-up in this case.

Laxative Slave

regains youthful regularity

"For two years I was troubled with constipation," admits woman in West Hill, Ontario. "Then I started eating ALL-BRAN regularly. No trouble of this kind since!" If you, too, suffer from irregularity due to lack of dietary bulk, why not try tasty Kellogg's ALL-BRAN? It's helped thousands to regain youthful regularity. High in iron and protein, it's not habit-forming. And for only type ready-to-eat cereal that supplies all the bulk you may need. Eat ½ cup every day; drink plenty of liquids. Kellogg's is so sure you'll like ALL-BRAN that if you're not completely satisfied after 10 days, send empty carton to Kellogg's, London, Ont., and get DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

Marston Cravath, I'd understood from Sally, was highly allergic to publicity. At the time when he talked with the authorities, Mrs. Ring had not told her full story. It seemed to me, that possessed only of its bare outline and probably believing Ring either mistaken or—hysterical, Cravath would almost certainly have silenced and shetted any official tendency to regard Ames Warburton's death as a mere mishap. In short, I thought it possible that, quite unwittingly, he might have influenced the thinking of the police.

Which wasn't good enough for me—if there were a murderer loose at Windover.

I couldn't use my flashlight close to the house. I had to pick my way stumbling over and into a variety of objects, to approximately the spot where the Peacock Path began.

The torch, when I did flick it on momentarily told me nothing. It merely sprayed misty yellow illumination over close-cropped grass devoid of extraneous objects or markings.

It was some 50 feet from the fence when all at once I stopped dead.

I thought that, for the whisk of a second, a light had gone on and off, somewhere at the end of the Peacock Path.

I felt myself sort of ooze, rather than move, into the shrouding shadow of an evergreen. I waited, holding my breath, and uncomfortably aware that a big guy named Elm Orth was pumping ice-water and . . . scared to death.

Then it came, the dry metallic clank of a chain.

Someone, or something, was either going out onto or coming back from that precipice over which Ames Warburton had fallen.

Things sharp and cold, like iron-tipped toothpicks, seemed to crawl among the hairs at the back of my neck.

First came the notion of rushing forward full-tilt, letting my torch blaze and getting a view of this pre-dawn prowler. That was instantly supersteded by one of caution. I'd be smarter to stay where I was, partially hidden by the evergreen and await the coming of this unknown. For, I thought, sooner or later, he'd return via the Peacock Path. Or, I could slip quietly off the path, execute a flanking movement.

Well, that was news, of a sort. And strangely, despite the bells ringing achingly in my head, I'd never felt better in my life. "It don't bother waking me up," I stuttered. "This dream is too good. I'm dreaming that you're Sally."

"What have I got to do to bring you to your senses?" Sally inquired. "Hit you again?"

I bounced up, a performance that did my splitting top no good. "Did you hit me the first time?"

"I'm afraid so, Jim. I came on you suddenly and I—I didn't know it was you. I just sort of panicked and swung.

"With, I'm betting, your entire family tree."

She forced my head gently down into her lap again and shoved a blackthorn stick under my nose. A wicked looking implement, stout, knobby, and evidently, of the consistency of granite. "With this. I grabbed it up as I left the house."

Gingerly I felt behind one temple. I discovered myself the owner of a lump the size of a walnut. "You did a real job of work for the Commandos."

At that point my eyes, hitherto pretty cloudy and now aided by the increasing light, cleared and I had, indeed, seen a hooded figure She was wearing a navy blue parka. Only now the hood was thrown back over her shoulder and the dawn-wind off the Sound riffled honey-and-amber hair.

"You poor dear," she was saying. "I might have killed you. You just loomed up and I —well; I hit out. Atavistic instinct, I suppose. Self preservation or something."

I grinned. "Forget it. Certain people—just to—er—mind you—can crack me over the chump any time. But why were . . . what were . . . This spoke the eternal woman.

"Presumably," I said, "you didn't come out to see me. Look, lady! Give!"

The corners of her mouth tightened. "Well, if you must know, I'm just not satisfied about Ames. It's hard for me to believe that he went out there and had himself an accident. The more I thought about it, after I went to bed for the second time tonight, the sillier it seemed to me. Ames Warburton was perfectly normal, Jim. He hadn't any neurosis or a psychosis or anything like that in the world. So, since I couldn't sleep, I decided to do a little investigating. It'll sound crazy, but I thought that Ames just possibly might have left a clue. But he didn't."

Steel Industry, Union to Open Wage Negotiations

Price Director Arnall Says Strike Appears Inevitable

New York, April 2. (AP)—A steel-industry spokesman said today that negotiations between the industry and the United Steelworkers' Union (C.I.O.) will open here tomorrow. They have been delayed for the last three days.

The announcement came as negotiating teams for both sides were standing by waiting for a call into session.

The union negotiators came to New York to begin joint sessions on Monday at the invitation of the industry, but the sessions were postponed.

Both Sides Unyielding

Washington, (AP)—A country-wide steel strike in the United States next week appears inevitable today unless the government can block it by acting the industry or getting a court injunction against the union.

Price director Ellis Arnall expressed that the government's attitude this way to newspaper men:

"I am very, very fearful we are going to have a steel strike. That is, if everyone continues as adamant as they appear to be now. In other words I don't see how it can be averted unless someone gives. I have no reason to feel optimistic."

Arnall's comments came after long talks with president Charlie Wilson of the U. S. Steel Corp., the biggest producer. Fairless was pleading for price increases of about $6 a ton which he asserted pay bosses for Philip Murray's United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O.).

A strike of 650,000 workers in basic steel is set under the Taft-Hartley. Negotiations which were to have started in New York Monday, however, got off to a slow and await "further developments" from Washington. Murray called the delay "unwarranted."

Arnall gave every indication of steel industry and special price increases. He said his policy continues to be that "any industry will get what it's entitled to —and no more."

Has President's Backing

Arnall, head of the office of price stabilization, said today that President Truman's backing in holding the price line, Charles E. Wilson said, as defence mobilization chief last weekend because said the government wouldn't go along with the Wilson-suggested steel price increases.

The White House is reported having the Justice Department ready for the beating of another action. If this is done the administration might call a meeting, a senator of the industry, and give the union what it wants.

Ike's Message Gives No Hint Of His Plans

Abilene, Kas., April 2 (AP)—General Eisenhower messaged home-town friends today it is his "profound" hope to return to the United States well in advance of the Republican National Convention July 7.

The general gave no hint, however, on whether he plans to lay aside his duties as Supreme Allied Commander in Europe and campaign actively for the presidential nomination.

His message to friends in this central Kansas town was read by Governor Edward F. Arn to a crowd assembled for groundbreaking ceremonies at the site of the Eisenhower museum. The museum will house the general's $1,000,000 collection of war souvenirs.

Wild Swan Gets Caught in Trap

Fort Rawson, Ont., April 2.—(CP)—Trapped with a wild swan, caught in a modern trap on his annual flight to the Arctic Circle and is likely to find himself in the pipeline.

Trapper Len Pretty found Yappy in the trap. The swan was tied and yapped and threatened when he was released but was too weak to strike at the trapper or fly away.

Mr. Pretty took him to Charles Denys, keeper of a game farm and preserve at Long Point last Monday. Today Yappy was feeling better after a diet of bread and milk.

Conservation officer Jack Allan said Yappy may be strong enough soon to relish a flock in flight. But before he goes, the swan is scheduled to appear in a National Film Board movie which has arranged to take pictures on the game preserve.

Bank Robber Given Life Term

New York, April 2 — (AP) — Bank robber William Dietsch was sentenced today as a fourth offender to 30 years to life imprisonment. The judge said he ordered he could sentence to death.

Said Judge Louis Goldstein in sentencing Dietsch as a fourth offender: "I think the end of the law prevents me from sentencing you to death." Dietsch pleaded guilty to a gun-carrying charge.

Dietsch stood shrinking and truculfed to two guards but made no comment during a 15-minute castigation delivered by the judge.

Dutton and his henchman, Thomas (Soup) Kling, 45, were convicted yesterday of the $64,000 holding of a trust company here in 1950.

They each face up to 30 years or more on this verdict. They will be sentenced later.

Meanwhile Kling is awaiting trial on charge of illegal possession of a gun in his Lexington, Ky., home when he was arrested last February.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 2. (CP)—Synopsis: Cooler and more seasonable weather is forecast for Southern Ontario. In the cool air there is however considerable daytime cloudiness and there will be scattered rain or snow. The weather for the next 24 hours will be affected by a storm centre that has temporarily become stationary on the north shore of Lake Superior and whose future movement is uncertain. The storm will probably move slowly southeastward through the Timmins area tonight and Wednesday and will bring some light snow or showers.

NO DIPLOMATIC 'SECRET DEALS' SAYS PEARSON

Foreign-Affairs Debate Conducted in House

Ottawa, April 2.—(CP)—External Affairs Minister Pearson said yesterday that Canada has no "secret" or "under-the-table" diplomatic deals with other countries.

He suggested that the world could benefit from "confidential" diplomacy. Confidential discussions in place of the "headline and housetop diplomacy" of the Russians could result in more progress at the United Nations.

Opening the foreign-affairs debate, Mr. Pearson said:

"There is not much secret diplomacy left these days, except at United Nations. Possibly we might make more progress if we had a little more confidential discussion there.

"Open covenants, yes; but open covenants occasionally confidentially negotiated, with the principles and purposes of the negotiations have been made known to our own people.

"I am not sure that would not be more effective and far better for peace and good understanding than the headline and housetop diplomacy which sometimes plans communists, who now are the greatest believers in open diplomacy, inside."

He made it clear that Canada, while willing to enter secret deals with other countries, does conduct confidential diplomatic discussions.

He referred to a statement made earlier in the debate by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader. Mr. Drew has asked if Canada knew of any agreements between Britain and the United States "or any other country" and possible extension of the Korean fighting to red bases on the China coast.

Most Unusual Suggestion

"If Canada did know, Mr. Drew said, the public parliament should have been informed of the arrangement 'in complete detail.'"

Mr. Pearson replied that this would be a "most unusual and unprecedented step which is conduct diplomacy." Canada could not expect foreign governments to follow suit if such disclosures were made in public.

The Canadian government did know of the London-Washington agreements, he said. His policy continues to be that "any industry will get what it's entitled to —and no more."

Has President's Backing

Arnall, head of the office of price stabilization, said today that President Truman's backing in holding the price line, Charles E. Wilson said as defence mobilization chief last weekend because said the government wouldn't go along with the Wilson-suggested steel price increases.

The White House is reported having the Justice Department ready for the beating of another action. If this is done the administration might call a meeting, a senator of the industry, and give the union what it wants.

Seeing-Eye Dog Found

Toronto, April 2 — (CP) —Jess, a two-year-old Golden Labrador retriever puppy which her blind mistress has been training for a seeing-eye dog, has been found.

The pup, owned by Mrs. Stella Bates, ran away Saturday. Yesterday, barely recognizable under layers of oil, grease and coal dust, it was found in railway yards.

Switchman George Reid said the dog was so exhausted from hunger and running that it offered little resistance.

"She was just scared stiff," he said.

Arctic Explorer Will Attempt To Domesticate Nearly-Extinct Ox

New York, April 2—(AP)—An Arctic explorer plans to attempt the scientific feat of giving artificial musk ox in New England.

Dr. Henry B. Bigelow of Harvard University has received permission to trap eight musk ox calves on Ellesmere Island, in Canada's Arctic archipelago.

Dr. Bigelow said he will try to domesticate the animals for the Vermont Animal Research Foundation. Teal believes that if they can exist on tundra-like, submarginal farm lands of New England, musk oxen might introduce a new factor in the area's economy.

He said musk ox is a misnomer for the animal, which a half way between a sheep and a goat.

"The meat is better than beef," Teal said, "the wool is the finest and softest known and the milk is as good as cow's milk."

He plans to leave for the Arctic April 20 to hunt for eight calves. Each calf that the musk ox can be domesticated "it will be the greatest contribution to agriculture since the taming of the cow."

Eisenhower Says U.S. Needs To Continue its Support Of Rearmament of Europe

Paris, April 2.—(AP)—Gen. Dwight Eisenhower said today the United States needs to continue its support of European rearmament—but must get more results for the money.

The general's opinion was stated in his first annual report as commander of the North Atlantic Treaty defence forces.

"Europe must become self-sustaining in military manufacturers at the earliest possible date," he said. "America cannot continue to be the primary source of munitions for the entire free world.

"It would be fatuous for anyone to assume that the taxpayers of America will continue to pour money and resources into Europe unless encouraged by steady progress toward mutual co-operation and full interdependence."

But the general left no doubt about his belief in N. A. T. O. Without it, he said, the future of Canada and the United States "could present an ever-greater danger of attack, requiring endless sacrifices and forms of defence which would ultimately break their economies."

Eisenhower presented an 11,000-word report to the 14 nations aligned in defence against communism.

"The purpose of our governments in forming the Atlantic pact was a very simple one—to retain the free world's establishments of a sound collective security."

Success Long Way Off

Complete success is "still a long way off," he added.

"On the discouraging side, for example, we have the feeble spirit of economies in Europe threatening and slowing previously-planned defence efforts. We note that, in spite of expenditure of vast sums of money in the United States and elsewhere, the flow of equipment has not been as rapid as had been predicted.

"In Korea, Indo-China and Malaya, N. A. T. O. nations of Europe in Asiatics are carrying very heavy burdens; burdens that are costly, both in blood and treasure. They have a direct effect upon our efforts here to establish a secure defensive arrangement in western Europe.

"On the encouraging side, there has been almost a revolutionary rise in the morale of the armed forces. Their standards of training, directed by some of the most experienced soldiers, sailors and airmen alive today, in each case, in each unit, there is a growing confidence that they can do their job."

A Touch Job

Their job was a tough one. The report said U. S. soldiers on the allied side faced 225 Russian and satellite divisions and 20,000 Russian planes, good in quality and steadily increasing.

On the allied side are fewer than 50 divisions and 4,000 planes to be ready by the start of this year.

The Soviet army casts its shadow over the length and breadth of Europe," he said. "The Soviet Union has not only retained the size and combat effectiveness of its forces, but has imports from behind the iron curtain indicate that the restiveness of these captive peoples has led to even tighter, tougher, more ruthless measures of control.

The familiar technique of the purge, deliberate terror, and intimidation have been established as a cloak of unity—however unhappy—in these countries.

"Nevertheless, the tide has begun to turn. Evidence of the stabilization of the free worlds is brighter than it was a year ago. At the same time, there is evidence of a great headway on issues vital to our eastern flank by bringing into N. A. T. O. the stout-hearted peoples of Greece and Turkey. They are now the target of a European defence community and a close relationship with the German federal republic."

Stalin Seen As Initiator Of Drive to Portray Reds As Backing German Unity

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
(Associated Press Foreign News Analyst.)

Helsinki, Finland, April 2. (AP)—Political observers said Stalin's latest statement may signal an all-out drive by the communists to picture the Soviet Union as the only champion of a unified Germany.

Stalin said he considers the present moment opportune for unification of Germany. He said it at a time the western powers are planning to sign a peace contract with West Germany, in belief that no final decision is possible in Europe before West Germany as a whole.

Britain, United States and France have been unable to find an approach toward such unification that is satisfactory both to east and west. The Soviet Union, for one thing, has refused to be business with a United Nations commission designated to find out if German elections can be held fairly and honestly.

But the Stalin statement has a great appeal to Germans, including many in the areas occupied by the three western powers. Even the Stalin statement, coming on top of Soviet support of the idea of rearming a unified German army, may serve as the starting point for a concerted attack on the West German government of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

A German unified on Moscow terms would create a vacuum in central Europe, despite Soviet claims to the contrary. The Soviet Union, it is believed, hopes to neutralize western Europe and bog down its building of defence works.

Stalin made his statement on Germany in response to questions sent by a group of U.S. newspaper and radio men on March 24. Four days later a Moscow radio broadcast that the British, U.S. and French foreign ministers would meet with them in May to sign a peace contract—a way of life with Germany—and the signing of such a peace contract would formalize the east-west split in Germany, and perhaps prove a permanent block to Soviet plans for Germany. That there is a feeling of urgency in Moscow about Germany, and that it is probably not what Stalin decided to answer the questionnaire Stalin's also said he considers a third world war no nearer than it

$8,040 in Cash Found in Home By the Police

Hamilton, April 2 — (CP) — Cash amounting to $8,040 was found in the home of a 70-year-old widow and her brother after their end in the Calston township farm home of William and Nine Clayton, elderly brother and sister, were found dead last week. 6,000 TEXTILE WORKERS STRIKE IN QUE PLANTS

Pickets Are Set Up, Some Windows Broken

Montreal, April 2 — (CP) — Some 6,000 textile employees here and at Valleyfield, Que., are on strike today, seeking higher wages.

The strike went into effect at midnight, EST, and closed down five Montreal mills of the Dominion Textile Company and a subsidiary company at Valleyfield, Montreal Cottons, Ltd.

The strikers are members of the United Textile Workers of America (A.F.L.).

Shortly after midnight, some 200 men started picketing the plant at Valleyfield, some 35 miles south of Montreal.

Police said a number of stones were thrown and pots some of the windows on one side of the plant were smashed. No arrests were made but police were posted around the plant to prevent a recurrence of the incident.

Informed of the situation, a company official said in Montreal that there was "no provocation for this act by any of the various plans of organized violence intended to set off the strike with it."

There was no violence reported from the Montreal plants where which had been working on a curtailed week due to lack of coal.

In Serious Depression

In a statement following the strike, Dominion Textile said that "the entire textile industry in Canada, and throughout the world, is in the grip of a serious depression.

Final approval of strike action came at meetings in the centres affected last night. There was no immediate union comment.

Earlier this week, union representatives here turned down a company offer of a 10 per cent general wage boost, five per cent of which would be put in escrow active to last September 5 and the remaining five per cent on signature of contract.

Both parties earlier refused a 13-cent increase recommended by the chairman of an arbitration board investigating the differences. Arbitration board findings are not binding in law.

The union struck for a 21-cent increase and certain privileges.

Keeping Slim Some Insurance Against Cancer Figures Show

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Chicago, April 2 — (AP) Keeping slim apparently is some insurance against getting cancer.

Overweight people are more prone to cancer and other diseases than normal weights, life insurance figures show.

The picture was described today to newspaper men on an American Cancer Society tour by Dr. Albert Dorendeaum of the Department of Cancer Research, Jefferson Medical Institute, in Michael Reese Hospital.

The abundant diet, especially in the middle years, makes it easier for cancers to start, he said. Food doesn't cause cancer, but it may modify or influence the cancer process.

Cancers take longer to appear when animals eat diets below the accepted health minimums of proteins, fat, protein, vitamins and minerals. But if humans don't get enough of these, or other vitamins or other things, they become easy to other diseases, especially infections.

So the best bet seems to be a good balanced diet designed to keep normal weight for your own health, height, age.

Once cancer has started, diets to help the body resist cancer tend to rob the rest of the body of foods, and insufficient diet hurts general health all the more.

Many Evacuees Add to Havoc At Medicine Hat

Temporary Respite Hinges On Hope for Cold Weather

Medicine Hat, Alta., April 2 (CP) — Homesick evacuees yesterday added to the havoc in flood-soaked Medicine Hat, while a temporary respite from spring-runoff-water flooding hinged on the hope for cool weather.

Police had to be stationed in the flood-battered 25-block area yesterday to halt attempts of many of the 300 evacuated families to return home.

Meanwhile, five more families were evacuated from the flooded district and a new threat, though still remote, was seen in the one-foot rise of the south Saskatchewan River.

More than 1,000 persons have been left homeless, 25 city blocks have been inundated and mills, factories and one school have been closed. Yesterday, two dead miles bordering the rampaging Seven Persons Creek went back into operation. Hundreds of ferried home employees to work by truck through flood-deep water.

Late last night the city set up a nine-man flood committee and established a flood relief fund objective of $200,000.

Evacuees started their backhome movement after reports that the level of the swollen Seven Persons was receding. The creek dropped two feet yesterday morning, then turned four inches and dropped back to its earlier level.

But a high of 50 degrees was forecast for the area today and officials thought the flood easily cause a swift rise in the water level.

Business Section Safe

The downtown business section of 16,000 is relatively safe. It is protected by high banks on one side of the south Saskatchewan and is across the city from the Seven Persons Creek.

Most of the evacuees were being cared for by friends or relatives. Others were under the care of the Red Cross and other organizations.

Welfare officials cited one case of an unidentified city policeman who had taken 14 strangers into his small home.

Mayor Wilson Riley hinted that the city might appeal to the province for aid in return for a $20,000 donation from Medicine Hat citizens during the Red River floods of 1950.

Ross Creek, the first to flood here is down substantially and officials of Alberta Justice said it is pretty well normal after lesser flood scares.

Skilled Workers Asked to Baby-Sit Says Complaint

New York, April 2 — (AP)—A complaint that skilled workers were asked to baby-sit for an army colonel at time-and-one half pay on a big North African air base has been received by Senate investigators.

The complaint is a further item in the case of the colonel's lady" — being investigated by the Senate in a hunt for waste and mismanagement at the multi-million dollar project near Casablanca, Morocco.

The complaint is about Lt.-Col. Leonard Hassman of the army engineers.

Hassman's wife was credited in official Senate records with being the "colonel's lady" who halted a crew of workmen on pre-fabricated houses at the base, arranging for them to be built at lower and build the houses further apart — at tremendous added expense for the government.

Radio, Appliance Dealers Denounce Some Devices

Toronto, April 2. (CP)—The Canadian Association of Radio and Appliance Distributors yesterday denounced the $125 broom—a device used by some retailers in which the broom handle serves for useless articles are offered to clear slow-moving stock.

Retiring president Joseph Cheshire of Hamilton, told the annual convention that the device of government's ban on retail price maintenance is to blame for the "havoc" in sales prices.

"Some manufacturers went all out to dump over-stocked inventories," he said. "It has become a racket. It is the cause of one of the biggest trade-in or discount."

Fred Cavers of St. Catharines, association president, said that in prohibiting resale price maintenance, the federal government "has thrown the customer to the wolves," he said.

"With no price-cutting, the buyer may get a cheaper article but not the guaranteed service, nor even reasonable assurance that the cut-price shop where he buys will be around next year to do business' a year from now."

Tris C. Wood of Kitchener, president of the B. F. Goodrich Company of Canada, told a convention luncheon:

"There are too many people out after a fast buck. Everybody sells anything at any price to get a profit. Merchandising must get back to fundamentals."

Be More Careful Fire Chairman Asks Merchants

A representative of the Fire Underwriters Association will be asked to come to Belleville to investigate the "abnormal number of fires" in the city in recent months, according to a recommendation passed yesterday by council.

In speaking to the recommendation Alderman Angus Duffy as chairman of the fire committee said there had been more serious fires in Belleville in the centre's much larger.

He did not think any of the fires had been set but he did feel there was carelessness involved on the part of merchants in the downtown area.

"City merchants must learn to be fire conscious," Alderman Duffy said. "Fires in our business section are costing a terrific amount of money."

At the same time he assured that the losses were no reflection on the fire department which he said was one of the most efficient in the province.

The alderman said that fire inspections in the downtown area would be stepped up with the appointment of another inspector. It has been policy to inspect business premises every four to six weeks.

"But this is not enough" he said. "In the future we hope to have two inspectors and have inspections every two to four weeks."

Final Costs of County Home Will be Within the Estimate

Chairman Tells County Council

Final cost of the new Hastings county home is expected to stay within the estimated $1,200,000, it was reported to county council today by Steve Jack Kincaid, Madoc, chairman of the county home board of management.

In giving his report on the home, Reeve Kincaid said that tenders would be called soon for landscaping and construction of sidewalks at the new home, while some work was still to be done on the roadways.

He gave a break-down of costs of the new home showing that $1,029,004 had been paid out to date. With the exception of a 15 per cent holdback the general contractor has been paid up. Of the estimated completed cost; of the home, roughly $30,000 remains to be spent, it was said.

There are now 137 patients at the home, made up of 36 ambulatory patients, 42 senile, and 57 hospital wing cases. A percentage of the patients at the home are from the city under the county-city agreement.

Mr. Kincaid said the matter of setting a rate for paying patients at the home would be taken up at the next committee meeting.

Convention in City

Plans are underway for holding the annual convention of managers of homes for the aged which this year is to be held in Belleville on June 25-26-27. Mr. Kincaid extended an invitation for as many councillors as possible to attend the convention.

County treasurer superintendent Kenneth Yorke spoke briefly to council and referred to the large number of visitors at the home. On Sundays as many as 80 cars arrive at the home, but visiting hours on Sunday would in the future be limited to from two to 4 in the afternoon. This was necessary to give staff an opportunity to get meals underway for the patients.

He was glad to see visitors, however, as maze visitors meant a better understanding of the home operations.

All Handled at Home

The superintendent said that since the opening of the new home it had not been necessary to transfer any patients to the Belleville General Hospital. All ill patients had been handled at the home.

Warden Lee Grills said he had received nothing favorable in comments regarding the hospital wing in the new home.

Reeve Vincent Lynch - of Marmora wanted to know if anything was being done to have the provincial subsidy for county homes being paid on the completed cost of going to the municipalities. It was urged that efforts be made to have the change made.

Legion Members Present TV Set to Men of County Home

Men patients at the Hastings County Old People's Home on the Trent Road are now on par with the women.

They now have a brand new console-model television set which was presented to them as compliments of the Belleville branch of the Canadian Legion. Last fall the women's wing was presented with a set by the Soroptimist Club.

Last night officials of the Legion, including President Roy Madden, Mrs. W. Bean, president of the Women's Auxiliary, and Frank Grahdame, along with other Legion members visited the home and following a concert staged by the Legion boys' choir, the TV set was officially presented to the home. Installation will be made by Cliff Mason.

Presentation to Chairman

Frank Grandame who initiated the project of supplying the TV set made the presentation to Reeve Jack Kincaid of Madoc, chairman of the county home management committee. Mr. Kincaid expressed his appreciation for the gift of the set to the home as did Warden Lee Grills who pointed out that the heads of some people "are in the right place."

"I can't praise you too highly for your gesture," he went on. "You could not have placed the set where it will be better appreciated."

Home Superintendent Kenneth Yorke and Chas. Randall, blind patient at the home, also expressed appreciation.

Enjoy Boys' Choir

The county home patients, both men and women, thoroughly enjoyed the program staged by the Legion boys' choir under the direction of Wally Bent. The program was a preview of the concert to be staged by the choir April 22th at the Collegiate auditorium. Don Gri, Glenda Donkatior, accompanied the boys and sang a solo part. Boys taking solo parts during the program were Larry Tucker, Billy Finkle, Ray Finkle, Paul Gross and James Brennan. Accompanist was Mrs. Helen Large. Rawsons Bus Lines transported the choir to the home.

Following the presentation Mr. and Mrs. Yorke were hosts to the visitors at luncheon served in the main dining room.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox (Will and Zella) were seated at the table which was decorated in gold and white and centred with a beautifully ornamented anniversary cake, the gift of their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Earl Fox, and grandson, Leo Fox, of Belleville, who also presented corsages to his grandmother, Mrs. W. Fox; his great grandmother, Mrs. Dorland S. Fox, and to his grandmother's bridesmaid, Mrs. Carl Bryant, and boutonnieres to his grandfather, great groomsman.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox received many greeting cards and were also the recipients of many lovely gifts, including several pieces of china in gold and white; a bedspread; a mantel clock, and a Parker pen and pencil set.

Mr. Roy Anderson addressed them on behalf of the bride-groom's family and Mrs. Ross Burr on behalf of the bride's family, to which both graciously replied in turn.

Enjoyable Evening

The evening was interspersed with much reminiscing on the part of the assembled guests, with Mr. Ira Pymer contributing a humorous reading relative to life 50 years ago, and earlier.

Their only living uncle, Mr. D. Ainsworth, was present and gave a review of the early childhood of the bride. Due to the death of her father, the late George E. Trumpour, when teaching at Rossmore, which was then only "Ferry Point", Mrs. Fox, (Zella), came to her grandparent's home at the age of one and one-half years, with her mother, Aurelia Ainsworth Trumpour and her sister, Grace, now Mrs. S. J. Munro.

Numerous flash pictures of the evening's activities were taken by the grandson of the home, and the serving of delicious refreshments brought a most interesting evening to a happy conclusion.

Guests attending included: Mrs. S. J. Munro, of Crofton; Mr. Ira Pymer, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Burr, Mrs. Earl Fox, Mr. Leo Fox, and Mr. W. Simpson, all of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Burton Fox and Raymond, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bryant, and Mr. D. S. Ainsworth, of Wellington; Mr. and Mrs. Will Soble, Elsie, Wayne and Dale, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Dempsey, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Burr, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Burr, and Mr. Rodney Burr, all of Burr's.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 2 — (CP)— Stock market prices turned upward today in early afternoon dealings.

Trading was again heavy with western oil speculation dominating. High Crest Oil was again a standout as more than 220,000 shares changed hands while the stock added pennies. Industrial dealings spread slightly from leading issues. Volume for the first three hours was 2,790,000 shares.

Papers and steels led industrials upward with a scattering list of additional advances. Utilities, constructions and retail stores also drew firm support but banks slipped. Brazilian traction was strong as it climbed more than a point in active trading.

Western oil gains ranged from pennies to about 50 cents. Calvan Consolidated, Canadian Atlantic, Del Rio, Home Oil, National Petroleum, Canadian Williston and Spooner pushed upward.

Base metals were firm as Barvue, East Sullivan, Emerald Glacier, Golden Manitou, International Nickel, Sherritt-Gordon and Steep Rock traded higher.

Senior golds were strong. Dome, Malartic, McIntyre, Teck Hughes and Wright-Hargreaves climbed moderately. Secondary issues showed little trend.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, April 2 — (CP) — Cattle trade was active at the Ontario stockyards today with prices steady on the small supply. Receipts: cattle 2,000 (alves 70; hogs 470; sheep and lambs 80. The letdown from Tuesday was 50 cattle.

Choice steers sold at $26-$26.50 with one load of prime steers bringing $27.50. Good steers were at $24.50-$25.50 with medium steers at $23-$24. Good heifers sold at $24-$24.50 with a few tops at $25. Good cows brought $21-$22 with a few tops at $22.50 and common selling downward to $16. Canners and cutters sold downward to $12. Good beef bulls sold mostly $19-$21.50 while choice fed yearlings brought $28.50-$27.50.

Hope of Averting Steel Strike Wanes Says Paper

New York, April 2 — (AP) — The steel industry is on the verge of a knock-down drag-out steel strike with only about one chance in four of averting it, the Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, said today.

"Only a miracle could change this outlook," the publication said.

With the resignation of defence mobilizer Charles E. Wilson, the Iron Age said, "the steel industry has lost its one friend at court who knows the industry's problems."

Those left to counsel President Truman, it reported, "are dead set against giving" the industry anywhere near the price rise that would compensate for the wage stabilization board recommendations of about 26 cents an hour."

The Iron Age said that the order of removal of R. F. Fairless, president of United States Steel Corp., that keeping wages and prices unchanged would forestall another wave of inflation is "lost in the shuffle."

It continued:

Matching Increase

"It is a sure bet that Mr. Fairless will not give in to a big wage hike unless Mr. Truman allows a price increase to match it. That price increase will be on the basis of at least a 20-cent an hour increase or $9 a ton for a 30-cent an hour increase."

And the Iron Age predicted "steel firms will take a strike before they agree to a union shop—even if the wage and price fracas is settled."

Estimating that a strike of a month would mean a loss of 5,000,000 tons of steel, the trade weekly said that "steel users would soon find themselves in a dither about supplies."

Decision on Sale of County Forest At Actinolite To Be Made by Council

Members of Hastings County Council will decide at their current session whether to sell the county forest at Actinolite to the Mohr Silver Mines Limited, Authority.

An inquiry asking whether the forest would be sold was read at Tuesday's session while Wednesday morning, nine foresters W. E. Edwards of Napanee, reported that the Authority was purchasing property in the Actinolite area for planting purposes.

He said the Authority had purchased 980 acres for reforestation and acquisition of the county forest in the area would round out their holdings and get operations under one body. Actual cost to the county for its county forest property of 227 acres at Actinolite had been $1,200. He said the county property was now mostly planted, the work having been done principally by volunteer labor. School children and scouts had done much.

The province pays 50 % towards the purchase of land by the Authority it was stated. Council will decide before the end of the session whether to sell the Actinolite property.

Council concurred in several resolutions forwarded from Perth re the federal government assume the full cost of civil defence, forwarding this the responsibility of the government.

Concurrence was also given to a resolution asking that federal government property such as post offices be taxable by municipalities. It pointed out that these properties required all services and in many cases lanitory lived in and their children attended schools for which the municipality was unable to collect anything.

Reeve Ross Neal of Deseronto noted the provincial government had taken action allowing taxation on government property and it was felt the same action should be taken by the federal house.

Still another resolution from Perth County concurred in was one asking that the provincial government assume full cost of road ways designated as provincial highways now paid for by the municipalities.

No action was taken on a resolution calling for an increase in the subsidy for snow plowing in snow belt region from the 50 to 75 percent. Neither was any action taken on a Simcoe County resolution asking subsidy for social services.

Navigation Opens In Several Ontario Centres

(By The Canadian Press)

Fleets of ships were astir on the Great Lakes today in the first big movement of the newly-opened 1952 navigation season.

Opening of the Welland Canal yesterday sent locustus to the reviving bustle at Great Lakes ports. Still held in winter's icy grip is much of Lake Superior, although five vessels are expected to reach the lakehead this week, probably by Thursday.

If they do, it will be one of the earliest openings at the lakehead in history. Last year the first vessel reached Port Arthur on April 9.

Sixteen ships were on the move in the Welland Canal shortly after it was officially opened. Moving up the canal were five oil tankers, all light and a freighter, the Outarde, bound for Montreal.

Downbound were the tankers Imperial Hamilton, Imperial Windsor, Imperial Kingston, Imperial Cornwall and the Imperial Cobourg and the freighters Radisson, Midland Prince, Gleneagles and Donnacona.

The freighter Royalton moved down the canal to Port Robinson and then turned around for Port William.

The first ship through was the Imperial Redwater, which with her sister ship, the Imperial Leduc, is believed to be the largest fresh water tanker in the world. Mayor John Franklin of St. Catharines welcomed Captain Hector MacLellan with the traditional kiss.

Up the lakes the ice-breaker Mackinaw smashed at thick ice in the Detroit River in an attempt to make a channel wide enough for three Canadian freighters to move up to Lake Superior.

The Scott Misener, the Goderich and the Ashcroft tied up until the channel, cut through 14-inch ice last Sunday, was widened. The ship canal on the Canadian side of the border is flooded and ready for operation and most of the locks of the United States canal also are prepared.

Ice conditions and visibility on the river were bad. Sub-agent E. O. Grimsby of the marine division at Port Arthur, said any vessels venturing up the lake this week "will be on their own risk." Earlier he predicted the season at the lakehead wouldn't open until April 8 when lighthouse keepers are scheduled to take up their posts.

News of Trenton

Trenton Council Blocks Effort By Health Board to Keep Swimming Beach for Tots

Trenton, (Special) — Town Council last night blocked the attempt by the board of health to preserve the last remaining swimming beach for the children down at the grove.

At a special meeting earlier in the day the health board unanimously condemned a sewage outlet servicing South Dufferin Avenue residents. The medical officer of health, Dr. E. A. McCuaig, also rejected a project which has cost the ratepayers $3,944.93 and will be suspended until tests of water coming out of the new septic tank at north Trenton and water at the grove have been tested for pollution. Councillor Ross Burtt claimed that it was just stopping the sewage outlet from a septic tank to be built if raw sewage continued to be piped into the bay a few hundred yards down the shore. Mr. Burtt asked for a report from specimens from the flow from the north Trenton septic tank to see if that water was different from the water down at the grove.

Utilities To Be Industries

Two industries in the south Trenton area utilized a sewer that empties into the bay in front of Stokley Van Camp's cannery. Those backing the bathers thought that the raw sewage from this pipe is held against a point of land that juts into the bay and is protecting the bathing beach or is carried down the bay by the west winds. They maintain that residue from the proposed septic tank will back up into the grove and out in front of the cottages on the Dufferin Avenue section and taint there because of prevailing still waters.

Mayor Ken Couch suggested pumping the sewage back up Dufferin Avenue to keep everybody happy. He pointed out that the pipe now being laid would empty at a point in the west where there was no action.

He indicated that the change of plan would cost $28,000 instead of $14,000, to keep that part of the bay pure. He discussed the feasibility of a pumping station and the possibility of providing the 20 south Dufferin residents with individual septic tanks in lieu of the sewer service. Mr. Couch was told that the time would cause sewage service would have to be given this part of the town.

Former town engineer H. Rigs felt that if the septic tank at the Legion Hall could handle the sewage pumped from south Dufferin. He disclosed that the tank was already overloaded ten fold and advised against putting any more into it. The mayor contended that some master disposal plan has to be adopted. He feared that the old system wouldn't hold up much longer. He figured that the cost of building a sewage disposal plant could be held off for two or three years providing parts of the master plan were installed from time to time. "When is the town going to be forced to build a plant?" the mayor was asked. "I don't know how 10,000 people are going to pay their present five year obligations," the mayor answered.

Murray Twp. to Complain

Council was informed that Murray township council was going to disapprove of residue from the Trenton septic tank polluting their portion of the bay west of the town limits.

Town clerk O. Larry claimed the best way to straighten the situation out was by bringing people of south Trenton and the cottagers and residents who wanted to protect the bathers was to get complaints on paper and start working on them.

Councillor Claude Graham informed council that estimates of three quarters of a million dollars to build the sewage disposal plant for Trenton had possibly risen to one million dollars now. A delegation from the Chamber of Commerce asked for a $2,000 grant that above will be used in information bureau. Mayor Couch assured the delegation that he was in accord with the grant but that was really worried about this years' tax rate. He felt that it was really unfortunate that the corporation was faced with requiring so many grants this year. He asked the directors to leave their request with him that he would be partial to them when bringing down the budget. Coun. Couch suggested accomodation for the bureau in one of the two new offices being built at the market square as an addition to the market building. Chamber president Reginald Fred Parker thanked council for giving the board consideration and welcomed it as a member. Chamber directors and council represents were present at the meeting.

While the mayor said he would like to see the Chamber of Commerce office incorporated in the town building he stressed keeping operating expenses down to a point. "If I appear to be pinching the pennies," he said, "it is because of my love for the town of Trenton."

The two additional offices on the town building will be built to matched stone taken out of the old post house on Ontario street which has been condemned and will be wrecked soon.

Protect Joe Nulty

All of the councillors were in favor of advising Mayor Couch of Toronto that they would have to pay for the transient trader's licence to canvass for business in town. "If there is any way of protecting Joe Nulty, I'm for it," commented Mr. Couch, pointing out that Mr. Nulty gave 12 months' service, while outside studios were in the habit of coming in periodically to pick off the gravy.

No Hot Dog Stand

A Byron Street resident faced council wanting to know why his request to build a hot dog stand beside his home had been rejected. He was advised that council's decision was final and that rigid inspection of all others in town was being enforced. "We must protect the residential areas," the mayor commented, expressing council's decision.

Surplus Last Year

Commenting on the auditor's report, Mayor Couch said that tax collections indicated that money is tightening up. He felt that council should soft pedal on increases here and there. He announced that the town ended the year's business with a surplus of $7,130.43 compared with $15,612.97 in 1950. The report showed that tax collections were up over last year and that the debenture debt stands at $216,777.23, an indebtedness created by a new issue during 1951 of $222,684 for public school board spending. Repayments of the debenture debt during the year amounted to $69,114.94.

SUZANNE IS NOT AMUSED

After having completed her education in England and made several French-language movies in France, Suzanne Cloutier, the red-haired, Ottawa-born pin-up girl, returned to North America. More recently, she signed a contract with one of the major Hollywood moving picture companies. On Saturday last, the moving picture industry launched its campaign to transform Suzanne into a full-fledged glamor woman.

Here are some of the statements which the press agents made about Miss Cloutier, all incorrect: (1) She was born in Three Rivers, Quebec. (2) Her parents used to keep her secluded in a convent. (3) She once ran away to New York against her parents' wishes, raising the money for this venture by selling her fur coat. (4) She cannot speak English. (5) She was terrified by New York. (6) She was so hard up while in New York that she did her sleeping during the day. (7) On a sojourn there, in the women's rest room of Grand Central Station. (7) She was afraid to speak to strangers. (8) She is a big-eyed brunette. (9) She has long blonde hair, falling to her waist. (10) She refuses about Hollywood is a low-slung convertible. (11) She cried a lot during her visit to New York.

When a Toronto newsman, who was apparently acquainted with Suzanne or at least familiar with her background, met her by telephone to find out what was happening, her reaction, as might be imagined, was: "How awful!" She then said to her interviewer: "Could you telephone my father and get him to try to keep this out of the Ottawa papers?"

Whether Suzanne's father (he is Edmond Cloutier, the Queen's Printer) made telephone calls to the Ottawa papers we do not know. But we do think that any such calls were not, and should be, necessary. The Ottawa papers, as well as all other Canadian newspapers, can be counted upon to treat Suzanne with a little more kindness and consideration than the press agents employed by her own company.

No one in Canada has any control over these Hollywood press agents, but their own employers have control over them and should exert that control, in this case at least, for the mutual interest. Surely it is not necessary, in order to get the name of this talented young woman before the public, to represent her to be a harum-scarum, a vagabond, or a wayward daughter.

If the public at large in such matters is so debased that such publicity is either necessary or desirable, then it is time for a change.

WHAT, NO CHALLENGERS?

Leaders of the Democratic party in the United States are "decidedly pleased" since President Harry S. Truman has announced that he will not again be a candidate for the presidency, according to the United Press. The fact that Governor Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, the party's second choice as a candidate, seems little interested in the honor has possibly added to the panic of the Democrats.

Meanwhile, the star of the Republicans seems to be in the ascendent. The Republicans have truckloads of would-be candidates, including the immensely popular General D. D. Eisenhower, to mention only one.

Are the American people beginning to sober up after a political spree that has lasted two decades? The latest evidence suggests that they are. Their well-wishers will hope that they are. Others, who may or may not be their well-wishers, will hope that they are for purely selfish reasons, because the example set by the Americans often proves contagious.

HE WANTS INFORMATION

W. L. Clark, Windsor Daily Star columnist, is becoming impatient with those propagandists who are trying to convince Canadians that taxes are lower in Canada than in the United States. Here is what Mr. Clark has to say:

How is it that so many are moving from Canada to the United States to live?

And, why is it that Americans who used to live in Windsor have moved back to Detroit to escape the high taxes here? And, why is it that some Americans who have their businesses in Windsor and take part in Windsor life have moved to Detroit to escape high Canadian taxation?

These are matters of record. So, when the arguments are being put forth, we wish someone would clear up these points. If they can.

UNDERGROUND

Never need freedom's defenders depend
Slyly colckelling themselves underground.
But call the open, face front and quest.
Honest, above board, forthright and direct.
Daring and challenge whatever it be.
Shame leaves no stain on the soul of the free.
Liberty's enemies fear to be known,
Hiding in dark where no light can be thrown.
Cheating, pretending and whispering lies,
Plotting and scheming as tyrants arises.
Freedom's defenders have consciences clear;
Nothing to hide from, and no one to fear.
Freedom's defenders step out with the crowd;
Free men devoted and valiant and proud.
Glad to be listed and glad to be known,
Standing with others or standing alone.
Ready to rise at the first trumpet sound
Scornful of all men who go underground.

Higher Steel Pay Would Raise Cost of Living Is

(Tweed News Editorial)

Canadians in every walk of life, the farmer in particular, have reason to be fearful of the outcome of the collossal wage-reduction negotiations between United Steelworkers Union and the three major basic industries in Canada.

If the steelworkers should win substantial wage increases, the result would inevitably be a boost in the cost of everything with a steel content, and that leaves few articles out in a range from a tin of canned food, to motor car, to a farm implement.

That would be serious enough.

But the daily newspapers have reported, the steelworkers apparently would not be satisfied with a mere pay increase. They seek in their new contract, wage parity with similar jobs in the basic steel industry in the United States.

That may be the worst threat to the Canadian economy in recent years.

The United States steel industry produces for a market that is at least 10 times as large as the comparable market in Canada. And the U. S. steel industry has within compact freighting distance. Both these factors mean that production costs, per ton of got ton of steel, are considerably lower than the per ton figure for steel, Canadian-made.

The Canadian person has depends on the market for his goods or services. The Canadian market must grow a great deal before we can all be as rich as the Joneses in the U.S.A.

Held for Bigamy

Toronto, April 2 — (CP) —Alexander Stewart, 45, appeared Monday on charges of bigamy, third and false pretences. Police said he had married a woman two years ago after a boat overturned at Hamilton.

Police said that most of the time since he was supposed to be drowned in Hamilton Bay, Stinson has been living and working in Toronto. He left his first wife and two children and had "remarried."

The time an overturned boat was found floating near Burlington Beach he was reported to have been on ball granted at Peterborough while he faced a charge of stealing outboard motors.

An Old Charge Is Finally Refuted

(Ottawa Farm Journal)

A theory that has gained wide use in the world today is that if anyone tells a lie or makes a preposterous charge often enough there are bound to be a lot of people who will eventually believe it. This principle is believed that and put to the work by Joe Stalin and his gang of co-workers in the Soviet Union.

Well a few people started to argue that farming was ineffective as the basis of their charge that food costs were too high, or could be lowered. Now we are fond of pointing to the run-down farm, forgetting all the well-managed ones or the fact there are a lot of run-down businesses in towns and cities and mismanaged urban homes. It became a fad among a certain class of city folk to say that if farmers were better managers they could reduce costs.

Now some facts are turning up which give farmers the chance to hit back. Here are some of the boys to their detractors. Elsewhere in this edition a Macdonald College professor estimates that some 500,000 people left the land during the 'boom' and then he points out that, despite the 20 per cent fewer farm workers, total farm production is up 20 percent, over 20 years ago. A new type production is now engaged.

Then last week when the National Editorial Association had its annual meeting Jack Turnbull, then president of the association, who is a farmer and co-op manager, quoted some interesting figures. He said that back in 1925 the average production per dairy cow in Canada was only 4,000 pounds of milk. By 1931 this had risen to 4,626 pounds and was higher by 500 pounds than the average production in 22 other dairy countries! That too is a fact contrary to opinion.

Generally speaking increased knowledge and the use of better machinery accounts for the fact that the farms of Canada today, with fewer workers, can produce more and feed a great many more people. The sad thing about the fact he is a highly skilled profession, which in many ways deserves to be treated as such.

Many people that few other occupations where the human factor and the will to work are more of a factor in success that can show any better ratio of progress. Certainly labor and the skilled trades in urban industry can boast of the same improvement in productivity per worker. Maybe the machines do better but farming is still a human occupation, basically.

CAUSE FOR COMFORT

Recently in going over some matters written by my late colleague William T. Ellis, I noticed a statement he had made in 1926. He told of a decline in the field of education who had informed him that of ten thousand high school graduates of a generation ago, seven had wanted to enter full-time religious work.

How amazingly and encouragingly the picture has changed since then. Seminaries are now full to overflowing with men and women who have the want to prepare themselves for the ministry and for other religious work. The denomination to which I happen to belong has one file the names of so many young people who have felt called to be ministers and religious workers that the church officials are bewildered as to what to do. Vastly more money would have to be raised for educational purposes before these young people could be trained for their work.

And what is true in one denomination is true in most of the others. The whole picture of the Christian Church today there is a shortage of well-trained young people who want to give their full time to religious work. That is well for the future. It is one of the bright signs by which we may be comfort ourselves in a dark day.

THE PACKSACK

A new style in lipstick gives the girls the expression of smelling a bad smell. They start at the centre of the upper lip and draw two lines upward in a forward towards the corners of the nose. To them, seated before the mirror, it may appear to be a polite sort of sneer such as becomes a lady surrounded by limousines and servants on every hand. But to the ordinary beholder, it conveys the impression that the lady is saying "Phew-ew."

If you glance about you at lunch time in a restaurant, you will be startled to perceive that most of the young women appear to have got something bad in their sandwiches.

Most of the fashions in lipstick painting come from the movies. The Clara Bow era, the heyday of Katherine Hepburn, the girls gave themselves large, luscious lower lips. One after another, the famous stars have taken their turn to fashioning the mouths of the world. Not every girl can model her hair do after Garbo's. Hair has to come half way in such an enterprise. Hair is blonde or brunette or it is between. Hair is thick or thin, long or short, straight or curly, or kinky.

But any old mouth will do for a paint job, and you see the same mouth on girls with round faces and long faces, lean or fat, concave or convex, pointed or to put it bluntly, blunt. Though they go to extremes to look as different as different hats from all other women, and are most determined not to look anyone wearing the same dress or coat, they study to have the same mouth.

It will be a relief when they get past this ill-timing when the men can hardly be blamed for taking something personal out of Katy Hepburn's face on the screen with a new picture. We think Jean Harlow is an academic poet of the near future.

PARENTS PLEASE LISTEN, GRANDPARENTS

As a parent I suppose it is a little late to horn in on the discussion. As a grandparent I shall keep my trap closed. As well-meaning but inept family doctor I was the flop of the century. As a health expert, well, now, children, what do you want to know?

About the farce of football in high school? Must we go all over that again? I have told you many times that football is a game for grown men, not for growing boys, and therefore the game should be played only by men of college or university age.

Fifteen years ago the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation, having consulted with the National Education Association and the American Medical Association condemned the participation in interschool athletic competition below high school. Very good, considering the medical standards. Dualists make any one propose to cram their ideas down their throats.

Elmer D. Mitchell clearly points out one of the fundamental evils of interscholastic athletics in junior high school, in the Bulletin of the University of Michigan School of Education (Nov. 1931):

"The selection of a few early maturing athletic stars is made at the expense of the sport program for all the pupils."

If it happens to include an early maturing athletic star in your son, and your compensation for an inferiority complex, I feel sure, isn't it? You don't want to be a party to a selfish game? You want him to get in there and take whatever hard knocks are coming to him as a man of him. You windbag.

If the parents in his eagerness to do his bit and more if possible for team, school, coach and cheering crowd happens to sustain some trifling but repeated damage to intervertebral discs, joint cartilage or growth cartilage, he immediately inability may be temporary but ultimate results may handicap the boy for years or permanently. I'm not just croaking about it, but quoting the statement of a distinguished orthopedic surgeon.

Whenever any outsider or any adviser other than the regular teacher is permitted to take a hand in the athletic program of the school, you may be sure your boy's welfare is unimportant—unless he happens to be an athletic star, and even so, his welfare is secondary to the honor and glory of the team, school or coach.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE OPEN MIND

A person with an open mind is always interesting and inspiring person to meet. The mind closed to new ideas, sooner or sooner or later hardens and crumbles. It is a thing of death in life.

Marcus Aurelius, in that remarkable book of his called "To Himself," said this: "If any one can convict me of error and show me some view or action of mine is wrong, I will cheerfully change. I seek the truth, which never yet hurt any man. What hurts a man is to persist in error and ignorance."

All people were of an open mind we would not have the bitterness, quarreling, and name calling that we have among those who discuss politics, religion, and many a subject of controversy. The open mind seeks the facts and the truth of things. That is its only concern.

The scientist, inventor or explorer has to have an open mind, for if he didn't he would be stopped in his tracks long before he would get started toward his objective. The smallest fact or discovery becomes important. The open mind is the genuine liberal mind, for it discards nothing that may lead to a clearer understanding. All great thinkers are men of open minds.

When the Judge sided at the close of a trial that he reserves decision it is because he has an open mind and wants to let into it every fact and statement that may help him to give a fair and impartial verdict, or sentence.

The closed mind harbors prejudice intolerance, and ignorance. We have that kind in our politics, indeed in almost every walk of life. It should be found the ideas, opinions, and information from scores of minds, assembled in order to search all knowledge and come to his own decision. Never close the door to your mind!

County Council Votes to Hire Assessor After Long Debate On Matters of Assessments

The problems of equalized assessment and the merits of the office of county assessor came up for lengthy discussion in county council yesterday as councillors took up almost the entire afternoon in debating to continue the county assessor's office.

Although there was opposition by certain northern reeves, it was generally felt by councillors that a county assessor was needed to supervise the township assessors and to co-ordinate their efforts in securing an equalized assessment throughout the county.

A motion to dispense with the office of county assessor was later defeated by a wide margin and a new assessor will be appointed. Nine applications were received for the position. Previous county assessor was Harry W. Harrison of Thurlow township, who was appointed in December, 1950.

Needed Position

Dungannon Reeve R. T. Adams headed up the several northern reeves who apparently felt that the county could do without an assessor. Referring to the fact that the office was now vacant he urged the county to "stay rid of a county assessor."

"I can't see the need of one," he said. "The townships have to keep their own assessors anyway."

Other reeves were of different opinion and lost no time in expressing their thoughts on the matter. Among these was Reeve Earl Sarjeor of Madoc township, who pointed out that only through a county assessor could a fair assessment equalization be reached. He said his own county was at disadvantage in the equalized assessment. Actual values could not be divorced from assessments.

Needed For Supervision

Hungerford reeve Bernard Hunt was of the same opinion noting a county assessor was needed for supervision.

Reeve Theodore Tryon urged that both sides of the question be considered. He felt the responsibility of a county assessor was to examine municipal assessment and to compare them with those of other municipalities.

Reeve Charles Buskard of Delaro said he would advocate the hiring of several assessors and get the re-assessment of the various municipalities over with. The function of a county assessor was to equalize assessments in the county.

He noted that a forced equalized assessment through courts was costly and not generally satisfactory. He went on to say that the population of rural areas was decreasing while that of the urban centres was increasing. If so, a re-assessment was necessary.

Only Three Completed

Elzevir reeve Carman Kleinsteuber thought a county assessor and re-assessment of the municipalities was a good thing but not if it took four or five years to do the job. He noted that since the appointment of a county assessor more than a year ago only three municipalities, Elzevir, Tweed and Huntingdon had been re-assessed.

Reeve Tryon stressed that assessments were a big problem with many ramifications. The matter concerned school grants as the percentage of such grants were based on assessments. If a rural municipality had an assessment of below $30,000 the per-capital reached was $9 per cent. This percentage was scaled down as the assessment went up.

In a jocular vein he suggested that if the assessment was high enough the municipality may have to pay the department in order to have a school.

No Good Purpose Claim

He noted that if a county assessor meant an increase in assessment it would also mean lower school grants. If so, he suggested that no good purpose might be served.

"Are you trying to tell us that it is to a municipality's advantage to keep its assessment down so as to obtain a better school grant?" asked Reeve Buskard. "Do you expect to keep your assessment down at the expense of other municipalities"?

"I have never instructed our assessor on the matter," was the reply. "I only want to be fair."

Reeve Buskard then went on to say that if one municipality strove to keep its assessment down then it was only fair that others raise theirs down.

Reeve Reuben Tryon observed that 50 per cent of their mill rate went for education and that it is going higher I don't know what we will do," he said.

Rates Mean Nothing Claim

Reeve Sager was not satisfied that taxes in the northern municipality were greater than in his own township. "Rates mean nothing," he said. "It is the amount of taxes on a certain property that counts."

Reeve Parks of Limerick was quick to object. "If northern property is taxed at the same rate as in the south then you southerners are going to have a lot of hunting grounds," he said.

Reeve Joanne Spracklett of Tudor was of the same opinion. He said there were now many abandoned farms in the north but there would be more if they were taxed on the same basis as in the south.

Reeve Elmer Woods of Huntingdon said his assessments were generally satisfied with their re-assessment under the direction of the county assessor. They were noting that a complete re-assessment of the county be made as soon as possible.

Assessment Increased

"As result of the re-assessment the assessment had been increased by 22 per cent," he said.

Reeve Bill Davis of Bangor said the function of the county assessor was to call in local assessment and try to establish a yardstick. A good county assessor without political clutches could make a fair assessment.

He went on to say that property in the north could not be compared with that in the south. Actual values must be taken into consideration. "Surely we are big enough to arrive at a fair assessment," he said.

Reeve Jack Kincaid of Madoc urged councillors to remember they were all from the one county and that they were working on the basis of the entire county being re-assessed.

Dept. Not Favorable

Reeve Vincent Lynch of Marmora referred to an earlier suggestion that a group of assessors be appointed to get the re-assessment over with. He noted that the assessing department in Toronto were not favorable to that, unless a county assessor was retained on a permanent basis. If not the value of an equalized assessment would be lost.

He said the county could take three lines of action. One would be to dispense with the county assessor's office, to hire an assessor, or to have an equalized assessment through the court, which would cost more.

Reeve Ross Neal of Deseronto, pointed out that 25 counties in the province now had county assessors. He said the county assessor had rendered assistance to the Deseronto assessor. The office would establish equality and that is what we want in the county," he said.

Motion Soundly Defeated

Faraday Reeve J. W. Anderson introduced the motion not to hire an assessor but it was soundly defeated with only six approving votes from the 24 members.

Extensive repairs or replacement of the court house heating system will be considered by councillors at the current session. Chas. Hyde, local plumbing contractor appeared before council reporting on the condition of the present system, which he said was in bad shape.

Belleville Thespians Please Near-Record Audience In Three One-Act Plays

By HAROLD BANKIER

The Belleville Theatre Guild successfully launched its second venture on Tuesday evening, with the first of two performances of a group of three one-act plays. The guild president, Mrs. W. J. Doyle, welcomed a near capacity audience, and, in the course of her remarks read a letter of congratulation to the Theatre Guild from Mayor Haig. The mayor, on behalf of council and himself, expressed appreciation of the honors, which the young group has brought to Belleville and wished it every success in its proposed entry in the Dominion Drama Festival at St. John, N.B.

The first presentation "The Flattering Word" by George Kelly, is a very light-hearted effort, and features the truly comic performance of Helen Sulman, as a stage struck old biddy. Top praise for her efforts need not detract from a number of other very funny characters, particularly the naughty but sweet the enfant terrible who recites at the drop of a hat, or a slip, and Murray Irwin, the austere but vulnerable pastor, Vera Fairman, as the pastor's wife and Ted Hughes as the actor very competently handled their considerable roles.

New Display of Talent

A rather grim tragedy. The Valiant" by Hall and Middlemass, called forth a new display of talent on the part of its stars, Bob Dickens and Vera Thompson. The pathetic possibilities of their big-gest scene were so effective that moist handkerchiefs among the ladies appeared to be the rule rather than the exception. Quite as entertaining in its way is the concert which preceded it. "The Valiant" gained much in effectiveness from the very realistic performances of Syd Rose as the warden, and Joseph McKay as the shaplain.

The guild has again chosen a play by Robertson Davies as its climactic number, and the choice is still a happy one. Canadians may well be proud of the blossoming talents of Mr. Davies, as novelist, playwright and director. "Overtaid" the play in question is for the most part an uproarious romp farce, but it has none the less its pathetic moments. Both phases of the production were excellently handled by the principals, Bert and Gladys Simpson and Court Miller. Mr. Simpson as "Pop" a real belief of a man, at 70, won the hearts of the audience from his first irascible utterance to his final peroration, but, in the eyes of the reviewer, top honors must go to Mrs. Simpson, who played the emotionally underinulated Ethel. Ethel, with her stony composure, her rock-like character, and her tenderness with a granite hand-stone brought the play to life, and gave it depth in its more tragic facets. Court Miller, as the outraged salesman with his cardiac laugh, was more than adequate and a very life like innuranse agent. Joan Tanner and Ray Brule provided very authentic snatches of a Saturday afternoon metropolitan performance, as the photographer and his daughter's bickerings.

Credit to Decorators

More than a little of the credit for all three productions must go to the ladies in charge of the stage decorations, Margaret Robbins and Mary Moult. The Theatre Guild scenery is rapidly becoming an outstanding feature of its productions, and included painted mirrors and pictures, and an illusive kitchen stove complete with stove-pipes. The stage sets are well-nigh worth the price of admission. The directors of the plays, Hilda Burley, Sydney Rose, and Catherine Darlington and the executive and members of the Theatre Guild are deserving of the highest praise for this worthy successor to their first ventures.

Trends in Education Topic Of Discussion by Women's Guild

Trends in Education was the topic for study and discussion at the monthly meeting of the Women's Guild held on Monday evening at the home of Miss J. Tickell, Church Street.

Miss Hazel Thompson, Grade 8 teacher at Queen Alexandra Public School, conducted the program. The grouping of grades into primary, junior, and intermediate divisions was explained, and an appreciation made of some of the newer text-books, which along with work-books and teachers' manuals are now supplied by the government.

The teachers themselves are now having much to do with curriculum building and the Belleville district group have worked diligently in this connection for the last five or three years.

There are "core-courses" which must be followed and also the so-called "frills". If a great proportion of the child's time is spent at the later something is omitted e.g., sufficient, in the essential basic subjects.

On the other hand some of the "frills" provide very valuable training for living, such as the guidance course, which not only provides insight into occupations, but deals with such topics as "getting along with people", and "growing up."

In Belleville Public Schools the set-up provides for separate recess periods for older and younger children and a partial rotary system, in preparation for High School methods.

In closing Miss Thompson quoted from a bulletin prepared for Education Week.

"Education is a co-operative enterprise; it begins in the home and continues after formal schooling ends; it is imperative that all segments of the community work harmoniously for the promotion of a sound educational program.

"Experience and training that will develop good citizens from the youth of today are equally important with efficiency in reading, writing and arithmetic. Parent education has its place, as well as child education. The factory, the farm, the office, the church and the home all have rights and responsibilities in the complete process of education in any community."

During the business part of the meeting a very appreciative letter was read from a religious father in a church in Madras, South India, who had received a food parcel sent by this group through CARE. He described methods of some of the needy children and also a tiny sample of rice.

The worship service was taken by Mrs. M. P. Buck, and light refreshments were served by the hostess committee at the close of the evening.

Queen Juliana Modern Ruler In Every Sense

Gander Airport, Nfld., April 2. (CP)—Queen Juliana of The Netherlands is a modern monarch in every sense of the word.

Last night she slept at the Jupiter hotel in a bare room with no bath or washstand. The floor was bare; the bedstead simple. Outside were all the noises of a busy international airport.

The 43-year-old queen arose early today and prepaged for her three-day state visit to Washington, where she will be the guest tonight of the President and Mrs. Truman in the White House.

The queen, accompanied by her husband, Prince Bernhard, Dutch Foreign Minister Dirk U. Stikker and eleven others, was due at the capital at 4 p.m. E.S.T. today.

The royal four-engined Constellation landed here early last night, first stopover of the World-American tour that will end in Ottawa at the birthplace of Princess Margaret, third of her four daughters.

The main purpose of her trip is to thank the United States for aid to The Netherlands since the war.

Her free and easy gait during her stopover would indicate that her visit may overshadow the informality of the visit to Washington last fall by Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

Escorted to Room

Shortly after she was escorted to her room she appeared in the hotel lobby with her lady in waiting and asked the manager for directions to the "Big Dipper" a bar and restaurant as luxurious as the hotel is bare.

The manager told her it was just across the street and offered to escort her there. The queen remained at the Big Dipper about half an hour and then returned to the hotel alone, waving off the Mounties who moved to form an escort behind her.

She wore a fawn suit and light beige hat.

The best Gander had to offer in the way of accomodations was a 15-foot-square room for the queen. Prince Bernhard had a room on the same floor. The washroom was down the hall.

The royal couple was notified of the facilities in advance but the queen sent word that she agreed to them. Both rooms were guarded by Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

There were no official ceremonies and no reception, in accord with the mourning period for the King, it will be the same when Queen Juliana visits Canada after the official U.S. tour.

Switchboard Girl at Government House in Ottawa Has Many Thrills

Ottawa — (CP) — Pert Clem Hutchins of Ottawa, honey-voiced operator who handles the telephone switchboard at Government House, says talking to world-famous personalities is routine but still thrilling.

Name almost any distinguished visitor to the capital and Clem — Government House or had personal dealings with the governor-general and you may be sure that Clem—no one ever calls me Clementine—knows the answers to many problems that would never normally come within the range of telephone operating."

At present, she is serving under her third governor-general. She started on the job toward the close of the Earl of Athlone's term, worked throughout the stay of Lord and Lady Alexander, and now is handling calls for Canada's first citizen, Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey.

Gifts From Alexanders

Before leaving Ottawa en route to England, the Alexanders presented Miss Hutchins with a gold cigaret case bearing the Alexander crest.

At that time, Lady Alexander apologized for three-year-old Susan, the Alexander's adopted child.

"I know she has been quite a bother," she told Miss Hutchins. "Miss Hutchins says little Susan was actually no bother at all. The girl would come to the switchboard after school and ask countless questions about the operation of the board.

"Sometimes she would climb all over me and try to play with the cords. But I enjoyed every minute of it."

The government House switchboard is only one of the government boards operating in Ottawa. By far the largest and busiest is the official government switchboard, which handles calls to the House of Commons and the Senate, as well as government departments.

Overseeing this section is chief operator Cecile Lalonde of Ottawa. She also is in charge of the Ottawa information switchboard and is responsible for the small boards at government House and the prime minister's office.

Cub Scouts Entertain Parents at Banquet

Friday evening in the Sunday School Hall of Foxboro United Church the Cub Scouts were hosts at a banquet, held for their parents. The special guests were Mr. Arthur Jackson, field secretary of Scouting, and Mr. P. L. Allcorn, assistant commissioner of Scouting in Belleville. Both Scout executives gave an address of timely significance and interest.

Cub Terry Belanger proposed a toast to parents which was answered by parent, Alfred Wickett. Mr. Jackson presented the adult committee for Scouts with the Scout Charter from headquarters. Cubmaster Janet Churchill presented each Cub with his individual registration card.

Rev. H. Giffin introduced the special guests and gave a brief talk on some highlights of a former Cub Troop. He appropriately thanked the mothers for making possible the splendid banquet.

The evening terminated with the showing of three excellent movies by Miss Joan Churchill.

THE ROBINS' RETURN

The wind of March was dreary,
Grey clouds were in the sky,..
Ice decked the leafless tree-tops
That waved their branches high;
No cheering sign of Springtime
Greeted the weary sight—
A bleak and barren landscape
Revealed the Winter's might.

But lo! a transformation—
My Summer friends of yore,
Two gay red-vested robins,
Were hopping near the door;
The many miles they had travelled
Had left no mark nor stain,
Deep was my heart's rejoicing
To have them home again.

For many days they had they had journeyed
Through miles of boundless air,
Guided by One who giveth
To all His love and care;
So, when my weak faith falters
And life seems sad and lone,
I'll trust in the Power that guideth
The birds to their northern home.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He wears dungarees—does it matter?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am going with a very nice boy whose only fault is that he always wear dungarees, even when we go out. He told me he had been brought up in the country, so that is why he isn't in the habit of dressing up. He also says he can't take good care of nice clothes.

My mother doesn't like the way he dresses, and often nags me about it. I have told him this but still he won't give in, except on some special occasion. My girl friend said she would break off with him, and practically everyone else thinks I should.

Of course, I am not exactly happy about it, but I don't think it's reason enough to break off with him. He doesn't have much money, and we hardly ever go anywhere, but I don't care. I understand in a way about his not liking to get dressed up, and he always looks clean and wears nice clean clothes.

Do you think it's a bad sign that he doesn't like to get dressed up? I am very much in love with his parents if he wears good clothes and we have nothing to do anything, and that probably is another reason why he won't dress up. Miss M., 17—O.

Dear S.:

It seems to me it would be nicer if this boy would put on proper clothes when he comes to see you. At the same time, if you don't go out very often, and really don't care too much, it can't see much point in making an issue of it.

If I were you, I think I would, for the time being, make a bargain with him that if he would dress appropriately when you go out together anywhere, you are willing for him to wear the dungarees when you are just staying around the house. If he can't see it as a plan like this, I think perhaps in time it might get to be a habit. Incidentally, if his parents don't like him to wear his good clothes, don't you think at 17 he might take the responsibility for keeping them in good condition by earning some money after school or on Saturday?

Afraid to tell of his previous marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a boy of 19, was married for three years, but couldn't live with my wife, so we separated.

After we had separated, I met a girl whom I fell in love, and I know she loves me, too. The trouble is, she doesn't know I was married, and I don't know how to tell her because I don't want to hurt her. I would like to ask her to marry me some day, but I don't know if she will when she finds out that I was married before.—M. B.

Dear M. B.:

You're certainly not going to get a nice start until you tell or ask this girl to marry you, are you? All you can do it to be perfectly honest with her, and take your chances. If you aren't honest before you marry, you're very likely to get into trouble afterward, because she would almost certainly find out sooner or later that she was not your first wife, and once she discovered you had deceived her, it might be very hard for her to trust you again. Besides that, you wouldn't have a very happy time of it, if you were living in constant fear of her finding out.

Special-Purpose Menu

This is for "H.B."

Pineapple Juice or Fruit Cup
Fresh Pork Curry
Fluffy Boiled Long Grain Rice
Generous Chef's Salad *
Butter Tarts (the syrupy type)
Danish Blue Cheese
Coffee

DIRECTIONS:

The recipe "H.B." asked for is "butter tarts that are syrupy when cold", so I worked them into today's special menu, but the Curry is the special—I want you to try. It is so good you will want it for your permanent files.

FRESH PORK CURRY

One pound lean fresh pork (or veal or lamb) will serve four. Cut the meat into 1-inch cubes and roll in salted flour. Heat 2 tablespoons butter or fat and fry them colorlessly for 2 thinly sliced onions on low heat. Add the meat and saute until golden brown. Add 2 tablespoons flour or rice flour, 2 or 3 teaspoons curry powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, and stir in 2 cups hot water. (For those who are fanatic for curry you know you may use cocoanut milk or milk as part of the liquid content.) When thick add 1 or 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley and simmer very low heat, covered, until meat is tender—about 1 to 1-2 hours. You may need to add a little water as it evaporates. Serve in hot platter in centre of ring of rice.

FLUFFY RICE

Method 1:

In top of double boiler put 1 cup washed long grain rice. Add 1 teaspoon salt, 1 1-2 cups boiling water and 2 teaspoons butter or margarine.

Cover and cook over boiling water 30 minutes. This does not require stirring.

Method 2:

Combine in heavy pan (not stainless steel) 1 cup washed rice and salt and butter as above. Cover tightly, bring to brisk boil, turn off heat for 5 minutes, then turn on heat as low as possible for 25 minutes, without removing lid. Rice will be in distinct kernels but will stick to pan. Remove from heat, cover with cloth, then put on lid and let stand for 5 minutes before serving. Rice which clings to bottom will soak off in a little cold water and may be added to the soup pot.

BUTTER TARTS

(Syrupy type)

One cup brown sugar, 1-4 cup butter, 2 eggs, 1 cup washed and dried currants or chopped seeded raisins, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1-4 cup corn syrup. Cream the butter, and cream the sugar into it. Add beaten eggs and fruit and flavouring. Have pastry tart tins lined with your best thinly rolled out pastry. Fill two-thirds full with the mixture. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. for about 7 minutes, then reduce heat to 400 deg. Fahr. until tarts are biscuit colored on the bottom—about 5 minutes longer.

TART FILLING NO. 2

One-half cup washed and chopped raisins, 1-2 cup sugar, 1 1-2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon cracker crumbs, 1 egg yolk, 1-2 tablespoon melted butter, shake of salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, 2 tablespoons chopped walnuts. Make same as butter tarts above.

Fashion Flashes

NOT ONLY are many of the nicest suits quit slim, but many are almost pencil-slim. Charcoal gray wool is used for a Suit that follows a long, smooth, torso line, except for slightly lowered pockets on the jacket, which closes with a long row of tiny buttons from the high collar.

IT ISN'T easy to choose a coat this spring, for there's such a variety, and all of 'em are so attractive. A soft fleece lay statement-beige makes a smart and useful full-length coat which sports the popular push-up sleeves. Coat falls in flared fullness from a front-and-back-squared yoke.

An ADDITION to the comfort and utility of the brunch coat or backwrap is smartness and style. Smartly dressed up is a tapestry-in-gold print in beige, with a floral and gold print to give a woven tapesty look. The brunch coat has a turtle-fashioned high neckline, which extends to a surplice closing and pretty criss-cross sleeves. Skirt has a big flower-basket packet.

TO ONE SIDE, and very much so, go the severe hats, although the level-set hat is still cited. Milan, in navy, is used for a bonnet with an open crown and upturned front cuff. This is pulled far to the right side, covering the ear. Navy grosgrain crown is open to allow short curls to be pulled through, and a drop of navy grosgrain falls at the side back.

SMART EVENTS at Southern resorts endorse the importance of the two-piece dress and suit of print silk. Navy silk surah, with an assorted white star print, makes a handsome suit. The lined jacket has a velvet collar, self buttons and low-slung pockets. The skirt is also lined.

You don't say that you are divorced from your wife, but merely separated. So I would feel it much wiser for you to clear up your marital status definitely, before telling this girl anything. Until you can go to her as a free man, with the right to tell her you love her and want to marry her, you had better keep still.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Today's tip on letter-writing

Notice the absence of abbreviations in all well written letters—in business letters, as well as social letters. Today the best letter-form demands that we write in full all words. The exceptions are "Mr." and "Mrs." . . . not only in the letter itself, but also on the envelope. Special noje: always write in full the name of the state (or province), on a line separate from the city.

Write about the other person first

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and I love to write letters, and we have many talks together about how to write them. Recently this question came up: When answering a friend's letter, should I first tell her the news of our family and friends and what we've been doing, or should I write about her family and friends first, answering any questions she may have asked in her letter?—Flo M.

A nice question, this, dear girl. An important one too, for it shows that your impulse really is to write about the person you're the other person. And this is just what should be done. . . . we should write first about the person to whom we are writing, about his or her family and friends and activities and welfare —and, of course, answering any questions that may have been asked in the letter to which we are replying. Then we write about our own activities, our own news. This is the courteous sequence, both of thinking and of writing!

She may make hotel reservation, but not pay bill

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Over the Christmas and New Year's holidays I spent my one-week vacation visiting my cousin who lives some distance from where I live. While there I met a very nice young man and we had a wonderful time together, dancing and so forth. Foursomes with my cousin and her fiance. When I left, we spoke of his coming here, and we have corresponded about it. I live in a small suite of rooms in a so-called "glorified boarding house". Now he has written that he could "accept my invitation to come here" at Easter-time. There is only one small hotel in the town. Should I make a reservation for him there and pay for the room, then write him about it, or should I send him the name of the hotel and have him make his own reservation?—Claire M.

Whichever way you do, don't pay for the reservation. . . he should not, or at least should not expect this, and should be unwilling to accept it. I should think the best way would be, in your correspondence-plans, to ask him if he would like to have you make his reservation at "the local hostelry."

BEAUTY

HELEN JAMIESON

Shining white teeth and smiling lips

From the aesthetic point of view, healthy, well-kept teeth are a grand beauty asset, enhancing the charm of the feminine countenance. But there is more to the story than that; they are essential to the health of the body.

Why teeth decay is a mystery. That matter has not been settled by specialists who are qualified to know, though a lot of guessing is going on. But it is believed that the best weapon against trouble is the toothbrush, used properly and frequently. Decay may or may not be due to diet deficiencies, but one should play safe by eating balanced meals—getting proteins, carbohydrates and fats in proper proportions. The diet should include meat, sea food, poultry, cheese, eggs, cereals, vegetables, fruit and fruit juices.

Because of the calcium content, and because it carries many other valuable food elements, milk should be included. A child should have a quart of milk a day, an adult a pint or more. As malnutrition may contribute to the loss of the teeth, and as breakfast is a meal that is usually pretty sketchy, the day should start with fruit, a beverage, and an egg or a cereal. Career girls who dash out of the house in a hurry, fancying that ten o'clock coffee will suffice for a meal, may be playing fair with their health or their appearances. It's a long time from dinner the night before. Your long a time to wait before stoking up. It will be a help if the teeth could be brushed immediately after eating. Food particles left in the mouth change in character in a few hours; fermentation starts up, and trouble may be on the way. This is particularly true of sweets. Whenever you go on a candy binge, scour your teeth when the last goodie is gone. Don't wait.

Use a brush with bristles of different lengths, set in groups. It will do a better job than a brush with bristles set solidly together, and it can be kept cleaner. Sweep the brush away from the gums, polishing the sides and inner surfaces of the teeth, and don't overlook the biting areas—many cavities usually appear first. Rinse well with a fragrant mouth lotion.

An unpleasant breath is often the result of decayed or infected teeth. When a girl is afflicted with that trouble, she might as well take a back seat and stay there, as far as her social life is concerned.

Twice a year there should be an appointment with the dentist. He will clean the teeth carefully, make an examination, catch cavities when they are young. This practice will save pain and money in the future.

There were 115 in the group when they were driven from the village of Chinkiure, China. Most of them have been killed. Only one family remained intact. Shown in the first row they are Gregori Sharjov; his wife, Maria, and daughter, Tatiana. $500,000 Worth U.S.-Bound Drugs Seized

Rome, April 2 (AP)—Police, led by tips from United States federal agents, seized more than $500,000 worth of U.S.-bound drugs and arrested at least seven persons in raids stretching from Milan to Sicily, it was disclosed today.

Among those arrested or still sought as suspects in any international dope ring are men reported previously deported from the United States.

The new cleanup of Italian elements in the ring started 10 days ago at Alcamo, Sicily, where police seized large quantities of heroin hidden in a false-bottomed trunk. They arrested Frank Mancuso, whom they identified as having been deported from the United States.

Officers said they later raided the residence near Rome of Frank Coppola and found another large quantity of heroin. Coppola, also identified as having been deported from the United States, escaped.

A series of raids in Milan produced six more arrests.

The arrest in San Diego, Calif., last September of a man named Salvatore Vitale is believed to have given the tip that led to the Sicilian raid and the arrest of Mancuso.

Society for Crippled Children Organized in Windsor 30 Years Ago

Through the 1952 annual Easter Seal appeal which closes Easter Sunday, the Ontario Society for Crippled Children is seeking to raise $400,000 to finance special projects in order to meet the needs of the province's 4,700 handicapped children and to continue spearheading the attack on the dreaded cerebral palsy so that its tiny victims might one day join the normal youngsters.

The Rotary Club of Belleville at present is conducting a campaign in the city to raise money for their Crippled Children Fund.

The realization of the astronomical number of individual cases of crippling and the appreciation of the miracles of modern orthopaedics were brought to focus at an important meeting in Windsor nearly 30 years ago. It was on Nov. 29, 1922, representatives of 10 service clubs met and formed the society which was to take care of 75 crippled children. Today 211 service clubs are associated with the Crippled Society for Crippled Children—185 of them participating in the Easter Seal sale—and the number of cases discovered and treated has skyrocketed to 4,700 a year.

The first children treated 30 years ago had to be 16 years and under. Today the age limit has jumped to 21. And although the interests of the Society have broadened to include nursing care, camping facilities and a start on cerebral palsy, its original purpose remains the same—to aid crippled children regardless of race, religion or sex; to discover and transport them to hospitals and clinics; to arrange treatment and appliances and help them enjoy a normal life and thereby contribute to the building of a better world.

In 1930 members of the Ontario Society were instrumental in helping service clubs in Quebec form the Quebec Society for Crippled Children. Since then, and always with the stimulation emanating from the Ontario office, similar organizations have grown up in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. At present the nucleus of another has been started in the Maritimes and officials say, in a few more years, they'll have complete national coverage.

The Ontario Society for Crippled Children is justified in feeling it has made a vital contribution to the province and the nation, as well as to a great humanitarian work. Their cause deserves genuine support...today more than ever before. Please purchase Easter Seals and help crippled children.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma got an avvertizement in the mail tola morning, saying to pop, this is intresting, William. The Extension Lecture Bewro is announcing a course in'ayciology at Kingston Hall, she said.

Yea goda, stay away, pop said, and ma said, Why shouldn't I improve my mind for laist sakes? The feroc lectures left be on matrimonia. That means split personality. Of course everybody's personally is allsiy split. I meen we all secretly unconsciously want to be socially which we're not. But when a person what he secretly unconsciously wishes, then he's a true schizofreenic, she said.

You dont need to go to Extension Hall to find out about that stuff, pop said. Sycology begins at home. I'm a skitzofreenic myself. One half of me is a hard headed blizness man, and the other half is a poet with his soft head in the clouds, he said.

Now William, dont go off on any long winded track, ma said, and pop said, I assure you, my dear, at this very moment, when my mind should by bizzy swingling a linseed deel, I am actually reciting to myself a poem on the celestial result of the lowly marriage of liver and onions. I'll recite it out loud: Quoth the liver to the onion, a be swonned in a happy coma, "Sweetheart, I perish beautifully, wrapped tisely in my aroma."

Oh relax, I'm entirely too bizy to even think of revolting in the class, if that's any relief to you, ma said, and pop said, My dear, it's a'sitch a relief that I'm tempted to express in poetry, but I won't.

Which he didn't.

Churchill Will Support American For European Post

London, April 2 (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today Britain will support the appointment of another American to head the North Atlantic forces in Europe after General Eisenhower leaves.

Churchill said that if the United States has the slightest wish to keep the command, then Britain will "certainly support them."

He was answering a question from a Labor member, former Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell, who asked whether the U. S. has made any mention of Eisenhower's replacement by Gen. Alfred Gruenther, his present deputy.

Churchill replied: "I do not think I could guarantee to announce if any representations were made to me as the mere fact of that might preclude such representations."

When Shinwell said there are high-ranking military officers in Britain competent to replace Ike, Churchill said "I don't think it would be advisable for us to express a view about opinions about this."

Churchill said he has no hint of just when Eisenhower will step out of uniform to campaign actively for the Republican presidential nomination in the U.S.

Gruenther is mentioned prominently as among those listed to succeed Eisenhower.

Shinwell said that at least "the matter might be discussed by the House before a decision is reached."

Nine Men Rescued

Barrow, Alaska, April 2 (AP)— Nine stranded men were snatched from an Arctic ice pack and landed safely by their navy rescue plane.

The plane rescued the seven navy men and two scientists from their four day isolation and brought them to a safe landing at this northernmost tip of Alaska at 8.30 p.m. (1.30 a.m. 2nd).

The pickup from the ice, where the men were stranded by a takeoff accident of their own plane last Thursday, was made only about 500 miles from the North Pole.

The men reported the greatest danger of the operation came in the landing on the ice pack.

The crew members of the "Flying Laboratory" — an R4D, had cleared a 2,500 foot long runway on the ice. The navy rescue plane came within 10 feet of an eight-foot high ridge of ice at the end of the runway before it could be stopped.

The plane normally requires a 4,500 foot runway.

Members of the rescue party were in good health.

18,000 Rubber Workers in Akron Now Idle

Akron, O., April 2 (AP) — A strikeat eight Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. raised the number of idle rubber workers in Akron to 18,000 today.

At the same time, Akron's only tire dealers' association was stalled by a strike of 450 bus drivers and 100 bus mechanics.

The walkout at Firestone started when eight men quit work in an allowance dispute, the company said.

At the B. F. Goodrich Co., 12,000 production workers still were idle as the result of a strike by 200 office employees. The office workers claim Goodrich wants to withdraw recognition of the United Rubber Workers (C.I.O.) as their bargaining agent.

Another 4,000 rubber workers at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. continued an unauthorized strike in a dispute over piecework rates.

The bus strike—the fourth in eight years at the Akron Transportation Co.—left 300,000 persons without public transportation. The drivers and mechanics want wage boosts.

New Support Plan for Cheese To be Announced

Ottawa, April 2 — (CP) — The Federal government is moving to avert a crack-up in the cheese market, is expected to announce shortly a new support program for cheddar, it was learned Monday night.

The support price will range near last year's 36 cents a pound, lower than current demands by producers.

This was disclosed in informed quarters after announcement in London that a shortage of dollars will prevent British from purchasing cheese from Canada.

Ontario cheese producers last year completed a deal with British buying agency, Milk Foods Ltd., at approximately 32 cents a pound, four cents above the federal support price.

This year the United Kingdom market is gone; the United States has restrictions on cheese imports and there is no export trade. Increased production in Canada because of the U. S. embargo on Canadian dairy cattle. The surplus, informants estimated, is likely to climb to more than 30,000,000 lbs

Lamport Will Give One Of Two Canadian Recitals in City

The internationally renowned leading bass - baritone of the Vienna State Opera, George London will make the second of only two appearances in Canada this season when he will be heard in recital this Thursday at the Collegiate auditorium as the featured artist in the final concert of the 1951-52 series of concerts sponsored by the Belleville Community Concert Association. The only other appearance that Mr. London has made in Canada this season was last evening when he sang before a packed house in Montreal.

Belleville music lovers are fortunate to be able to have this distinguished singer appear here and are looking forward anxiously to hearing his magnificent voice which made musical history last November 13th when he made his sensational debut with the Metropolitan Opera in the difficult role of Amonsaro in "Aida."

Mr. London, born in Montreal and later moving to Hollywood had his first big chance in 1940 when the English conductor, Albert Coates, chose him to sing in the premiere of his opera "Gaina-borough." In the years following he made his respective debuts with numerous opera companies in the U.S.A., especially on the West Coast. He also has made a cross-country tour of the U.S. in the operetta "The Desert Song." He toured with Mr. Lionel Cecil (another member of this trio being Mario Lanza) and was soloist with the major symphony orchestras of the U.S. He made his sensational debut with the Vienna State Opera in 1950, and since then has sung with great acclaim at the Glyndebourne and Edinburgh Festivals in England and Scotland.

Renowned Singer Will Give One Of Two Canadian Recitals in City

After a second sulumn season in Vienna he came back to the States in 1951 for a sold-out concert tour. Last summer he was engaged for the first post-war Bayreuth Festival, one of the really great honors of any opera singer's career. This past January he conquered another of the leading opera houses of the world when he made his debut with La Scala of Milan, Italy, another feather in his cap of operatic conquests. He is truly one of the greatest singing actors of the present decade."

Wings Toss Leafs Into Discard With 3-1 Win; Bruins, Habs All Square

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THAT'S IT!

"I Feel, Oh, So Blue when the Leafs Come A-Tumbling Down in the Breese", Tra-la-la-la-".

That was the swan-song of a lot of loyal Leafian rooters in Maple Leaf Gardens last night when they're ex-Stanley Cup champions went down in four straight heats before the "breeses" of the powerful Detroit Red Wings. It's to be hoped the usual alibis won't be forthcoming from the Hogtown sports writers, because they'll be so much ruu:. The Leafs were beaten all down the line, in every department by a team that was superior from the stick-boy up. Even Foster Hewitt, the Leafs microphone backer-upper admitted that in his post-game comments.

So the Leafs can hang 'em up without bothering to count the Stanley Cup and final series spoils. They didn't have "what it takes" to win another pewter prize, and the team will likely be the first to admit it. They shouldn't complain. for after all they've won the fifty-buck Stanley mug six times during the last ten years, and it's about time the venerable silverware rested on another mantle. A change of scenery won't hurt even that battered beaker.

But on the other front things look different. The Boston Bruins blew a two-goal lead to Canadiens only to come back and eke out a 2-2 wrid when Fleming Mackell's shoulder-bith shot fooled Gerry McNeil. They're roaring today in Boston and last night in the Boston Arena they could have yelled "The British are Coming" and not moved a loyal beat-ester from his seat. The teams are all square and move back to Montreal for the fifth game. Meanwhile the Red Wings will await the notification up north with a well-deserved rest before they take on the winners in the cup series.

A CLOSE ONE!

Commenting on last night's game city editor Claude Tice said—"Gee, there have a real chance to win the semi-final series with Weston Dukes providing they play the type of hockey they are capable of dishing up. Last night the play was fairly even in the first period with the exception of a double penalty to Therrien and Wilson, when Weston scored two quick goals. In the second period the Hawks were much the best and were unlucky not to have scored a few more. Weston tied it up. In the third frame there was no scoring till near the end of the period, when on a screened shot the Weston team went into the lead and no other goal was just worth of these things. Weston has a big team but the Hawks do not back up, and were not outskated on the big ice surface. The "production line" was not productive and if the first line had turned in the same performance as the rest of the team the result could have been altogether different. Barclay is goal was brilliant all through the piece, while Doran showed a lot of power when set on a rush with De Grey and Mason proving hard checkers. It will be quite a series before it is through and it could be the Hawks could make the finals with a fair break in the luck. They came out of the game in good physical shape."

The teams start the four-of-seven semi-finals series in Weston on Friday night. The second is scheduled for Belleville on Tuesday next. Following that the teams will alternate on Friday and Tuesday nights until the series is completed.

MINOR TOURNAMENT

Three entries in the Belleville Hockey Association's post-season "under-eighteen" tournament have been received, according to officials, Theole Insider Reserves, Napanee and Lake Trenton. Invitations to the tournament which will embrace minor teams under 18 years of age have been issued to Wellington, Picton, Stirling, Campbellford, Tweed-Flinton and Marmora-Madoc. Entries from places other than these will be cordially welcomed.

Potential entries are requested to get in contact with BHA secretary Dick Beare at Cook's Cigar Store, Belleville, as soon as possible in order that tournament arrangements can be made.

The tournament will be an elimination affair. A losing team will be automatically eliminated, with the winner going on. The winner's award will be a handsome trophy donated by BHA president Jack Tanner.

STIFF PAYMENT!

The suspended officials and players of the ex-Nylons hockey club of Kingston are paying a dear price for their alleged offence. A late bulletin from the Ontario Amateur Football Association states that the organization has announced in suspensions reported by the Ontario Sports Federation. It adds that the Nylons officials and players will not be eligible for softball this year. We understand that the suspended manager of the Nylons was also president of the Kingston Softball League.

Furthermore, it is inferred that the Ontario Baseball Association and other sports bodies affiliated with the Ontario Sports Federation will also concur in the OHA suspensions of the Nylon. and will likely ban them from their phases of sport. It's stiff payment.

COULD BE WORSE

The OASA bulletin also carries the list of nominations for its various offices which will be voted on at the forthcoming annual convention in London, Ont. on Friday. Among those nominated for the executive is Harry Knott of this city. Harry is one of the veterans of the game here and has been associated with it since Belleville first played the game under organized rules. He acted as convener for the district last year and as usual did a fine job. While we do not know Harry's chances of election, the OASA could do a lot worse than electing or naming Knott to its directorate.

The bulletin, commenting on its new pee-wee series, paid tribute to the Belleville Intermediate "A" entry. It says "A particularly pleasing feature of the new series was the sponsorship in the Belleville League by the city fire department with the chief and his men operating the loop and coaching the teams."

Its title "The Amazing Mr. Churchill" is a definite understatement of fact.

Detroit Powerhouse Too Much For Leafs in 4th Straight Win; Boston Edges Canadiens 3-2

Boston, April 2—(CP)—There's a fine line between being a goat and a hero in hockey and no one knows it better today than Fleming Mackell, 22-year-old Boston Bruins right winger.

An apparently needless second-period penalty put Mackell in the doghouse with most of the 11,065 fans at Boston Gardens last night until he redeemed himself with the winning goal in the Bruins' 3-2 National Hockey League playoff victory over Montreal Canadiens.

The win tied the best-of-seven series at two games apiece and sent the teams back to Montreal for the fifth game Thursday night. It also assured another appearance here Sunday night for the fifth game.

Mackell's highs and downs pretty well told the story of last night's game.

Outplay Canadiens

The Bruins outplayed the Canadiens for a wide margin until late in the second period. They had a 27-8 edge in shots at that point. Real Chevrefils and veteran Milt Schmidt when Mackell was banished for high-sticking.

The Canadiens took their cue from the sudden advantage and suddenly regained the form that had brought them beaten 5-1 and 4-0 victories in the first two games of the series in Montreal.

They pounced on a five-man attack and Floyd Curry made it 2-1 goal with a pass by veteran Meger's forward pass behind Sugar Jim Henry.

The goal let the Bruins disorganized and the Canadiens appeared to be on their way when Curry scored again early in the third period to tie the score. It was Curry's fourth goal of the playoffs.

With less than six minutes to go, however, Mackell suddenly became a hero when he fired a 15-footer over Gerry McNeil's left shoulder into the Montreal net for the game-winning tally.

Defenceman Bill Quackenbush started the play by hooking a loose puck in the Boston zone and passing to Ed Sandford who fought his way around the Montreal net before setting Mackell up nicely.

Last night's Boston win seemed to emphasize the importance of home ice in this particular series. The Canadiens won their two games in the Montreal Forum and the Bruins have taken both of the games played here. They won the third game of the series Sunday 4-1.

If things continue, there's a good chance the series will go the full seven games, leaving a long wait for Detroit Red Wings who have eliminated Toronto in four straight.

Ted Waltjen, 49-year-old carpenter from Dawson Creek, made his way out of the Yukon this winter for the first time in 12 years—and he made it to Nelson, B.C., to curl. So far, he's participated in 184 curling matches this season, but he's not through yet. He will enter the Vancouver bonspiel next week.

The average curler in the Nelson area gets in about 50 matches a season. Waltjen has his sights set on the 190-game mark before he returns to Dawson Creek.

Tillsonburg Wins Over Montreal In Cage Opener

Montreal, April 2—(CP)—Tillsonburg Livingstons last night edged Montreal Y. M. H. A. Blues 53-51 in the first game of a best-of-three series for the eastern Canada senior basketball championship.

The second game will be played here tonight and a third game, if necessary, Thursday.

With less than half a minute to play, the score 51-51, Murray Waxman of the Blues fouled Tillsonburg's playing-coach, Paul Thomas. The free throw was good and the visitors held onto the ball for the rest of the contest.

In the first quarter the visitors' height showed to advantage and they pulled ahead 35-31. The second frame opened with Tillsonburg baskets by Livingstons and their fast style, height and polish left Y. M. Hebrews/their team at a standstill. But in the last 10 minutes the Blue Shirts came to life and tied the game before Thomas scored the clincher.

Harry Smith was the top point-getter for the winngrs with 14 points. Bob Phibbs, Tom Gibson and Bob Dingwall each had nine. Waxman led the losers with 14 points.

Providence Nips Cincinnati 3-2; Lead Series 2-0

(By The Canadian Press)

Providence Reds have taken another step toward the American Hockey League final and a crack at the Calder Cup, emblematic of the league championship.

The Reds shaded Cincinnati Mohawks 3-2 at Providence last night to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-five semi-final series.

Ray Powell, the league's leading scorer, notched the winning tally in a pack of scrambling players 2:05 in the final. The Mohawks twice bounced back to erase one-goal deficits.

Chick Webster tied it up for them at 5:55 of the first period after defenceman Pat Egan had scored for the Reds on a goalmouth melee the seventh minute while the Mohawks were shorthanded.

Cincinnati regained the lead for Providence at 8:04 in the second period when Gerry Sullivan batted in Ellis Then Gus Schwartz deflected Ed Harrison's shot into the cage for the Mohawks' equalizer at 19:57 while the Reds were shorthanded.

Powell, who scored the fourth game if necessary, will be played in Cincinnati Thursday and Saturday.

Jimmy Carter Retains Light Title, Gets Unanimous Verdict Over Salas

Los Angeles, April 2 (AP) — Jimmy Carter retained his world's lightweight title last night by boxing his way to a unanimous decision over challenger Lauro Salas in a rousing 15-rounder.

Although piling up a good margin of victory with his sharp punching and quick footwork, champion from New York never did solve the flailing style of the willing Lauro.

"He never did hurt me, but I couldn't figure him out," the champion said after the fight. He carried a little cut above his left eye, but otherwise wasn't noticeably marked.

Down in 15th

In the final two rounds, the challenger, California's featherweight champion who hails from Monterey, Mex., took the play away from Carter and had him down for a count of three in the 15th.

There was some dispute about how the champion went down. Salas' supporters said the champ was knocked there. Jimmy, in his dressing room later, said he was off balance and fell as Lauro swung.

The crowd of 7,678 paid $31,462.38 to see the battle at the Olympic Auditorium as Carter defended his 135 pound title for the second time since winning from Ike Williams last year. The 28-year-old champion, at 134, held a three-pound weight advantage over the 24-year-old challenger.

Johnny Bratton Draws Suspension

Washington, April 2, (AP) —The National Boxing Association today suspended Johnny Bratton, ranking Chicago welterweight, for failure to show up for a match in Boston last night.

The action was taken, the N.B.A. said, at the request of the National Boxing Commission, an association affiliate.

The association said Bratton, rated third among the welters, had made a contract to box sixth-rated Pierre Langlois last night at Montreal.

The N.B.A. said the indefinite suspension also applies to Bratton's manager, Hymie Waldman.

The suspension means, the NBA said, that Bratton cannot fight in any NBA affiliated state until he goes through with a Langlois bout in Montreal.

Weston Dukes Defeat Hawks 5-3 To Sweep Junior B Round Robin Series

Homesters Score Brace in 3rd To Break Three-All Deadlock; Start Series at Weston Fri.

Scoring a brace of goals in the third period to break a deadlock game, the Weston Dukes scored a 5-3 win over the Belleville Juniors Hawks in the final game of the Junior B round robin series played at Weston Arena before 400 fans.

The win gave the homesters a clean sweep of the series with a double win over both the Bellerville team and the Barrie Flyers while Belleville gained the OHA Junior B semi-final spot by defeating Barrie in both of their encounters. Belleville and Weston Arena square off in a four out of seven series for the right to enter the final round.

Belleville spotted the Dukes a pair of first-period goals when they suffered a double penalty, then scored back-to-back temporary lead in the second period but lapsed badly in the final chucker when Weston both outscored and outplayed them to gain full measure for the win.

Youthful Billy Harris, although gaining only one goal and an assist, was the key man in the Weston attack as time and again he spearheaded dangerous attacks, being thwarted on many occasions only by the fine work of Don Barclay, who played an outstanding game in the Hawk nets.

DON BARCLAY
. . . Another Good Show

Dukes Main Cogs

Livingston and Jackson were the main cogs in the Dukes defence as they broke up many Hawk thrusts at the blue line and, back in the nets, Bill Snider Albani to the absolute minimum.

Livingston paced the homesters for the winners, notching a pair, both in the first period while the visitors were two men short, on assists from Reid and Glover. Jamieson picked up a goal and an assist, Sneddon a goal and assists to Stoyan and Lawson.

"Dukes" Doran was the big man in the Hawks second period drive, assisting on the first goal by Gilmour and netting both of the other goals as he finished off neatly-executed passing plays with linemate Ted DeGray. The latter turned in another of his usually fine performances while Pat Gilmour was deserving of creditable mention for an above average effort.

Netminder Don Barclay played a terrific game between the pipes for the Hawks, turning aside a more rubber in the third period alone than the opposition registered throughout the entire game.

Play began rather cautiously as both teams were trying to feel each other out. Wilson's shot caromed off the top cross bar as it beat Albani cleanly. Wilson came right back with a drive that Barclay saved.

Then at 9:33 Therrien and Wilson received a fatal double penalty the former for holding and the latter for interference and Livingston with Glover and Reid clicked for two quick goals on ganging plays.

Weston received three more penalties before the end of the period but their defence held fast and kept the visitors off the score sheet.

Hawks finally hit pay dirt at 2.37 when Wilson passed the puck out to Doran at centre-ice, the latter making a brilliant effort in carrying the puck into the attacking zone, shook three defenders to get a shot away. Pat Gilmour pounced on the rebound and bulleted a drive that Albani never saw.

Doran and DeGray combined for two more to shoot the Hawks into the lead temporarily on clever passing plays, the latter being the prettiest play of the night.

Jamieson tied the score at 12.36 just six seconds after Pete Green returned to the ice from serving a tripping penalty. The Hawks defence backed right in on Barclay, giving him little chance to make a play on a screened shot. Play remained fairly even throughout the remainder of the period.

The Dukes really opened up to start the third period and pressed the Hawks continually into their own end. The homesters were firing rubber from all angles and finally broke the deadlock on a complete fluke play. Lawson shot the puck at a group of players in front of the Hawk net. Sheddon raised his stick up chest high to catch the puck and deflect it downward into the twine.

Play roughened considerably and after Harris potted the clincher from Jamieson, the former and Bob Wilson became entangled in a fight with the Hawk player coming out on top. Both players drew roaring major penalties. Reid drew a tripping penalty at 18.54 but the Hawks did not get a shot on goal during the last two minutes of play.

The only casualty of the night was Glover, Weston wingman, who had to be carried from the ice on a stretcher during the second period after receiving a clean check from Pete Green.

The Teams:

Belleville Junior Hawks: Goal, Barclay; defence, Wilson, P. Green; centre, Lalande; wings, Jacklin, Strahan; subs, Munroe, DeGray, Gilmour, Therrien, Mason, Carey, Jones, Doran.

The Sault, winner of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association crown, held Stratford to a 3-1 score in the first period with Bruce Burdett scoring for Stratford and Towns for Sault.

In the second period, Don Heinbuch and Burdett added two goals to the Stratford score giving them a 3-1 lead. There were only five penalties handed out in this period compared to eight in the hard-checking first.

Columbus, O., April 2 — (AP) — For years, April 1 has brought the same kind of telephone calls to the Columbus zoo.

The calls averaged 43 an hour on April Fool's Day last year, zoo officials said. Finally, someone thought of a solution. It was tried yesterday.

For one day only, the Columbus zoo had its telephone disconnected.

EXTEND ZOO

Winnipeg — (CP) — Extension of Assiniboine Park Zoo to include "as far as practicable" all species of animals native to Manitoba was urged in the parks board's annual report. Also recommended was preparation of an over-all plan for zoo expansion with improvements in housing of the animals.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A double in bridge is a sort of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Times are when you meet it as a kindly request to bid. At other times it is a horrible means that says it expects to beat you.

In some spots a double asks partner to bid. Then is when it is a takeout double. In some spots a double says it expects to defeat the opponents last bid. Then is when it is a penalty double.

If partner has already bid, any double is for penalty. If a bid has not yet been made by partner, a double is for takeout if the bid is less than four in a suit or less than two in no-trump.

Take the deal you see here:

NORTH
♠A Q 10 8 5
♥10 7
♦K 10 9 4
♣10 7

WEST
♠K J 9 6 4
♥2 3
♦5
♣A K Q 5 3

EAST
♠None
♥Q 9 4 2
♦7 7 6 5 3 2
♣9 8 2

SOUTH
♠7 3 2
♥A K J 9 8 6
♦A Q
♣6 4

Suppose south starts with an opening bid of one heart. If west doubles it is for takeout. Partner (east) has not yet bid. The bid is not more than three in a suit; it is less than four in a suit.

When south opened with a heart and west doubled, suppose north bid one spade. If east passes and south bids two hearts, suppose west doubles again. It is still for takeout; for the same reasons.

Suppose south started with an incorrect opening bid of three hearts. If west doubles it is for takeout. Partner has not yet bid. The bid is less than four in a suit.

Suppose south started with an incorrect opening bid of four hearts. If west doubles it is for penalty. True, partner has not yet bid, but the bid is not less than four in suit.

When south opened with a heart, suppose west bid one spade and north doubled. It is for penalty. His partner (south) has already bid. So, this double is for penalty.

Thus, whether a double is for takeout or penalty depends on the size of the bid and whether or not partner has already bid.

Not knowing doubles will add to your troubles.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 2. (AP) What television needs, says Lon Chaney, is more old-fashioned horror and less blood and guts for the children's viewers.

That sounds like an odd statement, coming from a father and grandchildren. But Chaney backs it up with this reasoning:

"I don't mean that you should scare the kids on TV. I mean TV could put on the kind of horror things that my father did and that I have tried to do on the screen, although the studios seldom let me. My father may have looked like a monster, on the screen, but he was never a menace. He played a simple fellow who was victimized by others; the only Violence came with the retribution at the end of the picture.

"I think such stories would be much better for kids than the stuff they are getting from TV now. The westerns and other pictures are full of shootings and beatings.

"I know from my own experience what an effect it has on kids. Three times I have broken up really rugged fights among the children in my neighborhood. Once a boy had another kid down and was hitting him over the head with his toy pistol. They had learned about such things on TV."

Chaney is against pure horror, and he said he has turned down numerous TV offers because of his beliefs. But he's not knocking the business of being a boogey-man.

"I've made more money from it than any other man," he remarked.

More than his father, the horror king of silent films?

"Sure," he replied. "This present picture ('The Black Castle') is my 113th. My dad only made 50 or 60.

"And I'm still going strong. I've been in show business for 47 years. I've got two grandchildren and another on the way. But I'm still able to do all the physical stuff in pictures. I'm the only horror man left who can."

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was pealing potatoes in the kitchin, and I came in with a bag of apples from the market, and I was quick going out again. And ma said, Wait a minute, this bag of apples feels very lite for 3 pounds, it seems to me.

And she opened it and looked in, saying, Sure a few stingy apples for land sakes. With fruit costing like the devil nowadays, I mite at least of given you full weight. I'm going to call up the market this very minute, she said.

Aw, G, ma, it wasn't their fault, I said. Puds Simknis took 3 out of the bag and ate them, I said, and she said, Well of all the crazy statements. Couldn't you protect yourself? Couldn't you protect my apples? I'm just going to call up his mother, she said.

Well jimminy roozalem, ma, I guess maybe I shouldn't of let him carry the bag, I said, but ma said, I should a say you shouldn't, I never heard of such a thing. What was the idea and the object of that? You're not crippled, are you? she said.

No mam, it was his idea, ma, I said. He claimed it would be a change for both of us if I carried his box of raisins and he carried my apples. I did my best to make him stop, ma. I told him I'd keep on eating his mother's raisins as fast as he kept on eating your apples, but he just kept on eating them so fast my jaws still hert from keeping up my revendge. Gosh, ma, if you think that bag of apples looks kind of empty you ought to see what aint left of Pud's mother's box of raisins, I said.

Not being quite the end of the subject.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR THURSDAY, APRIL 3 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Conflicting aspects indicate best of plans can be upset if not guarded. Be steady, firm, hold your own. Carry on business matters with special astuteness.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—No day to get nervous or tackle any problems without due thought. Avoid extreme, in business or personal affairs, and be sure not to push others aside as you go forward.

May 21 to June 21 (Gentini)—You fast-moving, at times over-sensitive folks should stress calmness and collectedness now. Don't strain to beat the gun; a steady pace makes for more accomplishment. Pray for guidance.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Some strong resistance likely in your personal affairs. Be extremely careful about investments, loans, signing deeds, contracts, etc. Day demands caution.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Be your alert, on-the-job self; take advantage of opportunities; there may not be too many at this time. Hold to high principles, be thoughtful with those who depend upon you.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—May run into unexpected hindrances, especially in business or professional matters. After mid-afternoon there should be helpful leads from associates, perhaps odd sources. Be on lookout!

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Restless periods; tendency to neglect minor duties, so be on guard. Turn enthusiasm and energy into wisest channels. Heart interests favored in turn.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Input all worth-while ideas into motion quickly, efficiently. Sensible aggressive action keeps pace with conditions better than uneven stabs. Opportunities increase; get busy now.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Inauspicious moves can hinder business, even long-planned effort. Give things an extra push and earnest thought to counteract confusing elements. Despatch obligations promptly.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Priority should be given all essentials, important issues, matters that directly affect our country, home, family. Don't heed gossip. Think charitably.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Allow self no immunity for repeated needless mistakes. May be a tendency today to relax at wrong time. Keep your mind keyed up for the good things and you won't have regrets.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Stu'..., ask questions on all propositions, but ask right sources. Intuition will give you uplift, help you solve many hard problems. Pray for inspiration, strengthen your faith.

YOU BORN TODAY can make appreciable headway this year, and quickest in congenial surroundings. You are always advantages but must keep after yourself to go on till you have finished a job well, which you can. Can be determined, but seldom driven or forced. Ruled by Mars, you may have a quick temper, and when aroused will fight furiously. You should curb this ... strength and vigor can be applied to will ... can be very calculable, ... tes. Avoid restlessness, inse... urity. Require occasional rest to balance your brain- activity. Birthdate: Washington Irving, Amer. man of letters; John Burroughs, naturalist, essayist.

Ontario Vegetable Growers Think Price of $35 Per Ton For Ungraded Tomatoes Fair One

Prices—The price of $35 per ton for ungraded tomatoes, set by arbitration, for 1952, is justified under the definition," declared William Walker, chairman of the Ontario Vegetable Growers at Ontario, speaking at the annual banquet of Prince Edward Canning Crop Growers.

Mr. Walker answered County Canners who had claimed they could not process tomatoes this season at the new price, the highest in history.

"I believe that the price is a fair one and can be paid without much trouble by the canners. That industry's own figures justify the price sought and secured," he said.

"I do not know of any place in Ontario, other than in Prince Edward, where there is any consumer resistance to the price."

Referring to the retail price of tomatoes, as a result of the 22 per cent increase in price, Mr. Walker said he could mean not more than from 1 to 2 cents a can more, since lowest prices are inflated due to scarcity.

"Consumers I feel, will well pay and do purchase canned goods at a slightly increased price," said Mr. Walker. He called the country's sound economy, and felt purchasing power would be maintained through the increased value of the Canadian dollar, old age pensions totalling 300 million a year, great industrial expansion, development of the St. Lawrence, oil exploration and other items. More people will be able to live better as a result, and it was for such reason that the growers felt the price is justified, he said.

Mr. Walker said the Ontario price board had set the price for all Canada. B.C. Tree Fruits had agreed to adopt the prices set, he said.

Referring to competition of Quebec canned tomatoes, Mr. Walker said he had been informed that independent canners paid $40 ton for tomatoes last year; one firm as high as $45, and that the 1950 price had been $30 ton.

Shelves are bare of Canadian canned tomatoes. Thousands of cases have been imported. There is just enough room for price to go round and tomato soup is hard to get. Government figures show a definite shortage, and a market is assured, Mr. Walker said.

Mr. Walker in briefly referring to importation of California tomatoes, said the pack this year is $20 a ton, but that this was roadside price and other factors in the price are involved. A number of States had a record pack last year but this is not usual and importation may not be as important a factor in future, Mr. Walker felt.

Farm prices are falling and the new canning crop prices have given the industry a "shot in the arm", said Mr. Walker.

Referring to negotiations with the canners, Mr. Walker said a different attitude prevailed this year. Terms of contract were not as hard to arrive at and there was a feeling of mutual co-operation. This year's contracts are the culmination of years of effort, he declared.

The tomato crop was a seven million dollar one last year, exceeding the fruit pack by two million. The increase means important revenue, he pointed out.

Growers had made a survey of cost of production, but greater emphasis has always been laid on what the canner can afford to pay and the selling price. Production costs indicate that the $35 ton price is justified, said Mr. Walker.

The importance of organization was stressed by Mr. Walker. Last year's "strike" by growers convinced the canners and the powers that be that the growers could fight, said Mr. Walker, adding that there was new respect for the organization.

"For eleven years, we as an organization have been fighting for a better deal and today growers have the financial trust on the North American continent, with prices we believe to be in line with others and that Mr. Walker, "We are living in changing times, and there has been a change in thought between canners and growers. We are willing to cooperate with canners, and with co-operation we can have one of the finest industries in Canada today," Mr. Walker concluded.

175 Attended

President of the County Association Roy Shortt, who presided at the gathering, attended by 175, at St. Andrew's church hall, said he felt county canners would pay the contract price, and he had learned that a number of growers had been assured that they would be looked after.

Secretary of the County organization, D. G. Reynolds, who took part in negotiations, said growers had Mr. Walker to thank for the price secured. He felt that the Ontario Vegetable Growers' Marketing Board was the strongest farm organization in Ontario today. Prince Edward County, he said, was more difficult to organize than others, due to the large number of independent canners located here, and as many growers are also factory shareholders. In the vote on the marketing scheme, Prince Edward ranked among the highest in Ontario, he said.

President Shortt said last spring's strike had shown that growers could act as one and had belied the belief that the farmer is a rugged individualist, who would refuse to co-operate, if agriculture is not prosperous, no industry can flourish, he stressed, and urged support of the organization.

George J. Turtin, M.P., said this is an age of organization, in introducing delegations at Ottawa, he found new respect when groups were organized and can speak collectively.

Norris Whitney, M.P.P., felt that a prosperous economy is a good way to fight communism which flourishes on distress and dissatisfaction.

Brig. Genet is Speaker

Guest speaker was Brig. J. E. county, and highly commended the county. Administrative township farmer, whose off-the-record talk was personal impressions of Churchill, Eisenhower and the Princess Royal. These resulted from their visits to Allied headquarters in Europe during the last year, and were vivid word pictures, with much humor, of the well-known personages.

Brig. Genet was introduced by S. C. Peck as a veteran of two wars, now turned farmer, and thanked by Beath Barker.

County Warden Calvin Hughes welcomed the crowd and mentioned the important role of the local Co-Op in establishing prices.

Bruce Martin, Hastings County, introduced eight visitors from the county, and highly commended the Prince Edward organization.

Agricultural representative D. A. Taylor introduced head table guests. The Bowers sisters sang two songs with guitar accompaniment. Wm. Fraser gave piano solos and Orson Scott led in a sing-song. A vote of thanks was given the Presbyterian ladies for the fine chicken dinner.

WILL FLOAT FREIGHTER

Sandwich, Mass., April 2 (AP) —Army engineers have announced that the freighter S. S. Arizona Evord, half submerged in the Cape Cod canal for almost a year, will soon be afloat. The 326-foot vessel and its 4,800-ton cargo of sulphur were abandoned by her owners, the Sowrd Line and became the property of the U.S. government. She collided with the collier Berwindvale on May 5, 1951, about 1,400 feet inside the east end of the canal.

Amount Whittled

2. N.A.T.O. asked Canada to contribute $475,000,000 in mutual aid this year, but the government whittled the amount to $325,000,000.

3. Since 1945, Canada has extended $2,430,000,000 of mutual aid to other countries.

4. For the past three years, Canada has no further military commitments to N.A.T.O. beyond the already-announced intention of supplying an army brigade and 12 squadrons of R.C.A.F. fighters.

5. Canada has no new or additional commitments in Korea, where the United Nations still hopes to repel aggression to prove to the aggressor that It does not pay.

6. The question of whether or not Formosa should be handed to red China should be left open until steps are taken to settle Asian problems.

7. The time has not yet arrived to consider the establishment of a Pacific pact.

In the debate, to be resumed today, Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) called for support of his party's motion of non-confidence in the government.

The motion charges the government with "failure to take the initiative in implementing sections of the Atlantic pact dealing with non-military economic cooperation."

Wants Britain Assisted

Lt.-Col. Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary East) suggested that even 300 N.A.T.O. divisions—let alone 50—facing the Russians in Western Europe would not do much good unless there was the "will to fight". The difficulty was that there was not much will to fight in Western Europe. It was possible that some economic aid might help encourage the Western Europeans.

Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—MacLeod) called for economic assistance to Britain.

Mr. Pearson said N.A.T.O. had asked for $475,000,000 worth of military equipment, raw materials, foodstuffs and the like. The government decided that the contribution was more than the Canadian economy could afford.

It agreed to supply $325,000,000 worth of defence supplies, but this still would be a form of economic assistance.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

Breakfast at Windover was a kind of continuous affair. I arrived for this repast unconscionably late to find Dolly Dumont and Manila in the dining room, which looked nearly as bad I felt, but she made a pass at the social amenities.

"You're looking pretty fixed from Bermuda," she said, striving for distinctness. Her green eyes fixed me a trifle uncertainly. "Not bad; not good either; you seem better."

"Oh," I said. "They make 'em better."

Manila brought me pale-yellow eggs scrambled to a lovely consistency, encompassed by little sausages and crowned with a sprig of parsley. He followed up with coffee and toast. I had already designed to pour my own orange juice.

Dolly Dumont eyed upon this gastronomic treat and turned away as it revolted. "Well, the young" can put in their stomachs at the crack of dawn. What'd you say your name was, boy?"

"Jim Orth, Mrs. Dumont." I reminded her. And it occurred to me that either Mrs. Dumont's indiscretions of the night before were still affecting her authority or else that she'd built herself up with a jumbo-size eye-opener. But no matter which, I began wolfing eggs.

"Okay, Jim. But don't bolt your food. I can't stand it on a morning like this."

She put unnecessary emphasis on the last two words. I thought. I had to stop myself from shooting a surprised glance at her.

"What about this morning?" I said. "Is it different from any other?"

"I understand, from my husband, that we're one less today."

The words themselves might have been callous. But Dolly Dumont's tone wasn't exactly. There was a truce of softness, even of pity, in it.

"Yes," I said cautiously. "Didn't like to mention it before, because I didn't know if you knew about it. But there has been a bad accident."

"Accident!" said Dolly. "Who am I to argue? All I know is that that poor lad, Ring, had no business here under the—the circumstances. If he'd played ball in his own league, as they say, this might've have happened."

I hadn't an earthly of what she was driving at. But I wanted her to talk.

"I don't get it," I said encouragingly. "What circumstances?"

She ignored that completely. "Listen Jim! You're a nice kid but, after all, just a kid. So you'd better take some advice, even if it does come from a middle aged hag. Pack up and get out of here! This was bad business for Ames Warburton. Could be for you too."

She went out of the room, none too steadily.

I swore into coffee dregs. A clevener guy would have kept her there and learned something. I'd learned nothing in particular. Except, possibly, that Dolly Dumont was neither as drunk nor as dumb as she advertised herself to be.

I found Marston Cravath on his putting green, a miniature replica of an actual golf course, some holes short, others long, and little red flags with white numbers marking the holes. Such was Cravath's absorption that I was able to watch him play three holes without his being aware of my presence.

I said then, "Hope I'm not disturbing you, Mr. Cravath."

He glanced up quickly. "Oh Orth! No, certainly not. I was just amusing myself. Did you finally get some sleep?"

"Plenty," I lied.

He stroked his chin. "Well that's more than I can say. I hate to admit it, but this thing's got me down. I can't get over young Ames."

"In line with that," I said, "I'd like to have a little talk. If we can manage it without being too conspicuous."

"Should think we could. I don't know where the others are. Except that I've got Braden busy in the house. Suppose we walk a bit."

That was as good as any. We started on an aimless ramble through the grounds. Cravath carrying his putter and swiping at weeds with it occasionally.

"Anything special on your mind?" he asked presently.

"No-oo. Only it might be smart to go to the police."

His forehead creased. "What have we got to go on? Two attacks on me, but nothing except my word for it that the attacks were actually made. Or that they were attacks. And nothing but Ring's word that Ames didn't fall over the cliff, or else threw himself over. It. Pretty thin from the police viewpoint."

"I'll grant that," I said. "But what else are we going to do? Just sit back and wait for the murderer to take another move in his own good time?"

He swung the putter at the flimsy entrance of a long-buried dandelion almost savagely. "Okay. We get the police swarming in here. Then what happens? Doesn't the killer of yours simply fade out of the picture until a—a better day?"

He hadn't made any particular effort so far as I could see. But in subtle way perhaps, he'd practically got me seeing eye to eye with him.

On the way to the house we came upon the tennis courts. There were two of them; great courts, and beautifully kept. Jack Dumont, in slacks and nothing at all above the waist was serving as we approached. His tanned well-made body glistened with perspiration. Facing him across the net was a figure professional build in white cord cap, white shorts and ankle socks.

Dumont was pulling no punches with her. He tossed a ball into the air and banged it over with a speed and precision to please Pancho Gonzales.

She cracked it right back a neatly placed shot that caught the corner of the court. Dumont, that strong legs pounding, managed to get his racket on it. But the lady murdered the return. Dumont, far out of position never had a chance.

Marney Cravath grinned. "Sweet player, isn't she?"

She was, indeed, a sweet player. And it took me a minute or two to get accustomed to the fact that she was the languorous Eve Wheeler.

"This surprises me," I said.

Cravath nodded. "Eve's a surprising woman. She's a very capable at quite a number of things. You wouldn't think so, though, from the way she drapes herself around."

Cravath waved a hand, indicating the players. "I had everybody to go ahead as usual. In spite of what happened last night. Moping around and brooding isn't going to do poor Ames any good."

"Where?" Dumont pulled, coming over to the sidelines. "I'm not as young as I was."

Cravath handed a big fist gently into his rifle. "No. And you never were the player she is."

Eve strolled up, a sweater thrown casually about her shoulders now. "Hello, you two." Then to Dumont: "Thanks for a nice game, Jack."

Eve thrust her arm through Dumont's and we went up to the house, Cravath and I trailing behind them. My eyes, always where they shouldn't be, I suppose, made me very conscious of Eve's legs. They were long slender legs, the muscles seeming to flow like liquid beneath astonishingly youthful skin. Eve wasn't young by any means. But you'd never have known it from looking at her legs.

The one person in the house who'd seemed physically incapable of wrecking havoc on the Peacock Path palpably wasn't.

Early in the afternoon, I enticed Sally into my rented convertible. I drove it out through the avenue gate job pleasurably, aware of her alluring slimness in the seat beside me. Sally wasn't somewhat less pleasurably, that I might have no business to be driving anywhere. Still, this was broad daylight. And Marston Cravath was very much a man and one armed, now, to danger at Windover.

"I suppose," I said turning east toward the Sound, "that I couldn't have wangled this unless it really was such urgent business?"

"Oh, I don't know," said Sally. "You pass as a friend of mine. Something I latched onto in Bermuda."

We reached what seemed to be a narrow neck of land jutting into the Sound. Good-sized houses spaced at comfortable intervals, and with well-manicured lawns, lined both sides of the road.

"This is Lockaway Point," Sally contributed. And added, irrelevantly, "how's your head?"

"Still there," I said. "In spite of you."

We were coming to a dead end. I saw the round white tower of a little lighthouse at the tip of the Point. Just before it the road fanned out into a kind of semi-circle. There was ample room to park.

"Now," I said, "this urgent business."

"What do you want to know from me, Jim?" She spoke as one cutting through gratuitious fat. . .

"Routine stuff," I said. "What I'm getting at is: anything you can give me about the background of your guests."

"Who do you want first?"

"It doesn't matter. Make it Eve Wheeler."

The sudden tiny frown that filled to her forehead and flitted away as swiftly was unmistakable.

"Eve," Sally said patiently, "is Adrian S. Wheeler's widow."

Well, I did know of Adrian S. Wheeler. He'd been a tycoon to confound tycoons. Oil chiefly, but with fingers in many another profitable pie.

"To hear Uncle Marney and Uncle Jack tell it, she was the sliest gold-digger of the golden twenties. According to my uncles, she committed regularly to all the universities east of the Mississippi in demand she was."

"I'm not surprised," I said.

"It's hearsay, of course," Sally eyes clouded. "But Eve had a very glamorous time when she was quite young. Then things got rugged for awhile."

"Go ahead."

"She's been married three times," Sally told me. "First a long time ago, to some boy from Princeton. I don't remember his name and I don't know the exact details. Rumor is that, after they had been married about a year, he and Eve and a whole party went up to some ski lodge in the Adirondacks. Some time during that weekend this guy shot himself, dead."

WORK ON FOUR-LANE HIGHWAY TO START SOON

Western Union Hit By Coast-to-Coast Telegrapher Strike

Agencies Serving Papers In Canada Not Affected

Washington, April 3—(UP)—Thirty-one thousand Western Union telegraph workers went on strike today and their union claimed that telegraph service in the United States was "cut to a dribble."

The Western Union walkout started at one minute after midnight and except for San Antonio, Tex., where the strike was postponed for 24 hours, and in New York where employers are not involved in the dispute, there was no report that any of the company's 24,000 offices had failed to heed the strike call.

The Commercial Telegraphers' Union (A. F. L.) called the strike to support demands for benefits which would call an estimated 50 cents an hour for each worker. The company has made no offer.

It was not clear immediately what services would and would not be affected.

A Western Union spokesman said he knew of no plan which meant that no one could send telegrams or money orders to or from cities in the United States.

A company announcement said service was restricted to metropolitan New York and on all international and overseas messages from there, including Canada and Mexico. It added that it expected to restore limited service to other points in the United States shortly.

Has 62,000 Workers

Western Union has about 42,000 employees. Some 11,000—including supervisors, clerks and messengers and those in New York City — are not involved in the walkout. The New York employees are members of another union.

While telegraphers went on strike, federal mediators managed to stall walkouts of telephone employees in three states. There is no connection between the two disputes.

Asks Supervision Of Edible Oil Products in Ont.

Toronto, April 3 (CP)—A request for legislation setting the Ontario government as head powers to supervise "edible oil products manufacturing as dairy products," was made today before the legislature's agriculture committee by V. S. Milburn, secretary manager of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

Such products, Mr. Milburn said, were making inroads in the dairy product market.

The committee took no action on his suggestion, made as spokesman for the Milk Producers' Co-ordinating Committee.

Roy Lick, secretary of the Ontario Welsh Milk Producers' League, again presented the organization's request for a formula to set milk prices paid to farmers.

The formula would depend on four factors: the wholesale price index of all commodities, the weekly industrial wage index, commercial cost of producing milk and prices of milk products such as butter and cheese.

C. D. Daley, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, said the department was interested in the formula-pricing suggestion and had investigated other areas where the system is used.

Russian Army Not Loyal Says Refugee Officer

Frankfurt, Germany, April 3 —(Reuter)— Peter Nicolaievich Belkov, 33, former major in Russia's army, said today the Russian in East Germany is "no longer loyal to the regime."

Belov recently fled to the west to join his German fiancee.

Speaking at a press conference arranged by United States authorities, he said that if all Soviet army troops in East Germany knew the U.S. grants asylum to so many persons, "many thousands would want to come here as I have done."

The communists have real cause to worry about the Soviet army, he said, because most officers are loyal only to the pathetic to the communist regime.

But, Belov added, "criticism goes unspoken because criticism draws swift and quickly brings harsh punishment."

Protests Free False Teeth for Foreigners

London, April 3 — (AP) — A woman member of parliament said yesterday foreigners in Britain's numbers are coming to Britain for free false teeth, wigs and glasses issued under the National Health program.

Conservative Irene Ward said she would propose an amendment to stop free dentures for non-Britons. She was especially indignant about pictures in reports inviting tourists to come ashore and collect free false teeth.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 3 (CP)—Ontario's weather map today is still dominated by the remains of a slowly moving storm centre over Lake Superior. This disturbance is weakening appreciably but still has enough life to keep pumping cool moist air over the province for the next 24 hours. In this air skies are cloudy most of the time and there are scattered snowflurries and light rainshowers.

C.C.F. SUGGESTS SURPLUS FOOD BE SENT TO U.K.

Censure Motion Lost By 171-21 Vote

Ottawa, April 3 (CP)—A CCF member suggested yesterday in the Commons that Canada distribute $200,000,000 worth of surplus food among the United Kingdom and Europe and Asia.

Hazen Argue, farmer - member for the Saskatchewan constituency of Assiniboia, said Canada could and should give other countries 100,000,000 bushels of wheat, 100,000,000 pounds of pork, 200,000 head of cattle and 25,000,000 pounds of cheese.

Breaking down the contributions in terms of money, he said this country could give 400,000,000 worth of wheat, $40,000,000 worth of pork, $50,000,000 of cattle and $10,000,000 worth of cheese.

He spoke before the Commons concluded a four-day debate on foreign affairs by voting 171 to 21 against a CCF motion calling for formal censure of the government's handling of economic aid to the countries of the North Atlantic Pact.

Today, the Commons will launch into the no-confidence debate.

The CCF motion, marking the first split in years in the views of the government and opposition parties, was opposed by the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives. It was supported by the CCF and Social Credit members and by two Quebec independents, Dr. Raoul Poulin (Beauce) and P. E. Gagnon (Chicoutimi).

Urges Conference

In the concluding stages of the debate, John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Centre) urged the government to convene a Commonwealth conference on raw materials and trade with the twin aims of strengthening both the Commonwealth and bolstering defences against communist infiltration.

John Blackmore (SC — Lethbridge called for establishment of a committee to study proper methods of distributing the world's goods and services.

Mr. Argue said Canada is in a good position to make gifts of foodstuffs to needy countries. The

Edinburgh Visits English Coal Mine

Mosley Common, England, Apr. 3 (AP)—Prince Philip and Princess Margaret dropped 3,000 feet in a bucket today for a two-hour tour of a coal mine.

The Queen's husband wore a mine shaft helmet, but did not rid a miner's electric flashlight and wore a pit helmet.

Deadpan mine security men frisked him for contraband — matches or cigarettes — even before helping him into the bucket for the mine descent.

Later he joined the outgoing shift in a canteen lunch counting one shilling for pence.

$1,350,000 ESTATE

Shaken Topers in Britain Ask Each Other 'Can He Do This to Us?'

London, April 3 (AP) —The old British custom of cruising for a bonnie lassie in Liverpool has held that drinking hours afloat must conform with those of saloons ashore. He says this applies to all craft in coastal or inland waters. Mr. Shaw has been speaking to seamen topers throughout the United Kingdom asked each other seriously "Can he do this to us?"

Most legal authorities agreed that he could, unless a higher court comes to the rescue.

Thus a tot on a yacht, a sherry on a ferry or a snort in port is now outlawed, except for a pilot, between 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 6 p.m. to 11 p.m.

For fifteen and a half hours daily it will be a misdemeanor to hold a brawl on a yawl or even sniff a snifter on a sloop.

A spokesman for the state-owned brewery said the ruling might even cover the bars on trains. These now serve liquor as long as they are in motion.

"The tourist trade isn't going to like it one bit," he said, speaking for all legal advice on our position."

The decision of the coalgoing committee was handed down yesterday by Magistrate A. J. McFarlane. He fined the stewards of a cruise vessel £40 for serving drinks in the harbor outside pub opening hours. The ship owners' said they would take an appeal—a quick one, of course—to the morning or late afternoon bars the then standard refuge of British drinkers who consider such restrictions uncivilized.

Arnall and Fairless Break Off Talks on Price Increase; Govt. Seizure of Mills Likely Washington, April 3 —(AP)— Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall and Steel Chairman Fairless, president of U. S. Steel Corp., today broke off talks about a price increase for steel.

Chances of averting a strike loomed poor. In New York President Philip Murray of the C.I.O. said the deadline is 12.01 A. M Wednesday.

Arnall said, "I don't see where anything further can be gained by additional talks with Mr. Fairless on the steel-price situation."

The conference was the fourth Arnall has held with Fairless in three days.

Fairless was understood to have insisted that a steel-price increase is necessary to offset proposed wage boosts and prevent a strike.

There remains the possibility of government seizure of the mills to continue operations.

The effect of the seizure threat was whether or not it is carried out — was to increase pressure on the industry to avoid government - suggested wage boosts by Philip Murray's United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.).

About 700,000 of the union's 1,000,000 are ready for a walkout in the United States basic steel industry at midnight April 8. The other workers, mainly in steel fabricating plants, are ineligible to strike at the moment.

Steelmakers have said they cannot afford to give Murray the 17 1-2 cent hourly pay boost, plus union shop and other benefits, without getting government permission to raise prices. The government apparently was standing firm against increase in prices, contending it would cause more inflation.

The seizure threat brought a heated reaction from Congress. Senator Robert Taft said it would be "very high-handed and arbitrary and, to him, illegal.

Even government lawyers, instructed by John H. Steelman, acting defense mobilization boss, to "consider all eventualities," seemed none too sure of the legal basis for seizure.

Chairman James Murray ordered the Senate Labor committee staff to draft legislation spelling out government seizure of steel, including authority for the government to keep part of a seized industry's profits and to pay out wage boosts.

It was known that the steel industry long has feared government operation of its facilities, as has come about in so many foreign countries. Steel firms were reported to have instructed their lawyers to be ready to fight any government move in that direction.

Officials Forecast Provincial Embargoes on Livestock Will Be Lifted Early Next Week

Ottawa, April 3 (CP)—Provincial agriculture ministers completed talks with Agriculture Minister Gardiner today and officials forecast that the provincial embargoes on livestock and meats will be brought to an end early next week.

The basis of initial agreement to remove the restrictions imposed after the Saskatchewan outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease was that the federal government will agree to extend price support for lambs and take control of the unsalable surplus for disposal in an export or foreign market, officials said.

Provincial ministers now will return to their governments to report on the two-day conference. It was considered possible that removal of the restrictions may be announced by the provinces by Monday.

The federal plan to place a floor under lamb prices and buy up surplus meat will go into operation only after the restrictions are removed officials said.

Provincial ministers, leaving the meeting, were reluctant to comment on the discussions, but David Sinclair, Alberta's Agriculture Minister, said "the outlook is hopeful and encouraging."

Alberta has been hit by the British Columbia embargo on Alberta meats and on livestock from the southern half of the province. Manitoba bans imports of Saskatchewan cattle.

In the east, Quebec, has import control over livestock and meats from all provinces. Quebec was represented by the deputy minister of agriculture, Rene Dansereau.

Clamped on February 25

Informants who were at the meeting said Mr. Gardiner strove to clear the restrictions as quickly as possible.

The provinces clamped on restrictions following federal announcement Feb. 25 last that an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease had been uncovered in the United States.

Restrictions were sparked both by fear of the disease spreading and the threat of a drop in sales of plus meats from other provinces to the Canadian market.

Mr. Gardiner, it was learned, has obtained the approval of cabinet to offer a beef support sale to stabilize meat prices at approximately 25 cents a pound. The exact figure had been left open for discussion at the conference.

FOUR DIE IN FIRE

Chicago, April 3. (AP)— Four persons, including a six-month-old baby, died last night in a $50,000 fire which swept through a 12-family apartment house on the city's southwest side. Several firemen were overcome by smoke and suffered minor injuries as they aided some 30 tenants from the building.

HOWE PREDICTS TWO-POINT DROP IN LIVING INDEX

Says Another Decline Will Come for March

Ottawa, April 3 —(CP) —Trade Minister Howe has dropped the hint and tomorrow the bureau of statistics is expected to make it official—a possible near-record decline of four points in the cost of living index for February.

This will be the second consecutive monthly decline in the prices barometer which skyrocketed to peak proportions last year and was boosted partly by unprecedented prices for meats.

Mr. Howe has predicted that still another drop will be disclosed when the index for March is completed and made public in about a month's time.

Both the index to come out tomorrow and the one a month from now likely will show that the slump is on the other foot. Meats, which helped boost the index, are expected to produce the major price drops.

With the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in south Saskatchewan has slipped enough to offset meat rationing restrictions imposed in the last week of February, meat prices will continue to rise. The rise in prices is some other prices. There was no change recorded last month in the index survey, but the outstanding one will be meats.

Just Short of Record

If the near two-point decline comes about, it will be just short of the 2.6-point decline recorded in April, 1932, the biggest in the last 25 years. Experts say there may be larger ones, possibly in the period after the First World War, but so far no research has been undertaken to pinpoint these other drops.

During January the index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, declined seven-tenths of a point to 190.6 from the peak 191.3.

Among the sub-groups, food slipped to 243.1 from the near peak of 250.6, while clothing eased to 213.6 from 215.3 and homefurnishings and services to 184.5 from 185.4.

These offset price climbs in fuel and lighting which climbed to a peak 151.3 from 151.2 and the miscellaneous column, covering such things as health, recreation and transportation, which climbed to 168.5 from 168.1.

Rents were not surveyed and mained at the peak 144.8. The first survey is due next month. Likely will be included in tomorrow's report. Rents usually are surveyed on a quarterly basis, but are less frequent during the winter when rough weather makes house-to-house checks difficult.

Two Airmen Killed

Vermillion, Kas, April 3 (AP) — Two United States Air Force airmen lost their lives in the crash of a B-50 plane here today, but members of the crew parachuted to safety.

The body of an air force colonel was found near the wreckage 11 miles from here. The crew members found the body of a corporal whose parachute had failed to open about four miles from the wreckage.

Eyewitnesses said the plane roared low over the countryside and crashed in a pasture. Six cattle were killed.

The plane was one based at Forbes air force base at Topeka, Kas.

Britain Has School for Lazy Men And Only Pay Cheque is Diploma

London, April 3 — (AP) — A government school for lazy men—teaches Britain's hard-to-train unemployed how to work and like it — set the House of Commons to laughing today.

Gerald Nabarro, a manufacturer and Conservative member of parliament, asked the government to explain what it's all about. He got a written answer from the House next Monday.

The school is situated in the pleasant hills of Worcestershire. Its head man is a Scotsman, Hamilton Douglas, who told newspapermen the nine-month-old project is designed to prod lazy men off relief.

Douglas said the men all volunteered — after their local relief boards suggested they'd better learn to work or face prosecution. They live like the rest of the men in all individualists who for various reasons have been out of work so long they've lost the desire to start again," Douglas said. "It's our job to give them back that desire."

He said the school has been getting good results through continent, but subtle, prodding. But it doesn't plunge the lazy deep into work all at once. They learn in its basic man is a Scotsman, Hamilton Douglas, who told newspapermen the nine-month-old project is designed to prod lazy men off relief.

Douglas said the men all volun-

Link Between Belleville, Trenton First To Be Done

City Delegation Visited Minister Short Time Ago

Hon. George H. Dunbar, acting minister of highways, speaking in the passage of estimates for the department in the Legislature on Wednesday announced that work will begin this year on a highway to by-pass Belleville and Kingston and eliminate traffic bottlenecks at those two points.

The highway, part of the projected four-lane route from Windsor to Montreal will start at Trenton and return to present No. 2 Highway at Gananoque, where a four-lane highway has been built. Mr. Dunbar stated that work would begin at Trenton this summer and be rushed to completion.

A short time ago a committee composed of Mayor McLean Haig, Aldermen W. B. Lattimer and Don Thomas waited on the acting minister requesting that this work be started so as to relieve the vehicular congestion on the main thoroughfares in the city. The delegation was given very consideration by the acting minister and the recent announcement shows that the government is cognizant of the difficulties in this municipality.

Toronto, April 3. (CP)—Alberta natural gas piped to Ontario may cost more than other fuels but is preferable to an uncertain supply from the United States, Prime Minister Frederick Gardiner of Ontario Legislature yesterday.

The question was raised by opposition leader Farquhar Oliver, who said present evidence was that natural gas from the west could not compete with other fuels.

The Mines Minister, who spoke during passage of his department's budget estimates, said Alberta's gas would find a ready market in Ontario even without an industrial market.

His statement paralleled remarks speeches in which he supported the project of a natural gas pipeline from Alberta to Eastern Canada. The Federal Board of Transport Commissioners now is studying pipeline applications.

Ontario's only alternate source of additional gas, Mr. Gardiner said, is the pipeline running from Texas to Michigan. There was no indication the United States would grant an export permit for a pipeline across the border.

Although Alberta gas might be costlier, it could be supplied on a firm basis, preferable to an uncertain supply from the United States.

An announcement by acting Mines Minister Dunbar that work will be included in tomorrow's report. Rents usually are surveyed on a quarterly basis, but are less frequent during the winter when rough weather makes house-to-house checks difficult.

Widowed Queen Will Continue To Live at Palace

London, April 2. (AP)— The Queen today broke with royal tradition and arranged for her mother and sister to live with her at Buckingham Palace. Elizabeth will move in shortly after Easter.

In the past a widowed queen has moved out when the late monarch took over. Queen Mary, for instance, moved to Marlborough House after King George V died.

The new Queen will take over Queen Mother Elizabeth's suite and the Queen Mother will move upstairs to the quarters occupied by Elizabeth before she was married.

Princess Margaret will keep the rooms she now occupies.

Buckingham Palace has 690 rooms.

Retail Groups Hope to Stimulate Easter Parade

The Retail Ladies' and Men's Wear Associations have decided to sponsor an Easter Sunday Parade in the city on Easter Sunday. This is the first attempt at such a venture and it is expected that a large turnout will be on hand for the occasion.

In starting this new idea the retail associations will be attempting to rival, in a smaller way, the Atlantic City and Sunnyside Beach parades which have been annual affairs for many years.

Many valuable prizes have been donated for the parade by various local merchants and a group of judges will choose the three best dressed persons in both the women's and men's classifications.

A broadcast of the entire parade will be carried over CJBQ on the Sunday afternoon.

Hasty Pees Finish Course Next Sunday

Sunday will be a "big day" for those personnel of the Hastings and Prince Edward District, who have been taking the four-Sunday course in driving and safe operation of military vehicles.

Upwards of 65 per cent of the fifty-five all ranks of the regiment have qualified in the Army Driver's Instruction and the fire-power demonstration held in Coberg last Sunday.

On Sunday the troops will go to Kingston, where they will take drinks under Royal Canadian Army Service Corps instructors which will be followed by a written examination.

They will proceed to Kingston by military convoy and test their ability at convoy work during the trip down.

Many Owners Of Sugar Bushes Not Operating

Deep snow in the woods is keeping many sugar bush owners in the northern part of the surrounding county from making syrup this year, according to reports attending the spring session of county council.

Reports say that the heavy snowfall of early in the winter has not been before the middle of winter snowfall came. As result snow is still two feet deep or more in the woods in the northern parts of the county.

One councillor said he knew of two farmers who ordinarily tapped 1,000 or more trees, who were not operating this year. Others reported the same reluctance in wading the deep snow to tap trees and collect sap.

Obituary

FRANCIS AUGUSTUS (Soup) GOYER

Ill for six weeks, Francis Augustus (Soup) Goyer, 56 South John Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital early Monday morning.

He was born at Rosemore, 56 years ago, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Goyer and has lived in this city practically all his life and for the past 27 years has been a machinist at the Can. Locomotive Co. at Point Anne. He was well known and enjoyed the friendship of a wide circle, who will sincerely regret his death.

Frank Goyer was a born athlete. He played baseball and hockey for many years both with Belleville and Point Anne teams. He was a stalwart on the defence for the latter and good days were managed by Eddie Thomas in the Big Six group, and also by his teammates "Gunner" Arnott, Bill Green, Zaw Whalin and Jimmy Gay. He was the kind of a fellow one wanted to have as a friend and he had a host of them both by his teammates and the opposition. Always a big man, he never used his weight to a disadvantage of an opponent and there prevailed a clean but keen stickhandler as a defenceman around the ice with Frank Goyer. In baseball he caught for many years and also was always a valuable force in any rally. He will be missed in both sports.

A member of St. Michael's Church, he is survived by his wife, the former Elizabeth Osbaldeston, one daughter, Mrs. Fred (Gwen) Lane of this city, four sons, Leo who plays with the Senior "B" team, William and Gerald all of Belleville, three sisters, Mrs. Leslie Powell of Bayport, Calif., Mrs. Robert Smith of North Augusta, Mrs. Tremble, Quebec, Mrs. Arthur Hunt of St. Albans, Vermont, and three brothers, Fred of Guelph, Lawrence (Gilly) of Belleville and Chester of the Merchant Marine.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

FRANK CLAYTON STRATTON

Suffering a heart attack at his home, 120 Dundas Street East early this Thursday morning and rushed to Belleville General Hospital, Frank Clayton Stratton, died in that institution shortly after admittance. He was born in Desoronto, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harvey J. Stratton but has resided practically all his life in this city. He was well known and highly respected in the community.

During the Second World War he was employed in the buildings erected to Belleville General Hospital, Frank Clayton Stratton, died in that institution shortly after admittance. He was born in Desoronto, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Harvey J. Stratton but has resided practically all his life in this city. He was well known and highly respected in the community.

He was a member of Bridge St. United Church and fraternally was a member of Moira Lodge No. 14, A.F. and A.M., the White Shrine of Jerusalem No. 3, the Belleville Chapter No. 43 and the Order of Eastern Star.

Survived by his wife, the former Marjorie Palmateer. Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, the funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Council Tables Question of Sale Of County Forest

Hastings County Council Thursday morning laid over until its next session the question of sale of its county forest property at Actinolite to the Moira Valley Conservation Authority.

Decision to take the matter until later in the year followed a spirited discussion and after motions both to sell and to retain the property had been presented.

The Conservation Authority has purchased other abandoned farm property in the Actinolite area and the county forest property now almost completely planted, is an "island" completely surrounded. Reeve T. C. Grey has noted that if the Authority took over the county property it would supervise the forest, while if there was any profit from later cutting the timber it would go to the area municipalities in the Authority.

Question was very much divided whether or not to sell the county forest. Several councillors pointed out the forest had already cost the county $1,960 in property purchase as well as labor in planting and noted there would be additional expense in the future.

Different Opinion

But others were of different opinion and for different reasons felt the forest property should be retained by the county.

"It seems to me that the county had something in view when it first purchased the property back in 1947," stated Reeve William Davis. "I think the forest would be an asset to the county and should not be considered as a liability. If it were sold he suggested a rider that the county be given the opportunity to purchase should the Authority be disbanded.

Reeve McCoy of Marmora, ten the forest had been established as a demonstration forest and what could be done in the way of reforestation. He suggested that possibly the forest established by Lands and Forests would have better facilities for maintenance of the forest than did the county.

Strikes Moot Point

Reeve Tryon of Bancroft, struck a moot point when he asked what advantage there would be in having the Authority own the forest. "If I was sold the name Hastings would disappear," he said. "As it is it is a monument to councillors who established it."

Reeve Clarke Rollins of Coe Hill, though the county had too much invested to sell the property at the suggested figure of $2,100. He liked to see it kept better.

It was pointed out, however, that such a lease would be complicated.

Reeve Earl Sager of Madoc township, introduced a recommendation to sell the property and Reeve Rollins came forward with an amendment to retain it on the grounds the forest was an asset to the county.

Reeve Graham then suggested the matter be laid over until the next session to allow further information to be brought before council.

LIABLE FOR DAMAGES

Frankfurt, Germany, April 3.—(AP)—A U.S. High Commission Court ruled yesterday that West German states are liable for damages to confiscated Jewish properties while they were under control of the Nazi party. Julius Schoenman, whose building in Frankfurt was turned into a Nazi party headquarters, was ordered compensated for its burning by the Nazis just before the city's occupation by American troops.

News of Trenton Possessions of Dunk Family Destroyed in Trenton Fire; Defective Wiring is Blamed

Trenton (Special)—A stubborn fire swept through an unoccupied house on King Street early today destroying almost all of the lifetime possessions of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dunk who had intended taking up residence on Sunday. There was no heating installation being maintained in the house, since the furniture was moved in from Pefferborough recently, suggesting that defective wiring caused the misfortune.

Mr. Dunk is manager of a theatre and has been here about a month, replacing Gibb Martin, who retired. He has been looking for accommodation in the meantime and when he managed to locate a house planned on moving his family in from Lindsay as soon as possible.

Today Mrs. Dunk comforted her husband, who looked on helplessly as the flames ate into the roofline by flames and prevent the fire spreading to nearby homes. "It looks if we weren't in the fire," she said.

"He lost everything excepting a piano that Starry stored down in the theatre."

Awakened by Child

Cries of her three-year-old daughter, Diane Jane awakened next door neighbor Mrs. Fred McCroden, who related to the local correspondent of a sound like someone putting his fist through a pane of glass. She ran to the bedroom window and saw fire pouring out a window in the adjoining kitchen a few feet away. "I kept from getting too excited," she recalled, "and dashed to the phone and called the fire department."

There is a new couple with a small baby living upstairs in the McCroden home while on the east side of the burned house live Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hughes and two children.

The firemen arrived about 2.30 a.m. and by 4.00 a.m. had the flames subdued.

The Dunks have three children by Lindsay, packed ready to move here this weekend.

The loss was covered by insurance.

Shaken in Crash

Ralph Cooney and his two sons, Ralph and Marvin, R.R. 3, Trenton, were taken considerably but did not need medical attention when the car they were driving collided with a tractor-trailer operated by Hugh R. Parkhurst, of College St., Trenton. The accident occurred on the turn opposite Bell's Garden House on north Front Street, Tuesday.

Police said the truck was proceeding south at the Queensway Hotel and was making a left hand turn when the car approaching from the south ran into the left

INCREASE ARMED FORCES

Washington, April 3.—(AP) — About 1,200,000 more men will enter the armed services in the United States during the fiscal year starting next July 1. But the size of the armed forces will be increased only 110,000 during that period, Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, defence manpower boss, told the House of Representatives Appropriations committee yesterday as the U.S. is "going through a period of demobilization at the same time we are attempting to build up our military strength."

HISTORIC POST

Firm Plans To Spend Million Dollars in Plant

Trenton (Special)—The name of the new industry which is locating in Trenton almost immediately is Petrolexe of Canada Limited. The firm plans to spend approximately $1 million on buildings and equipment.

Construction will begin soon on the site already staked out near the Central Bridge Company property. Tenders are now being received for Pyrotenax, until noon of April 15, by E. A. Cross, consulting engineer, at his office on Bay Street in Toronto. One of the main articles to be manufactured by the company will be high-heat-resistant cable.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 3. (CP)—Moderate mid-session profit-taking today skimmed strong early Western Oil gains in heavy stock market trading.

Oil stocks stormed upward in opening dealings with gains ranging from pennies to the $2.25 jump of Pacific Petroleum. Heavy buying followed yesterday's heavy day by the Alberta Conservation Board for greater room in the Pesce River District to the West coast. Within the first hour the exchange's fastest jumped more than 4 1-2 points but eased as the session progressed.

Oil speculation dominated exchange dealings and swelled volume for the first three hours to 4,267,000 shares.

Among Western Oils to show large gains were, Canadian Williston, Calvan Consolidated, Charter Oil, Gas Explorations, Jupiter, New British Dominion, Northern Canada, Trans Empire and Pacific Petroleum.

Industrials made little headway. Refining oils, steels, papers and manufacturing companies edged upward but utilities and constructions eased. Base metals edged upward.

Senior golds were steady as Giant Yellowknife, Kerr Addison and Lake Shore added fractions. Secondary issues showed little trend.

Value of Assessor to County Outlined by Department Official

The value of the office of county assessor in bringing about an equalized assessment and in time leading to an equalized assessment across the province, was outlined to members of Hastings county council at their Thursday morning session.

Mr. N. R. Sloan, assessment supervisor for the Department of Municipal Affairs, spoke to councillors on assessing problems and answered questions relative to county assessments.

The speaker outlined the duties of a county assessor describing him as a "supervisor" of local assessors. The office could be of great assistance to the local municipalities and would more than pay his way in picking up property assessments.

Contributes to Salary

He pointed out that the government realized the advantages of such an assessor, noting that it paid $1,500 toward his salary in each county. Twenty-five counties in Ontario now had a county assessor and three more were being added this year. He was pleased that Hastings had decided to retain the office and hire a new assessor.

Complete reassessment of all municipalities within all the counties was a goal aimed at by his department within five years. He noted that local municipalities would not be penalized as result of any increase in assessment.

He pointed out that school grants were based on the previous year's assessment, therefore grants applying in 1952 would be paid on the 1950 assessment.

He referred to the recent decision of the provincial government in allowing provincial property in the municipalities to be taxed for general purposes and outlined the system of arriving at fair assessment values for such properties.

As result of the government's decision, up to $6,000,080 may be paid to the municipalities on government property, he said.

Assessment Manual

He also referred to the new assessment manual put out in 1950. Over 220 municipalities in the province were now using the manual. One of the standards set forth in the manual was that owners were not to be penalized for certain improvements on property.

"We do not recommend increase in assessments for such interior additures as fireplaces or other doodads," he said. "Neither should an owner be penalized for decorating or keeping his property in good shape."

Reeve Clarke Rollins of Wollaston raised the question of what would be the effect of increased assessments in the northern municipalities with respect to school grants. He pointed out that as assessments increased, school grants were decreased. He said that this would create a hardship on the taxpayers as the population was not increasing. In many cases the population was decreasing.

39 Per Cent Added

In reply Mr. Sloan pointed out that in municipalities where a reassessment had, say, doubled the assessment, the department would use 120 per cent of the former assessment as the basis for school grants. Twenty per cent would be added on for the next five years when it was expected that re-assessments all across the province would be completed.

"Then you are right back where you started," he pointed out.

Reeve Rollins pointed out, however, that school requirements for school purposes in northern municipalities, because of transportation and other factors, were particularly burdensome.

When his municipality entered the high school area taxpayers had been assured costs would not exceed 20 mills. Now they had more than doubled that figure and were increasing.

Cause of Complaints

Reeve Rollins also wanted to know why it was necessary for a local assessor to enter homes and measure rooms. There was much complaint on this procedure in his municipality.

Mr. Sloan showed this was necessary to enable the assessor to get information as to proper values. He must determine whether there was a furnace and whether the basement was fully excavated. Such information was necessary in case of appeals.

He said it should be the duty of the local assessor to pass along information to the public on assessing practices and problems. The purpose of an assessor was not to raise assessments but to get equalized assessments.

To a further question from Reeve Rollins as to what happened if a municipality declined to proceed with re-assessment, Mr. Sloan said the county assessor had two courses.

He could raise the county equalization of that particular municipality, subject to appeal, or he could appeal the entire assessment role. To do this he would require permission from the department minister.

Mrs. Albert Baker Honored By Tweed Rebekahs

Tweed—The past noble grands of the Tweed Rebekahs met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs Howard Countryman to honor a charter member, Mrs. Albert Baker, who celebrated her golden wedding anniversary the next day.

After a social hour, Mrs. Baker was presented with a gold-embossed teapot. The party then proceeded to the L. O. O. F. hall, where more than 100 lodge members and friends were assembled to receive them. The hall was beautifully decorated.

Norman Thompson played the wedding march as the guests took their places. Among those who sat at the head table with Mr. and Mrs. Baker were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Tiny Rivers and Marie Baker.

After the meal, Mrs. Frank Lesl noble grand, made a speech felicitating Mr. and Mrs. Baker.

Mr. Baker, in humorous vein, replied relating some humorous experiences of their married life. A musical program was presented during the meal with Len. Taylor acting as soloist.

Mrs. Earl Graham, an officer of the lodge, proposed a toast to Mrs. Baker, Muriel Rivers responded. A Cogswell chair and a floor lamp were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Baker by Mrs. Letty McGee and Ellard Clark on behalf of the lodges.

Assistance Given To Farmers Much Appreciated

The decision of the Department of Agriculture through its county representatives to receive farmers at the Shire Hall each Saturday has been well received by agriculturists in the southern part of the county according to Agricultural Representative A. O. Dalrymple.

Speaking to members of Hastings county council at their Thursday morning session, Mr. Dalrymple noted that each Saturday either he or his assistant Frank Stone was available at the county buildings to answer questions on farming problems. The service had been taken advantage of by farmers east of Belleville who might not care to drive to Stirling.

Mr. Dalrymple noted there was a movement afoot among the poultry producers of the province to have established a marketing agency similar to that for hogs. A vote would soon be taken, with his office acting as returning officer.

He expressed his appreciation to council for the increased grant given this year for junior work and assured the money available for club work would be well distributed among the various clubs in the county. Several additional clubs for boys and girls were being established this year," he said.

Commissioner and Mrs. William R. Dalziel, Territorial Leader of the Salvation Army for Canada and Bermuda, will visit Belleville Good Friday, April 11th, where the commissioner will conduct a public service entitled "A Meeting of Meditation" in the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at 8 o'clock.

The Peterborough silver band will be present, and the united songsters from Kingston and Belleville will sing.

LET GEORGE DO IT

British Columbia railroaders are alarmed about the Sons of Freedom, a branch of the Doukhobors. They say that the British Columbia Doukhobor situation is "grave," they have been told that, within the next two months, there will be "unlimited acts of violence." The railway-men are particularly worried about the Kootenay region, through which the C.P.R. runs.

Only time will tell whether the railroad men have been correctly-informed about the intentions of the Doukhobors. But it is well known that the Sons of Freedom, the most active branch of the organization, is quite capable of staging a reign of terror at any time. They have much responsibility for the many outrages in the past for anyone to doubt that they would hesitate about perpetrating further lawlessness.

But the most disturbing aspect of the present situation is that the authorities seem unwilling to try to deal with these people. A few days ago, a delegation of railway union members called upon Hon. Stuart Garson, the federal minister of justice and attorney-general, telling him of their fears and asking him to provide adequate protection for the rail lines which run through Doukhobor country.

Mr. Garson's reply was that "lawlessness among the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors comes clearly under the provincial government's duty of maintaining law and order under the British North America Act." Mr. Garson then "intimated that, in his opinion, the federal government had no responsibility for restraining the Doukhobors. "The province of British Columbia can look after them," he said, in effect.

But the railroaders had already called on Attorney-General Wismer of British Columbia to ask him to protect them from the anticipated outbreak of violence and sabotage. They quoted Mr. Wismer as having told them, February 13, that last month's conference between the federal government and one of the C.P.R. itself. The answer of Mr. Wismer, like that of Mr. Garson, merely amounted to saying that the government of which he was the chief executive officer was going to let somebody else try to control the Sons of Freedom.

Surely Mr. Garson or Mr. Wismer, or both of them in co-operation, can do better than this. Are not the C.P.R. and its employees as much entitled to police protection as any one else? Are the Doukhobors to remain more or less a law unto themselves?

Even if Mr. Garson is right in his contention that it is the duty of the province to "maintain law and order under the British North America Act," the federal government has a good deal of moral responsibility in this matter, because it was a federal government, even if not the present one, which brought the Doukhobors here and released them.

CAPITAL ACCUMULATIONS NECESSARY

Before employment can be provided for anyone, an accumulation of capital is necessary. This fact seems to be unknown to some people and is often ignored by labor union leaders, as it seems to be by those who are taxing business corporations at present levels and thus preventing them from accumulating further capital to provide more employment.

Some such thoughts as these occurred to us when we read, in Notario 60 Government Services, a publication of the Ontario government, about the establishment, over in Midland on Georgian Bay, of a Canadian branch of a German factory.

The new concern is a branch of the Ernest Leitz Company, which makes Leica cameras, microscopes, binoculars and similar optical instruments. The concern, which incidentally is not trying to sell stock to the public, will initially employ 100 men. The company is investing $200,000 in its new factory. The parent company employs 5,000 men at Wetzlar, in Western Germany.

It is true that a factory that employs 80 men is not a large factory, compared with many others operating in this country. It is also true that $200,000 is not a large sum, compared with the sums invested in many other industries, here and elsewhere.

But it is worth remembering that someone had to accumulate $4,000 to provide each of the jobs which will be available in the new factory. In some plants, such as roofing and steel mills, where much heavy and expensive equipment is required, the cost of providing a job for a worker is much more than $4,000.

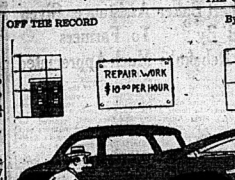
FIRSTS

Hell be remembered for many a day
Who takes a boy to his first good play.
The lights, the music, the curtain's rise
With joy will widen the youngster's eyes
And the drama itself, and its every act,
Will be rare delights that he won't forget.



The first watch, too, is a splendid thing
The boy will long be remembered who
Hell live in that youngster's hall of fame

Who takes him first to a big league game,
And whatever it is he is first to give,
That man in memory long will live.

Whatever happens as time takes flight
Will never equal the first delight.
The joy of the first circus
Never again will the years impress;
And I'd like to think when my life's rehearsed,
To gladden a boy I was once the first.

TALK WITH GUS

Big Gus Muller comes down to our place from time to time with his gasoline saw and slices up some logs for us. Gus is only recently these years from Germany—from Braunschweig, to be exact —and he craves to practise up on his English.

He was down yesterday and after we'd worked for a couple of hours we repaired to the kitchen for a beer and I said to Gus: "Wie haben noch keine Zeit gehabt, etwas fur den Garten zu tun." Sorry those weren't put in this year").

"Nein," said Big Lupinen waren schon da. . ." and I went on to explain that the lupins were beautiful that year in the big clumps of poppies and the Canterbury bells.

Gus delicately rolled a cigarette with fingers the size of bananas and remained suddenly. "Turn off the tap! Quickly! I'm being drenched!"

"Meine Gute, wie schreckilich!" I exclaimed. "Ihr Kleid ist ruinieren. Es tut mir furchtbar leid."

"My dear, how awful! Your frock is ruined. I'm frightfully sorry."

"Oh! It is not bad!" Gus said. "Why can't you turn off the tap!"

Well, we had another beer then, because, as I said, it was one wing and after awhile Gus said, "Quick! We must go at once!"

"Ursinn!" said, "Es ist doch viel zu spat, um wir noch nicht vor halb acht da sein." ("Nonsense! It's only half-past and we needn't arrive until seven-thirty").

"I'm not talking about dinner," Gus said. "The people next door have sent in their mail to say that our kitten has rushed up their chimney. Do come quick-ly. The poor little one be in a dreadful state, and the maid says their room is in a dreadful state, too."

"Ach Gott, dann mussen wir schon hinuberrennen," he said, meaning, "Oh, Lord! I suppose we'll have to go."

Gus took another swig of his beer (he says he hasn't tasted beer ever go back to Germany would be to have a decent glass of beer) and after a thoughtful pause he said: "I had a letter from my Aunt Lucy this morning. You know, the rich one. She wants to come to lunch with us on Sunday and she excited."

"Ihnen Scheck belgelegt?" I inquired hopefully, meaning, "A'cheque?"

"Something much more precious than days," Gus replied, but again I understood him.

"Bedeutet das, dass Du auch Schuhe kaufen willst?" I asked, meaning "Does that mean you're going to buy shoes?"

Gus said, "Of the other day, two pair. But I've decided to economize in all sorts of other ways, too. To begin with I'm going to give up smoking. . ."

He looked sadly at his cigarette burning between the banana fingers and began to laugh. Then we were both laughing uproariously.

* * *

I decided we should have another beer—for the road, you school teachers call it—before Gus said, "I do think it's marvellous that you have only one child. I suppose you get hundreds of eggs!

"Nun, bis jetzt hat mur. . ." and I went on to explain that our daughter Gloria, had actually laid an egg.

"There's nothing like a newlaid egg," I said, "for breakfast."

"Noch eine!" he let out a sehr. . ." and I went on to explain that my neighbor, Marjorie Fry on Bridge Street, because her hens weren't laying, "merchet le gros mot" and bought eggs tell ver Eifersuch war," I said.

"Disgusting," said Gus and then he began to laugh again. "We go work now, Jack," he said.

I said okay and I took the bus home. I was somewhat puzzled from a little text titled "Practical Talk on Language" which we use for our conversations and "the dialogue, as it always does, had a little out of hand.

I put the book on top of the ice-box for Gus's next lesson. He is learning to pronounce English words and I, also learning how to imitate Baron Munchausen.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The main reason why some men are able to amass money is simply that most people don't want it.

There appear to be two main divisions of human kind: Those who go after things of value to convert them into money; and those who go after money in order to use it to get things of value.

The first works hard to buy land and then hopes to increase by in order to buy a house; fill it with furniture, buy clothes, set up a television set, turn his motor car in on a better one, install a rumpus room for the children.

Fortunately for first type, the second type is vastly in the majority. A poor man has to convert his money into the barest needs of his life. But let him get a little money over and above his needs, and his first instinct is to get rid of it in exchange for any sort of possession that seems to him to improve his lot. The first step applies up through the successive income grades of society, and although every year, all still poor, and ever-decrease of improving out lot.

Curious is that the vast majority of people do not want to be rich. They want things.

Those who amass money are few in number and are envied by many. Taxation in various forms makes it hard for them to collect large visible quantities of it.

Money is no longer handy or safe. It will soon taken off us. The day is nearing in which nobody will want money. We will all be settle for goods.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

AS FOR ME AND MY HOUSE

One of the great moments in Old Testament history occurred in the last days of the life of Joshua, the great leader who brought the Israelites into the promised land. Knowing that his end was near, Joshua called the people together and told them to choose between Jehovah and the heathen gods, concluding his challenge with the ringing words, "But as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

This statement is interesting because of the assurance with which he spoke not only for himself but for his "house"—his family, dependents and servants. Of course, Joshua himself was loyal to God whom he had served for his 110 years. But he had apparently made certain that his children, and their children, and all their household were loyal, too.

Many Christians today publicly acknowledge God when they join a church, and practise, at least in part, of their children, to train them in the worship of God. But how seldom today is prayer and religion at home. How many can say with assurance, even when their children are in school age, let alone when they have grown up, "As for me and my house. . ."?

Few are privileged to carry Christianity abroad as missionaries, but all have it within their power to be faithful workers in God the foundation of their homes and of their children's lives.

HOW TO WORRY THE NEIGHBORS

To the dismay of the neighbors their leaders carry our their children go without hats, coats or any other clothing they'd rather not wear, at any time of year in any weather.

You see (the lucky youngsters' father writes), we feel they are not idiots, so they know whether they have enough on to keep comfortable.

The children have suffered no ill effects. They have had c-r-i only rarely and always it has obviously been caught from some one who was careless about spreading infection. When our 11 year old daughter had sore throat she came down with tonsillitis and said her tonsils should be removed. She was well in a day or two and still has her tonsils. Other children in the neighborhood have been sick quite a time, but they had already undergone tonsillectomy, so they had "glad troubles" to get them removed! (T. L.)

The dismay of the neighbors is the usual reaction of the unteachable but it is sad to find school teachers resenting the fact. Perhaps that explains why the schoolroom is the most likely place to catch the e-r-i (common respiratory infections—such as measles, diphtheria, scarlet fever, poliomyelitis, cerebro-spinal meningitis, mumps, chicken pox, influenza, whooping cough, influenza, coryza).

Teachers, school nurses, school teachers and parents who lay back their long ears and ascribe indispositions and illnesses they do not recognize to "colds", in spite of modern scientific knowledge to the contrary — I hope the article I published in publication here Saturday, Jan. 19 was printed without too much editing—it dealt with the conclusion reached by the British Medical Research Council after 20 years of experimentation on volunteers—the long-eared ones must now take notice that as a cat put I am in good company, for the British authorities consider that wet feet, insufficient clothing, drafts, sudden changes and all that old stuff have little to do with the indispositions or illnesses which ignorant folk call "cold".

More power to T.L. and his happy children. And more diplomacy, annoyance, indignation and discomfort to the neighbors and teachers who have been dead from the neck up these past fifty years.

Special Foods

Won't you please give your opinion of such special foods as powdered skim milk, wheat germ, powdered brewers' yeast, black-strap molasses and yogurt (Mrs. A. Y. M.)

Answer—They are all harmless and healthful if you like them, but none better deserves the designation "health food" than fresh milk, cheese and fruit. Credulous customers are impressed by pretty packages.

Restless Legs

Husband troubled by restless legs as he can't get to sleep. Doctor said he has too much calcium in his blood now. (Mrs. L. F.)

Answer—The complaint is usually an indication for nitroglycerin or other vasodilator. Send 5c and stamped, self-addressed envelope for booklet C-7 D (about heart and artery troubles), which tells how to use nitroglycerin—a tablet or two on retiring relieves that trouble—if you can get it from your doctor or with the doctor's prescription.

County Council Sets Tax Rate At 20.04 Mills an Increase Of 4.54 Mills Over Last Year

The 1952 tax rate for Hastings county will be 20.04 mills, it was decided by councillors at their spring session here Wednesday afternoon after considering estimates for the year.

The new rate is 4.54 mills greater than last year. This rate will apply on the equalized assessments and they vary in the various municipalities according to the difference in local assessment. The rate is made up of 11.36 mills for the general rate, 8 mills for road purposes and a special levy of 7 mills for new county home debentures on which the county commences to pay this year.

Estimates for the year were considered by a special committee Wednesday morning and their report was presented to council during the afternoon by Reeve T. C. Graham of Tweed, chairman of the finance and public property committee.

All Departments up

Revenue from all sources for the county for the year is estimated at $648,120.36, with practically all departments up from last year. County administration is estimated at $24,000 for the year, county solicitor $5,000 and other costs $4,000.

Roads and bridges will cost the county close to one half of the total estimates. Estimates for this committee are $300,000, a figure, which had been approved during the January session.

Administration of justice costs were estimated at an even $30,000; jail costs $24,000; fuel, light and insurance $6,500 and juvenile and family court $8,400. Children's Aid costs were estimated at $35,000 and indigent patients at the same figure. Operation of the home for the aged was expected to cost $100,000, from which $48,000 was expected to be returned in old age pensions.

Had Deficit Last Year

High school education costs were estimated at $27,000; bank interest at $6,072 and debentures for the home for the aged $12,797.

On the revenue side the province was expected to return $12,000 for law enforcement, while Belleville's share for law enforcement was estimated at $14,000. Trenton's share was estimated at $4,000.

The government road subsidy would amount to $158,592 if the appropriation was all spent, the county road mill rate of 8 mills would return $142,407; payments from the municipalities for education would be $27,000 and the general rate of 11.34 mills would produce $298,972.

It was pointed out that the county had a deficit of $13,000 last year, this being paid out of a surplus built up over the years. If road repairs were effected at the court house and a new heating system installed, the cost would have to come out of the county surplus as these items were not included in the estimates.

Report Presented

Reeve Graham also presented the report of the property and finance committee, noting what alterations and repairs had been done at the law library, the family court office and Judge Anderson's room.

He said that Judge Anderson had been authorized to arbitrate a new agreement for administration of justice with the town of Trenton and the county of Hastings.

No action was taken on a Lincoln county resolution asking that educational costs in the municipalities be limited to 25 mills, the same as the general purpose rate.

Reeve Ross Neal of Deseronto felt there was some merit in the resolution claiming that council should have some control over education costs.

Reeve Clarke Rollins of Wollaston did not think this was the correct approach as limiting education to a mill rate of 25 mills would mean the balance would have to be taken up by the government. "This might mean excess expenditures," he said.

No Action Taken

Neither was any action taken on an Ontario county resolution which asked for standardization of industrial assessments. Reeve Neal felt that Hastings municipalities were in a position where everything should be done to encourage industry.

In discussing the report of the committee on estimates, Reeve Rollins wanted to know if the family court was worth continuing. "Are we getting value for our money?" he asked.

In reply Warden Lee Grills said from what information he had gathered he believed the family court was doing considerable work. Still, he was not in position to say whether the county was getting value for its money.

Building of Alaska Highway Great Engineering Feat Speaker Tells Meeting at Shrine Club

Considering the terrain and the time required, the building of the Alaska Highway was one of the greatest engineering feats of the last 50 years, J. C. R. Punchard, a Belleville electrical engineer, told members of the Purchasing Agents Association of Eastern Ontario, at their monthly meeting, held at the Shrine Club, Wednesday evening.

Mr. Punchard, who was a member of a survey party which surveyed the Alaska Highway in 1946, said that the builders of the highway, working in both directions from four main bases, completed about 1,600 miles of the highway in about 160 days. The total length of the highway, Mr. Punchard explained, is about 1,900 miles.

Starts at Edmonton

The highway starts at Edmonton and runs northward through Alberta and Yukon Territory, then into Alaska. Most of it, or 1,600 miles, is in Canada.

After the war, the Americans turned the highway over to Canada. It is now cared for by the Canadian army. The RCAF has five bases on it.

The purpose of the survey in which Mr. Punchard participated was to determine whether a radio communication system should be installed to replace the telephone system installed by the Americans. The survey took two months, after which six months was spent preparing a report on it. The report opposed installation of a radio system.

Found Own Route

When the Americans started building the highway, Mr. Punchard stated, they started to do a "proper" engineering job. But they found that it would take them about 15 years to complete the project at the rate they were going. Hence, the bulldozer operators were told to go ahead and find their own route. The workmen were given some guidance by the engineers, but few specific instructions. As a result, in some places the route twists and turns, avoiding muskeg and mountains, and in some places, over-boulders.

At one point on the highway is a place called Snag, notorious for its low temperatures. The yearly round mean temperature at Snag is -11.7 degrees. The lowest temperature at the time Mr. Punchard was there had been -69 degrees. Since then a low of -81 had been recorded. Summer temperatures in some localities go as high as 90. "Wind velocities have not been recorded higher than 56 miles an hour, which is not as high as they are sometimes around Belleville," Mr. Punchard said.

Valuable Farm Land

In some localities such as around Fort St. John, there is extremely valuable farm land, noted for its high productivity. Mr. Punchard warned anyone thinking of taking a trip along the Alaska Highway that it is not open to the public, although it is possible to gain permission to travel the road in certain circumstances.

Tom Brown was chairman. Alf Evans led the club members in singing. Phil Huddleston was pianist. Two new members, Muriel Hodgins and Tom Delaney were introduced.

F. B. Sheffield introduced Mr. Punchard to the gathering. He was thanked for his address by Herb Wells. Arthur Duby, accompanied by Phil Huddleston sang "Old Man River" and "Mammy."

Mr. Punchard, after he had given his talk on the Alaska Highway, showed a series of films of scenes along it.

Ore Shipping Season Opens

Cleveland, April 3 (AP) — A dozen Pittsburgh Steamship Co. ore carriers and three Hanna vessels were Lake Superior bound today, with the 1952 iron ore shipping season officially under way.

The start was 10 days later than the March 23 goal shippers set a month ago.

The Canadian steamer Scott Misener locked through the Soo into Lake Superior at 1:30 p.m. yesterday to lead the parade.

In Lake Michigan, at Escanaba, the first ore cargo of the year was loaded on the Hanna steamer Hoskin Jr. night, and two more Hanna ships, the Mudge and the Fink, are to take on ore there today.

Ice is still thick in the St. Mary's River, the coast guard's ice breaker Mackinaw is there to escort vessels through. The Mackinaw also was ready to proceed Intd Whitefish Bay where the Misener was having difficulties last night getting through the ice.

BOOST INCOME TAXES

Dublin, April 3. (AP)—Finance Minister Sean MacEntee boosted income taxes and sliced into the food subsidy—a feature of Ireland's limited welfare state—in presenting the largest budget in history last night. The budget called for spending £97,781,000. It raised the standard rate of income tax by one shilling in the pound to seven shillings six pence. MacEntee abolished the subsidy on tea, butter and sugar and cut it on bread and flour.

ACTOR BUYS HOTEL

Kingston, Jamaica, April 3. — (CP)—Errol Flynn bought the Titchfield Hotel at Port Antonio yesterday for an undisclosed sum. The inn is one of the oldest in Jamaica. WEDDINGS

BUTCHER—McINROY

In St. Luke's Anglican Church, Peterborough, on Friday, March 21, a quiet wedding took place, when Rosclyn Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McInroy, formerly of Bonarlaw, became the bride of Lt. Vergne Butcher, of Peterborough. Rev. W. Gilling, rector of the church, performed the ceremony.

The bride chose a suit of Copperstone, gabardine with Kelly green accessories and corsage of Talisman roses.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Wayne Ferguson, who wore a suit of black velvet with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Mr. Kenneth Batchelor was the groomsman.

A buffet luncheon was served at the bride's home to the immediate families, after which the bride and bridegroom left by motor for Virginia, U.S.

On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

Queen Juliana Trumans' Guest At White House

Washington, April 2. (AP)—Queen Juliana of the Netherlands was up early today to begin a split-second program that includes addressing Congress in English, shaking thousands of hands at three receptions and donning a diamond tiara tonight for a formal dinner party.

The queen and her husband, Prince Bernhard, are the first guests in the newly-rebuilt White House. The President and Mrs. Truman moved back in only last Thursday after having lived across Pennsylvania Avenue at Blair House for three years.

There was a last minute rush to get the place ready for the royal visitors. A small but formal luncheon will be given in the redecorated state dining room. But the White House staff, which includes many newcomers, was not considered ready to tackle the rigors of a formal state dinner last night, so it was held at the Carlton hotel.

About 50 guests were invited to the dinner, given by the President and Mrs. Truman, in honor of both Mrs. Truman and the queen were privately wearing gowns.

Gown Strapless

The queen's gown was strapless but she wore with it a bolero of pearl gray Chantilly lace. Her jewels included a diamond tiara and brilliant diamond brooch.

Truman told his guests that "we have with us what I like to refer to as the fairy queen. We had the fairy princess with us the time before—before she became Queen of England."

The President expressed the hope and belief that some day the whole world would be set up on the basis of powerful nations living at peace with their neighbors as does the United States now with neighbors to the north and south who are part of all of us."

In reply Juliana told her host "you head a great country of very human and kind-hearted people, who gave us invaluable support during and after the war. We even liberated a part of our country."

"The graves of your soldiers there are shrines for us. Your government and your people have put us on the arduous path to prosperity again. We are full of gratitude to the American people."

The menu included salmon, consomme, guinea hen, string beans, wild rice, asparagus salad. Riesling wine was served with the fish, sherry with the consomme, burgundy with the entree, and champagne with a fancy vanilla pudding.

You can make a cloth "bracelet" to catch the sugar water that runs down your arm while washing walls by wrapping a folded strip of old towel around your wrist. Use a rubber band to hold it in place.

Cannifton W.A. Holds Church Supper

The regular March meeting of Cannifton W.A., was held in the Sunday School room of the church during the form of a pot-luck supper.

The tenders and reports of the various committees on the church renovation project, which is hoped to be done in the near future, were heard.

Mrs. F. Turnidge and Mrs. D. Brenton, assisted by Mrs. George Lywood and Mrs. H. Brenton, had charge of the supper which was in keeping with the Easter season. The long tables were prettily decorated with daffodils, and yellow and pink candles; while table napkins folded in pyramid style, and centred with a colored candy egg were the delight of all.

After the delicious repast, the business part of the meeting was attended to, with discussions and the different aspects of the various projects were given the angles with considerable debate.

The Reverend W. R. Marrick closed the meeting.

Club Activities

IDA MARTIN M.C.

The Ida Martin Mission Circle of Holloway Street United Church, held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Miss Marilyn Bird, 6 Hillside Street, with four new members present, bringing the attendance up to ten girls.

As this meeting was in the form of a supper meeting, a bounteous repast was served, after which the girls adjourned to the living room for a brief sing-song.

The business portion was under the direction of the president, Miss Jean Campbell. It was decided to start a baby layette with each member contributing one or more articles as well as sharing in the making of a mission package for Korea.

Miss Doris Hill conducted the worship service. Miss Doris Pollard read a poem, and Miss Enid Martin read the Scripture and a story. Following this, there was a discussion regarding possible projects by Miss Pollard.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Jean Campbell, 16 Charlotte Street, in May. All new members cordially welcomed.

BEULAH MISSION BAND

The Easter meeting of Beulah United Church Mission Band held Saturday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. Keith Bray was largely attended.

The leader, Mrs. George Wood, conducted the opening exercises. Quiet music was played and the call to worship was, "Jesus said, I am the resurrection and the life". An explanation of why Easter is celebrated was given followed by a prayer of thanksgiving. Mark 16:1-6 was read and an "Easter" story was told.

Easter Exercise

An Easter exercise was given by seven girls and boys. The offering and prayer were followed by a poem "The Empty Tomb", by Mrs. Leavoy Rollins. The members were asked to bring Easter Thank-offering and mite boxes to the next meeting also try to get new members.

The following program was conducted by Mrs. Keith Bray: poem, "Easter", Mary Joe Beckel; poem, "Homes", Joe Rollins; The Story of the First Easter, Jean Benson; films of "The Resurrection", "The Passion Play", were shown by Mrs. Bray, who also related the story; poem, "Easter is For All People", John Rollins; piano solo, Ellen Mist; story, "The Little Shell", Bonnie Brant; song, Judy Wood and Elaine Wickens; piano solo, Karen Bray; story "Butterflies are Symbols of Easter", Joyce Reid; song, Karen and Sandy Bray.

The fine art work "Light of the World", a painting by Holman Hunt, was shown by Mrs. Bray. The picture of Christ as the Light of the World, brings an Easter message more expressive than any words.

Games were played directed by Jean Benson and Karen Bray.

Refreshments were served.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He's younger—should she feel "guilty" to be interested?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with a wonderful boy who thinks the world of me, but our problem is that he is five years younger than I am. I know it's nothing unusual these days for an older girl to marry a younger boy, but you see we both are really quite young. Bob is only 18, though he's been out of school for sometime, and I am 23. I look about 17 and he can easily pass for 22 or 23.

We met at a party and I just took it for granted that he was the same age as I and he thought the same about me. It wasn't until after we had had a few dates that we discovered the truth about our ages, but by then it was too late, as I just couldn't forget him and he felt the same toward me. We decided not to go out any more together, but that only lasted for three months and then we got together again.

Do you think it wrong for two people who get along fine to keep company when there's a difference in ages? My own mother is quite a few years older than Dad and they're very happy, only they were in their late twenties when they met. The only thing that really worries me is what folks will say. Should I feel guilty about loging a boy younger than myself?—J. W.

Dear J. W.:

Since your mother and your father faced just the same sort of situation you and this boy are in, I should think your mother would be just the one to give you the best kind of advice about it. Have you talked things over with her?

Of course there is no reason why you should feel guilty about being interested in a boy younger than yourself, nor is there anything wrong for two people to go out together under circumstances, especially when they "get along just fine". As for worrying about what people are going to say, what you do is your own business and the only sensible thing is to pay no attention.

My advice to you would be that since you and Bob find each other so congenial, you continue to be good friends and see each other all you like. Don't commit yourself too definitely on the future, however, until you have given yourselves plenty of time to make sure of your feelings. This is only sensible, no matter what your age.

If, after a reasonable length of time, during which you have been able to make sure that you both see things from the same angle, and that you are o fthe same age intellectually and emotionally, which is far more important than being the same age physically, you and Bob decide you want to marry, then you should go ahead and do it. All things being equal, there is no reason why you should not be completely happy.

A simple ceremony is best

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been married almost two years to a serviceman. We had known each other only six weeks when we got married, but we love each other as much now as we did on our honeymoon.

The reason I am writing to you is this. We were married very quietly by a justice of the peace and now we would like to be married in church and have a few friends there. The reason we could not be married in church at the time was because my husband was not then of my faith, but now he is going for instructions everyday aboard his ship.

What I would like to know is, would it be all right to wear a pastel ballerina gown at our church wedding and would it be all right to have two attendents? Should I notify our friends and relatives in a personal note of invitation, and should I invite the same friends who attended our civil ceremony?—M. M.

Dear M.M.:

To my way of thinking, it would seem in a little better taste if you kept this second ceremony, which comes two years after the first, just quiet as the other. Of course I'm sure there's no objection to having the church wedding in the way you would like most, and writing notes of invitation to those you would like to have there. Don't you think, in view of all the' circumstances, that you and your husband might well just go to church by yourselves and go through the marriage ceremony? Since it comes so long after the civil one, I would think it more dignified to have it as simple as possible.

Food for Thought

By Mary Moore

'It Takes a Stout Heart'

In such a mild and gently smiling way she told us how they had come finally to their decision to emigrate to Canada.

An English widow with one unmarried daughter who is her only companion, they had come to Canada twice before but had had to return because of trouble and death in the families still left "over home". But now there was nothing to keep them from finding a new life in Canada—"but it does take a stout heart, you know, to leave all of your old ties."

A stout heart indeed!

I asked her what she wanted to do most when she was settled. She said "As soon as the stove is wired I'm going to have a roast of lamb, even if there's just Jacquie and me."

I was so glad she wasn't going to have the shock of paying $1.35 per pound for it, which was what it was costing the folks who could afford it last spring. I see it is being quoted around 85 cents per pound this week.

Since lamb has come down to within reaching distance of you peasants" wouldn't it be a good idea to run over the method of roasting it to perfection? new little English friend wants these instructions too, for she claims she won't "be able to cope right off with the new electric stove they have hire-purchased." If I deal with roast lamb this week I will be free to give you my favorite glazed ham method next week about this time—just before Easter.

THE PERFECT ROAST LEG OF LAMB

Trust your butcher to select the lamb leg. Don't shy away from one with a little excess fat—it must have a good layer of fat to be choice.

Wipe it with a damp cloth—don't wash it. Have mixed 1-2 cup flour, 2 teaspoons salt and 1-2 teaspoon each pepper and paprika. Pat this into all of the surfaces of the meat. Do it over a piece of wax paper so you may scoop up any that falls off and pat it in again. Place skin side down, cutside up on rack in open roasting pan. Roast at 325 deg. Fahr. throughout—allowing 25 minutes per pound for "medium done" which means 3 hours less 5 minutes for a 5-pound leg. If you want it well done allow 40 minutes per pound. This dries the lamb out too much for most people who like it moist when it is sliced cold.

Do not add water, do not cover do not sear at high temperature —just roast it steadily, unbasted at 325 deg. Fahr. It-will be perfectly golden and beautiful and roasted right to the bone.

Note: If readers would like the rather tricky instructions for making gravy in the pan while I am to do is write to me asking for it.

MARINATED LAMB SHOULDER CHOPS

(These you can afford.) Buy 6 shoulder lamb chops preferably 1 inch or more thick. Shred 1 carrot, chop 1 onion, crumple 1 bay leaf, and to them add 1-2 teaspoon pepper, 1-4 cup olive or other salad oil, 1-4 cup vinegar, the juice of 1-2 lemon. Mix all these and spread in bottom of flat dish. Place the chops over them pushing them down into this "marinade". Turn them over every half hour for three hours, being careful that much of the oil and vinegar lies on them when they are turned. Remove from marinade, wipe them dry, slash fat edge, dust with salt and pepper and rub with oil. Sear on both sides under extremely hot broiler, then decrease heat and broil about three inches from burner for 1-2 hour. Place in hot dish with cover, do not chop with butter and place in oven, covered, for 1-2 hour at 300. Heat through and strain marinade and pass in small pitcher.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Today's courtesy hint

What a joy it is, what an inspiration it is, to hear someone say about a family, "Aren't they nice to each other!" A high compliment to the consideration-for-others of every member of that family. There is no place where courtesy is so necessary, so important, as in the home!

"Housewarmings" or "Open House"?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We have just moved into our new house and we hope to be settled about the middle of May, so that we can give our first party here about the last of May or the first part of June. We want to invite all our relatives and friends, on a Sunday afternoon. I've always liked the word "Housewarming" for this kind of party, and I believe you do too (for you use it quite often in your column), but in several invitations we've received lately, the words "Open House" have been used. Is there any difference, or may we use whichever we prefer?—B. H. L.

Either term may be used, and quite correctly. But "Housewarming" is the word generally used for the first party given in the new home. . .and it's such a heart-warming word for this happy occasion that I suggest you use it. (You can use "Open House" for subsequent parties to which you invite a larger group of friends, and not for such a special occasion.)

(Dictionary definitions: "Open House" . . . a house in which hospitality is extended to all visitors. "Housewarming" . . . a festivity on entering a new home.)

Don't address a wedding invitation to "Mr. and Mrs. ——— and family

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In addressing the invitations to my church wedding, is it correct to write "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and Family" on the envelope to be mailed to a family? Or must I send individual invitations?—Miss S.

Do not address an envelope to "Mr. and Mrs. —— and family". This phrase "and family" is taboo. First, it is too inclusive, and so does not, cannot, show a proper bow to the individual members of the family. Second, it is too vague, and the "family" may very well be uncertain as to who is meant to be included. And third, it is not necessary to use this vague phrase, because there are courteous and practical ways to get around using it.

Address one invitation "Mr. and Mrs." and, if possible, send an individual invitation to each adult member of the family. If this isn't agreeable to your budget, address the outer envelope to "Mr. and Mrs. John Allen Smith", and the inside envelope, for example:

Mr. and Mrs. Smith
Miss Mary Smith
Mr. Arthur Smith

Or, for several daughters and sons:

Mr. and Mrs. Smith
The Misses Smith
The Messrs. Smith

Or, for several young children:

Mr. and Mrs. Smith
Polly, Joan, Robert, and Peter

This addressing-procedure, although using only one invitation, makes a personal bow to each one invited.

Swirling waters of the flooded Ross Creek lap a round houses in the Furmal sub-division at Medicine Hat, Alta., as warm weather causes heavy spring runoffs. Ross Creek, the first to flood in this area, now is down substantially and other south ern Alberta points are almost back to normal after lesser flood scares. — (CP Photo.)

Bridge Swept Away

Turbulent waters of Ross Creek swept away this bridge during its rampage in the Medicine Hat area of southern Alberta. The bridge was weakened during dynamitting of river ice in an effort to clear a channel. When the creek waters rose in spring flood fury the bridge collapsed. Canadian Farms Hit by Labor Shortage, Migration Held Up

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Thousands of Canadian farmers are preparing for spring seeding with prospects of facing the greatest scarcity in hired help since the end of the Second World War.

Outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease and consequent slowdown of farm immigration, the loneliness of farm work and the more attractive pay in city defence plants contributed to the depletion in the pool of manpower essential to the production of foodstuffs.

Though the lack of hired hands will place an added hardship on Canada's hard-working, food producers, federal officials feel that many of them will turn more and more to machinery this year to keep production as high as possible.

A Canadian Press survey shows that the shortage is almost general throughout the country. British Columbia reports the shortage is most acute on general farm and ranch work; Alberta, on sugar-beet farms; Saskatchewan, in the dairy industry.

General Shortage

The dairy industry will feel the pinch in the east, too. Ontario, Quebec and Prince Edward Island report shortages in that essential industry; but Nova Scotia says the biggest demand for help is among apple growers.

New Brunswick and Manitoba feel that the manpower situation is not too acute. Manitoba reports that if there is any shortage it will come in mid-April. There was no report from Newfoundland. That island province gets most of its foodstuffs from the mainland.

But with suspicion that foot-and-mouth disease may have been brought to Canada by an immigrant, the federal government temporarily halted recruiting in Europe when the disease is prevalent until steps can be taken to disinfect all those who want to work on Canadian farms.

Federal officials estimate they have lost about three-weeks' recruiting time because of the change in regulations and many farmers promised hired help on a certain day likely will wait three or four weeks.

November Survey

A federal survey last November showed Canada's farm labor force at about 875,000, down about 100,000 from 974,000 the previous year. The force grows during the spring and summer months and reaches approximately 1,000,000. Canada's total labor force is estimated at 5,000,000 persons.

The survey showed, however, that the number of paid workers —the hired hands who are not members of the farmer's family —totalled about 89,000, down 12,000 from 102,000 in 1950. The number of unpaid workers—mostly members of the farmer's family—totalled about 200,000.

To meet all demands about 25,000 farm immigrants will be needed this year to cover the drift of farm hands to the cities.

Labor officials estimate that the shortage will be more acute this year than any in the post-war period. However, they suggest farmers can make life attractive on farms by offering more pay, cutting hours of work and enhancing farm social life.

This, of course, would mean higher prices for farm products and might cause reduction in sales. J. A. Carroll, assistant deputy minister of agriculture for Ontario sizes up the situation neatly. There would be no shortage, he says, if farmers could get prices that would permit them to offer wages as attractive as factories do.

"A shortage of labor until now has been the major factor limiting production," he adds.

Some farm immigrants find Canadian conditions as good or even better than in Europe. Others, such as those from the United Kingdom, mention that conditions are not as comfortable as at home. In Britain farm workers are organized, work an eight-hour day with extra pay for overtime and get certain fixed holidays. Similar conditions do not exist in Canada. The dairy work is about 10 hours or more.

The hired hand's pay has been climbing. But it still is short of the average city wage. The Bureau of Statistics estimated the monthly farm-labor rate at $86 with board, up $11 from the 1951. The average industrial wage is a little more than $200.

INVESTIGATE BLAZE

AYR, April 3 (CP)—An investigation into a recent fire which destroyed a general store owned by William Deaklin causing $70,000 damage opened here yesterday under P. S. Harding of the Ontario Fire Marshal's staff.

Cause of the blaze, which also destroyed a cold storage plant in this village near Galt, is not known. Damages of $18,000 were done to the same building by fire in 1940.

Assassins Picked the Wrong Boys

Two boys who were given a bomb addressed to West German Chancellor Adenauer are questioned by news correspondents in Munich. The boys said they were given money by two men and told to put the package in a publicus, the boys took it to a police station, where it exploded killing a bomb disposal expert and severely injuring three policemen. — Central Press Canadian.

Conservative Says Charge Made Malicious

Toronto, April 3—(CP)—C. C. Wardrop (PC—St. Arthur) today branded as "malicious, deliberate and political publicity-seeking" the charge by W. G. Grummett, C. C. F. leader in the Ontario legislature, that the Ontario Forest Industries Association lobbied against the government's new Crown Timber Act.

Reviving the argument that sparked yesterday's meeting of the legislature's Lands and Forests Committee, Mr. Wardrop demanded the resignation of Mr. Grummett from the committee.

His demand was ruled out of order and was not considered.

"I cannot co-operate with a man who uses tactics like that," Mr. Wardrope said.

The Port Arthur member said Mr. Grummett's statement was "a malicious, deliberate lie, and the person who said it knows it."

Still Stands by Statement

Mr. Grummett replied that he still stood behind his statement.

The Forest Industries Association intended "to torpedo the provisions of this bill," he said. It would have been different if the association had approached himself or Albert Wren (Lib.-Lab.-Kenora), a second opposition member of the committee.

The C. C. F. member said he had never seen a group approach government members as they considered a bill. Another thing that made him "suspicious" was that a brief from the O. F. I. A. had been addressed to Ray Myers (PC-Waterloo South) as chairman of the committee several days before the committee had elected this chairman.

"All of that is suspicious," Mr. Grummett said.

Land Minister Scott said the association likely presumed Mr. Myers was chairman because he had been asked to study the bill beforehand as the only government member lawyer on the committee, and was present when C. F. I. A. counsel its brief to the minister.

"I feel very heatedly about this," Mr. Wardrope said, continuing his objection. "Mr. Grummett's statement is a political sounding board for the C. C. F.

U.S. Political Spotlight Swings To Illinois

Washington, April 3 — (CP)— The U. S. political spotlight swung today to Illinois, where an April 8 primary will provide the next popularity sounding board for presidential hopefuls.

Senator Robert Taft of Ohio, whose victories in Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries this week brought a new surge of hope to his followers, appeared headed for a new triumph.

Illinois will be the fifth of 16 states which hold primaries in election years to give voters a chance to express preference for the various presidential aspirants.

The Republican and Democratic parties each will choose 60 delegates to represent Illinois at the national nominating conventions in Chicago in July.

A survey of Illinois newspapers and correspondents indicates that Taft is a definite favorite to win the Illinois primary and most of the delegates, although Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is expected to receive strong support. Eisenhower's name is not entered on the ballot and supporters will have to write his name in.

In the Democratic primary, Senator Estes Kefauver is unopposed on the ballot although a write-in campaign is under way for Illinois Governor Adlai Stevenson.

The final vote count in the Nebraska primary was still incomplete today but it appeared Taft would get 15 of the 18 Republican delegates and Eisenhower one.

In the Wisconsin primary, Taft won 24 of the 30 Republican delegates. Governor Earl Warren of California got the other six with Harold Stassen blanked out. Eisenhower was not on the ballot and write-in votes were not allowed.

Kefauver was a Wisconsin shoo-in, polling about 85 per cent of the popular vote on the Democratic ticket and winning all 22 convention delegates.

40 Red Jets Downed in Three Days of Battle

Seoul, Korea, April 3 (AP) — American Sabre pilots destroyed or damaged eight communist jets today running their bag score to 40 for the first three days of April.

Today's toll was taken in three battles over northwest Korea including history's longest jet fight. It lasted 45 minutes. Eighteen F86 Sabre jets tangled with 60 Russian type jets in that battle, fought as the day was letting.

April Allied losses have not been announced. They are reported weekly.

A new jet ace, America's ninth, came out of today's actions. He is Capt. Robert H. Moore of Houston, Tex. He shot down his fifth MIG-15 on his 90th flight over Korea.

The seldom - seen "type 15" communist jet showed up in MIG alley today. The U. S. Fifth Air Force said one was probably destroyed and another damaged.

The high-winged "type 15" were flying with the faster, low wing MIG 15s. American air officers said the "type 15s" apparently were designed as fighter-bombers rather than interceptors.

Before the air war erupted in two jet battles this morning, the Fifth Air Force announced Sabre pilots shot down two MIGs and damaged another in a twilight battle over northwest Korea Wednesday. Forty nine Sabres battled about 55 MIGs at 7:30 pm.

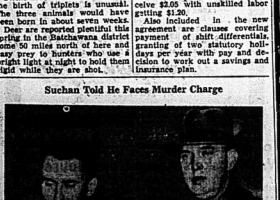
Ground action Wednesday was highlighted by a heavy communist artillery barrage, mostly on the western front.

YAPPY IS DEAD

Tuckers Point, April 3 — (CP) — Yappy, a wild white whistling swan, won't be a movie star. The bird, caught in a muskrat trap on his annual flight to the Arctic circle, died yesterday.

Yappy was found by trapper Les Preedy and when released was too weak to fly away. Preedy turned Yappy over to a game preserve at Long Point Monday.

It was planned that once Yappy had gained its strength he would appear in a National Film Board movie and then be released to continue his northward migration.



DOE CARRYING TRIPLETS

Sault Ste. Marie, April 3 (CP) — Men hunting out of season and using illegal jacklights have killed a doe which was carrying triplets, game officers here said today.

Twins are common to deer but the birth of triplets is unusual. The three animals would have been born in about seven weeks.

Deer are reported plentiful this spring in the Batchewana district some 50 miles north of here and easy prey to hunters who use a bright light at night to hold them rigid while they are shot.

Suchan Told He Faces Murder Charge

Steve Suchan, taken from Montreal hospital to Toronto, turned pale when he heard he will face a murder charge due to the death of Sergeant of Detectives Edmund Tong. Now the gunmen who figured in the double death of Tong are together in Toronto. Suchan is shown, left, in custody of Detective Bill Thompson arriving by plane in Toronto. — Central Press Canadian.

Sprightly Widow Gives Up Search For Boy Friend

London, April 3—(AP)—Sadie Brooks, a sprightly, 74-year-old widow from Canada, today gave up her search for the boy friend of her youth and hoped her 12 children didn't hear too many tales about her hunt for an old romance.

Sadie searched in vain through her old neighborhood in the London suburb of Ealing and in Birmingham. She knocked on doors, asking people if they knew Tom Mitchell. No one did.

Tom was her sweetheart at the turn of the century. But Sadie left for Canada, married and raised a family in Oshawa, Ont.

"I have 12 children, I guess," she said. "Some are mine and the rest are adopted. It wouldn't do for them to hear what I've been up to in England."

Sadie said her idea to hunt up her girlhood heart - throb came on the spur of the moment. She flew over—with two frunks and several shopping bags full of present for Tom and old friends.

"But it's no use," she sighed. "The whole place has changed."

The only Londoner who thought he remembered Tom believed he died two years ago.

Sadie said she's ready to go back home.

"Never mind," she said. "I feel much better, now I've been back. It's been fun."

Wage Increase Given

Toronto, April 3 CP) — The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission announced today the signing of a new wage agreement providing a 10-cent-an-hour increase for some 5,000 employees.

A joint statement issued by Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the commission, and G. Russell Harvey, chairman of the Niagara Development Allied Council (A.F.L.) which represents 18 unions said the increase was retroactive to March 1).

The employers affected include 2,170 commission men and 860 contractors' employees engaged on the Niagara development programs.

The increase brings the wage rate for carpenters to $1.90 an hour. Electrical workers will receive $2.05 with unskilled labor getting $1.20.

Also included in the new agreement are clauses covering payment of shift differential and granting of two statutory holidays per year with pay and decision to work out a savings and insurance plan.

Falsity of Communist Photo Charges Exposed by Times

New York, April 3. (AP)—The New York Times today published what it called conclusive evidence of the falsity of communist photo charges that the United States is waging germ warfare in North Korea and China.

The evidence consisted of statements by American experts on pictures which the Chinese reds originally printed in the Peiping People's Daily March 18, as proof of the charges against the U.S.

These American experts said the pictures, identified in the Chinese captions as those of deadly bugs dropped by U.S. invaders, were actually photos of harmless insects incapable of carrying disease, the Times said.

The U.S. army, furthermore, identified a bomb which the Chinese claimed was a germ carrier as an M1621 used for spreading psychological warfare leaflets, the Times said.

The Times gave this account of its findings:

The experts consulted about the pictures were Dr. C. H. Curran, chief curator of Insects and Spiders at the American Museum of Natural History; Dr. Rene Dubos, bacteriologist of the Rockefeller Institute, and army spokesmen.

Only Sissy Flies

The Chinese labelled one picture "poisonous insects which could fly, crawl and swim dropped on Chinese territory by U.S. invaders." Dr. Curran said the picture actually shows several stone flies in a petri shell, a glass commonly used in laboratories.

"These perfectly harmless creatures are often found in large numbers within varying distances from water, in which the larvae live. Their flight is slow and because they are poor fliers they would be extremely poor at disseminating disease even if they could be inoculated."

Dr. Curran added that it would take "millions of people to inoculate sufficient insects to carry out a germ war if a germ war of this type should be possible. There is no proof that it is and the evidence points to the fact that it is not."

Community Mourns Death of Mrs. Mills

Shannonville—This community was greatly shocked last week to hear of the death in Barrie of Mrs. L. E. Mills. Although known to have been in poor health for some time, her death came unexpectedly.

Mrs. Mills' whole life was a labor of love for her church and she was active in every cause pertaining to the uplift of those about her. She was a child of the parsonage, her parents being Rev. and Mrs. Peake, at one time on Shannonville circuit which at that time had four appointments, namely Shannonville, Spencer's, Bennon's and Front Road.

Mrs. Mills served voluntarily as organist for 37 years, obtaining her musical education at Albert College. She and Mr. Mills were leaders of the choir.

She was the last surviving charter member of the Woman's Missionary Society, was a life member, also active in Sunday School and temperance work.

Married 60 years ago last January, she spent her whole married life in the village, and one year ago last June they disposed of their spacious home and store owing to failing health and went to live with their son, R. P. Mills in Barrie.

Left to mourn her loss besides her husband and her son in Barrie are her brother, Dr. W. Peake of Transcona, Man., and four grandchildren: Mrs. Douglas Beatty (Phyllis), Toronto; Mrs. Norman Alexander, Reg. N. (Kathryn), Leaside; Ralph Mills, Toronto; and Lloyd, with U. S. forces serving in Korea.

Funeral services were held on Friday in the United Church, with Rev. L. W. Scott officiating. Burial was in Glenwood Cemetery, Picton.

The pallbearers were Fred Melburn, Frank Proctor, Dan Hinchey, S. McFarlan, Harry Taylor and James Lazier.

DEFIANT MUSKRAT

St. Marys, Ont. — (CP) — A lone muskrat greeted the opening of the muskrat season here by nonchalantly strolling down the main street before disappearing from view on the only observed, provincial constable. The muskrat paraded at 2 a.m. before hunters were awake.

SHANNONVILLE

MELROSE W.I.

Shannonville — The March meeting of the Melrose Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Vincent Pascoe with attendance of 25 women and 3 children. The meeting was opened in the usual manner.

During the business period it was decided to hold a euchre in the township hall on Friday with Mrs. C. Hagerman, Mrs. Reg. Fox and Mrs. T. Howard acting as a committee.

The women voted in favor of a handiwork display by the Institute at Shannonville Fair in September. The co-operative program survey was also made at this meeting.

Several expressed their desire to attend the conference on "Fabrics We Buy," in Canniffon on Wednesday. It was decided to sponsor Mrs. A. English as a delegate from this Institute to the Officers Conference to be held in Grafton early in May.

Cards of Thanks

A card of thanks was read from Mrs. Harold Hare thanking the Institute for the card of sympathy sent to her during her recent bereavement. Mrs. Clare Weese also expressed her appreciation for cards received.

The program, "Home Economics," under the leadership of Mrs. R. McFarlane, was given, and a humorous reading "Diet Trouble" by Mrs. A. McFarlane. Rules for washing woollens were cited by Beatrice McFarlane and a reading, "They Are Not Just Rags," by Mrs. T. Howard, which was followed by a paper on "Food Habits" by Mrs. Roy Badgley.

"Psychology in Housework," was given by Mrs. McFarlane who said that much of the wear and tear of housework was mental, and that the woman who is always in a hurry and hustling from one task to another trying to keep herself and family three jumps ahead of the clock with the weight of the tasks on her mind, comes to the end of the day weary from her nervous pushing rather than from the work that has been accomplished, which also is a source of irritation to the rest of the family.

Only the woman who knows how to make it pleasant for the rest of the family to work with her, or for her, can achieve a happy and practical division of labor in the home. If you enjoy your work, you will do it willingly and well."

The committee appointed to bring in the slate of officers for the year included: Mrs. Leslie McLaren, Mrs. T. Leslie and Mrs. T. Howard.

Following the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess and her helpers.

FRANKFORD

YOUNG ADULT CLUB

Frankford — An executive meeting of the 3M Young Adult Club was held after church Sunday night at the home of the presidents, Claude and Marjorie Moran. There were six members present.

The coming Missions night on April 16 was discussed in detail, and Mrs. Harold Berry will be on hand, to show films taken in Egypt, and give first hand information about that land where they service as missionaries for many years. The balance of proceeds from the silver collection will go to missionary enterprises in the church.

The next regular club meeting is April 7, under the direction of Jack and Ruth Beach's group. Immediately following the meeting, an executive meeting will be held to plan for the May meeting. It is hoped in May to have the King Street United Church Friday Nighters back for a return visit. The Frankford group well remembers the kind hospitality received in Trenton last fall.

A work night will be held on April 9th in the hall, to build four small tables for the Junior Sunday School.

Several other items of business were dealt with in detail. On completion of business, refreshments were served by Marjorie Moran. If the table, which was piled full of delicacies could have held any more, it is quite possible that many of the group would still be there eating. Thanks to the hospitality of Claude and Marjorie, a most enjoyable evening was spent.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wrightman, of Trenton, visited Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lohnes, Friday.

Mr. Raymond Lohnes, of Belleville, visited relatives in Frankford, Sunday.

The Frankford Softball Association under the direction of president Adrian Babcock, reports that the Friday night dance in the community hall was a successful affair. Dancing to the smooth stylings of Jack Kane and his orchestra was enjoyed by a near capacity crowd. The evening brought a sizable contribution toward the fund, being raised for the promotion of softball in the village, from the assorted boys to the Intermediate Trent Valley entry. Another dance is to be held on April 25th.

Lascelles Holds Great Influence In Royal Court

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, April 2 — (CP) — Among the men behind the scenes at Britain's court, few exercise a greater influence than Sir Alan Lascelles, liaison man between the Crown and the government of the day.

Sir Alan, six feet tall with a grandee moustache, is private secretary to the Queen and the only member of the Queen's household so far appointed. As such he works long hours in a high-ceilinged room in Buckingham Palace, acting as link between the throne and 10 Downing Street, the Prime Minister's official residence.

A relative of the late King and a veteran of 23 years in royal service, the 64-year-old Lascelles has acted as private secretary for Elizabeth's father, her grandfather and her uncle. Thus he now serves his fourth sovereign.

His duties are not clearly defined but some are well known. He receives most diplomats and visiting dignitaries before they "go upstairs" to visit the Queen in the state rooms of the palace. He is believed to hold the key which opens government dispatch boxes and sees all state papers, including communications from the Governor - General and Prime Ministers.

Educated at Marlborough and Trinity College, Oxford, Sir Alan is known as a cultivated man with an encyclopaedic knowledge of 19th-century social history and literature. Before the First World War, he formed part of a particularly brilliant circle. He has a reputation still for Edwardian grace and dry humor.

Knows Canada

Although he does not grant interviews and discourages inquiries of a personal nature, Sir Alan is dogged by one anecdote. As the story goes, an American reporter asked him whether he was related to Lord Harewood, whose family name is Lascelles. Sir Alan answered in the affirmative, and the reporter asked how. "Quite legitimately," replied Sir Alan.

He knows Canada well, having served there from 1931 to 1935 as secretary to the Earl of Bessborough, then Governor - General. He accompanied the King and Queen on the royal tour in 1939 and was knighted by the King on a train speeding between Washington and Niagara Falls, Ont.

He is one of the few persons to have received the accolade outside the United Kingdom. Another was Sir Arthur Currie, famous Canadian general, of the First World War who kneeled on a cushion in France to receive his award.

Junior Farmers Hear Address In United Church

Picton — More than one hundred members of the Big Five Junior Farmers Club, and guests heard Senator Saracuse, Norfolk County, president of the Ontario Junior Farmers' Association, speak at the annual banquet in Bloomfield United Church, Monday night.

Reviewing the history of the organization, Miss Saracuse likened the training received as stepping stones to better farming. The motto is Self Help and Commercial Betterment. Junior farmer training, she said, leads to greater responsibilities in a wider sphere. These groups were started in 1914 and in 1944 the provincial association was formed. Today, there are 320 junior groups in Ontario. She outlined the many activities promoted by the provincial association, including conferences, camps, field days, exchange visits.

Introduced by Bryan Cronk, Miss Saracuse was thanked by Gordon Fox.

President Ron Fox presided and expressed thanks for the support given him during the year. The county organization grew so rapidly that it has been divided into two groups, the Big Five of Picton district and Hillier and Ameliasburg.

The Junior Farmers and the girls' clubs were highly commended on their work by Miss Elsie Irvine, home economics coach.

County Warden Calvin Hughes extended a welcome and commended the Junior Farmer movement.

Reeve Lewis Wight of Hillier presided for the installation of officers of the Big Five Club. "Tommy May is the new president with Clifford Foster as secretary-treasurer.

Mr. May commended Ron Fox on his leadership during the past year and urged even greater support of the work during the coming months.

A sing song was led by Glynn Reynolds with Mervyn Laundry at the piano. Louis Calnan and Clifford Foster were in charge of entertainment. A marshmallow on a string contest was won by Lawrence Foster and Alex Mann, while Warden Hughes proved the best pie eater (his wife shovelling it in) among the reeves present. Mac Trumble gave a humorous recitation. Silas Johns the Country Club." Miss June Pierson won the ladies' balloon blowing contest. A trio, Glynn Reynolds, Clifford Foster and Doug Ward, gave a humorous song as an encore to their first number. Miss Marilyn Barber sang a lovely solo, "Without a Song" and gave "My Laddie" as an encore. Miss Barbara Redner was accompanist.

Mrs. Ron Fox presented Miss Saracuse with a county cheese as a memento of her first visit to Prince Edward, while Miss Jackie Pounder received a corsage for her song. Ross Pierson, president of the H. and A. Club, thanked the Big Five for their hospitality, and Miss Norma Foster expressed thanks to the Bloomfield ladies for the bountiful repast.

Mr., Mrs. Will Hubble Tendered Farewell Party by Friends

Rawdon—Last Saturday evening about 40 neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hubble, Mount Pleasant-Rawdon and tendered them a farewell party as they plan to move the following Monday to their new home in Desconto.

Mr. Hubble was born in the "Hubble Hill" community and has always resided on the old Hubble homestead. He received his public school education at the Allan School and was a member of Mount Pleasant United Church. His first wife predeceased him four years ago and his second wife had made many friends in the district during her brief sojourn here. She has also contributed several musical selections on her violin at church functions.

Fine Program

The pastor Rev. R. R. Bonsteel called the friendly gathering to order and spoke briefly. He said, "while everyone was sorry to have the "Hubbles" move from Mount Pleasant still one and all wished them many friends and happiness in their new home in Desconto."

The pastor led in a sing song of old familiar tunes with Mrs. Kenneth Weaver as accompanist. Mrs. Frank Jeffs read a humorous story of "Willie and His Calf Tinker", Mrs. Annie Hoard sang "Little Grey Home in the West" and Mrs. John Mulheron read a selection dealing with "Stove-pipe Cleaning in Canada." Mrs. Ross Hoard contributed a piano solo "Memories," by specit! request. This was followed by Mrs. Percy MacMullen who recited "An Irish Selection About Pat."

Mr. John Mulheron contributed two vocal numbers "The Rose of Tra Lee" and also a favorite of Harry Lauder with local hits and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver read a poem entitled "Friendship."

Address of Appreciation

Mr. Ross Hoard read an address of appreciation on behalf of all the Mount Pleasant people and Mr. George Weaver made the presentation of a substantial gift of farewell money.

Willie and Annie each voiced their thanks for the kindness, program and gifts bestowed upon them by their friends. They hope to have the Mount Pleasant friends pay them a call when they are settled in their new home.

The lunch committee in charge of Mrs. George Weaver and Mrs. Ross Hoard served refreshments.

Following this a half hour of music and singing was enjoyed with Mrs. Will Hubble playing her violin and Mrs. Ross Hoard giving the piano accompaniment. Later the group sang "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and "The Queen." The formation of a "friendship circle" closed a delightful evening for all those who were privileged to attend.

Everyone extended their best wishes to Will and Annie and it was their wish that both would enjoy much happiness in the new home at Desconto.

Mr. Hubble has almost reached his three score years and ten and his old school mates at Mount Pleasant hope and pray that he will find congenial friends at Desconto.

IF BABY IS CROSS FIND OUT WHY

IRRITABILITY HARDLY ever comes alone. Most baby ailments are accompanied by signs of irritability. If baby is cross, restless, or out of sorts, don't punish baby for it. Don't scold. Don't spank. Instead, look for the reason why baby is irritable. Then, if baby's irritability is caused by constipation, give baby Fletcher's Castoria. Fletcher's Castoria is mild, yet effective. It is made especially for babies and children. Remember,

Fashion Says Every Length For '52 Coats

Coats go to all lengths this spring with new fashion emphasis placed on the tiny, waist-high topper and the full length princess coat.

Throw-up sleeves, sparkling new colors and richly-textured fabrics provide newest coats with their own fashion scoop.

Take sleeves, for example, whether the coat is a shrug type bolero or reaches to the hem, its silhouette is accented by the exaggerated size of the sleeve. For there are batwing, large lantern, balloon, cape, bell, turn-back and sleeves blousing from the waistline on hand this season.

Full Sleeves

Every sleeve type is full, in a manner suggesting turn of the century fashions. And every sleeve, in this full design, is usually combined with dropped shoulder seams, welt details across the bodice and back, or diamond and square-cut armholes.

Typical shrug coat, or waist-length topper, featuring the oversize sleeve is one of pastel fleece. It is styled with sloped shoulders, just below the elbow batwing sleeves. And it is details with a small bead embroidered collar.

Typical full-length coat style with outstanding sleeve treatment, is a sleeveless coat with the upper arms covered by the cape top of the coat. The coat appears in a rough-textured wool and is cinched in at the waist by a self-belt.

Princess Favored

The full-length princess coat predicted to be the coat favorite in this length for spring, in many instances, is designed with a figure hugging bodice and a full skirt. One example is a snug top, whirl-skirted princess coat of grey flannel with a deep cape collar covering the rounded shoulders and also serving to provide eye appeal to the slim sleeves.

Loose full-length coats, greatly in evidence this spring, are fashioned with carefully controlled all-around flare. This type of coat, in a cashmere, may appear with full-blown three-quarter push-up sleeves.

Ten Rules For a Long And Happy Hat Life

1. When putting your hat on, hold the brim firmly at front and back with the tips of the fingers close to the crown.

2. When placing a snap brim hat down, either turn the brim up or set the hat on its side. No brim will hold its shape if left on the "mush."

3. Hang your hat up carefully where it will not be crowded or jammed out of shape.

4. Keep your hat dust-free. A drop of rain on a dusty hat makes a mud-spot that is hard to remove.

5. Use a soft bristle hat brush to keep your hat clean. Brush with the nap; start at the bow and brush toward the back.

6. Turn the leather band up occasionally and let the air at it. This will help perspiration and hair oil evaporate.

7. Keep your hat away from radiators, stoves, etc. It is shaped with heat and heat will change its shape.

8. If you get caught in the rain, push out the creases and dents, turn the brim up and fold the leather band out. Stand the hat upright and allow it to dry at room temperature.

9. For renovating, take your hat to a qualified shop or return it to the hatter from whom you bought it for factory-renovation. It may cost more but you'll find it well worth it.

10. Be fussy about the company your hat keeps. Don't permit it to be stacked with others as the hair oil on someone else's hat may be transferred and mar the set of yours.

Model Carolyn Armstrong's silent boyfriends sport the latest trend in hat styles. On the left is a brown felt with a tapered 5¼ inch crown; the snap brim is a narrow 2¼ inch and is trimmed with a blue band. On the right is the trend in sports hats . . . a two tone effect with a stitch brim made of nylon cotton with a weatherized braided top . . . useful for golf and all sports. — (Photo by Peter G. '52 Jewelry Is Chunkier, Has Texture

The textured look, so popular in fashion fabrics, and reflections on the Gibson Girl era is now featured in the exciting new treatment of spring jewelry.

Popular new jewels in pastels, bright blue and red, appear in chunky sparkling crystal, tiny seed and porcelain beads as well as interesting nugget - like baroque pearls. They are combined into imaginative chokers, chatelaines, fobs, twists and matching earrings.

The over-all elaborate treatment of spring jewelry appears in the touches of gold leaf on beads, the big chunky proportions of necklaces and earrings, and the use of glittery combinations of crystal, gold and silver beads.

Earrings, too, are strikingly different, in vread-like shapes, interpreted in seed beads, white pastels and multicolors. Square porcelain or large inverted dome shapes are also to be seen.

Contrasting smooth and rough textures, as, for instance, baroque pearls and round porcelain beads, produce truly dramatic effects.

Blue, slightly underscored with green, is slated for porcelain jewelry, and is often combined with coral reds.

Hair Takes Short Cut to Spring '52

Hair styles for spring reflect the Empire feeling of new fashion in shorter, off-the-neck styles that can be varied to flatter individual facial contours.

So comfortable, especially during the warm weather months, this short style can be swept back into soft, natural-looking waves ending in tiered curls for a completely feminine look.

Handbags Have Big Outlook on Season

Bags are big this spring, no doubt echoing the massive feeling in new season jewelry. Black plastic patent leather and imported straws are designed for striking costume accents.

Pumpkin and half-moon shapes appear in faille and patent with piping and handles of faille. Box and pouch styles are truly spring-like in pastel milan straw appliqued with roses.

Spring Basics In Two Parts

Look to the dress-and-coat ensemble to serve as the basic costume for Spring 1952. For it is a versatile investment that will go everywhere and do everything in fine style. And it is on hand, for selection by all ages and all sizes in many variations of itself, in every fabric and every price range.

One of the most popular of these coat-and-dress combinations could be, for example, a spun print dress worn with a silk or taffeta coat. The dress might be in a soft blue and white floral print teamed with a navy coat featuring a shoulder scarf of the dress print.

This use of the dress fabric for a bright color accent on the coat is expected to be one of the identifying marks of the 1952 coat-and-dress ensembles. Collar, cuffs and lining fabrics are all used to co-ordinate the two. For instance, a red and white striped taffeta dress is matched in the lining of a clear blue coat. Or a navy sheer crepe dress and a navy faille coat are co-ordinated by bright red taffeta in the belt of the dress and the lining of the coat.

The possibilities are numerous and the dress and coat can even be selected individually then co-ordinated with matching belts and scarfs.

High Fashion Stays at Home

Glamor has invaded the home in new Spring homemaker fashions that sing with imaginative fabric, color and style excitement, so that, this season, the ladies of the house need never feel improperly dressed when unexpected callers interrupt her tidying cleaning.

The "textured" look, so important in dress and coat fabrics, now appears in the at-home dress, giving these utility frocks a high fashion look. Surface interest is achieved with clipped raised patterns and "tapestry" plaids that look and feel like expensive hand-embroidery. Striping also achieves the dimensional look, appearing sometimes in a satiny face in narrow and wide widths.

A whole artist's palette of color tints those new fabrics in vibrant jewel tones, exotic subtle hues, unusual combinations of tone on tone, and gleaming metallic gold against color. Luscious amethyst, tangy tangerine, soft jade green and many other shades do much to beautify the Spring indoor frock.

These fabrics and shadings are combined in styles that have swirling skirts, dropped shoulders and smart mandarin or roll collars. Some of the classic coat and slip front styles have taken on free action gussets, placed to give maximum comfort to the busy homemaker in her many daily activities.

Fashions Have Under Accents

The stress is on greater comfort, with lines that conform to new princess, Empire style and long torso effect fashions, in foundations offered for Spring selection.

New high top girdles, with a minimum of boning, are sometimes built up as high as three to four inches above the waist to achieve a smooth, long torso line. To prevent rolling, without the use of boning, many makers have created other safeguards, such as bias cut elastic, doubled panels and taped reinforcements. While insets of power net and two elastic offer a maximum amount of all-over control.

Corselets, too, are expected to play an important role beneath new Spring Empire, princess and long torso fashions. For this type of foundation offers the one-piece slimming most effective for the new silhouettes. Often it is designed in a strapless style suitable for evening or daytime wear with decollete necklines.

FINE TIMBER

Eastern Canadian cedar trees are small compared to British Columbia cedars which sometimes reach 175 feet high.

BEAUTY

HELEN JAMIESON

Don't steal on beauty sleep

We give fair warning! We are about to bawl out hard-working women who never go to bed as long as they can prop themselves under their own steam. For instance, that is sucking themselves between the sheets, they have a sudden notion to shampoo their hair or finish up the ironing or wait up to see who is home from the movies. The story. They are asking beauty grief to come and make them unhappy.

Every waking hour they are using up energy, wearing themselves down. Every sleeping hour their motors are picking up, nature is doing its mending. The body needs long hours of sleep, just as it needs food and drink. Why can't the late-to-bed girls get that fact into their heads? Why should they spend money for beautifying treatments and cosmetics and then waste these investments by suffering from fatigue?

Gelap to bed at a reasonable hour improves its appearance.

During sleep you rest your eyes. The nervous system quiets down. Even the heart slows up a bit. Wastes are disposed of; muscles used during the day are in a state of repose.

That long, regular hours of sleep are conducive to health and beauty is evidenced by the haggard condition of those suffering from lack of natural slumber. It is during this state of physiological unconsciousness that growth takes place—in those who have not yet reached maturity—and repair takes place in those of full stature.

A lot of complaining women would improve their appearance, their health and their disposition if they went to bed at a reasonable hour and slept restfully until morning. Some of them are suffering not alone from physical fatigue, but from emotional and spiritual weariness. A tired woman is not efficient. Her judgment is not likely to be as good as it might be. Nervous knots make life a burden to her.

Teen-agers need plenty of sleep—nine hours every night. They can fool Mom and Pop about the time they return from the merry evening, but they can't fool mama Nature. She'll make them pay up eventually. Kids aren't made of wire and fiddle strings, as they seem to think. Late hours take the sparkle from the eyes and put shadows under them. It is difficult to put one's mind on schoolwork, studies. Even in the teens the nervous system can crack up. Excessive fatigue exposes one to illnesses, because there is no reserve bank of energy to fall back on.

If you are a poor sleeper, don't haul out old troubles and grievances when waiting for the sand man. Try not to have racing thoughts. Lie on your back, completely relaxed. Close your eyes. In your mind repeat the word "sleep" over and over again, taking deep breaths. This, a form of mild self-hypnotism, may quiet you.

SLIGHT ERROR

The Achigan River near L'Assomption, Que., got its name from a corruption of the Indian word "ashegun", meaning black-mouthed bass.

Old Church Yields Rich Historical Find

London (CP)—Old St. Bride's Church, just off busy Fleet Street in the heart of London's newspaper world, is yielding a harvest of historical discoveries.

Twenty-four hours after excavators started work on the blitzed church, built by Sir Christopher Wren, a crypt of a mediaeval church dating well before Wren's time was discovered, and along with a charnel house or ossuary and a vault.

Present discoveries suggest that the mediaeval church was larger than that of Wren, which was built after The Great Fire of 1666.

W. F. Grimes, director of London Museum who is helping supervise the digging, says it is rare for "such a rich harvest of discovery" to be made in such a short time.

Rush for Seats To Coronation

London — (CP) — Applications for seating accommodation to view the coronation procession of Queen Elizabeth II have been pouring into London booking offices although the date and route have not yet been determined.

Latest speculation is that it will take place either in the spring or early summer of 1953.

Agencies report inquiries have been particularly heavy from North America with one agency alone asked to find more than 7,000 seats.

Not until the route has been officially designated will it be possible to estimate what accommodation will be available for visitors. Those lucky enough to get ringside reservations will pay generously for the privilege. Most seats will cost between £10 and £20.

In lining up prospective customers some of the agencies are offering free refreshments as an inducement to reserve seats. Not those taking the higher - priced spots a champagne lunch will be provided.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Here are some items culled from the new accessory counters. Lemon yellow is used for a shiny straw cloche that has a double notched brim, the upper tier edged in navy felt. Two felt buttons completes a nice little first-hat-of-spring selection. Black suede for a medium-heeled wedgie pump, with dark red kid for the wedge heel and border, as well as for the small string bow in back, and vamp trim. Double woven cotton is the material of a beige glove that has a flared inset at the side in a darker shade of beige.

Canadian Dines Siamese Style, Cheap and Good

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Bangkok, Thailand, April 3—(CP)—The restaurant front was unprovoking. Foreigners guided to eating places by neon signs, plate glass and chrome fittings would never venture there. The proprietor said t was his first foreign guest.

Plush American-style soda bars and dining-rooms abound on Bangkok's main street—and they charge western main-street prices. There are ritzy "native" (usually Chinese) restaurants that serve "what you want the way you want it"—American, Europe, Chinese or Siamese — and have no specialties.

But for the sort of restaurant the ordinary Siamese frequents, take this unpainted eating-house just around the corner from Wat Sudat, the Temple of The Giant Swing which is no longer used.

At the front is a work-a-day bar through which guests push to reach the dining room at the rear. The clean oilcloth-topped tables are under a raised open-air portico overlooking a pleasant little garden. There are geese and a couple of monkeys in the garden. An electric fan by the table keeps the sultry air changing, and ice-cold beer comes from a modern United States refrigerator.

Each meal is an occasion in Siam, and wolfing is taboo.

Tools are a large spoon, held in the right hand, and a fork, held in the left. The fork is for pushing good onto the spoon.

Soup, usually curried, is the invariable appetizer.

All-Important Rice

The main course centres around the bowl of rice, so cooked that the puffed white grains are warm, almost dry and not sticky.

Siamese like their food well seasoned, and that means hot. It is rivalled only by Korean jimchi, whose blow-torch effect is becoming familiar to Canadians there.

Both curries and chillis are used for seasoning and the side dishes usually are spiced vegetables and fish and meat curries. They are ladled as wanted onto a bit of rice, mixed with it, then eaten.

As with a Chinese meal, one helps oneself from the central dishes. Usually there are six.

Tastiest morsels to the western palate are mee krawh fine rice noddles succulently fried in lard with pork and chicken) and koong-lohh (prawn crushed in coconut milk and heated with sugar and spi.s). Chillis are added just before serving.

For dessert there are pastries made with rice flour, coconut milk and sugar, or native fruit.

The Siamese must be the world's greatest fruit eaters. It is abundant and inexpensive. There are 20 varieties of bananas alone, varying from finger-long, arm-length and in color from green to red, orange and brown-black. There is a whole range of citrus fruit, mangos and cocoanuts.

The price for a relaxing 1½ hours for three persons in this type of restaurant? Service included—$1.40.

Spring Fashions Stress Pre-Teens Young Figure

The pre-teen set makes fashion news, this spring, with a wealth of exciting designs that pay special attention to their very young figures, and fabric textures that are especially noteworthy for their, fuzzy, ribby and popcorny outlooks.

Shepherdess dresses, Empire silhouettes, princess lines and snug-top, full-skirted fashions all combine to create very young figure interest. Texture appealing fabrics run the gamut from papery rayon taffetas and glazed cottons to ribbed rayon suitings and any number of variations on tweed.

Beneath it all are gaily patterned linings, and crisp, color-ful petticoats that help emphasize already full skirts.

Shepherdess-type frocks are pretty to see dressed-up with pert apron and corselet effects, scooped out necklines, puffed sleeves and lacings and braid accents. Typical is a dress that achieves both shepherdess and fabric texture interest by means of a glazed plaque corselet and peplum over multi-color striped cotton.

Dresses and coats featured in the high-rising middriff Empire silhouette appear in fabrics to match the occasion. Dressies, for example, are made in gala fabrics like taffetized chambray and pure taffeta for dress-up, and in a variety of gaily printed cottons for school hours. While coats are offered for "Sunday Best" in fabrics like a checked worsted, and in fleece for more casual wear.

The princess style coats, that present an almost classic Easter Sunday appeal, are more appealing than ever, this spring with extra wide skirts often accented by padded hiplines and side-entry hip pockets.

Keynote of young suits and the many convertible fashions on hand for the pre-teen's spring wardrobe are billowing skirts and snug-fitting tops. Suit jackets are usually brief and skirt fullness is often emphasized by all-around pleats of flouncy petticoats.

Convertibles appear in dresses with removable capelets, suits that sometimes include two skirts and a reversible weskit as well as the usual jacket, and jumper dresses that come complete with little close-fitting jackets, frothy blouses and crisp under-petticoats.

New Fabrics Place Accent On Texture

The excitingly designed and textured new spring coats, suits and dresses will make them irresistible to own, whether the plan is to sew a new outfit or select one already made.

Two interesting and distinctly different "faces" appear in these fabrics; the icy-smooth crackling feel in new silks and taffeta shantungs along with the sponge-like springy textured wools, both in the smooth-surfaced group.

For contrast, there are ribbed, slubbed and nubby effects. It's a textured look that can be seen in a wide variety of breed-like line type cottons, sculptured fleeces and wool and rayon boucles.

In some new fabrics, striking effects are achieved by combining the smooth and the textured, as in a light sheer wool with a dark boucle check.

All new spring fabrics have a wonderful lightness of weight, a master how fluffed the texture. This can be seen in a chiffon weight wool coating, woven in a loose weave with a nubby curled wool, a pebble effect without excess bulk and even woolly poodle cloth that appears in a much lighter version this season.

Oversized patterns, "blown up" versions of basket weaves, honeycombs and herringbones, make truly dramatic new-season fashions.

Combinations

Unusual textures combined with practicality are the combinations of man-made Orlon with shantung, Dyrel with acetate and Viscose and rayon spun nylon, shot through with gilt metallic yarn.

Spring coats are predicted to be popular in deep textured nubbed tweeds or other loopy-faced woollens. Suits, on the more formal side, take to barathea and worsteds, emphasizing grainy surfaces and a crisp dry face. This characteristic is also present in dress fabrics, as for example the linen-like silks and slubbed worsteds.

Here's Basic Make-Up List

Basic clothes that can be adapted to suit any occasion have long been advocated by fashion experts. The same holds true for a cosmetic wardrobe which should contain both creams and make-up essential to a lovely complexion and well-groomed look the year 'round.

And what makes up a basic cosmetic wardrobe? Mary Stuyvesant, beauty advisor, suggests the following items, explaining the purpose and value of each.

First, creams, and there are three types which have really proved their worth to women over the years. These are creams for cleansing, creams for softening and lubrication and foundation creams.

Then there is make-up and the three essential items in this group are face powder, lipstick, and rouge. All should harmonize with each other, with the natural coloring and with clothing colors.

Face powder is meant primarily to give a flattering effect to skin. Today, there are three types of powder make-up from which to choose: loose powder cake, and all-in-one foundation and powder.

Other beauty aids include two items which cannot really be classified with creams and make-up but should supplement any cosmetic wardrobe. These are skin freshener for toning the skin and facial tissues for removing creams and excess make-up.

New Silhouettes Billow Out at Skirt, Elongate Torsos, Mold Midriffs

It's a romantic and feminine spring. Fashions bloom with a definite aura of the turn of the century, much Empire feeling and, over all, the influence of Paris designs. These are to be seen in sleeves puffed out to exaggerated fullness, closely molded midriffs, elongated torso lines and novel back interest.

There is also an abundance of tiny figure hugging jackets, like the bolero and fine spencer, nipped in waistlines, billowing skirts made crisp and puffy by petticoats beneath, and excitingly textured fabrics used for everything from coats to scarfs.

Sleeves puff out in multitude of ways. They are layer upon layer of tiny cape sleeves. They flare out at the elbow, lantern out to the elbow or appear leg of mutton full at the very top of a long sleeve.

Giant Sleeves

On dresses, sleeves are noteworthy, short and full, sometimes topped with self fabrics, at other times trimmed with a contrasting print or accordion pleated self fabric such as organdy.

Sleeves of coats may be bracelet or elbow length. But in all instances they are full and deep with deeper than usual armholes. Suit sleeves look newest in a curved outline crescent, sleeves are graduated fullness outside the elbow.

The closely molded midriffs, so typical of Empire silhouettes, are seen everywhere, sometimes outlined by very narrow self belt decora, tive contrasting seams, cummerbunds or tiny jackets that stop short just below the bust.

Placing emphasis on an elongated torso line, is the mildly top look first introduced in 1951. It is most effective when combined with a full skirt that may be pleated, gathered or simply a whirl all round.

Back Bells

Back interest also a reflection of Paris design, is generously used on coats and suits. For coats, bells, placed high across the shoulders, hold back fullness pertly in check. On other coats, fullness falls from a seam designed straight across the shoulder blades. While suits feature skirts that hang straight and slim in front and gathered full by-in back.

The tiny figure hugging jackets, used so much for emphasis of newly molded midriffs, tightly nipped waistlines and full skirts, can also be made of fur, top a suit or be independent little toppers. They are designed as straight little cardigan jackets. They appear as rounded boleros, bodice accenting spencers, shoulder wraps and with loose cape effects.

Nipped in waists, the perfect accompaniment to billowing skirts, appear on suits with bodice hugging, arch hipped jackets. They lend a dollike quality to crisply fabriced, full skirted dresses. And they are featured, on newly popular princess line coats, just above a flared skirt.

Skirts Billow

Almost dominating the spring fashion silhouette are the skirts that bell out on suits, dresses and coats. They offer youthful charms when fluffed out over petticoats. Many are all fluttering pleats. While newest looking are the skirts that are definitely narrower and smooth hipped, shaped by gores and linings to stand away from the figure in a well-defined roundness.

Perhaps predominant among the new excitingly textured fabrics such as lightweight poodle cloths, tweeds, fleeces and cashmeres, is silk. For it can be seen in everything from suits to blouses. It appears in a new weave that looks like a light wool tweed. It masquerades as other fabrics, such as silk linen, silk poplin, silk twill, gingham and organdy.

Also new and also expected to gain great popularity are linen, pique and denim for very dressed-up clothes.

Prints Offer Feminine Air

Prints go to the neckline, the waist, the hand and the head this spring. Yes, accessories in bright flurries of print spice suits, coats and basic dresses to give the feminine look that's a must this spring.

For example, a print blouse can bring out the pertness of a spring suit. And there are rayon surahs in small tie patterns or miniature paisley motifs in clear colors on white, delicate etchings colored with pastels on crepe, grouped spaced motifs on crisp taffetas that are all new and exciting in spring blouses.

When selecting a print blouse or making one, the Silk and Rayon Print Institute suggests the choice of a small, yet colorful pattern, for the most flattering result. Of special interest to home sewers are print jacket or coat linings to match blouses.

Easy to make for home sewers, are print dickies that can double as fill-ins for suits and low-necked dresses, or if it is a halter-glet, it can also be worn as a top for a cocktail skirt.

News in Print

The print suit, in a sleek fabric such as the rayon surah in a close tie pattern, shown above, comes into its own for spring. Here, it is double-breasted with a wide notch collar and wide gored skirt. Suggested by the Silk and Rayon Print Institute.

New Hose Appears Lighter, Barer, Today

Hosiery, in lighter tones, will flash on sunlit legs this spring, peeping through open heels, toes and mesh insets so popular in new season shoes that are more opened than closed.

Whether seamed or seamless, mesh or not hosiery is tinted to heighten, brighten and blend with new spring fashion shades.

Prominent among these hose hues is natural blond, a beautiful blending with neutral and parchment spring tones. Stockings in hazy taupe tints accent the blue and purple tones. While clear beige is good company with shades from golden sand to rich brown and black. A burnished cast with a golden glow is slated to be the most intense of these new colors. Embroidery and flocking on many of this season's shoes may be echoed on hosiery.

Spring Suits Offer Large Style Choice

Curve-accenting femininity plays a major role in spring suits, presenting a picture that is typified by the full skirt and brief jacket silhouette featured in an eye-compelling, texture-some fabric.

Although they all predominantly follow similar bodice molding, waist-nipped, arched hipped and full-skirted lines, newest suits are to be found in as great a variety as the flowers in a fresh-blooming spring garden.

Jackets, for example, range from the very brief rounded bolero types with curved contours accentuated in many instances, by slope-shouldered, melon shaped three-quarter sleeves, to the longer length jacket, that ends just below the hipline with a slightly rippled peplum or half belted back.

Little Spencers

Other jacket styles, most presenting brief outlooks, include little spencers, arch hipped basques and figure-hugging tops with deep dolman sleeves, removable capelets or high-placed seam or pocket detail.

Typical of spring's new brief jacket silhouettes is a suit with a waist length poodle cloth, spencer jacket with three-quarter dolman sleeves, teamed with a full gored gabardine skirt.

The very full, easy full and gased slim skirts, on hand for spring, also present a variety of choice. Many feature all-around pleats. On others, pleats are grouped in novel effects. And still other skirts are stitched to the hipline then pleated to the hem, featuring the long torso line.

Fullness in new suit skirts is also achieved by the use of many gores or confining fullness to the back with the front giving a straight hanging appearance.

Softer Outlook

Although slim skirts are predicted to continue their popularity through the new season most have been eased immeasurably often with low kick pleats placed in either front or back for a softer outlook.

Distinctive of the full-skirted silhouette is the suit with a full four-gored skirt, and short, molding asymmetrically closed jacket.

New costume suits, following the full-skirt-brief jacket pattern set for the season, offer added news interest in their greater than ever versatility. This season they are chameleon-like with removable capelets on cardigan jackets, crisp fabric printed blouses accompanying them, and in redingote coat designs that have jacket-effect tops and come with matching skirts. One costume suit even has a printed petticoat and blouse that can be worn as a completely separate outfit.

One perfect version of the costume suits, featured for spring, offers a two-in-one costume for outdoor and indoor wear. The tiny ripple caplet can be worn for outdoors, then removed to reveal a molded, cardigan neckline jacket in a dressmaker mood.

Great Variety

Newest texture-conscious fabrics and colors employed for suits complete the picture of femininity and great variety at hand for spring.

Silks are expected to hold a prominent place in spring suit fashion, as are brocades, bengalines, failles, novelty textures, pebble tweeds metal shot worsteds, bouclés, poodle cloths and gabardines.

Colors vary from easy to blend neutrals and personality popular navies and black to yarn dyes, small plaids, novelty checks, pastels and high-tone combinations that make use of contrast solid colors with contrast texture fabrics for skirt and jacket, or achieve contrast with a plaid or a check combined with a solid tone.

Gloves Tell Short Sweet Story

The story is short and sweetly feminine for gloves this spring, in keeping with the elaborately designed sleeves on dresses and coats.

Fabrics, fine leathers and sporty suits are briefed for fashion-rightness, trimmed in the most romantic manner, and dipped, in the case of the fabrics in pastels. In leathers, glove colors are sharp and intense.

Fabric gloves whether they appear in double woven cotton or rayon, take on a festive air with lots of French knotting, open work of every type, and sometimes, in the more elaborate styles, beautifully designed hand appliques and intricate ribbing.

Daisy-fresh white remains ever popular this spring with other fabric shorties appearing in delicate mauvy pinks and blues, neutral beiges and black.

For late day wear, gloves of supple kid are in order.

In reply to a question by W. L. Houck (L-Niagara Falls), Mr. Dunbar said the Ingersoll-Cree crew will also return to Queenston, after an absence of two years.

Premier Frost said $200,000 is to be provided in the coming year toward the unsatisfied judgment fund because the amount of money in the fund was running a "little behind" after a few more claims against it. If the trend continues, he said, the 10 cents paid annually by each driver may have to be increased to $1 to make the fund actuarily sound.

Pays Damage Claims

The unsatisfied judgment fund pays damage claims where the driver at fault has insufficient funds or cannot be found.

Mr. Houck urged action on two highway "bottlenecks", in Niagara district—a bridge over the Burlington Beach section of the Queen Elizabeth Way and completion of the four-lane highway between Niagara Falls and Fort Erie.

Mr. Dunbar agreed that the Burlington Beach road is "the worst bottleneck in the province" but said a shortage of steel delayed building a bridge over the canal leading to Hamilton harbor. The four-lane highway between Niagara Falls and Fort Erie would not be completed at present, however, because the amount of traffic did not justify it.

Mr. Frost told the legislature he is "hopeful" that the federal government will agree to pay the province five per cent of the income tax collected in Ontario.

Ontario has the right to collect from taxpayers the five-per-cent share of the tax, the premier said, but did not want to collect it.

However, the federal government collected $50,000,000 which belongs by right to the province, and had been asked "many times" to turn over Ontario's share in the form of a cheque.

Sure Money Will be Paid

"I'm satisfied that the measure of justice which is due to us will be put into effect," he said.

He spoke during introduction of a routine annual bill which suspends the operation of an existing statute requiring the province to collect an income tax.

The long-talked-of subject of a steel mills there to use iron ore Fort William was raised by Mr. Salsberg, who urged creation of steel ills there to use iron ore from Steep Rock mines. He charged that control of Steep Rock production is in United States hands. Premier Frost denied this.

Mr. Frost said he expects a steel industry will develop at the Lakehead, but said it is not yet warranted by the population density in the area. It would have to wait for further development of iron ore.

Mr. Gemmell said Ontario should not "shut the door" on iron-ore exports to the United States. Steep Rock mines had an estimated reserve of 1,500,000,000 tons and Canada could not provide a market for all of it.

Ottawa, April 3 (CP)—The government said yesterday it has published eight historical books and booklets on Canada's military role in the Second World War and that another eight are on their way. The statement was made in a written reply to a Commons question.

Ottawa, April 2 (CP)—Canada has deferred until Dec. 31, 1952, both principal and interest payments now due on a 30-year $53,000,000 loan to Nationalist China, it was disclosed yesterday in a Commons reply.

One annual instalment and part of a second have been paid but neither principal nor interest has been paid since the end of 1950.

Ottawa, April 2 (CP) — The first batch of F-86 Sabre jet fighters produced in Canada cost more than $118,000 apiece but the price is going down, the defence production department reported yesterday for Mr. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, in a Commons reply. Delivery of Sabres now and in the future "are expected to have a substantially lower average cost."

Ottawa, April 3 (CP)—The governor-general and his staff are among the small group entitled to purchase liquor free of import and excise duties in Canada, a Commons reply yesterday informed Joseph Noseworthy (CCF—York North). Others with that privilege include foreign diplomatic staffs. All told, the special groups got 63,578 gallons free of excise duty last year.

money which the countries saved on food purchases could be used for developments needed to bolster war-battered economies.

Mr. Diefenbaker suggested that Canada divert some of its orders for defence materials from the United States to the United Kingdom and, by way of payment, make badly - needed Canadian food supplies available to the British people.

A conference such as he envisaged, he said, would give the Commonwealth a chance to take an inventory of raw materials, some of which were running out in parts of the world.

It also might revive the normal channels of Commonwealth trade and give Canada markets for primary products.

In the cold war of today and the hot war that might follow, victory would depend not only on the mobilization of manpower, but also on the mobilization of vast undeveloped resources.

"Resources undeveloped will constitute a small barrier to communism if the communists ever march," he said.

The telephone situation eased early this morning with the postponement until Monday of walkouts by 40,000 C.I.O. communications workers in Michigan, Ohio and Northern California. Union officials said they postponed the strike to give federal mediators more time to work out settlement terms. The telephone workers are reported asking wage demands of about 21¢ a week. Company offers of 4¢ to 8¢ have been rejected.

Another 16,000 telephone workers—installation and sales department employees of Western Electric, part of the Bell Telephone system in the U.S.—have also scheduled a walkout for Monday. That strike would also have country-wide repercussions.

The Western Union strike was the first full-scale walkout in the telegraph industry in the U.S. since 1919.

Leased-wire service by news agencies serving newspapers in the U.S. and transmission of news by the Canadian Press from New York to Canadian newspapers were not affected.

Killer Captured

Melville Wilkie, 42, who escaped from the Penetanguishene, Ont., Hospital for the Criminally Insane in 1950, was captured in Vancouver. He and his common-law wife, Shirley McBeth, 19, had lived quietly in the west coast city for the, last year. As Andy McBeth he operated a small garage. Wilkie, who killed his wife and baby in Ontario 20 years ago, was returned under heavy escort to Toronto. — (CP Photo.)

Peasants Rising Against Reds Says Report

Hong Kong, April 3—(Reuters)—bands of peasants armed only with swords and clubs are rising against communist authorities in China, communist news reports admitted today.

An official newspaper reaching here fro mthe mainland said one band of peasant swordsmen clashed with the communist troops recently in two days of bloody fighting in Hupeh Province, central China.

The report said the communist troops mowed down the rebelling farmers after desperate hand-to-hand fighting. All were killed except 21 taken prisoner, the newspaper said.

There have been frequent reports of peasant revolts against the communists filtering across the border to Hong Kong, but they are rarely mentioned in press party organs.

At home fashions play a double role this season, for along with TV parties and patio entertaining, they can also go visiting in style. Above, a checked gingham skirt topped by a terry shirt belted in patent leather. By Brigance of Tula for John Robert Powers Fashions.

Sweaters are all dressed up for Spring. Typical, is this short-sleeved cardigan with delicately colored Beauvais embroidery entwined in lovers' knots and a pearl button closing from the neckline to the rib bottom. Knitted of wool-and-rayon yarn. By Rosanna Knitted Sportswear.

The right accessories can make the fashion this Spring. Here, she wears one of the new fry brief fur chokers, longer length gloves and, for an extra accent, on good dress, tucks a man's color-woven handkerchief into the outside pocket of her handbag.

Tiny fluffed-up coils of hair hug the head in this new version of the popular Poodle Cut. Not as short as usual, but infinitely more practical, particularly during the growing stage. Her hair has been lightened by Lady Clairol Whipped Creme Hair Lightener.

Casuals to Dress Up for Spring '52

Sportswear, for juniors and their misses' size sisters, has a dressed-up air, this Spring, captured from fashions popular at the turn of the century.

Jackets are shorter and snugger. They appear as picturesque basque tops, figure-hugging spencers, perky boleros and little capes.

Skirts, although in many instances still billowing out with petticoats beneath for emphasis of this swirling effect, are slimmer and more gentle in line, featuring fullness in back panels or all-around pleating.

Sweater blouses, too, are gals for the new season. Presented in soft pastel shades, these blouses often have dramatic bost-shape or draped surplice necklines, and make generous use of this season's favored full-blown sleeves.

Retaining their popularity for outdoor living are pedal pushers, brief shorts, slacks, circle skirts, back-wrapped skirts and middy pullovers. But, these too, are often offered in dressed-up versions of hardy sportswear fabrics.

Typical of the dressed-up fabrics is denim, that hard-wearing sportswear favorite. It is dressed up for a gay entrance into the Spring '52 fashion season by touches of embroidery, jet, braid and quilting.

One example is a mandarin-type cardigan jacket and pedal pusher ensemble of quilted faded blue denim lined in gold cotton. Another instance of denim in a dressed-up mood is a waist-length blue denim jacket with lantern sleeves that are centre-bordered with white string lace.

Mix Matchers Lounge About In Gay Hues

At home fashions, designed for TV parties, patio entertaining or simply for lounging about the house, whirl out for Spring in color drenched skirts meant to be fluffed out by layers of pretty petticoats beneath.

Adapted from the past season's fashions are billowing quilted skirts. These are presented in cottons and rayons, in gay solid tones and small Provincial type prints. They are most effective when combined with contrasting bright color black jersey tops, designed in a sleeveless, scoop neck manner or with a turtle neck and long or short sleeves.

Also effective, when teamed with contrasting scoop neck or turtle neck jersey tops, are the whirling skirts that feature a vari-colored patchwork effect print.

Novel in appearance are the new skirts printed to simulate all-over lace embroidery. Often, this type of skirt also has a simulated fringe border that lends a sham apron effect to the skirt.

For dress up at home, and even for parties and other gala occasions away from home, there are full, full skirts of satin or gold accented organdy. These look best when paired with simple tops, or, for a more elaborate outlook, with a crushed cummerbund in the fabric of the organdy trim or the top.

Also on hand for Spring at home are street length duster type coats. Newest versions of this popular style offer exciting fashion news when detailed with saucer button asymmetrical closings. They may be designed of crisp novelty printed fabrics such as a white or pastel ground cloque overprinted with widely spaced gold dots, or a gold printed cotton.

EASY TEND APRONS

New aprons, with the look and feel of satin or other fabric, are made of plastic that can be wiped clean with a damp cloth. Especially designed for kitchen wear while entertaining at home, the new apron styles range from permanently-pleated half aprons to invisibly boned bib aprons.

Girl's Footwear Like Her Mother's

Shoes designed for little girls, this Spring, offer that Young Miss as fashion-conscious a selection as they do her Mother.

For newest footwear styles, in small sizes, place part emphasis on the same fashion details features for Mother's shoes, with colors gay and Spring-wise as a rainbow.

Dress-up shoes feature straps in a multitude of perky styles. There are straps that scallop their way across her instep. There are swing straps and asymmetrical straps, too. While the soft ballerina type shoe, she looks to, is prettily detailed with single straps or drawstrings.

And, just like Mother's shoes, her shoes appear in combinations of leathers, such as mesh and smooth leather. Typical is black patent with black mesh; smooth blue with black or navy mesh; and red with white mesh.

Colors glean out in black patent, newest when it is accented with white. Blue is featured in smooth leathers. Bright red comes in shoes meant for dress-up as well as play.

FASHION ON TOP

Look to shoulders and sleeves for outstanding Spring fashion interest. Shoulders remain natural, but look wider with the puffiness of low placed sleeves. Armholes are deeper with strict modelling below. Sleeve interest can be found in most dresses with last season's full length lantern and balloon style diminished to powder puff and mushroom forms, with the flare around the elbow only.

Shoes Are 'Barefoot' This Spring

It's a wide open fashion season for new shoes with the shape and height of heels assuming a greater than ever importance. For, in every instance, new footwear is designed and made in fabrics and colors, to complement Spring Fashion's great sweep and width of hemline, molded midriffs above nipped-in waistlines and very brief coats.

Pumps, that team so well with undulating hemlines, open up. They have closed toes or open backs and open toes. Cutlines are daintily shelled. And throat lines and vamps are interesting to see.

To effectively pair with molded midriffs and nipped-in waistlines, there is the new "corset" shoe. Criss cross on the foot like a girdle and adjusts without buckles. Sometimes it has a closed toe and open back. Sometimes it is very bare with all five toes showing, and a banded vamp.

Sandals, too, in keeping with spring's bare outlook, show off the foot to a maximum. For daytime or after-five, the sandal is newest when it is closed instead, designed with a wide or narrow instep band that lends support as well as new fashion appeal.

A flattering variety of designs, meant to cater to the frothy pettcoats shown for spring, gives heels on every type of shoe, a greater than ever importance. Every heel height is on hand with a special emphasis on the slimmer midheights appearing in shapes, that are carved in a gentle, pretty manner.

Fabrics and leathers, used for spring shoes, are also designed to complement or effectively contrast with new fashions. The nubby, dobby, slubby and popcorn textures are shown on leathers, are available in shoes too. While the smooth surfaced shoe, highly polished and silky looking, is used to contrast with exaggerated fabric textures.

Mesh, lisle, lace, shantung and cotton are chief of the texture-some fabrics utilized for spring shoes. In many instances, texture is added or emphasized by trims like reptile leathers.

New Junior Hats Flatter Her Brief New Hair Style

Whether she prefers a trim little pillbox or the traditional flower-wreathed bonnet, this Spring the teen-ager will wear a very feminine hat.

For never before have milliners devoted so much time and talent to the special needs of the younger set. Her favorite hair styles, her way of life and her headache as well as her choice of costumes, have all been carefully considered with the gratifying result that young Spring hats are extremely flattering and wearable.

The fad for "difficult" hair styles, such as the "pony tail" and the "poodle cut", has inspired a variety of very shallow little hat silhouettes that sit neatly atop the crown of the head without disturbing the coiffure. Light as a Spring breeze and cleverly contrived to stay in place, these little hats are a poetic complement to full-skirted, tiny-waisted clothes.

Shallow Crowns

Bonnet shapes are delightfully girlish. Their shallow crowns are cut high at the back and their brims take many different shapes to flatter every face. Two of the newest bonnet brims are the one that is squared off above the brow or the contrastingly curvy one with a built-in ripple.

Sailors are more appealing than ever with their flat little crowns and narrow brims. The most feminine sailors have "back flip" brims, folded up at the back and caught with a few blossoms or a bit of ribbon.

Cloches are bonnet-y, with shallower crowns and their characteristic bell-shaped brims frequently stopping short at the sides of the head to leave the back of the head free. Many cloches are more bonnet than cloche, though their tailored trimming makes them appropriate for casual wear. Pillboxes are round and shallow, sometimes hardly more than a disc of colorful straw.

Two-Tones

Spring straws look new in gay combinations of two-toned stripes and plaided surface decorations of fabric, ribbon or veiling. Sixteenths are exciting in their variety. Sometimes they are combined with felt or velvet. Snowy white piques, colored butcher linen, silk shantung and novelty cotton fabrics also lend themselves attractively to the small, daintily detailed hats of 1952.

Flowers are preferred in the more delicate varieties.

PREVENT LINT

To prevent a linty tinge on dark garments, use fresh suds for different colors. Never use the wash water in which white clothes have been soaked.

The "natural look" is the silhouette emphasized for men's wear for Spring '52. Here, a straight-hanging, tweed "topcoat with a bal collar, raglan sleeves and leather covered buttons. Suggested by The Wool Bureau to meet the challenge of colder Spring days.

He strides into Spring in the smartest of style. And he wears a two-button, single-breasted suit of medium grey worsted with a soft felt hat to match. Both have the conservative "gentlemanly" air of narrower brim, shoulders and lapels. She wears a silk faille suit, also fashion right with its brief jacket, easy sleeves and full-flared skirt. Her hat is a white milan sailor. And her big crisp white neckbow and long-handled umbrella are accessory highlights. Her suit by Martini. John-Frederics hat. He carries a Kodak Signet 35 camera.

"The Right Clothes at the Right Time" means a varied wardrobe to meet the dress requirements in a man's day to day life. Typical example, is this light grey hard-finish all-wool worsted suit, suggested by The Wool Bureau for business hours.

Let Cummerbund Mold the Midriff

Watch for the cummerbund this Spring, to lend a bright dash of color and serve as a co-ordinating accent to both casual and dress-up fashions.

For that wide cruched or flat-pleated sash-effect belt is very much in evidence in the Spring Empire fashion picture. It's ready to add that one spark of color to princess-line dresses, to accentuate the fullness of a billowing skirt and the snugness of a close-fitting top, and to help a separates ensemble come to happy harmony.

Look for the cummerbund, this Spring, to also add important emphasis to new brief jackets, for Blind could feel the objects.

Hemline Width Depends on Your Waist

The width of the waistline should guide the width of the hemline, claims one famous fashion designer.

The exaggerated full skirt tends to give too much width to a silhouette with a not-so-narrow waistline and broad shoulders, says this designer. However, if the waist is slim but high and the shoulders narrow, a full skirt with a slender hipline, a skirt with a yoke or pleated sections across the hips should be selected, for most flattering effects, she suggests.

"FEELING" HISTORY

Montreal — (CP) — A group of citizens "felt" their way back through Canadian history to Indian times in a visit to the Redpath Museum at McGill. Cases of Indian relics and other historic material were opened so the 28 members of the Montreal Association for Blind could feel the objects.

STAUNCH CANADIAN

Napanee, Ont. — (CP) — John Mayhew, 16-year-old boy scout who attended the Caribbean scout jamboree in Jamaica, said on return he was glad to leave the steady heat of the tropics and return to Canada's springtime weather. John said the scouts had a "wonderful time" in Jamaica.

Formals Cover Up for Spring

A romantic, truly feminine silhouette will brighten Spring evening festivities. Sleeves pouff out unexpectedly, torsos are molded, and skirts shower out from fitted hiplines, some resplendent with lacy redingotes.

The "covered-up" trend is apparent, this Spring, with tricky boleros that melt into the bodice, then whisk off for dancing, and higher necklines designed especially to show off sleeves. Capelet sleeves sometimes appear with tiny accordion pleats for a "floating" effect. Others, huge and dramatic, resemble lanterns.

Complementing sleeve fullness, are lines that are molded and trimly shaped to figure contours. Skirt fullness is lowered to flatter the hipline and make the waistline less of a focal point.

Aids For His Grooming, Too

Newest toiletries for men are designed to help make a fellow feel handsome, well groomed and look it, too.

For the man who prefers showers to baths, there's a mitten-sized bath mitt that's soap and wash cloth in one.

After his morning shower, he can reach for a special skin cream (if he has a sensitive skin), that helps prepare his face for daily whisker removing. Then, if he desires a facial while shaving, he can use a new shaving cream containing cocoa, that acts as a skin bracer, too.

If a sudden after office hours appointment arises, and there's hardly time or place for a shave, he can apply a new product that looks like his wife's pancake make-up and is applied the same way.

For the travelling man, toiletry items such as cologne, hair tonic and talc come conveniently packaged in squeezable plastic bottles.

LET IT GLEAM

Wash costume jewelry in a liquid shampoo and see how fresh and gleaming it immediately becomes.

There's a soft and feminine look to fashions featured for Spring '52 that can be seen in everything from new waist-nipped, arch-hipped and soft skirted suits to dresses designed with sweeping skirts, with petticoats beneath to lend emphasis to fullness, and closely molded midriffs. Typical of new suits is this one with its tiny, belt cinched waist and gently arched hipline, accented by a jewelled fob pin. The skirt is slim in line. Of Bellaine worsted wool. A Varden Petites suit.

Combining His Ties With Shirts Simple, Says Tie Foundation

Neckwear is more important than ever in the spring fashion picture with the revival of colored shirts in stripes, checks and plaids for business wear.

Coordinating color and pattern in suits, shirts and ties poses a new problem for the average shopper. What to wear with what is the question.

Some basic rules in ensembling fancy shirts and suits with ties as the connecting link are pointed out by the Men's Tie Foundation.

The suit is the basic unit of a wardrobe. Use it as a guide in selecting shirts and ties.

Fancy shirt colors can be matched or contrasted to the suit. If the shirt is matched to the suit color (blue shirt, blue suit) pick the tie color to contrast or highlight the suit and shirt color. If the shirt is contrasted (grey shirt, blue suit) pick up the suit color as the principal color accent in the tie.

Try to avoid small patterned ties with checked shirts, the Foundation suggests. They tend to give too "busy" an appearance to a checked shirt. Wear, instead, wide stripes. An off centre pattern under the knot patterns, panels with strong vertical lines complement the check.

A striped tie can be worn with a striped shirt. If the shirt is a narrow pin stripe, pick a large wide striped tie. If the shirt is a wide broad stripe, a pin stripe tie will go best.

Ties with well spaced, regular patterns, such as geometric forms, polka dots, squares, triangles, circles, are especially good with striped shirts. Small regularly spaced figures, either in woven or printed, contrast better with striped shirtings than bold, sweeping panels.

A plaid shirt pattern, because it is the most diffused of all fancy shirting patterns, lends itself perfectly to bold, paneled or fancy neckwear. But care should be taken not to mix stripes with plaids. There is too much conflict of crossed lines of design.

"Wear it rain or shine" is the theme of newest storm fashions. And the large checked coat, above, is typical. Of Milliken's Torette, a blend of Orlon and wool. By Lawrence of London.

Look to texture interest in the fabrics of new Spring coats. This casual coat with simple lines, for example, is of wide wale otto-man that lends a dressy look. Rayon ottoman by Avisco.

Shoes Accent Cool Comfort Lighter Weight

Shoes, featured for men, this Spring, place emphasis on lighter weight comfort and simplicity of styling.

Dress shoes appear with lighter than ever soles and are called "featherweights".

Soft, informal shoes take on new appeal with foam, crepe-type soles. They are available in lined and unlined soft, glove-like leathers with "spineless" design, without counters or toe boxing, in casual styles ranging from moccasins to slip-on and ties.

Such new designs, as the Envelope Fold, that has a smooth unseamed look from toe to tongue; the Tobacco Pouch, on hand with a variety of soles and detailed with a drawstring around the plug; and the Tassel Oxford, a sophisticated version of the classic moccasin, place their styling accent on comfort and simplicity.

Leathers, too, emphasize cool comfort. For this season, mesh is much in evidence combined with smooth leathers. Soft, brushed leathers and leathers with reptile prints, like simulated ostrich grains, are also abundant. And for warmer weather days, there are many all fabric shoes to be had, such as linens and denims, as well as fabrics combined with leathers.

Unusual styling details presented for Spring include colored stitchings, often matched by the lacing, and brushed leather laced oxfords in bright colors like rust. Often these brushed leather oxfords are trimmed with reptile prints or smooth leathers and come in matching colors or contrasting tones, such as cream, beige with brown, grey with black or even red with maroon trim.

Junior's Clothes Look Like Dad's

Junior will look like a tiny replica of Daddy, this Spring, in trousers, sweaters, jackets and coats all mimicking the grown-ups in fabric and styling.

The trench coat, complete in all details, including iridescent lining, is warm enough for those "in between" days and sturdy enough for a small boy's hard wear. Popular too, in Spring coats, are the fly-front water-repellent twills, styled to make son and father look like brothers.

Tartans appear in sleeveless sweaters with fabric front and knit back. Sport shirts, in bright houndstooth checks, splashy tropic prints and bright solids, fit well with a knitted waistband.

Tots just learning to walk won't scrape knees as much with the new overalls that have foam rubber pads slipped into knee pockets.

Patterns Come Out On Men's Rainwear

The news in men's rainwear, for Spring, are the patterns adapted by otherwise conservative styles.

Tweedy motifs, glen plaids and small checks can all be expected to be seen with increasing popularity on stormy weather days.

These patterns will be featured on such classic rainwear styles as the coat with set-in sleeves and a fly front. Often this style is designed with a zip-in lining that makes it adaptable for wear through all seasons of the year.

Other raincoat styles, featured for Spring, include the belted military trench coat; raglan shoulder button-through models and fly front coats with raglan shoulders.

Now He Can Step Into Hero's Shoes

For every hero that young fellow has, there's a pair of shoes. For, this season, shoes, following the theme of his favorite radio, movie or TV hero, are being more widely introduced than ever and appear for selection right along with more regulation styles.

Space patrol and rocket admirers can find special boots and oxfords interpreting their favorite sphere of activity. While cowboys, intent on riding imaginary plains, will find boots in the manner of Hopalong Cassidy and the Lone Ranger.

FOR YOUR CHOICE

There are two basic style categories in men's neckwear, bows and four-in-hands. —But within these two categories there are as many as fifty different styles. Average length of a tie is from forty-seven to fifty-four inches.

Versatility and ultra feminine details keynote blouses designed for Spring '52. Even the classic blouse is dressed up this season. Take the two blouses, shown above, for example. They are each fashioned with tiny collars. Fine tucking covers the collar of the blouse on the left, and is featured on the yoke, bosom and front of both. Of washable tissue faille. "Mac Shore Classics."

ALL OVER

The trim is the thing for Spring with big bows, miniature back belts, delicate "liner" collars of organdy on suits and dresses, featured for '52.

Handy Wallets Now on Hand

Convenience is tops in men's wallets. They are ample in size and outstanding in versatility. Removable card or photo cases, check books and inner-folds add to the appeal of these masculine accessories, but not to their bulk.

Even with new innovations they have been whittled down to streamlined proportions and fold remarkably flat under a heavy load.

Some of the more completely organized wallets feature a removable leather photo card case, which can be interchanged with any standard checkbook. Some contain a special flap in the bill compartment which forms a secret pocket for bills of larger denominations or private papers.

For the man who likes to keep his bills, papers and change all together, there are a variety of wallets, in many leathers, which carry ample expanding coin purses with plenty of room for change. An unusual one contains a partition in the bill compartment for better organization of the contents, plus two deep utility pockets. A leather card case is enclosed in one, while the other new wallet offering contains double vision windows for identification or photos.

His Gloves Light In Weight, Color

Lighter weights, lighter colors and new style details are the keynotes of men's gloves designed for Spring '52.

Airy weight capeskins, soft suedes and leather and nylon combinations carry out the emphasis on lightweight gloves for Spring. These are featured in such light-mannered tones as grey, leather shades, sand, rust and navy.

Bold stitching, deep stitched hems, whip stitching, side vents and sidewalls offer many Spring '52 gloves eye-catching new style effects.

Esquire FOR men

presents a completely new concept in men's clothes— the Neater, Trimmer Look tailored in the ESQUIRE MANNER

These days naturalness is the keynote in men's clothing. Exaggerated shoulders and drape shapes are on the decline. Easy-fitting clothes with a minimum of padding are definitely on the upswing. If you're a man who prefers the latter type of clothing, you'll like our suits. They have a natural shape, softer construction throughout. They are not the narrow-shouldered, too skimpy, shapeless suits. Nor are they over-upholstered and over padded. In short, they're suits for discriminating men —the happy medium of good taste and complete comfort. We invite you to see them. Available in Fine Worsteds, Flannels and Gabardines. Tailored to perfection.

Esquire FOR men

"AND IT COSTS NO MORE AT ESQUIRE"

Men's Style 'Neater, Trimmer' But There's an Escape Valve

Here are two young business men dressed in the "neater and trimmer" trend, double-breasted suits that are perfect for business wear. The pin-stripe (left) is from Warren K. Cook, Toronto, the royal blue gabardine from Premier Brand, Montreal. The "one that got away" was probably a blue marlin.

Men's clothes have gone "neater and trimmer." This was revealed at the Windsor Hotel, Montreal, when the annual style show of the Men's Apparel Fair was shown to a gathering of tailors and fabric retailers from all over Canada. Gone were the bulky suits, the flamboyant neckwear, the heavy shoes, the wide-brimmed hats of recent years. In their place were trimly built clothes, narrow, neat tie, lighter-weight shoes with less gingerbread on them.

According to officials of the Retail Men's Wear Association, sponsors of the show, this trend came about as part of a natural evolution. Men have always wanted to look smart and business-like in their clothes. Thirty years ago they did, but they felt mighty uncomfortable. Jackets used to bind them, collars choked them, shoes gave them corns. In revolt against this restraint, they demanded more comfortable clothes. Designers made them, but in doing so, they lost the trim appearance, became casual to the point of being almost shapeless.

But now Canada's clothing designers have solved both problems. The suits seen at the show combined both smartness and, according to the models who wore them, all the comfort that men have become accustomed to in late years.

For the man who still likes clothes with a bit of a flair, there was good news at the show. Top coats in rugged, colorful tweed; cut on generous lines in raglan models or with balmacaan collars were a feature of the show. One of these models measured 75 inches around the hemline, and that's plenty of coat. Fabrics ranged from medium weight tweeds in district checks to a heavy tweed model in black-and-white hound's tooth check with a detachable Tartan lining.

One outstanding model in the show was a Canadian designer's interpretation of the "Ivy League" suit worn in the leading universities in the Eastern United States. This is a suit of dark grey flannel worsted, ultra-conservative in styling, with small lapels set high in the 2-button single-breasted jacket in a style similar to those popular in the early part of the century. This was worn with a hound's tooth check vest, button-down Oxford shirt and narrow necktie. Delegates speculated on the possibilities of its adoption by university men in this country.

Natural Silhouette Also Stressed by Men's Modes Styled to Every Occasion

"The Right Clothes at the Right Time" is the new emphasis on menswear for spring.

For with the recent important stress on casual attire, some men have lost sight of the fact that there are suits, the individual types of sports apparel, too, designed and meant for different occasions in their day-to-day lives.

The dark blue suit, for example, is essential and right for informal evening gatherings. The tweedy sport coat is acceptable neither for parties of this sort nor for business, but has its place on picnics or at the country club.

Menswear authorities point out that a wardrobe, of this nature, keyed to meet the dress requirements of every occasion, is also a long-run economy offered by, constant rotation of the clothes.

Variety Easter

With the large choice of suits and topcoats, on hand for business and street wear, for spring, wardrobe variety is easier than ever.

Inspired by the lore of the Far East, this Siamese print on washable renee crepe adds a quiet note of new elegance to blouses for spring suits and skirts. The round yoked, full-sleeved blouse creates a soft, feminine effect. A. M. Perlman Print. Clarise blouse.

As never before along with the emphasis on wardrobes that include the right clothes for the right time, menswear makers are placing great stress on the "natural look." This indicates an increasing number of clothing styles that bring out a man's natural body contours, padding him only slightly to flatter his figure.

Perfect example of the "natural look" is the single-breasted, two-button suit. This type of suit is also typical of the trend to lighter weights and reduced bulk in suits.

"Natural shoulder" suit models, featuring narrow lapels, buttons set higher, and trim, conservative tailoring are expected to, more than ever, increase in popularity, this spring, in keeping with the "natural look" theme.

Straight Topcoats

The same natural feeling extends to new topcoats. They are styled with narrower shoulders that are usually combined with set-in-sleeves and fly or button-through fronts. Raglan topcoats with bal collars also place special emphasis on this straight hanging effect.

Other suit silhouettes, featured for the new season, along with the "natural shoulder" model with straight body lines, include the drape model with moderately broad shoulders, and the lounge model, with moderate width and slightly raised shoulders. Each of the three is expected to find an important place in men's spring styles.

Fabric-wise, the lighter weights and softer textures given to tweeds cashmere and shetlands for 1952 by the fabric stylists, is bringing them to the fore in men's styles. Also predominant are new rayons, in linen weaves and shantung types, as well as other blended synthetics, such as Orlon, Dacorn and Vicara.

Certain to win favor with America's men are the lighter, brighter shades of greys, tans and browns. Introduced for spring. These colorful shades are accented in street wear, in many instances by multi-colored checks, plaids and novelty patterns.

SNOW CUSHION

Florence, N. S. — (CP) — Deep snow saved the life of three-year-old William Ross, who suffered no broken bones when the front wheel of a two-ton truck passed over him. The child fell directly under the wheel but was pressed into the snow "cushion."

NORWEGIAN DRYDOCK

Oslo — (CP) — The first drydock in northern Norway has been put into operation at Harstad in Troms province. The dry-dock is capable of handling vessels up to 7,000 tons deadweight.

Blouses New With Dressy Costume Air

Blouses, designed for spring come ready to dress up a suit and provide a complete costume look even when the jacket is removed. They are also meant to be easily adaptable to combination with skirts for gala occasion wear.

Luxurious fabrics, like silky bengaline, lustrous crepes, crisp silks and shimmering shantung taffetas, made with such glamorous style details as wide V-cut back necklines, off-shoulder effects giant puff sleeves, bows and gilets, provide this over-all costume look.

Newest of the suit blouses might be fashioned of silk surah with a deep-V shawl collar neckline accented with a bow, and three-quarter full cut sleeves. Or it might have a button-on ascot scarf and push-up three-quarter sleeves.

Typical of the blouses for gala occasion wear is one of handkerchief linen with a front panel centred with tiny buttons and an off-shoulder cuff of embroidered organdy. Another blouse, of this type, is fashioned with a scoop neckline and self yoke of silk taffeta in a Roman key pattern.

Even classic shirts and basic style blouses have been designed with newly exciting details. Shirts come with tiny tucks, fabric covered novelty trims like pennies, gay multi-colored stripes and embroidery touches in confetti hues. While basic style blouses come with tucked surplice bodices topped by diminutive collars, tucked bib fronts emblazoned by rhinestone buttons and little high-placed sham pockets in all-over stitch designs.

The tiny waist, the full, swinging skirt — these add up to the prettiest coat silhouette of the season. This fitted coat has big side pockets to accent the curve of the hip and the flare of the skirt. The double notch collar is designed to stand up perkily. The tweed fabric, of the coat, in a crow's foot pattern, is by Forstmann. The coat is a Carmel design. The hat is a petal-brimmed sailor by Sally Victor.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The king in my ego maintains how easy this game would be if experts would check their brains and discuss, to agree with me. And then a much wiser elf will whisper to me: "Ahem. If you bid some sense yourself, you'd go to agree with them."

A takeout double asks partner to bid something if no bid of an opponent intervenes. But suppose the intervening opponent steps in with a pedouble? Is partner of doubler asked to bid?

These are two schools of thought on the matter. Or maybe I should say there are two thoughts that should be schooled. One says partner of doubler should bid anyway; the other says he needn't.

Take it case where south opens with a bid and west doubles for takeout. If no bid intervenes, east must bid. And the weaker his hand the more important it is for east to show his best suit.

Why? The doubler has a hand that he would love to bid. All he is doing is finding out partner's best suit for the safety. It may be very important for him to know it fast.

But when west doubles, suppose north redoubles when east has the hand shown here:

♠ Q 7 5 3
♥ 9 8
♦ J 4 3 2
♣ A K 4 2

Some of the experts have said that east should pass in this spot. Because, they reason, west has another chance to bid. But Horse Sense rules insist that east should bid if north had passed.

So far as west is concerned, the need for knowing east's best suit is still present. The fact that north redoubled makes it even more important for west to get this information fast.

Their pair cannot afford to let the redouble stand. West is in a box and must know his safest suit. If east shows his best suit, it will not hurt and may help. West will then have a choice.

The safest courses reduce your losses.

Hollywood, April 3 — (AP) — How does a gal get on the best-dressed lists? Irene Dunne offers a few hints.

The film queen was recently named one of the best-dressed women in the United, States and has won similar honors in the past.

How does she do it?

"Frankly, I'm not sure," she said. "I don't think my press agent has enough guts to get me on the list, so it couldn't be because of influence. But I don't spend a fortune on clothes and I don't go in for all the latest styles.

"Perhaps it is because of the way I buy clothes. I don't buy many, but what I do buy are of the best. When I look for an outfit, I don't want one that will merely last for a season. I make sure the clothes are well made and I generally pick things along classic lines. It's not unusual for my things to last six or eight years.

"If styles change and hems go up, I buy a dress that fits the current style, But I still have a basic wardrobe which can be worn in any year, regardless of the change of style.

"I think you'll find that the women who consistently make the best-dressed lists do not follow the latest styles. For instance, I'm sure you would never find the Duchess of Windsor and Mrs. William Paley buying the same dress."

Miss Dunne pointed out that she brought only three dresses back from a recent trip to Paris, where as soon as clothes buyers might return with trunks full. She believes American designers have a better understanding of the clothing needs for U. S. women. On the other hand, she says the Parisian enthusiasm for dress design.

"It's exciting to be in Paris when the style showings are going on," she remarked. "The French have a verve for new fashions that is lacking here."

Montreal Blues Trim Tillsonburg In Cage Series

Montreal, April 3 — (CP) — Montreal Y. M. H. A. Blues last night defeated Tillsonburg Lumberjacks 53-47 in the second game of their best-of-three series for the eastern Canadian senior basketball championship.

Tillsonburg won the opener, 53-51 Tuesday night. Third game will be played tonight.

The first quarter saw the Blues set a fast pace and for a 15-11 lead.

Sparked by veterans Benny Lands and Murray Waxman, Harry Wade and playing coach Paul Thomas helped Tillsonburg turn the Y crew's lead to 27-25 at the half.

Rugged play spiced the last half and officials sent ace Bob Thibbs and Harry Wade to the showers in the last quarter. Ottawa football star Bob Simpson put some of the gridiron tactics into force and time was called. With only one minute and 30 seconds remaining, the Blues put on a skillful exhibition of "dragging the ball."

Lands and Waxman were top point-getters for the Montreal squad. Myer Knobvitch had 11. Harry Wade was outstanding for the losers with 17 points.

Training Camp Briefs

By RALPH RODEN

New York, April 3 (AP) — The 1952 World Series opponents have been determined on April 2—two weeks before the official opening of the season.

Three teams, New York Giants, Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees received severe jolts in their pennant ambitions yesterday while the hectic fourth, Philadelphia Phillies, were boosted.

Here's what happened:

1. Monte Irvin, left fielder of the champion Giants and their leading run producer—batting .329 last season—broke his right ankle in an exhibition game against Cleveland at Denver, Colo. Irvin will miss at least half of the campaign and possibly the entire season.

2. Ted Williams, Boston left fielder, passed his physical examination at Jacksonville, Fla., and will report on schedule to the Naval Marine Corps May 2.

3. Jerry Coleman, infielder of the Yanks, also passed his physical and will return to duty with the Marine Air Corps May 2.

4. Curt Simmons, crack lefthanded pitcher of the Phillies, will be discharged as a sergeant of the 28th Infantry Division. He will return to the United States from Germany within 10 days.

The recall of Williams and Coleman to the colors was expected but the loss of Irvin came as a shock and cast gloom over the Giant camp.

Irvin was injured in the second inning in a game Cleveland won 7-5. He walked to lead off the frame and zipped around second as Willie Mays zipped to right field. Cleveland's shortstop Ray Boone cut off the throw from the outfield and hung Mays up between second and third but Irvin slid into third anyway. He suffered a compound fracture of his right ankle.

Irvin batted .312 last year and the league runs batted in with 121. He also starred in the World Series against the Yanks, batting .458.

Irvin's loss probably means that Bob Thomson will forsake third base for his first love, the outfield. Hank Thompson, a disappointment last year, figures to return to third.

Williams, highest salaried player in the game, and Coleman, will also miss the 1953 season. They are in for 17 months. For Williams, this probably means the end of his brilliant career. He will be 35 when his second tour of duty is completed.

AT THE CAPITOL — Errol Flynn in action in a robust scene from William Marshall's new film, "Adventures of Captain Fabian," at the Capitol Theatre, starting tonight for its first city showing. Also starred are lovely Micheline Prelle, Vincent Price and Agnes Moorehead. On the same program, "Storm Over Bengal," starring Richard Cromwell.

Habs, Bruins Start Afresh Both Coaches Are Confident

Montreal, April 3 — (CP) — Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens today are back where they started their National Hockey League semi-final playoff—both as to locale and as to standing.

It was in Montreal that the first two games of the best-of-seven series were held and victories in those games sent Canadiens' stock soaring.

The series then shifted to Boston and the optimism faded. The Bruins game through with 4-1 and 3-2 decisions.

Today, they're back where they started.

Before the series began, the Habs were 13-5 favorites but last night, before they left Boston, they were no better than even money.

As Canadiens coach Dick Irvin said: "The series is even and three game are left with two in Montreal," Irvin said there lies a Montreal advantage.

Gei Breaks

The Montrealers got the breaks in the first two games in Montreal but things went the other way in Boston.

Irvin thought the "big break" in Tuesday's game in Boston came when Billy Reay and Paul Meger bumped into each other in the Bruins defence zone.

"The puck rolled free, Quackenbush grabbed it and broke away to set up the winning goal."

Irvin summed up the two Boston losses this way: "If three or four of our players had not suffered a letdown, we would have won four straight."

Boston coach Lynn Patrick put it this way: "Now that we have found ourselves don't count us out. We have to win two of the next three games."

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto Maple Leafs baseball team plugged two gaps yesterday with the purchase of a first baseman and a pitcher from Cleveland Indians. President Jack Kent Cooke of the International League team announced he had paid $25,000 for first-sacker Ed Stevens and right-hander Gerald (Red) Fahr.

The Massachusetts senate yesterday at Boston rejected a bill to forbid the drinking of beer or other alcoholic beverages at sports events. On senator said spectators at ball games are fed up with having beer spilled over them. He was opposed by Sen. Charles I. Taylor who asked: "What are they going to do at football games to keep warm?"

Johnny Lujack, 27, star quarterback of the professional Chicago Bears, announced yesterday he is hanging up his cleats. A salary squabble is causing him to eye an assistant coaching job at his alma mater, Notre Dame.

GOOD SHOW!

Trenton Flyers and the Marmora Millionaires may not play hockey "as she is played in the National Hockey League" but they put on a display that does not lack for thrills, plenty of action and the occasional fireworks. Last night the gallant village crew fighting an uphill battle just missed the glory boat in a battle that had over 1,000 fans on their feet half the time.

The Flyers, opportunists, if ever such a thing existed, smashed home a three-goal lead in the first period, then played a hard-checking packed-defence game that finally brought them the nod. The village crew outplayed them in the second and third periods and only the Flyers' kitty-bar-the-door methods and Scott in goal deprived them of victory. The speedy Flyer front lines stood poised all night ready for goalward dashes and they usually paid off although the Marmora goalie turned in a fine effort too.

The teams go at it again on Friday night when a defeat for Marmora means elimination. If they win and tie the series at two-all the fifth and final game will be played here on Monday night. Friday's tilt should be a thriller as the village crew will have its collective back to the wall and it is do or die for 'em.

OFF THE RECORDS!

There have been many arguments pro and con whether the oldtime greats of baseball were better than the present crop, and vice versa. The Red Sox, official record keepers of the American League gives an interesting slant on the question and a glimpse through it reveals that the records of the oldtimers outshine the greater majority of the moderns—Marvin Ty Cobb had something at that.

The top batters for each club are Boston, Ted Williams, 406; Chicago, Luke Appling, 388; Cleveland, Shoeless Joe Jackson, 408; Detroit, Ty Cobb, 420; New York, Babe Ruth, 393; Philadelphia, Nap Lajoie, 422; St. Louis, George Sisler, 420 and Washington, George Goslin, 379.

Orestes Minoso of the White Sox was the top base stealer last year with 31 while team-mate Jim Busby had 29. Alongside the old timers these marks look like a peewee club's efforts. Boston's Tris Speaker had 52; Chicago's Wally Moses, 56; Cleveland's Ray Chapman, 52; Detroit's Ty Cobb, 96; New York's Fred Maisel 76; Philadelphia's Eddie Collins, 81; St. Louis, Sisler, 42; and Washington's Clyde Milan 88.

Rapid Robert Feller headed the league's pitching victors with a 22 last season. The oldtimers top marks are Boston, Joe Wood, 34; Chicago, Ed Walsh, 46; Cleveland, Jim Bagby, 31; Detroit, George Mullin and Hal Newhouser, 29; New York, Jack Chesebro, 41; Philadelphia, Jack Combs and Lefty Grove, 27; St. Louis, Urban Shocker, 27 and Washington, Walter Johnson, 36.

There were three no-hitters pitched in the American League last year. Bob Feller had one, the third of his career with Allie Reynolds coming up with a surprising pair. There were four near-misses. Sam Zoldak, Athletics was deprived of a no-hitter by Chico Carrasquel of the White Sox while Joe Dobson of the Sox missed one against the Indians when Bobby Avila hit a pinch-double.

One-hit heartbreakers were those of Connie Marrero, Washington and Cleveland's Bob Lemon. Each failed to get his no-hitter in the grand fashion—because of a home run. Barney McCoskey spoiled Marrero's and Vic Lertz bashed up Lemon's.

"Homer Heaven" last year was Fenway Park in Boston, where the friendly left-field fence beckons 315 feet from the plate. There were 145 round-trippers blasted there, 80 by the home forces. The fewest were hit in Washington a measly 48. The Yanks profited hugely at home with 72 by the Bombers to 43 by the opposition.

Four sluggers made the cycle by slamming out homers in every park in the circuit. They were Ted Williams, Gus Zernial, Eddie Robinson, and Eddie Yost, Zernial was the homer champion with 33 to 30 for Williams. Precocious Mickey Mantle hit one everywhere but Detroit and Washington. Not bad for a beardless wonder.

While Cleveland's Al Rosen slumped woefully at the plate, he did achieve one distinction. He hit four homers with the bases loaded to tie the record for seasonal output. There were 23 jackpot homers hit in the league last year. Outstanding because he was the only hurler to do so, was the baseball smash of Tommy Byrne, wild man lefthander whom the Yanks traded to St. Louis.

There are 39 men in the league with ten-year status while ten more are due to join them before this season is over. Reynolds is the only Yankee soon to move into the group. Hal Newhouser of the Tigers needs nine more victories to advance to the select 200-club. Only member now active is Bob Feller with 230. He has a slight chance to make the 300-club even at the age of 34.

"I WONDER?"

Pete Whisenant is a colorful rookie outfielder with the Boston Braves. Any number of clubs were hot on his trail as soon as he was graduated from high school, but the husky youngster was wary. The bonus rule was scrapped so as into effect at that time and any athlete receiving more than $6,000 would get the "bonus player" designation along with all the restrictions such a label carried.

However, the Washington Senators were willing to go up to $7,500 for his services by closing the deal just before the bonus rule went into effect. When the check wasn't forthcoming, Whisenant went to see Clark Griffith, the venerable owner of the Senators. Here's the way the rookie reported their conversation:

"So I went to see that nice, old man, Mr. Griffin. 'I can't pay you more than $6,000, Mr. Wiseman,' he says. That Mr. Griffin was a nice man but he couldn't get my name straight. 'But I was promised $7,500,' I tell him. 'I can't violate the rules,' he says. 'Well then,' I tell him, 'a lot of clubs will give me six grand and if that's all I can get from you I'd rather not sign with the Washington Senators. I'd rather join a major league club.' "

Red-faced with rage, Griffith stalked indignantly away.

"A nice man, Mr. Griffin," said Whisenant musingly after Griffith had departed. "I wonder what made him so mad."

Would Limit Control of Clubs And Make Illegal Offences Of Some Existing Directives

Ottawa, April 3—(CP)—A Liberal member of the Commons today moved to abolish what he described as the National Hockey League's "slave market in young hockey players."

Bona Arsenault, member of the Quebec constituency of Bonaventure, placed on the order paper of the Commons a bill that would limit the control of N. H. L. and other clubs over promising young hockey players.

In an interview, Mr. Arsenault said the N. H. L. now can tell young hockey players when and where they will play hockey. It can prevent them from playing hockey if they do not follow the league directives.

"The N. H. L. conducts a real slave market," he said.

The bill, due to be given first reading Friday, would provide for amendments to the Criminal Code and to the Combines Investigation Act.

Under the Criminal Code change, it would be an indictable offence for any individual, sports, association or league to:

1. Unduly restrict the freedom of players to play with the club of their choice.

2. Force a player of amateur standing to sign with a club or clubs not of his choice under penalty of losing his amateur standing or of being banned from a club, league or association of his choice.

Sign Against Will

3. Force a player to sign as a professional against his will.

4. Force a player of amateur standing who has already signed a contract with a club of amateur standing to play as a professional with a club of professional standing against his will.

An individual guilty of the offence would be subject to a fine of between $500 and $2,000. A club or league would be subject to a fine of between $2,000 and $5,000.

The change to the Combines Investigation Act would allow the combines commissioner to make an investigation into the operations of hockey teams. If the commissioner found that the teams were unfairly controlling players, he could report his findings to the attorney general of the province for possible legal action.

Bills sponsored by private members seldom become law, but Mr. Arsenault said he is confident that his measure will receive the support of the majority of members. It must receive three readings in the Commons and three in Senate before it can become law.

Mr. Arsenault said that Charles Parent (L—Quebec West) and W. J. Henderson (L—Kingston City) have already made speeches in the Commons during this session, criticizing the N. H. L. practice of placing young hockey players on negotiation lists.

He said he wished to congratulate Hon. Gerald Martineau and Mark Drouin, two well-known sportsmen in Quebec City, and Dan Parker, New York sports columnist, for the fight that they have carried on against the N. H. L. practices.

The N. H. L. has its own rules covering its negotiation list. A club can indicate to the league an amateur player with which it would like to deal. The league then places that player on the club's negotiation list, providing he is not already on the list of some other club. Each club is limited to four players on its negotiation list.

Clubs can sign amateurs to sign "option C" agreements. The option usually provides for a bonus when the player signs a standard contract.

Dictatorial Practices

Some hockey men argue that under the option agreement, a club can direct a player to play with any amateur club it wishes. Others contend that the agreement between the N. H. L. and C. A. A. A. express rules, other than amateur rules, regarding transfers and releases shall apply.

Mr. Arsenault said the negotiation list of the N. H. L. has led to "certain dictatorial practices" which his bill would prevent. The present practices he admitted to be unfair to our youth and certainly should not be tolerated in a democratic country.

He said it should be an offence for any hockey club to place a player's name on its negotiation list without consent of that of his parents.

It should be and offence "to try to prevent an amateur hockey player from offering his services to, and playing with, the professional club in this city he should he desire to become a professional player."

Ted Williams, Jerry Coleman Join Marines

Jacksonville, Fla. April 3 (AP)—Ted Williams, one of baseball's greatest sluggers, indicated today his diamond career will come to an end May 2 when he returns to active duty as a captain in the Marine Corps.

The slender Boston star virtually swapped his Red Sox uniform for a green suit of khaki Wednesday when, after a two-hour physical examination, he was found fit for duty together with Gerry Coleman, star second baseman of the New York Yankees.

Williams is baseball's highest salaried performer at $100,000. A marine captain's salary is $5,000 a year.

"This is it," Ted said.

"I guess this finishes me. I don't see how I can come back. I'll be past 34 when I get out. That's old, leller. It's awfully hard to come back at that age. Heck, it's getting harder for me all the time—even now."

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT

Denver, April 3 (AP)—There are sad days ahead for New York Giants as they beat their way down through the southwest and toward the start of the National League campaign with their great Negro star, Monte Irvin, left behind in a hospital here.

When Monte writhed and threshed on the ground around third base with a fractured ankle yesterday, there wasn't a Giant but knew that a second straight league pennant probably had been forfeited in an exhibition game, and on an unnecessary slide, at that.

You can't lose a star like Irvin, the league's leading R.B.I. man last year, and retain much hope of beating out a solid club like Brooklyn. The scene was a heartbreaking one as Monte's teammates kneeled on the bench to gather around him and Leo Durocher went stamping about the infield like a wild man, a picture of grief.

The Cleveland Indians appeared almost as affected as the Giants. The star from New Jersey has made himself one of the game's most admired and respected players, and the Indians have seen much of him in their spring forays with the Giants. They swarmed around his stricken figure almost as quickly as Monte's teammates did, and their third-baseman, Al Rosen, appeared to be berating himself for having faked the catch which caused Irvin to make his unnecessary slide.

No club ever suffered a tougher blow, even if Monte should return sometime during the season.

Stratford Eliminates Greyhounds; Ready for Eastern Canada Finals

Stratford, April 3 (CP) —Stratford Indians' hopes for the Allan Cup were high today as the team prepared to enter the Eastern Canada finals against the survivors of the Pembroke Lumber Kings-Jonquiere Aces series.

The Indians knocked off the vaunted Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds last night to complete a four game route of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A champions and emerge virtually unscathed from their best-of-seven Eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-finals.

The team tied the opener 2-2 at Sault Ste. Marie and then Stratford took the next game on northern ice. The next three went easy at home.

Score 1st in 48 Seconds

Last night, the Indians—Ontario Hockey Association senior A title-holders—scored their first goal after but 40 seconds of play and although they were tied 1-1 at the end of the first period, pulled into a 3-1 lead by the finish of the middle session. Outscoring the Greyhounds 2-1 in the final 20 minutes gave them their 4-2 final.

Bruce Burdett led the Stratford crew with a pair of goals while linemates Jackie White and Ron Aitken supplied singletons. Terry Blocchi and Roy Fortner scored for the losers.

Stratford played last night's game minus the services of centre Mickey Roth who suffered a separated shoulder in Tuesday's clash. Denny Flanagan replaced him at centre on line flanked by Larry Lemenchick and Bill Flick.

Both goaltenders played terrific hockey. Boofy Casola turned away 39 pucks from the Sault Ste. Marie net while Bruce Dale handled 32 in the Stratford goal.

Canadiens Jrs. Trim Ottawa By 4-2 Score

Ottawa, April 3 — (CP) — Montreal Canadiens last-minute goal too much power for Eastview St. Charles in winning the first game of the Memorial Cup eastern semi-finals 4-2.

The Ottawa district junior champions face elimination in the second game of the best-of-three series at Montreal Friday night.

The Canadiens, displaying more defensive power and more class around the ice, exploded for 3 goals in the opening frame and were never headed. Two of the three goals were scored while Eastview was short-handed.

The score would have been much higher at the end of the first 20 minutes of play except for young Roly Sarault between the pipes. Charlie Arbour added two more in the middle session.

Eastview's attack was held to a number of breakaways but were stopped at point-blank range by the spectacular Sarault.

In the first period, Sarault kicked out 11 attempts to nine for Montreal's Charlie Hodge. Allegather he stopped 40 shots to 31 for Hodge.

Don Marshall, Les Lilley, Bill Sinnett and Wm. Charles Arbour are singles for Montreal while Red Fairchild and Ron Lemay are assisted for Eastview.

The winner of this series will meet either South Porcupine or Guelph for the right to meet the western champions.

Guelph Biltmores Win Easily Over Porkies 5-2

Timmins, April 3 — (CP) — Guelph Biltmores flew back home last night and it was just about as easy as their high-flying 5-2 victory earlier in the evening over Porcupine Combines. The win gave them a 1-0 lead in their best-of-three Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-finals.

The Bilts got off to a wind it up at home Friday and earn the right to move against the survivors of the Eastview St. Charles - Montreal Canadiens playoff in an Eastern Canada Junior "A" Hockey club leads that best-of-three series 1-0.

Guelph took little urging last night and rushed into a 4-0 first-period lead before skating through a scoreless middle session. Even though the Purples occasionally threatened in the final period, the game was Biltmore's all the way.

Andy Bathgate led the Guelph attack with a pair of goals while Ron Stewart, Chuck Henderson and Ron Stewart added singletons. Ross Kelly and Rick Albert came up with the two Porcupine markers.

Legion Bowlers Play in Finals

Campbellford The boys of Branch 103, Canadian Legion, covered themselves with glory in qualifying for the Provincial Legion bowling finals. Playing in Tweed on Saturday, in the district final, after winning in the zone playoffs in Brighton some time ago, the boys were able to finish in third place, thus enabling them to go to Oshawa on April 19 to compete in the all-Ontario championship to be held in that city.

Teams from Oshawa, Bowmanville, Tweed, Madoc, Stirling, Brighton, Cobourg and Campbellford competed on Saturday. In some very stiff competitive bowling, George Bibby was high team bowler for the local legion.

Further honor was bestowed on the local branch when Ross Taylor was victorious in the singles bowling tournament, thus entering him to the Ontario championship at Oshawa. In this event, margin of 18 pins, the doubles entry of Don Holmes and Jack Stocker were eliminated, This is the first year of tournament bowling for the local branch of the Legion and they can be proud of their achievements.

The following comrades were the members of the winning teams on Saturday: G. Bibby, J. Stocker, R. Taylor, D. Holmes, T. Smith and L. Holmes.

Ball's Bowlers Win Bakelite Title

A team captained by Clarence Ball won the championship of the Bakelite Company Bowling League at Recreation Alleys defeating a team headed by F. O. Jeffrey by 123 pins.

R. Lucas won the high single with a 338 with A. Manjuris taking the high triple with a 706.

Smythe Blames Self for Leafs' Elimination

Toronto, April 3—(CP)—Managing director Conn Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs conducted a post-mortem of his club yesterday and said that the results over the National Hockey League season "are my fault."

"I have no one to blame but myself," he told a press conference just one day after the defending Stanley Cup champions were knocked over four straight by the league champion Detroit Red Wings in the best-of-seven cup semi-finals.

"I have nothing to say about the team. They put us in the playoffs and did very well. The same goes to the coach Joe Primeau who did a remarkable job in getting them into third place with the material he had.

"My Fault"

"The results are my fault . . . The signs were shown last year, against Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup finals, and something should have been done then. It was up to me to do something then."

There will be personnel changes in the club next year—four on the forward line and one and possibly two on defence. But Smythe said there would be no "grab-bag deals or rummage sales."

Smythe said there was some truth in rumors that he is interested in Harry Lumley, Chicago Black Hawks goalie, as a possible replacement for the Leafs Al Rollins, but that Hawks president Bill Tobin was "too demanding."

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Chicago Black Hawks smashed their way to the Stanley Cup finals 14 years ago tonight by beating New York Americans 3-2 in the deciding game of a best-of-three series final at New York. Hawks, who edged out Detroit in the first-half drive, went on to win their second Stanley Cup by beating Toronto Maple Leafs in the final, three games to one.

Nothing New About Latest Blast To Curb Control of Young Players

Toronto, April 3 —(CP) — The "Nicholas Nickleby" of hockey have a new champion today, the latest on a long list who believe the game's young hot shots aren't getting a fair shake. If nothing else, it could stir up some fuss.

Rene Arsenault, Liberal member for the Quebec constituency of Beauvernois, believes the National Hockey League's controversial negotiation list and option C aren't cricket. He wants to put some teeth into the criminal code and the combines investigation act that would limit control of the NHL and other clubs over the teen-agers considered big league prospects.

The issue isn't new. It has been going on for three years or more with university and hockey officials feuding over the NHL regulations that allow clubs to put the finger on 18-year-olds without their consent. In effect, they tie up their amateur and professional careers.

The last big blast over the NHL's methods of operation was fired three years ago this month at Toronto by Dr. G. E. Hall, president of the University of Toronto Ontario. Others took up the cry and it has been revived from time to time.

"Insidious Methods"

Dr. Hall told the Ontario Educational Association convention at that time the young hockey hopefuls are the "Nicholas Nickleby's" of today through the "insidious and vicious methods" of professional and amateur hockey. (The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has fallen in line with the pros regarding the NHL's various regulations).

Dr. Hall said the youngsters were exploited "for the vicious necessities of the mill-owners of the early days." He asked that provincial legislation be introduced barring pro clubs from "tying up a player until he has either finished four years' high school or reached the age of 18."

That created it. Clarence Campbell of Montreal NHL president, declared this was all wrong.

Campbell, a lawyer, said he was "pretty sure that C contract is okay" and that there was nothing illegal about it. CAHA officials declared Dr. Hall's charges were "ridiculous and absurd". (Since then the NHL has agreed that youngsters under 18 could not be placed on club negotiation lists. Previously, the age was 16.

The Canadian Teachers Federal meeting at Ottawa in 1948, passed a resolution deploring amateur and professional regulations which, it claimed, interfered with boys still attending school. And church synods have condemned what they termed the "exploitation of young boys" by hockey interests.

The most famous C form kid is Danny Lewicki who signed the form with Stratford of the Ontario Hockey Association junior 'A' league and balked at the idea of going to Peterborough, Leaf Junior farm club.

The case was publicly aired for months. Managing director Conn Smythe of the Leafs declared that Lewicki didn't like the idea of organization he wouldn't play hockey anywhere. The NHL and CAHA backed Smythe who said the C form is "our protection against hoodlig amateur clubs and operators."

The left-winger joined the Leafs in the 1950-51 season and still is with them.

Enhance your charm, aid your advancement by being considerate, tolerant. Fresh opportunities immediately ahead. Birthdate of Marcus Antonius Caracalla, Roman emperor.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

No, one, Sally Cravath said, except Eve herself possibly, knew why her first husband had shot himself. Eve's second marriage had been with a prince from Georgia—the Russian Georgia.

That was three years after just a few months. Then Eve was free for a long time. But she finally settled for the Wheeler man. He was a lot older but a right guy, I guess. He and Eve seem to have had fun. And when Wheeler died, he left her pots of money."

No monetary motive, at least for Eve Wheeler. But apparently she knew her way around with men. And she'd been connected with virulent death before.

"Leaving Eve?" I said.

Sally let long lashes droop over eyes like little gray coluds. "This doesn't do much for my ego James

Just something to pump, eh?"

"This is a business trip," I said.

"Charming frankness. But . . . oh, well, he'd been Uncle Jack. And he shouldn't take long. I'm terribly fond of Uncle Jack, Jim. But, to be absolutely honest, Uncle Jack is a perennial sophomore." She compressed her lips, then added, "and so is Uncle Marney."

"You mean—"

"Oh," Sally laughed, "they got their sheepskins, all right. But—not that I'm so darned clever or mature or anything —but, to my way of thinking, neither of them ever graduated from Yale. In their minds, that is."

"They were together up there?"

"Together, like this." She crossed two slim fingers. "And long before Yale. At some very select little boys school in New York, first. Then Exeter and finally New Haven. The two of them seem to have murdered all comers, in athletics. I don't know what they use for a motto at New Haven. But if it isn't 'Dumont for Cravath' or 'Cravath for Dumont,' I've been misinformed all my life."

"Sounds like they subbed for one another," I said.

"Something like that. Uncle Marney was a hair-brick. All-American boy. And, apparently, every time Uncle Marney got tired Uncle Jack took over. Not that it was terrific too, if I may quote Uncle Marney."

"Very smooth sailing, eh?"

"They didn't have much of a problem after college either. They just naturally went into Uncle Marney's brokerage business. It wasn't exactly his then, of course. His father was still alive. Uncle Marney inherited. Uncle Jack rode along with him. That's all there was to it."

"You say then," I remarked reflectively, "that Mr. Cravath and Mr. Dumont have had very easy and successful lives? Nothing much to worry about?"

She shifted in her seat. "I'd say that about Uncle Marney, definitely. And about Uncle Jack too, up to a point. But—well, Jim, you must have seen for yourself."

"I get you," I said. "How did he ever come to do it? Not, mind you that Dolly couldn't have been attractive once."

"She was," said Sally. "Very pretty and bright and amusing too. She'd been on the stage. I guess you'd have to say that poor Dolly's just an ex-hoofer."

"I know a lot of hoofers. And most of them are swell people."

She turned to me quickly, wasn't trying to be stuffy. But an . . . oh, heck, an alcoholic can come from anywhere.

"I'm only interested in what made her start drinking."

"All I know is that Uncle Jack did everything in the world for her. But it wasn't any use. They had three strikes on them before they ever got married. He didn't understand the life she'd been used to and she was like a fish out of water in his. But she was stuck with his life and she couldn't cope. So she started seeing the bottle. That's my idea of what happened."

That situation didn't make entire sense to me. Uncle Dolly Dumont didn't help haul the Dolly chain at Vassar. But she's obviously no fool. And certainly Dumont is a sensible man. Why didn't they just mutually call it off?"

"I don't know. It's rather tragic too. Dolly's a very sweet woman, when she wants to be. She's got a heart as big as a house. I don't think she really means to give Uncle Jack a rough time.

"I should think," I said, "that he'd do something about it. Not just take it."

"Well, short of divorce, he has done things. Dolly's been in care place any number of times. But it doesn't stick. Well, can I do any other quick thumbnails, Jim?"

"Just one," I said. "Dave Sladen."

"Oh, Dave." Involuntarily, I thought, her eyes travelled away from mine.

"Would you rather not discuss him?" I asked.

"Why shouldn't I?" She looked at me quickly again.

I shrugged. "I wouldn't know. Unless it's because the guy's evidently nuts about you."

A pot shot, but it came off. She colored, almost fetchingly. "Odd ny nuts yourself. But even if that were true, it has nothing to do with all this."

No? Dave Sladen and, I suspected, Ames Warburton as well, far overboard for Sally, and here was an old motive for murder.

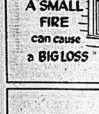
Nerves On Edge, Couldn't Sleep, Felt Tired, Rundown

Also Suffered From Rheumatic Pains, Backache and Stomach Disorders; This Woman Tells of Grand Relief She Got by Taking Syntona.

MRS. VIOLET HUTCHINSON

Whether you are 18 or 80 you may at times begin to feel run-down, overtired and listless. Digestion is impaired, appetite lost and sleep is neither sound nor restful. Backache, headaches and rheumatic pains may add to your discomfort. At such times, Syntona Herbal Compound has helped thousands of men and women and the chances are that a short treatment of this pure Herbal Medicine may quickly help to put you on the road to better health again.



Here is what Mrs. Violet Hutchinson, 200 St. James Court, London, Ontario, has to say about her experience with Syntona:

"I was weak, tired, rundown, had no appetite, felt miserable, could not eat, gave me attacks of awful gas and shortness of breath. My nerves were so on edge I couldn't sleep for hours after going to bed at night. I became subject to backache, throbbing headaches and rheumatic pains and moving pains set into my limbs, joints and muscles.

"I had tried a number of other things, but it wasn't until I started taking Syntona that I began to feel better. Though I am using this medicine I have regained my former strength, food relishes and I am free of the headaches and dizzy spells. The backache and rheumatic pains have now gone and my nerves are so improved that I sleep well and story right through the night."

"It's wonderful to find a medicine like this which I can recommend to others who suffer this same misery."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

About twelve forty-five he was seen around the house. A short time later his mother could not locate him. Two members of a search party who combed the immediate locality, Harry Ham and Charles Tisdale thought that they recognized the body at the bottom of the lake.

About two thirty Constable J. C. Hawkins of Bancroft detachment, OPP and a neighbor, Charles Mallory recovered his body using grappling hooks. Coroner Dr. O. W. Anderson was present at the scene.

Reginald was the son of Mr. and P.R. Cooney. No inquest will be held.

State Secretary Says Danger 'Still With Us'

Washington, April 4 (AP) — State Secretary Acheson said today that "danger is still with us" despite the expansion of North Atlantic treaty organization defence forces.

"There is not yet enough strength in the North Atlantic area to assure the maintenance of peace," Acheson said in a speech prepared for a ceremony observing NATO's third anniversary.

"The threat to our security is so great that none of us can afford to do too little."

Queen Juliana of The Netherlands, President Truman and representatives of 11 other NATO members, including Canada, joined in the colorful birthday ceremony.

Acheson, one of the original signers of the North Atlantic treaty, said he is convinced the members countries can obtain both military strength and economic stability.

He said the alliance set up to build military security has surrounded other purposes.

"Already, one result of our efforts has been to bring us substance," he said. "The nations of continental Europe have begun to develop political, social, economic and military institutions. When completed, these institutions can underpin the strength of Europe for generations to come."

Treasury Secretary John Snyder said "it is of great importance to the world, that the defence program be carried out without impairing basic economic and financial stability.

TRETHEWEY RESIGNS POST

Ottawa, April 4 (CP) — L. Trethewey the defence production department's commissioner of man, is resigning. The 51-year-old aircraft contracts administrator, who set out during 1,000,000 in aircraft production contracts in the last year, will have his appointment April 15, the department announced.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 4, (CP)—Synopsis—The old storm centre which has been hovering over Northern Ontario the past few days has finally moved into Quebec. As a result much needed activity will decrease in these areas although cloudy skies will still prevail.

A second disturbance is centred this morning over Arkansas. As this storm moves northeastward towards Southern Ontario, it will bring cloudy skies and warm spring rains to the lower lake regions, and wet snow to the districts further north.

CANADIAN FORCES DOUBLE STRENGTH IN 20 MONTHS

Claxton Opens Debate In House on Defence

Ottawa, April 4 (CP) —Defence Minister Claxton, reporting on the state of Canada's defence preparedness, told the Commons yesterday that the Canadian forces have doubled their strength in the 20 months since the outbreak of the Korean war.

The forces had 95,300 men at the end of March compared to 47,000 when Korea started. The army had the bulk of the manpower with 49,300 officers and men. The navy had 32,200 and the navy 13,500.

Launching the session's first major debate on defence, Mr. Claxton said Canada has the men and equipment needed to fill 853 commitments to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. He predicted Canada's military construction and equipment program should hit its full stride about the end of this year.

His statement did not win unanimous approval.

The official opposition's military spokesman — Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. — bluntly declared that Canada's 27th Brigade in Germany is ill-equipped to play the role assigned to it and suggested that the army may be organized along out-dated lines.

M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, suggested Canada could make her best contribution in the air, as demonstrated in the Second World War.

Should Prepare Plan

Ray Thomas (SC-Wetaskiwin), a navy veteran of the Second World War, said a permanent defence plan should be prepared to deal with bacteriological warfare. The recent outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease had demonstrated the confusion which could result from a contagious disease among livestock.

Chas Claxton, quick in anticipation of criticism, concluded his speech by criticizing the "complete Wilbe of yes-but" men who he said are starting to qualify their approval of Canada's overseas efforts by all sorts of hindsight decision.

The Alaska-pact insurance premium had bought three years of peace—today is the third anniversary of the north atlantic treaty—but the west gained time people became less inclined to pay the price.

One Burned to Death

Huff, Que., April 4 (CP)—One man died and three others and their parents injured when fire broke out early today in a boarding house and gutted the dwelling.

The body of Henri Reland, 35, was found in the ruins after the blaze was extinguished. He apparently had left his bed and tried to get a futile attempt to escape.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Octave Reland, were able to force a window and drop two storeys to the sidewalk a few feet below. Both were taken to hospital.

The fire was traced to an overheated kitchen stove.

Attorney-General McGrath, Chief Prober Morris Get Axe; Big Cleanup Drive Explodes

By ED CREAGH

Washington, April 4 (AP)—The Truman administration's wo-can-clean-up-the-government war on corrupt program—organized two months ago—has blown sky high.

A federal jury sitting from Philadelphia, 56-year-old James P. McGranery, was called in today to serve as U.S. attorney-general and try to pick up the pieces of the anti-corruption drive.

McGranery's appointment confirmed by the Senate, and it looks as if he will be— comes to Washington in the slippery aftermath of the biggest governmental explosion to rock the capital since President Truman's middle-of-the-night dismissal of Gen. MacArthur.

The known casualties:

J. Howard McGrath, attorney-general, who personally plummeted out of the cabinet of his old friend Harry Truman yesterday with a set of tears, a statement that he was paying "the penalty" for doing his duty as he saw it, and a tip to his successor: "bring asbestos pants with you."

Newbold Morris, Republican "cleanup chief" for the administration, who first fired McGrath and later abruptness but before going onto the grassed aisles to meet Morris fed pigeons from a park bench in Philadelphia, announced he was fired because he wouldn't turn his corruption-to-government investigation loose on Democrats.

The man at the top, Harry Truman, announced he had fired both of McGrath, his 1948 campaign manager, at a turbulent press conference. Truman said McGranery would take over the clean-up-the-government program.

Feliz Gesture

Truman said McGrath resigned voluntarily. But this turned out to be a polite gesture toward a longtime political ally.

McGrath himself made it plain he'll be best sold out on disagreeing with Truman over the conduct of Morris' big-game hunting.

The whole performance came 24 hours after Truman, McGrath and presidential press secretary Joseph Short held a heated, sometimes fist-pounding huddle in plain view but out of hearing of top officials and diplomats at airport welcoming ceremonies for Queen Juliana of The Netherlands.

The Morris-McGrath rift which swiftly widened to an unbridgeable chasm—came into the open when McGrath told house investigators last Monday that he didn't know if he'd answer Morris' financial questionnaire or not.

This questionnaire was sent to 3,000 government employees and officials and was to have gone to thousands of other government people later. It asked every detail of the officials' finances, including the number of fur-coats in each man's family.

McGrath, who is well-to-do but not wealthy, is a Democratic become a millionaire since entering public office, balked at this. He told friends he wouldn't mind answering the quiz himself but refused to let his staff do so. He contended the questionnaire was an invasion of privacy.

Conflicts With Truman

This stand brought McGrath into head-on conflict with Truman. The President had instructed order six weeks ago telling all department heads to give Morris whatever information he wanted.

Truman told his press conference that McGrath fired Morris to reinstate Morris as special assistant to the attorney-general in charge of the cleanup drive, if he wished.

But McGranery indicated he felt the job might well be done by the gentle department-expert.

Morris was disillusioned, "I found no interest in any department of the federal government or any real desire to follow the investigations," he said. "Government officials co-operate in the cleanup effort," he said in a broadside against eight.

He first heard he had been fired when he read about it on an Associated Press ticker—before McGrath's letter of dismissal reached him.

"You'd think the bum would have had the grace to fire me in person instead of on the news ticker," he said.

Six Children Die When Fire Destroys Home in N.B.

Campbellton, N. B., April 4 — (CP) — Six children were burned to death early today when a converted barn erupted in flames in this small lumbering town on the New Brunswick north shore.

The mother and a small son fled just before the barn, 40 feet away in flames.

The fire started about 8 a.m. EST while the family was sleeping. It was quickly apparent fire-fighting equipment could reach the scene.

Details were not immediately available.

The dead, children of Mr. and Mrs. Odina Lavoie, are:

Jean, 11; Patricia, 9; Rosaline, 7; and Gisele, 5.

Georgette, 18; Eveline, 15; Odette, 14, survived.

Early reports said the mother was awakened by a cry from a neighbour and the blaze was gaining headway.

As she threw open the door, a sudden blast of air turned the building into a furnace.

Mrs. Lavoie was taken to hospital in this town of several thousand residents. She was suffering severe shock and cuts and burns.

Raymond, 17, suffered only minor injuries and shock. However, because of his grandmother, he is unable to tell police or fire officials a coherent story of the tragedy.

The home was located on Hillside Street, a slum area in the northern section of Campbellton. Most of them.

The family lived in two small rooms, which were partitioned off with old newspapers against the cold. The mother was sleeping with the six youngsters and left on one of the rooms when the blaze broke out.

Burning coal from the stove, which set fire to the newspapers, is believed to have caused the blaze.

The dwelling was badly gutted but still stood after the blaze. The roof was partly charred, including the cupola where pigeons had once roosted.

C.N.R. AGAIN FAILS TO PAY DEBTS; PUBLIC AID ASKED

Big Operating Surplus But Deficit Also Grows

Ottawa, April 4 (CP)—Once more in the red ink, the Canadian National Railways is looking to parliament to put it into the black.

The government-owned company had to come up with its customary debt-enforced deficit despite a big operating surplus and its wants parliament to legislate it into a business-like status.

The vital statistics: The C.N.R. had the biggest operating revenue in history, $654,854,000, or $71,000,000 higher than 1950. "It was the highest expense ever — $44,663,000. But it wound up with a deficit of $15,011,000.

The deficit, despite a 12-percent increase in freight rates which took effect last June, was $7,261,000 the previous year.

Wants New Deal

To beat the recurrent deficits, the company expressed the hope in its report, tabled in the Commons, that the Royal Commission on transportation calling for a new deal in its debt - burdened financial structure, now on unofficial estimates, would have transformed the railway into a profit-maker of around $8,000,000.

The deficit was the sixth in a row for the C.N.R., which always has earned its way on an operating basis but has found itself hamstrung by the interest payments on its big debt. The government-held loans alone amount to $750,000,000, which costs the company about $23,000,000 a year in interest.

"It is expected," the report said, "that the measure of relief proposed by the commission now will be made available to the railway in 1952."

Most Figures Records

Most of the National line's figures this year—outside of the deficit—were record ones. The gross revenue figure of $624,834,000 largely based on increased freight traffic that yielded $469,000,000. The freight-traffic volume was a record 70,000,000 tons. There was also a peak total of $654,854,000 in revenue freight carried over the 24,000-mile system.

Passenger traffic was up, and so was the railway's big hotel business and the air and communications system.

The railway also yielded $51,576, compared with $601,432 a year earlier.

REACH AGREEMENT

Akron, O., April 4 — (AP) The United Rubber Workers announced last night it had reached an agreement in a strike by 200 B. F. Goodrich Co. tire builders.

The strike was precipitated a week walkout by 12,000 Goodrich production workers.

Jacob Clayman, president of U.R.W. Local 5, said the agreement must be ratified at a meeting tonight at 8:30 p.m. (EST).

The office workers struck 37 days ago to protest the company's attempt to withdraw recognition of the union as their bargaining agent.

Blinded Dutch Immigrant Tot Reported to Have Recovered Sight

Vancouver, April 4 (CP) —When two-year-old Cora Dewaarts took her mother's hand a few days ago she was blind, apparently for life.

When she awakened, two hours later, she could see again.

Cora's story was told yesterday by her guardian, Mrs. Sid Hardy of Chilliwack, B.C., and corroborated by the child's doctor.

Mrs. Hardy met the sight in a trailer car crash Feb. 23 which killed her parents, Dutch immigrant parents and two brothers.

Cora was taken to hospital where she lingered in a coma for four weeks. Doctors found she had been blinded by a fractured skull—a skull fracture had either cut or pinched the optic nerve.

A short time ago she returned to the farm where her father had worked to be cared for by Mrs. Hardy.

Then, as Mrs. Hardy tells it:

"I put Cora to bed as usual just after her lunch Friday. She was no different than any she had been ever since she came home from hospital.

"She showed no signs of recognizing anything — not even her mother who up two hours later, sat up and looked around and said: 'Hardy'. Then she knew she had called me by when the family lived on the farm."

The Hardys plan to adopt Cora and her surviving brother and sister, Peter 9, and 13-year-old Annie.

Dr. Frank Turnbull, one of three specialists who treated her, confirmed that the child's sight had, in her sight, but said: "I wouldn't want to say anything on the case until I examine the girl again."

Municipal Voting In Britain Sees Big Labor Gains

London, April 4 — (AP)—Conservatives suffered severe setbacks in local elections that saw Labor pile up lopsided victories.

The Socialists — ousted from national power last October — came back in yesterday's county voting to show gains throughout all areas.

In the important elections for the London County Council — which governs the city — the Labor party gained 20 seats, 19 from Conservatives and one from a Liberal — among the first 84 results.

Conservative leaders said the vote was an inevitable reaction.

"Our opponents have exploited the difficulties of the nation for which they themselves are largely responsible," said Henry Hopkinson, leader of London Council Conservatives.

Herbert Morrison, former foreign minister, who directed the Labor party's campaign, was delighted.

"Undoubtedly the national political situation has contributed," he said. "The Conservatives at the general election made a lot of false promises. Unemployment, red meat, more food and lower prices."

Labor won 11 seats in Buckinghamshire and gained 10 seats in Middlesex. Both counties lie near London. In Cumberland, far to the north, Labor gained 7 seats and in Northamptonshire, centre of the shoe-making industry, Labor gained 14 seats.

The results of the last county elections three years ago showed a decided Conservative swing.

Labor now has full control of controlled the London county council for 18 years, finished in a 64-64 tie with the Conservatives there. A Liberal held the only other seat.

This year Labor won the Liberal seat and gnawed deep into the Conservative holdings.

Communists also suffered in yesterday's voting. The red stronghold in London's south Hackney district polled only 9,910 votes, against 10,212 in 1949.

Medical Men Said Optimistic About Cobalt Bomb for Cancer

London, Ont., April 4. (AP)— Now in its sixth month of deepray treatment of cancerous conditions, the world's first cobalt "bomb" has turned its atomic energy on the hopes and fears of more than 120 patients.

The results have been "very encouraging", says Dr. Ivan Hamilton Smith, director of Victoria Hospital's clinic, sponsored by the Ontario Cancer Foundation.

The new therapy of cobalt-60 gama rays already has established its safety will decrease in these areas although cloudy skies will still prevail.

Since then, inquiries, applications and referrals have come from all directions in and outside Canada. There is a waiting list, and workmen are constructing a new wing.

"There's no question that in the next few years the cobalt unit will be proven—no question about it," Dr. Smith said. "Rare cancers customarily withhold curative findings at least five years. Dr. Smith avoided "premature conclusions."

But the cobalt "bomb" is about one inch in diameter and about one half the size of a flashlight battery cell.

The cobalt-60 isodosage are being directed at a wide range of growths, including those that have withstood less potent beams, such as cancers of the lungs, gullet, pancreas, upper stomach and rectum.

Reeve Rollins Against Paying A Higher Fee

A recommendation that some form of compulsory insurance be instituted by the provincial government as protection for motorists instead of increasing the cost of drivers' licenses to pay for unsatisfied claims, was passed by Hastings county council today.

Reeve Clarke Rollins of Wollaston township introduced the subject through the notation that according to press reports it was the intention of the Highways Department to next year increase the cost of drivers' licenses by 50 cents to pay unsatisfied claims judgments.

"It looks as though encouragement is being given motorists not to insure for public liability," he said. "It is unfair that motorists paying insurance be penalized by also assisting to pay unsatisfied claims."

He said the hit-and-run phase of the unsatisfied claims could be justified.

Mr. Rollins explained that employers of large firms are being asked to contribute to such unsatisfied claims although they possibly do not themselves own a car and their employers already have vehicles adequately insured. It was to prevent over-lapping that he recommended some form of compulsory insurance rather than have unsatisfied claims paid from charges against drivers.

Harry Morrow, deputy reeve of Sidney township, thought the matter could be adjusted in another manner. He suggested that motorists who carry no insurance on their cars be required to pay an additional licence fee.

Cecil Geen, Huntingdon Twp. Farmer, Named County Assessor

Cecil Geen, Huntingdon township farmer, was named county assessor by Hastings county council at their Thursday session. He was chosen for the position over eight others who had applied for the job.

The new county assessor who takes over the office formerly held by Harry Harrison of Thurlow township, is a native of the Thomasburg district and has lived in the township all his life. He is a former member of Huntingdon township council and served as assessor for the municipality. Mr. Geen was in charge of the re-assessment of the township, which was conducted last year. He assumes his new duties as of April 1st. The position carries an annual salary of $2,000 plus mileage for his car.

Seven of the other applicants, including the former assessor from Hastings, while one applicant war from Quinte district, were rejected ing the appointment all nine applicants for the job were invited by council to appear before the council body. Later council went into camera session to discuss the

Personality Important

Prior to making the appointment council was told by M. R. Sloan, assessment supervisor for the Ontario Municipal Board, affairs, that personality and ability to work with local council was important in the person of their choice. "Experience was not the most necessary," he said.

He pointed out that a county assessor acted as a co-ordinator to local assessors and it was his job to equalize assessments within the county.

In giving direction-to the new assessor following his appointment he told Mr. Geen to keep in mind it was the local assessors who actually did the job of assessing. He urged that Mr. Geen use the publicity media in explaining the people with the object of assessment and of equalized assessment.

May Appoint Committee

Mr. Sloan asked that no attempt be made by Mr. Geen to re-assess more than three or four municipalities in one year. However, it was pointed that the entire county could be re-assessed within five years, three municipalities were re-assessed last year.

Appointment of an assessing committee from county council to whom the assessor would be responsible, was recommended.

Mr. Sloan went into some detail on assessing problems and urged that assessment be on a basis predicted be taken by the various municipalities. He suggested 1940 values be taken.

The Agricultural and Reforestation Committee recommended a grant of $25 be provided for the county forestry competition plantation there.

Reeve J. W. Anderson, Faraday township was authorized by council to take options on any suitable property in the Bird's Creek area for consideration by council as additions to the county reforestation plantation there.

The present county property was purchased several years ago for reforestation and is now practically all planted. Areas planted under consideration comprises an additional 200 acres, it was learned.

Toronto, April 4 (CP) —Support weakened slightly today as early afternoon stock market prices dipped.

Western oils opened slightly higher after yesterday's gain but sharp selling within the first hour depressed a broad list of issues. Losses, however, were mostly moderate.

Total volume for the first three hours 5,184,000 shares.

Western oil losses ranged from pennies to the 7-8 dip of Canada Southern, Harman, Fargo, Del Rio, Anglo-Canadian, Britalta, Central-Leduc and Royalite were among issues lower.

Refining oils and manufacturing companies led industrials downward with a scattered list of financial declines. Agricultures and papers also weakened while construction and retail stores held gains and losses in balance.

Base metals drifted lower as Consolidated Smelters, Hudson Bay, Noranda, Quebec Copper, Steep Rock and United Asbestos eased. Barvue and Normetal edged upward.

Senior golds made little headway. Secondary issues—Campbell, East Malartic and Conwest—slipped steadily.

Trenton Taxpayers Faced By Probable Rate Increase Of From 12 to 15 Mills

Trenton. (Special.) —Ratepayers tensed themselves today for an unavoidable shock as estimates for the various municipal departments indicated that the budget would call for an increase of at least 12 mills in the tax rate this year.

At the same time, some pessimists look for a 15 mill increase, or even higher. The rate was 56 mills last year. General assessment figures for 1951 were: $7,-855,566. Sharp rise in education costs of approximately $85,000 jumped the tax levy $7-12 mills, while requests for money grants from the Trenton Memorial Hospital and the Chamber of Commerce and extra spending by police, fire and public works departments influenced the budget boost.

The increase of 12 mills means that a landowner now paying $500 a year in taxes will be obliged to pay $620.

Now with every indication that the rate is going up 20 per cent, the taxpayers who weathered a hundred per cent increase in the assessment five years ago look for the treasurer to take another step in this direction as the only solution to lower the mounting mill rate.

The breakdown of education costs show that only about $13,000 of the increase is for high school costs. The remainder will go to meet new public school needs. Public school estimates were placed at $1,864,360.03.

Secretary of the board of education, V. P. Carswell, points out that the increase of $70,000 over last year's costs will be required to make the first payments of over $21,000 on the new school debentures, to buy furniture for the school, to pay salary increases and to pay an extra charge for loss on the debentures which was not sold as a high enough rate to cover needs.

Expenditure of $8,600 was estimated for the high school salaries, to be spread over 14 teachers, while in the public schools, employing 45 teachers, the increase amounts to only just under $20,000.

Special Meeting Held

Following a special meeting between heads of the Board of Education and the Trenton council last night, it was doubtful that teachers all across the board would get an increase in salary.

Public school teachers are certain to get the raise but high school teachers may be refused The question will be discussed at a public meeting in the town hall on Thursday night.

Commenting, Mayor Ken Cobeh said: "I understand teachers have put Peterborough and Kingston on the black list. I could not care less as far as Trenton teachers are concerned if they do the same.

Mayor Couch is deeply concerned about the rising mill rate. He said it was more serious than the average man could imagine. The Board of Education, at a meeting on Tuesday night, unanimously sanctioned an increase in all Trenton teachers pay.

Western Union Resumes Partial Service in U.S.

New York, April 4 — (AP) — Western Union says 39 key cities plus New York City will start sending and receiving messages among themselves today despite strikers' claims that their walkout is almost 100 per cent effective.

Some 31,000 workers, members of the Commercial Telegraphers Union (A.F.L.), struck yesterday in the first country-wide telegraph strike in the United States since 1919.

A separate threat of a telephone strike set for Monday by 40,000 workers in Michigan, Ohio, and northern California threatens to further snarl the country's communication system.

The initial impact of the telegraph walkout, over a wage dispute, cut the usual wire message flow to a trickle. But later in the day the company announced its "key city" message circuit plan because "employees are disregarding the strike call."

The company explains its "key city" set-up this way:

"The public at any one of 40 large cities throughout the country can send telegrams and money orders during any of the other 39 cities."

In Washington last night, however, Adolph Brungs, national president of C.T.U.'s Western Union division, said:

"On the basis of a late check, the strike looks exceptionally good. Western Union is sending practically no business."

Five Communists Given Prison Terms, Fined

Baltimore, Md., April 4. (AP) —Five communists and a party lawyer today were sentenced to prison terms of two to five years and each fined $1,000 for conspiring to advocate the violent overthrow of the United States government.

Philip Frankfeld, Moscow-trained district party leader, received the maximum penal sentence of five years.

Other sentences:

Regina Frankfeld, Frankfeld's wife, two years; George A. Meyers, former textile worker and Frankfeld's successor as district chairman, four years; Attorney H. Wood, party chairman of the District of Columbia, Maurice L. Braverman and Mrs. Dorothy Rose Blumberg, three years each.

The maximum sentence is five years in prison and $10,000 fine.

The defendants contended they were innocent of the conspiracy charge. Each except Braverman reaffirmed his faith in the communist party and expressed belief the conviction will be upset "either by higher courts or by the final judge, the people."

W. Huntingdon Farmer Found Dead Under Tractor

Thomas Edgar Elliott, well-known and highly respected resident of West Huntingdon, was found dead underneath his tractor early this morning, after the machine had gone over the end of a culvert, only a short distance from his home. He was found by some school children on their way to school, who notified their parents, Dr. E. A. Carleton, coroner and Dr. W. D. Cornett, the family physician, went to the scene but no decision has been reached as to whether an inquest will be held.

It is understood Mr. Elliott had taken his two children to the road to meet the Stirling bus and was returning home, when the accident happened. The C.N.R. bridge near the scene is under repair and it is necessary to make a long round about trip to get to the main highway and the road, that has to be used, cannot be traversed with a car due to the muddy conditions. Mr. Elliott had taken the tractor for transportation.

Suffering From Bad Heart

The deceased was suffering from a bad heart but it is not known whether he suffered an attack or whether the machine went out of control and ran over the end of the culvert.

The late Mr. Elliott was born at Holloway, 70 years ago, being the son of the late Simon Elliott and Mary Kelly and had resided in the community all his life. He was a successful farmer and took an active interest in all phases of the community life. He was a member of West Huntingdon United Church and fraternally was identified with West Huntingdon L.O.L. No. 300.

Surviving are his wife, the former Helen Thompson, two daughters, Mrs. Benjamin (Hilda) Acker, of West Huntingdon; Miss Shirley, at home; five sons: James, of West Huntingdon; Harold, of Moira; Robert, of Napanee; Glen and William, at home; one sister, Mrs. Annie Townsend, of Belleville; three brothers, Fred Elliott, of Moira; Simon, of Hamilton; Clifford, of Frankford, and four grandchildren.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

CONTRACTORS BUILT ALASKA HIGHWAY

That was an interesting and informative address which J. C. H. (Bud) Punchard, a Belleville electrical engineer, gave members of the Purchasing Agents Association of Eastern Ontario, last Wednesday evening.

Mr. Punchard emphasized that the road was built to defend North America in the event of a Japanese invasion of Alaska. He told of the difficulties, and how speedily to the American armed forces in connection with the highway. He also mentioned that, after the end of the war, when the Americans "gave" the highway to Canada, the Canadian army was made responsible for its maintenance, and that the R.C.A.F. has bases along it.

No one is suggesting that Mr. Punchard was trying to mislead his audience. But his repeated references to the military in connection with the building of the highway could very easily have given anyone listening an impression that the actual work was done by the American military authorities, or by the Canadian military authorities, or by both in co-operation.

Such was not the case. The Alaska Highway, although built for the American army, was not built by the American army. The work was done by civilian contractors, and most of them were Americans although at least several were Canadian. The government of the United States, in effect, gave the contractors a rough and ready idea of what was required, and told them to get busy.

Since Mr. Punchard is an engineer, and consequently a well-informed one, he is probably right in his contention that the building of the Alaska Highway was one of the greatest engineering feats of the last fifty years. But if the building of the Alaska Highway was a building of an engineering marvel, then that engineering marvel stands as a monument to the civilian contractors and their workmen.

A LIVELY CHARACTER

Melville Wilkie, who burned his wife and child to death nineteen years ago, has just been recaptured in Vancouver, after having been at liberty for about two years. Altogether, Wilkie has escaped from institutions for the criminally insane five times. Of Wilkie it might truly be said that stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage.

Since his recapture, Wilkie has explained that he did not really intend to burn his wife and child to death — he only intended to frighten them by setting fire to the home, for the relatively innocent purpose of collecting the insurance. Further, he says, he is going to start a legal battle to regain his freedom.

And day now, we may expect the announcement that Wilkie is writing an autobiography with some such title as "I'm No Crazier Than You," "Life Among the Loonies," or "How To Escape From the Madhouse." Wilkie's autobiography will probably sell well, and may even receive the accolade of being made into a movie.

We are going to keep an eye on Wilkie's career. He is a lively and colorful if not exactly innocent and harmless character.

GARDINER HAS GOOD NEWS

Farmers and cattle breeders will receive with a good deal of satisfaction the announcement, made in Ottawa on Tuesday by Rt. Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, that the outbreak of foot and mouth disease on the Regina plains has apparently been brought under control.

All diseased animals and all that had been in contact with them, said Mr. Gardiner, had been destroyed. Also, there had been no new cases reported for several weeks. Mr. Gardiner said he hoped to be able to announce "within ten days" that the disease had been wiped out.

We hope that Mr. Gardiner is not being overly optimistic. In any event, if the foot and mouth disease situation is as Mr. Gardiner assesses it, the veterinarians and bacteriologists employed by Mr. Gardiner's department were certainly on the job when they were needed.

JUST FOLKS

CLOCKS

We've a clock on a table in the hall,
And one on the kitchen wall,
But there's no tick-tock to the modern clock,
For a motor runs them all.
Gone are those seven-day clocks of old
Which memory calls to mind,
And on Saturday night 'til the morning's light
My father loved to wind.

There was one that stood on the mantel piece,
The family's joy and pride.
Round its open face was an ornate case,
A gift to the groom and bride.

And I still can hear my father say
With a wink of his eye of brown:
"Now wind must I, for a week's gone by
And our wedding gift's running down."

But things of the past must stay behind
When the new succeeds the old.
By night and day in the modern way
The time is being told.

Now a wire may break or the power fail
When lightning strikes the town,
But Saturdays find few clocks to wind
Since the wedding gifts don't run down.

WANTS NAME CHANGED

Ventura, Calif., April 4—(AP) —Abraham Pocza Juw, 36, Polish refugee who spent five years in a German concentration camp, believes the freedom he has found in this country to be so precious that he has asked the court to change his last name to Freeman. The petition, filed yesterday, states that "Freeman reflects the condition of freedom which the petitioner has enjoyed since migrating to the United States."

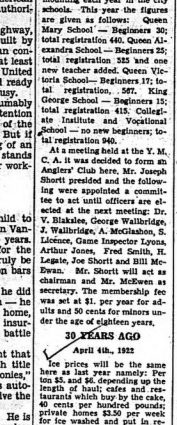
Mrs. J. W. Erskine is spending Easter with her parents in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ford of Toronto, formerly of Belleville are spending the Easter vacation here with friends.

Mr. G. A. Kingston, B. A., publisher of the Campbellford Herald, was a recent guest here of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Hanley.



Mr. Charles Lynn has been appointed by the Provincial Government to the position of Instructor in Dairying in North Hastings. Mr. Lynn is one of the most successful cheese makers in North Hastings and for several years he was in charge of the Evergreen factory, south of Hastings. He succeeds Mr. J. B. Lowry, who has been appointed Registrar of Cheese Associations.

Mr. G. B. Sprague has purchased from Mr. James Phillips his fine farm situated near Redmersville. We understand that the price paid was $9,000. or $90. per acre.

50 YEARS AGO

April 4th., 1902

Mr. W. B. Deacon, who has been manufacturing shirts here for some time in connection with his retail men's furnishing business, has put in more shirt making machines in order to meet the increasing demand for his product. He has now installed a complete up-to-date factory, using the very newest machines, the speed of which is 1,000 stitches per minute; also a button hole machine which makes about 800 button holes a day. The machines will be run by electricity supplied by the Trenton Electric Company. Mr. Deacon has the victory in the same building as is his store and two well lighted and airy rooms with all modern improvements are used. The cutting room has a capacity of 25 to 30 dozen shirts a day. Mr. Deacon informs us that orders on hand will keep the present staff busy for two months. His intention is to add more machines at once to take care of the business offered. We do not hesitate to say that with the same energy he has shown in his retail business the new venture can not help being a success.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

TRUE CONFESSIONS

One of our clients, evaluating in an attic trunk, has come across a scrapbook of Our Town columns dating back 15-odd years and has forwarded this worthless souvenir to our department where it has been received in the spirit of shame and nostalgia (shake well and serve iced).

I've never seen any of the old columns for the simple reason that looking back at the work of yesteryear (or yesterday) has a tendency to make me a little bit ashy.

Most people who write are this way. Writing is all a preparation for perfection. This hypothesis is its greatest curse.

I once asked William Saroyan what he considered his best piece of writing. "Tomorrow's," he said. I've yet to decide if this was humility or conceit.

The pre-pleasant reading back on these old columns, including the first item I've had a pre-pleasure of looking at an old album of photographs.

It fired me with an enormous, immodest affection for this eager young man, this stranger.

What enthusiasm this boy had! What delight he took in the simplest of things (here is a column in which I give a list of likes to smell things)! What a work of sentiment! What a lousy writer!

* * *

Column writing in those days seemed a whole lot easier than it does now.

I've quit writing these columns for a morning newspaper and I guess at my age I'm a bit more afternoon and never finished later than four.

Nevertheless, I may spend as much as eight hours sitting on this column before it is finally hatched. Another year or two of this and I'll develop the noisiest ulcer in the district.

It was easier because everything seemed new to me, a sitting target. Everywhere you looked there were clay pigeons.

I hold a theory that you can take anyone in off the street—anyone who can write a decent letter, let's say—and he (or she) will be good for a hundred straight columns without missing. I've never yet met anyone who didn't have a half dozen ready ideas for me or who having this many ideas, didn't think that it was a painless way to make a buck.

That was the way it used to be. Squared away before a typewriter 15 years ago I had to actually reject a flood of possible topics. I used to beat off subjects with a heavy cane. I could look through a window and erupt into type. The world was my oyster.

Now all this is refined and narrowed. When the buck privates columnists whispers an idea I do not rush to bundle it into words.

I take it out to the front of the store to look at it in daylight. I put it on scales, examine it under the microscope. Is it new? Has it been done before? (It is hard to keep track of before? (It is hard to keep track of it can't be much good). Will George and Martha like it?

* * *

George and Martha are the two people in this city whom Column Readers and they live somewhere in a back room of my cranium. I never peering over the transom.

Time after time I've seen George and Martha reading my column. Waiting in a hotel lobby only last week I saw a George turn to this page and begin to read this lonely pillar. His eyes were blank, the eyes of a petrified mummy. His face was expressionless.

Then—for a brief, moment—I had hope. A little appeared. I held fast to the arm of my chair to keep myself from crawling. Then he turned the page.

Oh, and I've seen the Marthas, too. I'll be sitting ahead of me in a bus, or in a waiting room or—once—at the other end of a party line.

Gad, they're selective! They must be possessed of the faculties or they drift away. Sometimes it's hard to know whether this is flattering or seduction.

The salvation is that you know they are pleased, not too-critical and often quite generous couple who pretty much share the same likes and enthusiasms.

It is sort of like playing a slot machine. You keep putting in your nickels, occasionally getting one back to keep you going, even three plums to keep you hoping you'll be a long while you hit the jackpot.

* * *

People sometimes ask me if I like writing a column and sometimes I tell them that. It can't just be liked. It's more than loved or loathed. Most of the time I suppose I'm just numb.

Given a subject which seems fresh and vital—and, more important, one that you feel strongly—writing seems pure fun.

Words themselves are full of fascination.

There are days when they will bounce and tumble and dance and come as easy as you do your idiot's delight.

But time-pressed, looking back over those 15 years, to find so much that was plain bad, and doubtless I'll have the same feeling 15 years from now in looking back. But there is always "tomorrow's" and you know!—tomorrow's might not be bad at all.

THE PACKSCH

By GREGORY CLARK

A few years back, whenever you emptied a can of peas or corn into a saucepan, you had to jiggle the saucepan and give the spoon a twist of a bit of solder amid the food. That was routine. The canning industry in fact was the main outlet for many a surprise. Besides little bullets in the pork and beans, and into a pebble in the pork and beans the canned tomatoes quite frequently gave you fruitstone, fruitcores and solid blobs. Those were the days when the opinion was quite universal that you must never allow your canned foods to remain in an open can for even a minute after opening, or you would be dead for sure. Everything in cans was always viewed with dark suspicion.

The canning industry has now been taken in the lifetime of this generation by the processing of food up to earth refining degree. It is not merely possible to prepare all three meals of the day from preserved food with only the barest minimum of cooking or other preparation, but unknown thousands of perfectly happy families conduct their domestic economy on this basis, and conceive of no other. The food industry is no longer competing with its self; it is competing with the housewife and the long tradition of the home kitchen.

To the food industry, nothing is sacred; the pies that mother used to bake are now fast and less in this age in which the pie is considered a staple. Even the filling out of a can or a neat little refrigerated pie is considered as grandma's reputation rested upon are now turned out from cardboard boxes by the chemists who were dunces at domestic science. It might be said that the food industry has revolutionized not only the lives but the character of womanhood. Be that as may, public health statistics appear to show no increase in general fee. How's that, ladies?

YANKEE BERIBERI GOES UNRECOGNIZED

Beriberi (Shighalese for extreme weakness) is less prevalent in North America than in the Orient and generally less severe in individual cases, because the poverty, deprivation, famine and starvation from which millions suffer in China, India, Malaya and the Philippines just doesn't happen here.

The cause of beriberi (otherwise called polyneuritis or multiple neuritis) is inadequate daily intake of vitamin B. Incidentally, the Dutch physician Eijkman discovered the cause of beriberi by producing all the characteristics of the disease in chickens which were restricted to polished rice (refined white rice) as their sole food for a few weeks, in 1897.

But Admiral Takaki, Medical Inspector General of the Japanese Navy, back in 1880, found that a third of the men in the Navy incapacitated by beriberi, grave radical changes in their rations and virtually eliminated the disease from the Navy. Takaki believed the disease was due to insufficient protein and his boosting the protein food in the Navy rations he happened to increase the intake of vitamin B.

The reason why Yankee beriberi (North American) goes unrecognized is that most doctors don't be children about it) is seldom diagnosed as vitamin deficiency and other nutritional deficiency disease to make a diagnosis before the victim is down and out, completely inexpectation with the full-fledged disease. Just as doctors in the nineteenth century seldom diagnosed pulmonary tuberculosis before the patient was coughing out with the third stage of the disease, namely formation, called "consumption."

The early signs and symptoms of Yankee beriberi are comparatively mild and therefore easily overlooked unless the physician's observation except for specific symptoms of existing illness or accident makes medical attention necessary. Even then the mild, chronic beriberi is usually unrecognized. After all, the patient has had it for years and assumes it is just natural poor health or functional disturbance, and the doctor does not tell the patient to think he is trying to make a case of it.

This is still a health column, so I do not offer symptoms for people to self-diagnose. Suffice to say that I have Yankee beriberi in mind when I say that vitamin B complex is a real heart tonic and that every one who suffers from chronic constipation or derangement of the colon ("mucous colitis" to you, Winsocr) supplement his or her diet with an optimal daily ration of B complex. Not for a week or a month or a year, mind you, but from now on. It isn't medicine. It's essential food.

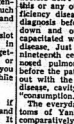
TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS



ON GIVING CREDIT

I wonder where any of us would be if we did not have the hope, cheer, faith, and courage that others give to us? We are the result of what others have done for us. To be generous in the handing out of credit due to others is the mark of a great nature?

Many times, even a thank you is often withheld for a life time. And yet nothing is more simple and easy than to say this every day. We cannot pay tribute too many times to those who have helped and inspired us. Every time it comments us to that person.

The head men of any organization who go among their employees giving credit to those are the happiest. Every time we encourage another we add to our own growth. Most of us can name some friend, relative, or teacher who was ever more than we can ever adequately repay.

It is the great general who is forever giving credit to those whose told that a betrayer was in their midst, asked in a hushed voice, "Lord, is it I?"

This question is the beginning of moral growth—the evidence of increasing spiritual maturity.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

IS IT I?

On the last night of his life, Jesus declared that one of His apostles would betray Him. Immediately they all began asking Him a question: "Lord, is it I?"

Note that they did not begin pointing to one another and asking, "Is it he?" They were a weak, faithless lot of men destined within a few hours to put on one of the greatest scenes of mass cowardice recorded in history. But a divine ferment had begun to work in their lives. Or, to change the figure, something of surpassing beauty had sprung up and was beginning to grow. They had been with Jesus where they recognized themselves as sinners. It was not the other man's sin which made an impression on them, but their own sin.

One of the measures of Christian character is the extent to which we have got over the disposition to blame others and the willingness we have to accept moral responsibility for whatever we do and for most of the things which happen to us. It would have been easy on the night Jesus was betrayed for Peter to have accused Judas, and John to Andrew, and Andrew to Philip, and Philip to Judas. But each man when

Legislature Approves Principle Of Bill Allowing U.S. Trucks To Use Certain Ont. Highway

Toronto, April 4 (CP) —United States trucks soon will roll across Southern Ontario, carrying goods in bond between Detroit and Buffalo.

But there won't be many of them, and they have to pay for the privilege.

This was announced in the legislature by Premier Frost when the Assembly approved the principle of a bill to permit temporary use of the province's highways by trucks carrying goods in bond.

Mr. Frost said the government will keep a strict control over such trucks, and was permitting them to enter the province only as an "emergency service" to speed the transport of U.S. defence supplies.

The bill will apply almost entirely to U.S. trucking between Detroit and Buffalo, using the route along No. 2 and No. 3 highways which is more than 100 miles shorter than the route around the south shore of Lake Erie between the two cities.

The traffic would be limited, the premier said, because of the "total inadequacy" of the two highways.

He indicated the move is being taken because of requests from "many influential quarters" for unrestricted traffic by U.S. trucks.

One request came from External Affairs Minister Pearson, who had written the premier that the freedom of Canadian trucks to use United States highways might not be continued unless reciprocal rights were permitted to U.S. truckers.

Limited to Defence Needs

The premier and acting highways minister Dunbar outlined the restrictions under which U.S. trucks will be allowed to enter.

Rates they will be limited to U.S. defence needs, Mr. Frost said, they will not total more than 50 a day.

Traffic would be limited to certain days and certain times. Ontario load limits, generally lower than in the United States, would apply. Trucks would have to buy Ontario licence plates and pay an amount equivalent to the province's gasoline tax on the basis of their mileage.

Both the premier and Mr. Dunbar stressed that the measure is a temporary one.

Mr. Frost told reporters after the sitting that if Ontario is required to permit unrestricted U.S. truck traffic, it may have to consider "another type of road."

There was a suggestion of a possible toll road in one of the premier's remarks in the legislature when he said that the ultimate solution to demands for unrestricted traffic was a limited-access highway across southwest Ontario "for which the users will pay."

The province was in no position at present to do that, however, and present highways could not bear the weight of unlimited U.S. traffic.

Can't Accept Problems

"We certainly can't accept the traffic problems of the city of Detroit and we never will," he insisted to."

Opposition spokesmen generally supported the government's arguments.

W. L. Houck (L-Niagara Falls) said he was forced to oppose the bill because of the possible affect it might have on employment in the railway centres of Niagara Falls and Fort Erie.

Mr. Frost replied that railroads would not be affected since the trucks would be carrying only material that now is being trucked the long way around Lake Erie.

The legislature yesterday also gave second reading to the bill providing grants in lieu of municipal taxes on provincial government property.

Liberal House leader Farquhar Oliver opposed the provision under which the municipal affairs department will assess the government property. He said the "dice are loaded" against municipalities because they could not assess the property themselves.

Brings Sharp Reply

To statement brought a sharp reply from Mr. Dunbar, who said the government was always considered "fair game" by the municipalities.

The assessing would be done in line with assessment practices in the municipality concerned, the minister said, and the local council could appeal the decision to the Ontario Municipal Board.

"We're the ones that are giving," Mr. Dunbar said pointedly. No municipality in Canada had ever received such a grant before.

A bill, passed with little comment, will increase the sessional indemnity and expenses of members to give them an extra $900 a session. A government-under-discouncil will restore the full pay of cabinet ministers to $10,000 a year.

They have been receiving $8,000 since a voluntary reduction went into effect during the depression years.

Premier Pinay Scores Victory In Budget Debate

Paris, April 4 Reuters)—Premier Antoine Pinay today scored another victory in the budget debate when the National assembly defeated a Socialist amendment calling for increased taxation of company profits. Voting was 406 to 186.

Pinay told the assembly beforehand he considered it a confidence vote.

The government suffered a minor setback later when the assembly rejected by 318 votes to 295 a government increase in automobile registration fees.

The assembly yesterday passed Pinay's main economy measure, authorizing the government to make cuts of $500,000,000 in civil expenditure and the reconstruction and investment program.

Also agreed that another key clause freezing a further $260,000,000 of reconstruction and investment credits should be decided by a confidence vote next Thursday. This made it almost certain it will be adopted.

Greedy Wastage of Fish Must Stop Columnist Tells Assoc. Members

Picton—Canadians will become known as the greatest nation of wasters unless steps are taken to curb the greedy wastage of fish in this country, Pete McGillen, newspaper columnist, told members of Quinte's Tourist Association at their annual banquet, Wednesday night.

"The only assurance for the perpetuation of fish game and forest conservation is the interest taken in them by the people themselves. We are getting dangerously near the bottom of the barrel and game wardens alone cannot curb the wastage," said Mr. McGillen.

"When the fish are gone, the tourist income will be cut in half. Without fishing, resorts would sell at 20 cents on the dollar, warned Mr. McGillen who urged that poachers be reported and fish protected in every possible manner.

Travel is Pains

Speaking of muskellunge, Mr. McGillen said they travel in pairs and since eggs have no protection, only 20 per cent of them hatch. Muskies should be 30 inches in length before they are taken, he felt.

The speaker detailed methods of artificial propagation of fish and deplored shooting and spearing of them.

"Every muskie in Ontario is worth $50 as an attraction to non-residents. Through infractions of our conservation laws there is wholesale slaughter in the waters of the Bay of Quinte, Trent River and Kawartha Lakes, and the small fine of $10 for out of season fishing by poachers is ridiculous.

Do Not Skimp on Food

Do not skimp on meals, Mr. McGillen urged resort operators. Good food will attract tourists even if fishing is poor, he said.

He urged that United States visitors be written and told that their dollar will not be discounted in Canada.

"Keep your customers happy, don't soak them. I know of no better way to commit suicide," he concluded.

Introduced by Roy Shortt, Mr. McGillen was thanked by Davie Wattam. Mrs. Gordon Bell and Mrs. Al. Owens sang solos.

Dr. L. Mackie was re-elected president; D. Wattam, vice-president; Mrs. W. J. Graham, Mrs. T. W. Learie, A. Owen, Iva K. Emorey, A. Marshall, Roy Short, W. West, W. Hepburn, Mrs. N. MacDonald.

Removal of Dam Is Proposed In Legislation

Washington, April 4 (AP)—Removal or regulation of Gut dam in the St. Lawrence River is proposed in legislation prepared for introduction today by representative Harold Herlong (Rep. N.Y.)

Ostertag contends that the dam, constructed in 1902 by Canada with the consent of Congress, has contributed to the high, destructive level of Lake Ontario waters.

His bill would direct the secretary of the army to ask the Canadian government either to remove the dam or install regulatory works so as to reduce the level of the lake.

Ostertag said army engineers estimate the dam has caused the lake to rise six to eight inches. This, he said, has contributed to "millions of dollars" in damages to lakefront property.

The dam is a few miles upstream from Prescott, Ont., and Ogdensburg, N.Y.

Ostertag, in a statement accompanying the bill, said:

"I appealed to the secretary of the army last summer to take action in this matter and he flatly refused to do so.

"Today, after further damage aggregating many millions of dollars he is still temporizing, although I am informed he is 'studying' the matter.

"The secretary has had all the time and all the evidence he needs to use the authority which was long ago conferred on him by Congress to abate this critical situation."

Congress consented to the construction of the dam on the condition that Canada would install regulatory works if the lake level rose to a dangerous point.

Mr., Mrs. Geddes Bradshaw Celebrate Golden Anniversary

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Geddes Bradshaw, Belleville, R.R. 6, was the scene recently of a most happy occasion when they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. It was just 50 years ago on March 26th, that Emma Martha Jones became the bride of Charles Geddes Bradshaw, at Roblin, after which the honeymoon was spent among relatives around the district of Thomasburg.

During the afternoon many friends called to offer their congratulations and to extend to them their best wishes for many more years of happiness together.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw were the recipients of many lovely gifts including china, glass, silver and chocolates as well as beautiful bouquets of yellow roses, and daffodils mixed with fern flowers, and greeting cards, and telephone calls.

Members of the Front Road W.A. presented Mrs. Bradshaw with a pink bouquet and corsage, and a basket of yellow and white snapdragons, yellow carnations and white daisies.

During the afternoon, the bride and bridegroom of 50 years ago were taken for a delightful drive in a car bedecked with gold and white streamers, following which over forty guests partook of the beautiful supper prepared by the daughters and daughter-in-law, and served by the sons-in-law.

A three-tiered wedding cake centred the bride's table which was decorated in gold and white.

Following the supper, a presentation was made of a purse of money, on behalf of the immediate family, by which Mr. Bradshaw voiced their thanks and deep appreciation.

Mr. Bradshaw has been most active; he was formerly employed at Marlbank in the Canada Woolen Mills, later he took up farming on the 2nd of Thurlow, moving sometime after to the 3rd of Tyendinaga, and thirty-eight years ago to their present home, Both Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw are members of the Front Road United Church.

They have six daughters, Mrs. C. Bedford (Gertrude), of Redmerrville; Mrs. R. Spencer, (Bessie) of Moscow; Mrs. W. Stone (Gladys) of Oshawa; Mrs. R. Snell (Alma), of Redmerrville, Mrs. W. Taylor (Audrey), Belleville; and Mrs. Lloyd Bowerman, (Glenn, also at home; one son, Murney, died in infancy. There are 17 grandchildren.

Among those present on this festive occasion were the bride's two sisters Mrs. Bradshaw; Mr. William Bradshaw, of Consecon; Mrs. Jeff Crews, and Mrs. Percy Bent, of Oshawa; Mr. H. Bradshaw, of Bowmanville; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bradshaw, of Belleville; and Mrs. Bradshaw's brother, Mr. Charles O. Bell of Belleville. Mrs. M. Osbrander, of Oshawa, was unable to be present.

Mrs. Bradshaw's brother, William Jones, passed away in Winnipeg, Manitoba, in February 1951.

Many friends join in extending their congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw and wishing them the best in the years that lie ahead.

Food Snobberies' Increase C of L Says Head of C.A.C.

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

It's a "daily heart ache" for Canadian women to shop in the face of soaring prices and declining savings, says Mrs. W. R. Walton Jr., of Oakville, Ont.

As president of the Canadian Association of Consumers, Mrs. Walton has devoted much time to studying the problems of homemakers across Canada.

Six months ago the C.A.C. announced whole-hearted support of the Dried Prune launched by the National Council of Women. Since then it has kept after its 12,000 members to carry the campaign into their own homes and those of their neighbors.

"Every time we enter a grocery-store, buy clothes for our children or call for the furnace, we experience the full impact of what inflationary conditions are like," said Mrs. Walton. "The Canadian Association of Consumers has appealed to its members to take the lead in practising self-discipline—to practise it now before further inflation can bring about economic chaos."

Economy Rules

Large purchases of sweet goods such as cakes and pastries do much to push up the weekly food bill, said Mrs. Walton. Purchasing in large quantities or by bulk helps cut costs.

"Weighing with families can co-operate to reduce the cost of milk," suggested Mrs. Walton.

Powdered milk could be bought this way in 50-pound drums.

The group did this and the 50-pound drum produced 200 quarts of milk at five cents a quart," said Mrs. Walton.

The C. of C. president has disassured herself that it's possible to reduce the quantity of sugar in recipes by as much as one-eighth of a cup when a full cup is called for.

"Food snobberies" should be eliminated, she said. Beef liver is soaked in the tastes like calf liver and costs half as much. Bologna is a nutritious food.

Inexpensive Whipped Cream

The C.A.C. head has an inexpensive method for making whipped topping from powdered milk. It looks just like whipped cream.

Ingredients: One-half cup water; one tablespoon lemon juice; one-half cup skim milk powder; two tablespoons sugar; one-quarter teaspoon vanilla.

Put water and lemon juice into bowl and add the milk powder. Beat until stiff, gradually adding sugar and vanilla at the same time. Beat until use as you would whipped cream. This recipe gives 2 1-2 cups topping.

Here is one of her suggestions for stretching a pound of steak: Meat loaf: one pound minced round steak; three-quarters cup tomatoes; three-quarters cup bread crumbs or dry oatmeal; salt, pepper; mix well. Add onion to taste. Bake from 30 to 45 minutes.

Sonja Henie Hopes Jinx Year is Over

New York, April 4 — (AP) — The "golden girl" who parlayed the figure eight into fame and fortune hopes her "jinx year" is over.

"I think," said Sonja Henie, "that we've licked the jinx. Bad things are supposed to come in threes — and we've had our three. In Kansas City it started, when I broke my ribs."

Actually the bicycle spill started last summer when her long and profitable ice show partnership with promoter Arthur M. Wirtz was terminated.

Wirtz signed Barbara Ann Scott, the former world and Olympic champion from Ottawa, to take her place.

Miss Henie pulled her own show together but found many of the big city arenas closed to her. She had her own portable rink constructed and took her troupe to many places which had never seen an ice show.

In Baltimore a whole section of seats collapsed on opening night and scores were injured. Just before the show in Kansas City, an engagement in a New York armory, she announced the show had been cancelled. Her own engagement had requested an additional $1,000,000 advance.

"In spite of the troubles," she said, "it has been the most successful tour I've ever had. I didn't expect to do half as well. It's hard to say, in terms of dollars, how successful we've been because we had to buy so many expensive things, like the rink and the ice-making machines and the lights. We've use them here after standee."

In Kansas City she said she broke three ribs.

"What happened was that Miss Henie took off on a leap and came down on the point of her right skate so sore and ice. She picked herself up and went through the show.

The strapping on her ribs had just been taken off when the jinx hit a second time in Baltimore. More than 200 suits have been filed by those injured.

Then came the demand for a larger bond from New York Armory officials.

"You cannot arrange for a $1,000,000 bond in a few minutes," she said. "It takes time and we did not have enough time."

The next day she filled the gap with a three-week stay at Havana-Cuba's Blanca Theatre, largest in the world and with its own ice stage.

Concert Association Season Ends With Fine Program By Baritone, George London

By EUGENE LANG

The 1951-52 series of concerts presented by the Belleville Community Concert Association was brought to a spectacular finish Thursday evening in the Collegiate auditorium as George London, baritone, appeared to both the Vienna State Opera and the Metropolitan Opera Association made his initial appearance before nearly a thousand of this city's concertgoing connoisseurs of the finest in musical entertainment. Of only two appearances in Canada this season, Belleville was one of the lucky cities to pay host to the this internationally famous singer (Montreal heard him in April 1951).

Montreal born George London began his singing career in California, where he moved in early youth. After singing opera in Berlin, Paris and Naples he made his debut with the San Francisco Opera, then turned to the theatre which culminated in a cross-country tour with "The Consul" finally landing in New York for the world premiere of Gian Carlo Menotti's sacred work. Concert tours followed under Arthur Judson management. Then, in the summer of 1949 he made his debut with the Met. in "Don Giovanni" with great success. He now has to his credit three years of this great organization, appearances with the Edinburgh Festival, Salzburg and Vienna Festivals in the first post-war 1951 Bayreuth Festival.

His sensational Metropolitan debut last November in "Aida" with the stage full of revered opening engagement with LaScala in Milan, Italy, in December. Here he has appeared his rich sonorous voice and magnetic personality have won him high laurels in his heaped up series of singing performances and now enjoys the reputation of being one of the most sought after of this decade. His operatic conquests continue to increase with each new performance, be it London, Vienna Boston or Milan.

Numbers Chosen Unknown

Even though practically all the numbers were known to the audience, the lack of knowledge on the listeners' part was considerably enlightened by the informal comments which George London introduced the majority of his offerings. His pleasing mannerisms and lack of frigidity (often encountered with singers) held his audience in attention from his charming way of putting over each number.

The sincerity of the Digure from Handel's "Deidamia" "Non vi turbate" as admirably realized as was the extremely florid "Aprite un po' quegli occhi" both in the same composer's aria: "Where the Tempest," a melomatic song, typical of Handel's operatic style of writing.

For his group of Germian Lieder, Mr. London sang four of the forty-three art-song that Hugo Wolf wrote after poems by Morike although each song differed greatly in emotional content, from the naivete of "The Musician" to the passionate lader "Secrecy" and once did the meaning in its truest and emotionally excerpted violin lose one iota of what the composer intended — this kind of song being, at times, a more difficult type to express to the hearers. The artist sang these songs (along with the famous "The Drummer," also by Wolf) with a pureness and simplicity seldom heard and rarely accomplished so effortlessly.

Two Mozart arias ("Madamina" from "Don Giovanni") and "Non Piu Andrai" from "Le Nozze di Figaro" were the only two operatic excerpts given on the program, but both were characterized with fervor and spirited vigor. "Madamina" is a favorite that always pleases, as Leporello itemizes the hundreds of amorous conquests of Don Giovanni, and made in his travels throughout Europe. The final Mozartian Gem "Non Piu Andrai" (encore and an accomplice) does let the audience in on all the goings on of Figaro, but it doesn't have the read "Punch" of the Italian original, however, it will suffice, to the detriment of the mother tongue, as the Italian is lost on the listeners on the other hand As for "Non Piu Andrai" — it was excellently rendered of Mr. London's remarkable voice to its best.

Five Spanish Songs

Five Spanish songs (all new to this writer) were a delight from beginning to end. Here we heard the real Spanish music with its great accents and tonalities backed by weird and starkly naked accompaniments. So different from what we associate with Spanish music (Ohlet, Ravel etc.), yet full of that earthiness and color of the Catalanian and Andalusian. His singing of "Granadina" by Mompou

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Jealousy—the love-killer.

What does a woman do when she has lost her love for her husband?

That's the desperate question one wife asks, after ten years of marriage.

Well, it seems to me that what a wife does under such circumstances depends a good deal upon what caused her love for her husband to die. It depends also upon what may possibly be done about the situation. For it is by no means unheard-of for a love that seemed wholly lifeless to be revived, if the right resuscitating measures are skillfully applied.

There are, of course, all sorts of reasons why love for a person may gradually grow weaker and finally seem dead. In this particular case, it is because that has done the deed; jealousy the love-killer.

Here is what the disillusioned wife says about what happened:

"What does one do when love is gone?

"For ten years, I've lived with a man who can't see anything because that green-eyed monster gets in his way. I wouldn't dare act naturally friendly toward anyone for fear of making him so jealous he threatens to pack us up and move to another part of the country, which he has already done on two occasions.

"This is the situation. I have a job in a hospital as a nurse's aide. This kind of work, of course, brings me into contact with a great many people. But my husband has singled out one man and is constantly telling me what a fool I am for even speaking to this man or listening to him talk. I never do, except when I have to for purposes of my work, but it does no good for me to explain this to my husband because he won't believe me. He is so nasty even our close friends talking to me that when they come around he is self-conscious that I know they must think I'm awfully dumb. Even the most innocent conversation with anyone gets me the third degree from him, and I've finally reached the point, where I feel as though I don't care if I never see him again.

Friendly Disposition

"I'm of a friendly disposition and I like people. Being cold and aloof, as he'd like me to be, just isn't my nature. If I could have my one great wish, it would be to have him get over understanding above anything else.

"The children suffer from all this, too. They are old enough to understand some of what he says, and I know it hurts them to think they might believe any of it.

"Do you think I should leave my husband, and make a new life, or try some method of bringing him to his senses? I'm not working for the job, but I do believe I have to, since he doesn't make enough to meet our expenses. As I said, I just don't see to have any love left for him. Ten years is too long to carry such a nerve-wracking problem. I've become so nervous that I had to see my doctor, and he tells me that my husband's behavior is what is making me that way. I've tried to get my husband to talk to the doctor, too, but he won't do it. He says doctors can't help, and that they would just try to pry into our affairs."

Now although this harried woman seems so sure she has lost all the love she ever had for her husband, I'm inclined to look at it a little differently. Like many another wife who has convinced herself that she no longer loves the man she married, I believe that if the husband were suddenly—or even gradually—to change, and become a kind, loving, considerate and understanding person whose chief aim in life was to make her happy, she would discover that her love for him was far from dead. For, I think, any woman actually in love with her husband very quickly has gone from it. But frozen love, like frozen fingers, can often be restored to living warmth and usefulness again, so no wife should make up her mind in too great a hurry that the way it feels at any given moment is necessarily the way it is going to feel forever.

True, the ten years of which this particular wife speaks is a long time to endure what she says she has endured from her husband. But I wish I knew just what her own reactions have been during that period.

Inferiority Source of Jealousy.

Does she realize, for instance, what is getting to be so commonly known these days that even the uninformed on matters psychological are apt to have heard of it—that jealousy springs from a feeling of inferiority within the jealous person himself? That he secretly believes himself a pretty dull fellow, and that other people are so much more interesting and attractive than he is, that he is constantly afraid the one he loves most will tire of him and turn to someone else? How would she herself act, if she felt herself so much less attractive than other women that every time she saw her husband talking with another girl, she wondered if he were comparing her with that girl to her own disadvantage?

What the jealous wife or husband most needs if to be made to feel that she or he is an important to the one they've married that nobody could possibly take that one away. Has this wife ever stopped to think that her husband may perhaps love her so much, and be so desperately afraid of losing her, that it actually frightened him when he sees her talking interestedly to someone else?

Oh, it's probably not quite so simple as this sounds. Jealousy is a very complicated thing, and not easy to cure. But before this woman threatens her husband with separation or divorce—probably the very thing of which he is most afraid—she might try, if she hasn't already done so during the ten years, giving him a lot of affection, a lot of attention, a lot of "building up" so that he comes to feel he really is first with her. Perhaps, in her desperation, she has consistently been tearing down his self-esteem by telling him all the time how foolish, how mean, how altogether unbearable he is.

Let her make this plan for awhile—for long enough to find out whether or not things show any signs of getting better. If they don't, after she has been patient and tolerant and kept her on a reasonable period, then it would be a wise idea for her to tell the whole story to the doctor and see what he advises. But one thing is sure: she will never be able to argue or reason her husband into a new and different attitude. If she can possibly do it at all, it will be through love.

Readers' Friday Column

QUESTION:

Will you kindly print a recipe for caramel filling for homemade chocolates. If you do not know of one maybe one of your readers would send me some if they have any.—Mrs. John G. H.

ANSWER:

QUICK CARAMELS

Two and one-half tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons molasses, 2 cups light brown sugar, 1-2 cup cream, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Melt butter, add molasses, brown sugar and cream. Stir, beating slowly until sugar is dissolved, then boil to 250 deg. Fahr. (Firm ball will form when tested in warm water. I do not recommend making caramels on any candy thermometer.) Add vanilla and turn into buttered pan to thickness of 3-4 inch. Let stand until quite cold, then cut into squares with heavy knife, until sugar is powdered. Wax paper squares.

VANILLA CARAMELS

One and one-half cups white sugar, 1-2 cup corn syrup, 1-3 cup whole milk, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 1-2 teaspoon flour, 2 tablespoons water, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix first four ingredients, bring to boiling, and boil gently without stirring until temperature is 255 deg. F. Remove from heat, and add flour which has been mixed to a paste with the 2 tablespoons water. Heat again to 255 deg. Fahr. Remove from heat, add butter, stir just to mix and pour into buttered pan. Let stand just long enough to cool so that you can handle it. Add vanilla. Now pull this in your greased hands until it is white and becomes almost too stiff to pull. Cut with greased scissors into 3-4 inch cubes. Nuts may be added with vanilla—up to 1-2 cup.

QUESTION:

I read your column every day and enjoy it immensely. I am a mother with three active pre-school youngsters. . .I love my job as housewife and particularly like to cook. My husband and children love my homemade bread. . . I am anxious to try my hand at baking that crusty chewy French Bread. . . I have scanned the recipe books for such a recipe but have never found one. Could you perhaps help me?—Muriel K.

ANSWER:

FRENCH BREAD

Two teaspoons sugar, 1 yeast cake, 2 teaspoons salt, 1 cup sifted bread flour, 1-2 teaspoon cornstarch. Cream together the yeast cake and sugar by rubbing with back of spoon. When creamy and smooth add 4 cups lukewarm water (just slightly warmer than your hand) and stir together. Into large mixing bowl measure the sifted flour. Make a hollow in centre and pour the liquid into this. Mix well, then kneed on a floured board until smooth and elastic and spongy. Cover and stand to rise in warm place until doubled in bulk. Do not hurry this—it may take all of 4 hours. Knead again and cover and let rise again until doubled. Mold into long loaves with pointed ends. Place on baking sheets, cover and again stand in warm place to rise until doubled and light to touch. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1 1-4 to 1 1-3 hours. Fifteen minutes before baking time is up brush loaves lightly with Stirring the 1-2 teaspoon cornstarch into 2 teaspoons cold water. Pour into this 1-3 cup boiling water and stir over heat until thick. Brush top of loaf and sides with this and finish baking. Do not brush loaf with butter, as do not cover when cooling after baking.

QUESTION:

I had your recipe for biscuits supreme but have hunted high and low and can't find it. . . —Mrs. E. MacD.

ANSWER:

BISCUITS SUPREME

Two cups stirred but not sifted all-purpose flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1-2 teaspoon each salt and cream of tartar, 3-4 cup milk, 1-4 cup butter or good shortening at room temperature. Sift dry ingredients. Cut in butter. Quickly stir in milk. Roll out and cut in 2-inch biscuits. Bake at 450 deg. F., 10 minutes.

Most popular wedding months.

Did you know that the latest statistics show that June is the most popular wedding month. . . with May a close second. . . August third. . . and September a close fourth?

Bridesmaids in short dresses: flower girl in a long dress

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My plan: a formal church wedding, four o'clock in the afternoon. I am to wear traditional white bridal gown, chapel-length train, bridal veil. My eight bridesmaids are to wear afternoon-length dresses; that is, a few inches above the ankle. However, I would like to have my lovely little niece (my goddaughter), who is to be my flower girl wear a long (floor-length) pink dress, the Kate Greenaway style of which you wrote in your column last week. Would this plan be correct; her long dress with their rather short dresses?—Peggy F.

Yes, today this would be considered correct, even though unusual. Today's skirt-lengths for wedding attendants are so varying. . . for example attendants at a formal wedding wearing short dresses, while the bride wears a most formal wedding gown, even with long train. . . that variations are accepted now which formerly would not have been considered correct. So, in your case if the little flower girl will look more engaging in a long, Kate Greenaway dress, I urge you to make this plan.

It isn't easy to be a stepmother . . . it's a challenge

Freckles that stay the year round

There are two kinds of freckles, those that appear when the lilacs bloom, and do a fade-away about with Autumn leaves, and those that take up permanent residence. Girls who have either kind seem to believe that the fairy godmother sprinkled them. The elders, having good-looks griefs that are far worse, often fancy that the little yellow spots make a girl look sassy and piquant. But that doesn't make her any happier.

It may be a bit of consolation to the spotted ones to learn that freckles usually appear on skins that are fine, delicate and thin. Some brunettes have them, some blondes, and a large percentage of redheads. Nature doesn't show much partiality in this matter. Sometimes they disappear in the early twenties, sometimes they continue into the forties. Few elderly women have them.

They are among the minor good-looks troubles. They are not unsightly, like pimples, or are they suggestive of uncleanliness, like blackhead secretions. They are caused by-pigmentary conditions. The Summer variety appears upon exposure to strong sunlight, and there are ways of protecting the skin against it. Creams should be used lavishly and often. Soap should never be used before going out of doors—or immediately after coming in, if the day is warm.

Mild bleaching creams are obtainable at cosmetic counters. They are not like the dangerous skin-flaying cosmetics that were used in the days before beautifying became sensible and hygienic. A lotion made by combining equal portions of peroxide and strained lemon juice is sometimes effective. It should be applied to a freckled face before retiring, allowed to dry on. After the face-washing in the morning, a little cold cream should be frictioned into the flesh.

It is far better to prevent the possibility of freckling by proper prophylactic measures, thereby keeping the skin free of the blemishes, than it is to subject the skin to exposure and have the bother of trying to remove the sudden freckles after they have become established. These measures consist of guarding the complexion from the rays of the sun—shading the face while out of doors by wearing a wide-brimmed hat—and by the free use of oily cosmetics.

A foundation cosmetic will act as a protective agent, as will powder with a creamy base.

Some women flirt with the idea of having a skin-peeling treatment. Specialists of good standing who do this work are few and far between. After all, it avails nothing, as the freckles will pop out again, as soon as the skin is exposed to the sun.

MARMORA

Miss Rorke, Returned Missionary, Tells Of Japan's 'Open Door'

Marmora. — A comprehensive picture of the Japan of today and the open door there for the preaching of the Gospel of Jesus Christ was presented at St. Andrew's United Church on Monday evening by Miss Lucilla Rorke, missionary of the United Church on furlough from that country, until September of this year, when she returns for her final five-year term.

Miss Rorke held the rapt attention of the fair-sized meeting as she unfolded her story. "Japan," she said, "is not one of the hot spot of the Orient today as Korea is; but it is one of the most critical centres of the East."

Communism and the East

She referred to words of Dr. Walmsley, keen student of communism, as it affects the East, to the effect that communists look upon Japan as an essential unit in their plans for world domination. The question is whether or not Japan, on the whole, is able to withstand communism.

The struggle is going on there between ideas and ideals. The end of the war left Japan like a spiritual vacuum. Now there are competitors with Christ for the hearts of the Japanese people. While the present strength of communism in the country is definitely on the wane, it is also the less most important.

Further conflict will likely start to play their part too. The Shinto religion is still existent and indulges in missionary activity, so it may be said that Japan is an arena and not a vacuum. Japan has the missionary task been more urgent in that country than now.

The Japanese are great listeners today and they are looking also to Christianity for their cure; try to see what are the fruits of the Christian way of life. They have discovered through the army of occupation, but not by force of arms will they see the fruits.

The United Church of Japan has increased its membership 14 per cent since the close of the War.

Development of United Church

Miss Rorke went on to describe the development of the United Church in that country since her return to Tokyo in 1947, "such development," she said, "had been largely dependent upon the Christian kindergarten with which she was associated in that city. The child," she declared, "is the key to open the door to love and Christian influence. The kindergarten works with the minister as a team to build up the congregation."

She reminded her hearers that the World Day of Prayer commences at Japan in its circuit around the world. The position of women in Japan has changed greatly since the war. She eulogized General MacArthur for giving them the franchise and for removing an evil in closing up houses of ill-fame.

Optimism Expressed

In her closing remarks she expressed optimism that when the years of enforced retirement older missionaries would be shortly completed, from the young women schooled in the United Church would be found those who in answer to prayer would perpetuate the work of the Christian kindergarten in that land.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. G. D. Young and thanked by Mrs. E. C. Preston.

Prior to the address, the meeting under the auspices of the W.M.S., was opened with a call to worship by Mrs. L. McGinnis. The hymn "Fairest Lord Jesus", was sung. Scripture reading was taken by Mrs. H. Vanstone. Prayer by Mrs. Hesmith Robins with readings by Mrs. B. McKenzie and Mrs. L. McGinnis.

Robert Sanderson, of Toronto, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dougald Sanderson.

The Catholic Women's League sponsored a successful supper in the Sacred Heart Hall on Tuesday evening. Despite the inclement weather a good crowd attended and enjoyed a bountiful repast.

The Rev. J. A. O'Neill attended the Forty Hours devotions at Belleville on Sunday evening.

SOME 25 PERSONS

Some of those left homeless were housed in McGillis Hotel for the night—almost across the street from the gutted building. Others went to relatives and friends.

Those left homeless included: Mr. and Mrs. Michael Ivashov and their three children: Mrs. L. Barringer; Mr. and Mrs. John Mahelet and one child; Mr. and Mrs. Ted Everett and one child; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fry, Foster, near Belleville, who moved there a month ago; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Murray, Mr. and Mrs. Bob McCallum and one child; Mr. and Mrs. George Nobotny and one child; Miss M. Merrian, and Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Burgess.

Mrs. Ivashov was in a nearby grocery store when the fire trucks arrived. She had left one of her twin daughters at home alone — the other girl is in hospital. She raced back and had trouble finding her child in the dense smoke. Finally Floyd Murray—father of Bob—one of the victims—went into the building and carried the child out.

CANADIAN FORCES

Canada's commitments to the Atlantic Pact this year are 24 naval ships, the 27th Brigade and four jet fighter squadrons. The brigade is in Germany. The ships are ready and the only thing that would delay the air contingent is shortage of airfields.

Since Korea started, he said, the navy has commissioned nine ships and launched six. Seven more on order and awaiting refitting; the army has built up two new brigades and reinforcements for them; the air force has increased the number of squadrons to 24 and is heading for 40 by 1954. Nearly 500 aircraft and 1,300 air crew have been added to the air force.

Waste Two Carriers

Gen. Pearkes, a veteran of the two world wars, argued it is time Canada had two modern naval aircraft carriers instead of one which can't handle jet planes and said army standardization appears to have misfired badly.

He reiterated his criticism of the 27th Brigade, which he said is built around three infantry battalions although it is serving in the great central European plain where mobile warfare would be possible. There were lots of infantry men available in Europe and the "one great advantage the west has over Russia is its scientific and technical knowledge."

Mr. Pearkes said Canada must insure that civilian control of the military is continued and expanded. The military must not be allowed to gain control.

He reiterated a plea for more economic aid to Europe and said that arms assistance will not win the fight against communism.

Mr. Thomas supported the request of Gen. Pearkes for more aircraft carriers, but said he felt Canada should have small, fast carriers for use particularly in anti submarine work.

The singing of several hymns in keeping with the theme of Easter were used throughout the program.

A social half hour with afternoon tea being served by the hostess, Mrs. Lane and her assistants, brought to a close an enjoyable afternoon. Twenty-two in attendance.

Campbellford—D. H. Craighead, B.Sc., of the mathematics department of the Ryerson Institute of Technology, Toronto, was the guest speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon on Monday, when he gave an informative talk regarding the work of that institution.

Introduced by past president, Arthur M. Loucks, Mr. Craighead pointed out that the Institute is an opportunity for education and stands in relative position between the High School and the University. It is, of course, concentrated on specialized fields, though some academic studies are taught. Entrance requirements include four years high school. Fees are nominal, an Ontario resident paying $50 a year which includes tuition, laboratory, medical, students' council, sickness and accident insurance and the student newspaper.

Advanced Training

Designed to give the high school graduate advanced training at minimum cost, it is a government-sponsored school. There are about 1,100 day students and 2,400 night students, taught by a staff of 90 teachers. Most courses take three years to complete.

The graduates readily find employment, and the standards are high in the twenty-seven career courses.

After introductory remarks, Mr. Craighead showed films embracing the lives of students in architectural drafting, merchandising, industrial chemistry, costume designing, electrical technology, home management, furniture design, interior decor, newspaper work, jewellery arts, metalurgy, photography and mechanical or tool designing, metallurgy and welding.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

One Man of Distinction

By ROY L. SMITH

Dr. Frank Meade, author of the universally popular book, "The March of Eleven Men," characterizes Timothy as a young man of distinction, but the word "distinction" is used in the sense of real distinction," and that he really was.

A Sober Young Man

He came out of a home dominated by the religion of his mother. There is a sense in which he never got away from his mother's apron strings. He did not try. He even seemed to feel that those strings tied him to something splendid from which he had no desire to escape.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for April 6: "Timothy, a Dependable Fellowworker" (Acts 16:1-5; I Corinthians 4:14-21; Philippians 2:19-24; I Timothy 4:10-16; II Timothy 2:1-13.

The very first glimpse we get of him is of a sober, industrious, high minded youth who was strong enough and good enough to live courageously for a fine ideal in the midst of trivial and vulgar people.

He could stand alone; he did not have to surrender to the solicitations in order to become popular. His character commanded respect even before it reckless.

A Dependable Young Man

He had proven to the world that he could be relied upon. The strength of his convictions and the sturdiness of his principles was such that men who had temptable natures trusted him.

In striking contrast to many another young man of his town and time, he could be trusted. If he were given a task he could be relied upon to keep the trust. That really distinguished him.

Intelligently Religious

Timothy's mother was a Jew-

ess, and his father a Greek. This kind of marriage was not so uncommon in the ancient Roman world, where the Jews were scattered throughout the empire.

It is quite evident that the mother's influence in the home was the dominating one. The Jewess she had trained her son to be a good Jew, and nothing less a good Jew. Then, when she became convinced of the claims of Jesus, she led her son into the new faith beside her. She did not say, "I will let him grow up without training, and then let him choose for himself when he comes of age." Paul, the scholar and the university man, found him to be a highly intelligent young man who was also devout. These two qualities always marked him as a youth of distinction.

Some Things He Missed

It is true that, as an intelligently religious, sober, and thoughtful young man, he had missed some things.

He was never discharged for drunkenness. He never caused his mother anxiety or his father shame; he never stood up some wild escapade by landing in the police court; his father never had to go down to the newspaper office to "keep it out of the papers"; he never had to borrow from his friends to pay his gambling debts or to clear up his liquor bills; he never had to evade his mother's questions or falsify his records down at the office; he was never terrified when one of his companions began to talk in the presence of those who trusted him; he had no fear when someone knocked on his door in the middle of the night.

He was a young man of distinction, who knew how to make a friend out of his past.

Siam's Opium Dens Derelicts' Haunts, Barred to Natives

By BILL ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Bangkok, Thailand, April 3 (CP)—Every customer in the place was a derelict. There were 300 or more, rooted to their stalls by a long broad pipe and a dime's worth of opium.

Some were raised on an elbow, inhaling deeply; others flat on their backs lost in narcotic dreams. Some were solitary smokers; others shared a pipe between them.

The den I saw is one of many in Bangkok, where opium is forbidden to the Siamese but open to the foreigner. Most addicts are Chinese, but a few are Indians.

One buys the opium at a wicket near the entrance. Ten cents buys an hour's smoke of average quality. The best smoke sells for 25 cents.

Interior of the den is like a huge barn, with an upper storey reached by a ladder stairway. The room is partitioned only at shoulder height into stalls for two men each and the floor on which they sit or lie is raised about three feet. A visitor walking down the narrow aisles sees the customers on either side at thigh level.

On the ground floor were 100 men in various states of trance, and another 100 were sitting.

All were almost gaunt, with sunken eye-sockets, and none seemed to mind being seen in the dingy, sultry half-light of the place. Some were youths, most were middle-aged.

In Bangkok they say that if you see a person who elsewhere might be taken for a malnutrition case the chances are he is an "opium-eater." There is a den in every quarter of the city, and all prosper.

The pallet of opium is put on the ladle end of a long-handled narrow spoon which then is inserted into a glass-walled lamp. There the brown stuff is heated over a flame until it becomes volatile. When judged ready to be lit, the pellet is put into the large wooden bowl of a pipe, which then is turned upside-down with the bowl over the lamp. A few puffs and it is smoking like an ordinary pipe.

Opium pipes are so large that two men handle them, one doing the puffing while his partner holds the bowl over the flame. Once the thing is going it it passed between them.

There isn't much noise—only a subdued murmur, despite the number of smokers.

"These men live only to spend their time heroic," said my interpreter. "They forget their families, their friends and their work.

"All they want is the little money it takes to buy their daily opium, and back they come."

PHOTOGRAPHER WINS

Port Arthur, April 4 (CP)—Bill Snelgrove, staff photographer for the News Chronicle here, didn't need to look far for the subject of an assignment yesterday.

He was told to get a picture of the winner in the annual contest based on the arrival time of the first vessel of the season. He noted the official time in the log book of the Scott Misener—10.19 a.m.

Municipalities Given Powers To Regulate Races

Toronto, April 4—(CP)—The Ontario legislature's municipal bill committee Thur., approved a section of a government bill amending the Municipal Act to give municipalities power to regulate or prohibit stock car and motorcycle races.

F. G. Gardiner, counsel for the Oakwood Stadium in Toronto, said the stadium invested $100,000 for stock car racing. He urged that the bill should not apply to places already under construction for auto racing or where races are already being held.

Reeve Fred Hall of York Township said the noise of races at the stadium is damaging the health of residents in the area.

The committee also approved a section in the bill to give municipalities power to prohibit use of trailers for human habitation for more than 60 days.

The committee also approved a section which will prohibit the selling on highways of books, periodicals or magazines, or subscriptions for them.

CAMPBELLFORD

Good Friday Service

Campbellford—The local Ministerial Association have again made plans for the annual Good Friday service. This year the service will be held in the Glad Tidings Tabernacle on Friday, April 11, at 11 a.m., with the Rev. A. E. Toombs of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, as guest speaker.

The service on previous occasions has been of great spiritual value, and it is hoped that a good representation from all local churches will be on hand this year.

Assembly-Circuit

Seventeen members of the local company of Jehovah's Witnesses were among the 900 delegates attending the semi-annual Assembly of Circuit held in Oshawa, Ontario, from March 28 to 30.

The main feature of the convention program was the public address delivered by the District Servant, L. K. Greenlaw, on "What Religion Will Survive the World Crisis!"

Mr. and Mrs. William W. Reid have returned from Chicago, Ill., where the couple went to attend the funeral of Mrs. Reid's brother, who died as a result of a motor accident last week.

The Campbellford Memorial Hospital Board had decided to give the public a chance to inspect the new building and will hold the hospital open for public inspection from 3 to 5 p.m., on Saturday, April 5. The board hopes citizens of the town and surrounding country will avail themselves of the opportunity to inspect the new structure.

A drive for funds is now under way, and it is hoped the institution will be in operation by this fall.

Boston Blanks Canadiens 1-0 To Take 3-2 Lead In Stanley Cup Series

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THE KICK-OFF

By the time this is being read the junior Hawks will be well on their way to Weston where tonight they start the most important series of their young career. They meet the Weston Dukes in a best-of-seven series for the right to meet the western Ontario semi-finalists for the junior "B" championship of Ontario. The second game of the series is scheduled for Belleville next Tuesday night and after that the teams will alternate Tuesday and Friday nights until the series is completed.

Defeated last Tuesday night by a 5-3 score in a game that meant little or nothing, the Hawks came up with an inspired performance that was not on a par with the brand of hockey they are capable of playing. At that they tossed a goddlemighty scare into the "Little Leafs" leading them at one time by the odd goal in five.

The first string line of Lalande, Strahan and Jacklin were not up to par from a scoring standpoint, but with the money series starting tonight and the playdown chips on the table, the Hawkiders are expected to come through with one of their better performances.

Incidentally this is the first time a Belleville Junior "B" squad has advanced to the Ontario Hockey Association semi-finals. Starry junior squads of the past have performed in lower categories, or different classifications and even at that it is some time since a Belleville squad got a glimpse of a championship looming over the horizon.

The Hawks are in good physical shape for the tilt and since last Tuesday's game have been sent through stiff workouts by Coach "Red" Doran. The Hawks proved they are "money" players in the series with Kingston and Barrie and it is the consensus of those who have seen them play against the others that if they come up with the brand of hockey they are capable of playing they stand a better than fifty-fifty chance of winning this series.

A BLACK ONE FOR HABS!

There were too many bums in the National Hockey League pea soup last night in Montreal and as a result the Boston Bruins are back on the fancied Habitants in their quest for a seat at the National Hockey League finals banquet table.

Chef Lynn Patrick had a carefully prepared menu to dish up to the Irvine hungry — and it paid off but plenty. Jackie McIntyre tossed the traditional overalls in Mr. Irvine's chowder with a third period goal that stunned the record crowd of loyal Habitant supporters. After that the Bean-eaters led by crafty sawbuck chef Milt Schmidt played it to close the gravy splattered over their hockey vests and left the boys from Bean and Cod Town favorites to cop the series. It was their third victory in a row and all Beaten from snooty Back Bay to the Commons bourgeoneorie is up in cheering arms for the team that was not even considered a playoff prospect at the starting gun, Stich game in Boston Sunday night.

DO OR DIE TONIGHT

Trenton Flyers and Marmora Millionaires clash tonight in their fourth meeting for the championship of the Trent Valley at Memorial Arena. Flyers hold a one-game lead and a victory tonight will give them the title and the baubles that go with it. On the other hand the Millionaires are confident they can take the measure of the Flyers here and force the series into a fifth game. Should be a classy joust, one that should draw the largest crowd of the series.

Bruins Win Third In Row With McIntyre Hero of Game; Play 6th In Boston Sunday

By W. R. WHEATLEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, April 4 (CP)—What may turn out to be the money goal of the series belongs to 21-year-old Jack McIntyre, Boston Bruins' husky young winger.

It was the only goal of the game last night but it was enough to send Montreal Canadiens reeling, a jolting blow that swung this best-of-seven Stanley Cup hockey semi-final in Bruins' favor, three games to two.

The goal came after 43½ minutes of play and the victory climaxed a roaring comeback to the Bruins. They now have taken three games in a row—two of them on the Boston ice. They return home for the sixth game Sunday in a commanding position to take the series and meet Detroit Red Wings in the cup final.

All the glory wasn't McIntyre's, Up front, the Boston forwards covered their backs. Defensively was almost faultless. Behind them was a brilliant goaltending performance by Sugar Jim Henry.

Ferocious Bruins

It was a tough loss for Canadiens, who took the first two games at home and then ran into a sudden streak from the Bruins. After the double loss in Boston, the Habitants bounced back in front on taking the all-important fifth game at home and moving within a goal of defeating of the series. They poured 31 shots against the 28 that Sugar Gerry McNeil stopped in the Montreal cage.

As the game wore on, it appeared it might run into overtime for the first time in the series.

The break came in the third period and it was the Bruins who were hammering away at the Boston defence and trying to find some way of getting the puck past Henry.

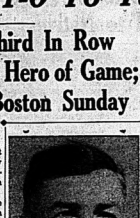
From a scramble near the Boston blue line, Dave Creighton came out with the puck. He sent a short pass to Johnny Peirson and the two broke fast with McIntyre flanking Creighton. As they reached the Montreal defence, Peirson napped over a pass to McIntyre.

McIntyre, under full tilt, cut in sharply across the goalmouth. As the goalie went down in an effort to save, McIntyre lifted the puck over him cleanly into the net.

First for McIntyre

It was the first goal of the series for McIntyre, a native of Brussels, Ont.

The lone goal proved all the Bruins needed. Canadiens toured in power plays and tried everything. They ran into methodical checking and stubborn defence.



Canadiens had their best scoring opportunities in the first period when they outshot Boston 12-6. It was a rugged, rough period in which all seven minor penalties of the game were called. Four went to Canadiens and three to the Bruins.

But Henry was the rescue man cutting off everything down at the Montreal end. Leo Labine of the Bruins missed a gaping net when he tripped over Ken McNeil was flat on the ice.

With canny Milt Schmidt showing his mates how, the Bruins played a careful, deliberately defensive game through the rest of the second period. When they opened the third period they were even and when the period ended Canadiens were the ones who were hanging on.

Once the goal was theirs, the Bruins played even more ragged. Canadiens had only 10 shots on Henry in the final period.

Canadiens, weak down centre through the loss of two men because of injuries, lifted the gap with defenceman Tom Johnson on the third line. Johnson played a hard, aggressive game. Paul Meger, left-winger on the second line, was about the most effective forward.

Mohawks Scalp Providence Reds For First Win

(By The Canadian Press)

Cincinnati Mohawks outscored Providence Reds 3-1 in the battle of the disallowed goals in the American Hockey League Thursday night to chalk up their first victory in the best-of-five, semi-final series.

Providence leads the series 2-1 with the winner meeting Pittsburgh Hornets for the league championship and the Calder Cup.

Cincinnati scored three goals that were not allowed and the Reds had one called back.

Goalie Emile Francis of the Hawks had a shutout perking until 17:39 of the third period when Moe Morris slapped a 15-foot shot off Francis' glove that rolled into the net.

Chick Webster scored Cincinnati's first counter at 2:22 of the first period on a 30-foot screened shot. The Hawks scored two other goals but each time the referee disallowed them.

There was no official scoring in the middle period, but Providence found itself scoring a goal which didn't count. The puck appeared to have gone in, but the goal judge said it did not cross the line.

Twenty-four hours by Bob Fryday and Eddie Harrison, in that order, wrapped the game up for Cincinnati. Harrison scored another goal later, but the Hawks were ruled offside on the play.

They'll Do It Every Time

By Jimmy Hatlo

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

For the second time in the long history of Britain's famed Grand National Steeplechase, a Canadian-sponsored horse tomorrow will seek victory.

A small group of Canadian racing fans is at Aintree today. Their hopes are pinned on an 11-year-old bay gelding which once won a last-minute reprieve from a glue factory. The horse, Tantivy, is partly owned by a Toronto investment broker, Charles Burns, 44.

Tantivy was a 100-1 choice in a field of 50 entries when Burns acquired an interest in the bay last week but the odds dropped to 50-1 yesterday, possibly as a result of "sentimental" bets from Canadians.

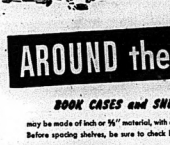
In the rooting section are Burns, his wife, the daughter of Senator Cairine Wilson of Ottawa, and 75-year-old George Leacock, brother of the great Canadian humorist, the late Stephen Leacock. They will sit in the "second best box" at the track which belongs to Lord Sefton.

Tall Texan Ray Gifford, who seldom competes in golf tournaments, and pudgy Johnny Palmer of North Carolina led opening-day play yesterday of the 16th masters' at Augusta, Ga. They shot 69s. Stan Leonard of Vancouver, only Canadian entrant, had a 75.

Washington Senators yesterday announced they were giving the renowned travelling man, Bobo Newsom, another chance to make good in the majors. The 43-year-old pitcher whom they plan to use in relief roles is hired for the fifth time by Washington.

He has pitched for every club in the American League except Chicago and Cleveland. And for variety has turned up on the rosters of Chicago Cubs, Brooklyn Dodgers twice and New York Giants in the National League.

Pitcher Bill Werle, who won eight and lost six for Pittsburgh Pirates last year, was fined $500 and suspended indefinitely yesterday at Beaumont, Texas, by manager Billy Meyer. Meyer ordered the 30-year-old southpaw back to Pittsburgh for "breaking training rules."



WIN CAGE TITLE

Brantford, April 4 (CP)—Brantford Y Grads last night won the Southern Ontario Intermediate B basketball championship when they downed Stamford Grads 67-52. The victory gave them the two game series 114-101.

The game was both fast and rough with a total of 35 fouls being called. Both teams lost two players on fouls.

Belleville Golf Wins Major A Pinfall Purse

Bowling, like hockey, is unpredictable. Anything can happen once the chips are down.

That theory was proved playoff of the Major "A" league last night.

The boys to get championship, scholarship and whatever kind of dough the serious business of toppling the timbers for the top spot brings.

Moore's Chisellers, who won the third and fourth sectional titles had to be satisfied with second money. Schwab's sudden sectional champs had by the wayside and the head of the caller, Belleville Golf Alley's sectional winner, hitched up his shirtsleeves, took a couple of belleyer water and proceeded to lay down the law. They could consider the mules when pinfalls meant something. Last night they meant spectators and the lettuce that went with it.

The scores in order: Belleville Golf (Sid Mills) 3322; Moore's Chisellers 3266; Jones Insurance 3231; Schwab's 3226; Ole Chasers 3123; Kitsmen 3043; Callaghan's Ice 3972; Schwab's 2987.

High scores were: Ron Saylor 302 (298); J. Legault 746; R. Ragshaw 759; Cec Hardwick 734 (300); W. Dingman 775 (309); A. Wemp 734 (300); J. Martin 719; T. Bellis 734 (284); D. Pointer 732 (305); F. Ballard 734 (300); Ken Smith 3226 (960 (297); E. Calebourne 667; W. Kiser 685; J. Callaghan 680; J. Cowles 650.

Nothing Compulsory In Nat. League, 'Not Hiding Anything'--Campbell

Montreal, April 4 — (CP) — President Clarence Campbell of the National Hockey League said last night he "will go right along with" Bona Arsenault, Liberal member of parliament, on Arsenault's statement regarding hockey players.

"We don't compel anybody to do anything," said Campbell.

Mr. Arsenault said in Ottawa that the N. H. L. "conducts a real slave market." He placed on the order paper of the House of Commons a bill that would make it an indictable offence to unduly restrict the freedom of players to play with the club of their choice.

Opposed to Things

Said the N. H. L. head:

"I am just as much opposed to these things as Mr. Arsenault is. I would be happy to know from him or anyone else about persons obliged or compelled to do them.

"We have nothing to hide. There is no compulsion on our part and never has been . . ."

Lumber Kings Edge Jonquiere; Lead Series 2-1

Jonquiere, Que., April 4 (CP) — Pembroke Lumber Kings today are within one victory of reaching the eastern Canada finals in Allan Cup play following a 4-3 decision last night over Jonquiere Aces.

The victory gave them a 2-1 lead in games in the best-of-five series and a victory tonight would wrap up the series and send the Ontario squad into the eastern final.

The Lumber Kings had to come from behind for their victory and it was three quick goals in the third period that did the trick.

Jonquiere took a 1-0 lead in the opening period on a tally by Paul Gagnon and brought the count to 3-0 in the middle frame.

B. Giesebrecht got the Pembroke team back into the game in the second period but Marcotte shot the Aces into a two-goal lead once more.

Then, in the finale, Maxwell, R. Giesebrecht and Inglis rallied in that order to mark up the margin of victory.

Gans, Collingwood Play 4-All Tie In Series Opener

Collingwood, April 4—(CP)—The Gananoque Gans and the Collingwood Shipbuilders played to a 4-4 overtime tie here last night in the first game of their best-of-seven Ontario Hockey Association Intermediate "A" semi-final.

The Shipbuilders led 4-3 with less than four minutes left to play in the third period but the Gans tied it up on goals by Switzer and Atkins. It was the third goal of the night for Atkins.

Johnny Cochrane rattled home two goals for the Builders, Len Cook and Les Fairchild one each.

After seven minutes of overtime Tyndall broke right in on the Collingwood net, pulled Westbrooke out and then hit the goalpost with his shot.

Browns Bolster American League Says Harridge

Chicago, April 4 (AP)—President Will Harridge of the American League thinks his circuit will be stronger this season than ever before, mainly because of the revitalized St. Louis Browns.

Harridge, who recently returned from his annual Florida tour, said that "there will be no more feeding by oth-" clubs on the Browns."

"We feel we're now in good hands in St. Louis," continued Harridge, A. G. boss since 1931. "The Browns will give us a major league all the way around. Year after ye- there was no improvement in the draw. I only look for St. Louis but Bill Veeck has livened up the town as only Bill can."

Petes Defeat Stouffville 7-6

Peterborough, April 4 — With five seconds to go, Arn Dugan slapped home a goal which gave Peterborough Petes a 7-6 win over Stouffville Clippers in the first victory of the OHA Senior best-of-seven quarter-final. Stouffville leads the set, 2-1.

Peterborough led, 2-1, in the first period and had a 4-3 edge going into the third. It was tied twice in the last 20 minutes before the winning goal went in.

A crowd of 2,200 saw the fast, clean game, had only five penalties, four of them to Stouffville.

Leading the local attack were Gus Leonard, Junior West and Dugan—with two goals each. Freddie Garvey fired the other.

For the Clippers, Ken Bell tallied twice while singles were inserted by Frank Stevenson, George Stark, Jack Watson and Nick Bangay.

Fourth game of the series will be played in Stouffville Saturday.

HAD GOOD SEASON

St. Williams, Ont., April 4 — (CP)—Trappers in southern and western Ontario wound up their muskrat harvest this week. The bag is expected to surpass the record 724,000 caught in 1950 and worth $1,447,000.

Trappers described this year as "a terrific season." One trapper, Charlie Beeves of Long Point, caught more than 700. Pelts will bring from $1.75 to $2 each.

16-MILL RATE SET

Walkerton, April 3—(CP)—Walkerton, April 3—(CP)—Walkerton town council last night struck the 1952 tax rate at 16 mills, an increase of six mills over last year.

More than five mills of the increase was attributed to the new Walkerton district high school which was opened last fall. It cost $500,000.

Pirates Will Obey Training Rules; Manager Bill Meyer Cracks The Whip

Hattiesburg, Miss., April 4 AP) — Manager Bill Meyer let his Pittsburgh Pirates know today they will have to obey training rules if they want to stay with the Bucs.

Meyer, who fined southpaw pitcher Bill Werle $500 and suspended him indefinitely for an unspecified violation of the rules yesterday, read the riot act before the Bucs got ready to take the field against the Chicago Cubs.

"This is only the beginning. I will not tolerate any more violations of training rules. I'm through covering up. We've got too any kids on our team and I'm going to protect them," he declared.

Meyer said waivers will be asked on Werle. The 30-year-old hurler, who cost the Bucs a reported $50,000 four years ago, was sent to Pittsburgh to await instructions.

Werle didn't say what training rule he accused of breaking. However, he intimated other Bucs players may have broken some of the rules.

Made Scapegoat

"If it's coming to me, I deserve it. But I'm being made a scapegoat."

Werle was the third player Meyer has fined or suspended during a quarter-century of managing in minor and major league baseball.

The Pirate manager said he had previously warned Werle—and all players—either to observe training rules or be prepared for disciplinary action.

Werle has been ineffective but impressive this spring. He pitched 2 2/3 innings against major league opposition, giving up 10 earned runs.

Rickey said at Deland, Fla., that he wasn't familiar with Werle's reported infractions but that he had given Meyer his full support.

Werle won 12 and lost 13 games in his first year with the Bucs, in 1950. He had an 8-10 mark and last season won eight and lost six.

Grand National Has 48 Starters; Three Favorites

London, April 4 —(AP)—There were 3 joint favorites, 48 horses ready today for the 114th running of the Grand National steeplechase and one was as good as another.

The 48 take their places at the starting gate at Aintree tomorrow for the "20-12 a.m. (EST) classic that will wind up some 10 minutes later after a four mile, 856-yard chase over 30 treacherous hurdles.

Its a place where favorites usually don't count for much but Britain's legalized bookmakers spread the nod among three likely prospects—Royal Tan, Teal and Freebooter all at 100-7.

Royal Tan finished second last year, Freebooter won in 1950 but fell in the 1951 running. Teal, who once changed hands for £22, is a newcomer to Aintree.

The final callover on bookmakers' odds will take place today.

Canadian colors will be carried in the classic by Tantivy, an 11-year-old bay gelding running at odds of 50 to 1. An interest in Tantivy was acquired last week by Charles Burns, 44-year-old Toronto investment broker.

England Meets Scotland Sat. For Soccer Title

Glascow, April 4 — (CP)— England will meet Scotland at Hampden Park Saturday in an international match that will decide the soccer championship of the British Isles.

Currently, unbeaten Wales is leading the list honor with two victories and one tie for five points. Wales has completed its season.

England is in second place with three points (a victory and a draw) and must beat Scotland to gain a tie with Wales for the championship. Scotland has two points on a pair of ties and Ireland has none, having lost all three. International

If Scotland wins, or the match is drawn, Wales will take the title outright.

England and Scotland are evenly matched for the final International of the season at home. The game is expected to be a battle between Scotland's rugged halfback line of Jimmy Scoular, Willie Woodburn and Willie Redpath against the English inside forward trio of Ivor Broadis, Nat Lofthouse and Stan Pearson.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Ticklish situations in bridge may bob up at any time from any angle. For instance, a partner of a takeout-doubler may not take it out. The doubler must know what is meant thereby.

A double for takeout orders partner to bid if the intervening bidder (1) makes no bid, or (2) redoubles. And the weaker a hand he has the more important it is for doubler's partner to take it out.

So, if partner of doubler passes (refuses to take it out), what could be his purpose? Only that he expects to help defeat the bid. In other words, he admits defeating strength of some kind.

Does it say what kind of strength? Most assuredly. The strength it promises are tricks in the opponent trump suit. The doubler shows outside strength. His passing partner shows opponent trump strength.

South opens with a heart and west doubles for takeout. The north hand redoubles. East is now forced to bid something. It is what west has a right to expect from east. It is what west requested.

But suppose east has a hand like the one shown here:

♠6 4
♥Q 2 9 8 7
♦A J 10 9
♣7 2

The west double promises a hand that is as good as an opening bid of one; four highs with two suits and out. This hand, with the east cards, south will have a dough time making one heart.

Under such circumstances, why should east give up a good thing for something doubtful? He passes and tells west that there is more to be made by defeating opponents than by doing anything else.

This pass is known as a penalty pass of a takeout double. It is a pass that turns the takeout double into a penalty double.

Can east misunderstand the meaning of the east pass? Not if he knows his elementals. Because east is forced to bid in that spot if he is weak or unable to defeat one heart. Every thing in its place.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 4 — (AP) — There's no fear about Earl Malden "Going Hollywood" because he won an oscar.

He doesn't even plan to move his family here from the east until he's sure his movie career will be fairly permanent.

"I've signed a contract with Warners," said Malden, who gave the supporting actor award in "A Streetcar Named Desire."

"I'll wait and see how the studio feels about me after the end of the first year. If it looks as if I'll be staying here, I'll bring my wife and daughter out from New York."

Malden was signed to the contract before he won the oscar. The deal, which calls for three films a year with one permitted away from the studio, is rather unusual. Most studios no longer put character actors under contract, and Malden is not exactly the pretty-boy type.

He Knows It

"I admit I'm not the usual leading man type," Malden said. "But I'd like to play some of the biography kind of things that Paul Muni did with 'Pasteur' and 'Zola.'"

Unfair Advantage

The academy victories of Malden, Kim Hunter and Vivien Leigh this year and Judy Holliday and Jose Ferrer last year have aroused some controversy. In each case, the player had played his film role on the stage for a year or more. This has been termed an unfair advantage over those actors who create their roles solely for films.

Malden doesn't agree, however.

"For every advantage, I can show you a disadvantage. On the stage, you do a play for two hours, building up an emotional climax. When you do the role in the movies, you might spend a day and read three lines of the most emotional scene.

"On the stage, you have complete freedom of movement. In movies, you have to stand in certain marks and be conscious of the camera. You have to forget many of the things you learned while doing the stage role. I don't see that doing the stage character offers any unfair advantage."

WANT TO ABANDON LINE

Boston, April 4—(AP)—The Boston and Maine Railroad says its 110-year-old Hoosac section of line from Portsmouth, N. H., to Berwick, Me., has an average passenger load of eighteen cents of a person per day. The line adds that it costs $50,000 a year to run one east-bound train and two west-bound trains on that section. A company spokesman said last night the line will request permission from the Interstate commercial commission to abandon the section.

Boy to Remain At St. Michael's Pending Trial

Toronto, April 4 (CP) —The Supreme Court of Ontario said yesterday that a father's wishes about the education of his children should be respected unless they conflict with the best interests and welfare of the children.

The opinion was given in a dispute between Mrs. Alice I. Smith, and her husband, L. Havill Smith, a Hamilton lawyer. Mrs. Smith, a Roman Catholic, enrolled her son, Richard Geoffrey Smith, in St. Michael's College here. Mr. Smith, an Anglican, sought to have the boy removed to another school.

The ruling said: "We are of the opinion that it is clearly in the boy's interest and to his advantage that he should remain, pending the trial of the issue, in St. Michael's College."

The court granted an appeal by Mrs. Smith from an order of Mr. Justice D. C. Wells that the boy be removed from St. Michael's. A second part of Mr. Justice Wells' order, which was not appealed, was that the home of Richard's education should not go to trial.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith are separated. No date was announced for the trial.

Los Angeles, April 4—(AP)—Actress Marjorie Reynolds has sued her husband or more than $15 years for divorce. PLAN UPHELD IN COURT

San Diego, Calif., April 4 (AP) —This city's plan for fluoridation of its water supply was upheld in court yesterday. C. Leon de Aryan had brought the citizen's suit against fluoridation.

AT THE CAPITOL

Death in a variety of guises accompanied the progress of the Lewis Cotlow Amazon Expedition. The day-by-day record of the adventures among little-known South American tribes has been made into an impressive real-life adventure film, with print in Technicolor. "Jungle Headhunters," brings to the screen the Capital Theatre, Monday, April 7, for the first time many of the macabre rites of savage peoples.

Revealing for the first time the dramatic excitement of a raid by Jivaros, and the subsequent ceremony of their tantia dance honoring the successful shrinking of a human head, the film taxes the audience on a perilous thrill-packed journey.

The expedition lived long among and filmed the daily habits of such peoples as the suspicious Borores, the colorful Colorados and the skirted Yaguas during the journey from San Blas off the coast of Panama to the wild jungle country where the Jivaros live.

How a gigantic alligator can be reduced to a mere skeleton by the murderous piranhas, the killer fish infesting river waters, how one hundred pounds of aquatic rat meets an enemy, and the accuracy of a blow gun tipped with lethal curare, all are revealed in the spine-chilling film, produced by Julian Lesser and released as an RKO Radio picture.

EARLY ARRIVALS

The north shore of Lake Ontario had been fully explored by curare, all are revealed in the traders, by whites and by Indian stations as far west as Montreal.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Our heartaches, troubles come from thoughtless words, indifference at wrong time. Ease up, relax! Get truly into the spirit of friendship, co-operation and things will click.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)—Aspects are configurations for worthy endeavors. Handle carefully issues, with uncertain consequences. Brace up, do a good job. Heart interests rate.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—Things should look and act better for you solid, conservative ones. Try some new ideas, get out if possible, run. Thank the Lord for what you have; many others haven't it you know.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Nature having endowed you with such gifts as balance, foresight and keen perception, you should use them if you would "better your stars!" Day urges special energy at work.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Influences say you will do well to be specially accurate and meticulous about following wise pre-arranged plans. Good results if you handle affairs smartly. Keep smiling!

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Familiar matters, activities or urgency may move along efficiently. Work hard for expected returns. Be business-taking in your obligations, vital interests, co-ordination.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Unfriendliness if you are tactless, act hastily without proper preparation. You are equipped by nature to handle tough problems; use your gifts rightly.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—A day that takes astute action to get top results. Explore new ventures, move forward with others in your field, reach farther when you can. Don't be content with so-so progress.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Attractive advantages for the alert, so you must give things an extra try, an extra push, too. Attempt the unusual if it could be helpful. New fields opening everyday, look about.

YOU BORN TODAY were never intended for a weakling or one who would follow the "pull cow." Many dominant in the heavens when you were born, indicates verve, courage, initiative. You are interesting in business and society. Could make a name in politics, stage, any public position. Avoid over-aggressiveness, cynicism. Control your likes, dislike. Birthcate of: Algernon Charles Swinburne, famed Eng. poet, critic.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

Dave Sladen and Ames Warburton had been rivals for Sally Cravath. And now Ames Warburton was shadowed and thoroughly intimated. I didn't develop that idea verbally. Sally had shown a crush since Dave mentioned Dave. I didn't want her clamming up on me.

"Dave," she began, "seems to have been born with a sense of perfectly complete. Could if he'll ever get over it. He'll have a chip on his shoulder all his life. His story is simple, but I hate telling you. I'll sound rather—snobbish."

"You couldn't," I assured her.

"Well, if you've got to have it, Dave comes from some whistle stop in the Middle West. He was one of a big family and there was not any money. But he is very bright and ambitious. I'm practically quoting him when I tell you he is

SEVEN KILLED, HOMES FIRED IN PLANE CRASH

Tornadoes Batter Deep South, Seven Dead, Big Damage

Wind and Rain Storms Tear At Louisiana, Alabama, Fla.

New Orleans, April 5—(CP)—The deep south, hit twice in two weeks by terrifying tornadoes and wind storms, counted its newest losses today—seven dead, 65 injured and more than $1,000,000 damage.

The destruction came from wind and rain storms that spawned four tornadoes that tore at Louisiana, Alabama and northwest Florida yesterday.

Louisiana, Alabama, Arkansas, Missouri, Mississippi, Tennessee and Kentucky were raked by tornadoes that killed 223 persons March 21, injured 1,000 more and did multi-million dollar damage.

One tornado yesterday killed four members of a farm family at Arnaudville, La., 10 miles northeast of Lafayette, deep in the French speaking Cajun country. Twenty-four persons were injured there and 20 families left homeless, the Red Cross estimated damage at $75,000.

Three others died and 32 were injured in the New Orleans area as recorded wind reached 80 miles an hour — hurricane strength. The New Orleans Weather Bureau said winds may have reached 150 to 200 miles an hour after measuring instruments failed. A radio tower constructed to withstand 135 miles an hour winds was bent to the ground.

Damage estimates ran between $175,000 and $300,000 for the general area.

Flying bricks injured two persons in Mobile, Ala., and a tornado struck the municipal airport area. Damage there was estimated at $1000,000.

Some beach homes were flattened in a north Louisiana area near Shreveport, damaging several houses in the extent of $50,000.

The worst financial loss was at Lacanerette, La., about 30 miles east of Lafeyette, where homes were leveled and a freight car refinery flattened. Five persons were injured there. Damage there was expected to reach $500,000. Nearby Charenton was struck a $50,000 blow.

Lightning set fire to a lumber mill at Bogalusa, La., near Alexandria. Owners estimated damage at $125,000.

RESORT HOTEL BURNS

Mexico, N.Y., April 5 (AP)—The Hotel Pines, a landmark of the Mexico Point resort, one of the most elaborate summer places on the eastern shore of Lake Ontario, was estimated at $100,000. Firefighters said the tragedy-ridden village said the origin of the blaze had not been determined.

Cost-of-Living Drop Highest In Nine Years

Ottawa, April 5 (CP)—Lower food costs were a major factor in a 1.7-point decline in the cost-of-living index during February, and a further decline was forecast by Trade Minister Howe.

Before the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday that the index took its biggest monthly point drop in nine years, Mr. Howe forecast the decline for February and a continuation of it in March's index.

Meat prices led the decline, particularly a five-cent-a-pound drop in beef, which offset increases in rents, fuel, furniture and other items. The drop in meat prices speeded up following the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in southern Saskatchewan.

Other foods that declined included fresh pork, down three cents a pound; bacon, down five cents; eggs, cabbages and oranges.

They weren't the only factors in driving the index down to 168.4 from 190.8 in January and 191.5 last December when it touched its highest point. Other lower-priced items were top-coats, men's suits, textile furnishings, cleaning supplies, automobile tires and soap.

Second Straight Decline

This was the second straight monthly decline on the index, a barometer which uses 1935-39 prices as equalling 100. It also was the first such decline since 1949.

The food sub-index slipped to 241.7 from 248.1 in January. The peak was last October's 250.2. Rents averaged for first time in five months, jumped to 153.2 from 151.7. Fuel and light went up to 152.5 from 151.3 and home furnishings to a peak of 200.8 from 201.1.

The miscellaneous sub-index also declined, to 165.9 from 166.5. The group includes health and personal care, recreation and transportation costs.

The bureau noted price declines on 46 items making up the index in steers, wheat, raw rubber, hides, hides, sisal, raw wool, crude oil, zinc, lead and copper. The index for some 30 industrial products was down to 264.2 at March 28 from 268.6 on Feb. 29.

Veterans of S.A. War Invited to London

Toronto, April 5. (CP)—Canadian veterans of the South African War have been invited to take part in ceremonies in London May 31 commemorating the peace of Vereeniging which ended the war 50 years ago.

Maj. E. A. McCormick, president of the Canadian South African Veterans' Association, announced in a statement today, asked Canadian veterans planning to attend to get in touch with him at 9 Rose Park Crescent, Toronto.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 5 (CP)—Synopsis: A developing disturbance which moved into Arkansas yesterday and is now centred near Toledo spread rain and some snow southern Ontario during the night. Ahead of it strong easterly winds accompany the rain along the lower lakes. As the storm moves off northeastward through southern Ontario the rain will gradually change to snowflurries as northwesterly winds bring in cooler air behind the storm.

Sunday will see cloudy skies, lower temperatures and a few snowflurries in most regions.

DREW SUGGESTS CLAXTON LIVING IN DREAM WORLD

Dissatisfied With Long Review of Defence Dept.

Ottawa, April 5 — (CP) — George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, suggested yesterday that Defence Minister Claxton is living in a "dream world of his own invention."

The minister, said Mr. Drew in continuing defence debate in the Commons, was "dissatisfied with nothing." This was in contrast to the attitude of Prime Minister Churchill in the United Nations Commons, who had expressed dissatisfaction with the British forces.

Mr. Drew expressed dissatisfaction with the lengthy defence review given to the Commons Thursday by Mr. Claxton. The official explanation was not an understandable report" so it could express an intelligent opinion on the defence expenditures that were placed before the people.

Defence expenditures of $1,953-53 defence expenditures of $2,100,000,-000 broke down to $150 for each man woman and child in Canada or on a family basis, $750 for the head of each family, he said.

Lt. Col. Douglas Harkness (PC-Calgary East) said that by "ultimately wasteful and unproductive efforts, we could save many millions."

Neither the government nor Mr. Claxton, he said, had been guilding a fifth instrument. He cited some of Mr. Claxton's trips by R. C. A. F. planes.

Reading from a cost list prepared by the R. C. A. F. in connection with ministerial flights to Montreal at a cost to the air force of about $100 each, Mr. Drew could have been done for $7.50 by regular four-times-daily commercial flights.

H. W. Herridge (CCF-Kootenay West), a veteran of the First World War, said he had talked to batmen who did nothing more than look after the clothes of senior officers and wash the floors of the officers' messes and wives. That was no way to spend the defence dollar.

LIVELY DANCE

Witham, England — (CP) Rev. J. H. Jacques, rector of this Essex town, welcomed the Archbishop of Canterbury in Britain as an improvement on "dreary modern dancing." The rector of Columbia will be disrupted by a strike of Western Electric Company employees.

Scarcity of Engineers Blamed For Absolete Weapons in Korea

Vancouver, April 5. (CP)—Lack of scientists and engineers was blamed for the use of obsolete war weapons in Korea.

The blame was placed by Dr. G. M. Shrum, a member of Canada's delegation to the United Nations Scientific Research Council.

"Canada is increasingly behind in many fields," he said, "and this is due to a lack of engineers and scientists."

He told members of the Association that a shortage of engineers that for peacetime prosperity and wartime security Canada seriously needs professional engineers.

He told of conditions in Korea where modern weapons, developed many obsolete, are combined in the equipment of fighting forces.

"You would be fed up if you were over there," he said. "We have all kinds of good machines warfare, but there they are using weapons, and even aircraft, of the last war. We have been spending money on research, but we have not developed enough."

Jet planes, travelling at 700 miles an hour, are using obsolete machine guns.

"They might as well be shooting at them with bows and arrowshooters."

Dr. Shrum, head of the Physics Department, University of British Columbia declared engineers and scientists are letting the troops down by not supplying them with advanced weapons.

Engineers in the Western Allies in the development of one type of jet fighter, some anti-tank weapons and some phases of atomic energy development, but there is a definite lag in other fields.

He forecast greatest development in guided missiles on which Canada is working.

The engineer, he said, can only be effective when they use guided missiles to combat bombers.

"Engineers must develop a means by which a fighter flying at 600 miles an hour can manage to fly fire a missile which will travel at 1,500 miles an hour."

Dr. Canada is going to hold her own in these developments," he said, "provided we need professional engineers."

He blamed low salaries as a contributing factor to the present situation.

Canada spends five years and thousands of dollars to become an engineer and on graduation he earns only approximately $300 a month, less than an unrained person can earn."

Teal, Second Choice in Betting, Wins Grand National 'Chase, Mist Obscures Horses on Course

Aintree, England, April 5 (AP) Teal won the 106th running of the famed Grand National steeplechase today defeating a field of 46 other jumpers in the world's toughest cross country horse test.

Legal Joy was second and Wot No Sun finished third in the four-mile, 856-yard course over 30 jumps.

There was an 11 minute delay at the start, when about a dozen horses in the bulky field broke through the tape in a false start.

The official starter had them lined down, and then ordered a new tape be strung.

Teal, ridden by Arthur Thompson, by five lengths, and Legal Joy was far ahead of Wot No Sun.

The winner is owned by H. Lane. Teal was the 100-7 second choice was in the betting to the favored Freeboy, 10 to 1 won the race in 1950.

A late scratch of Texas Dan had cut the field to 47.

Legal Joy went off at 100-6 and Wot No Sun at 66-1.

For Thompson it was his second victory in the steeplechase thirteen chief. He rode Sheila's Cottage, the winner in 1948.

Uncle Barney, one of the rank outsiders, was placed fourth by judges.

Both Teal and Wot No Sun were trained by Neville Crump at his stable in Yalding, England and lived Sheila's Cottage in 1949.

The visibility was so poor because of a heavy mist that little of the actual running could be seen by the crowd. It rained several times during the day, but the track was in firm condition.

Hopes Appear Dim in Averting Strikes in Two Key Industries, Steel and Communications

New York, April 5 AP)—Hopes appeared dim today for averting major strikes early next week in two key United States industries—steel and communications.

A walkout of 57,000 C.I.O. telephone workers in 43 states is scheduled for 5 a.m. Monday. A union official said "agreement doesn't see possible."

Some 700,000 C.I.O. steelworkers are due to strike at midnight Tuesday. The government's wage chief is trying to head off the threatened strike against the vital defence industry.

The communications system already has been hit by a major strike this week, 31,000 Western Union telegraphers leaving their jobs in a wage dispute Tuesday. There appeared little progress toward settling the two-day stoppage. A company claim that service had been restored in 48 major cities was disputed by the striking Commercial Telegraphers Union (A.F.L.).

Nathan Feinsinger, chairman of the war stabilization board was in New York today hoping to arrange new talks and head off the steel walkout.

Talks Collapse

The steel talks collapsed Thursday and union officials yesterday served notice of a 72-hour dustry of the strike deadline.

Steel has rejected the W.S.B.'s recommendation for a 17½ cents hourly pay boost without a steel price increase of $12 a ton.

Joseph Beirne, President of the Communications Workers of America, declared in Britain as an improvement on "dreary modern dancing." The rector of Columbia will be disrupted by a strike of Western Electric Company employees.

Beirne rejected an increase of $3 to $7 a week which Canadian Bell for its 12,000 employees, announced C.W.A. The Mississippi negotiations were regarded as a pattern for any wage agreements in Ohio and Canada during contract and for Bell Telephone systems throughout the country. Western Electric employees, as well as Bell operators, are members of the C.W.A.

Some workers already had quit work in New York City and Buffalo.

Lt. J.A. Van Fleet Reported Missing

Seoul, Korea, April 5 (AP) — Lieut. Jackson Van Fleet, Jr., son of the U.S. Eighth Army commander, today was listed by the air force as missing in action.

The air force said he failed to return yesterday from action his third night bombing mission over North Korea.

The 26-year-old Van Fleet was piloting a B-26 light bomber.

He arrived in Korea only three weeks ago and was assigned to a B-26 squadron based a California distance from his father's headquarters.

A West Point graduate, he saw his father for the first time in 15 months on March 19—the general's 65th birthday.

He is the general's only son.

Senator Wiley Denies Seaway Cost Excessive

Ogdensburg, N.Y., April 5 (AP) —Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, today banned as "absurd" the contention that the cost of the proposed St. Lawrence seaway would be excessive.

In an address prepared for delivery at a meeting sponsored by the Northern Conference of Municipalities, Wiley said both the navigation and power phases of the project would pay for themselves.

Wiley, ranking Republican on the Senate Foreign Relations committee and a longtime supporter of the St. Lawrence project, said opponents had contended that the U.S. government's $374,000,000 share of the cost of the proposed seaway phase would be a "tremendous charge."

"With the vast iron ore in northern Labrador, the millions of all types of agriculture and other tonnage that will pass over the seaway, with the increased travel that will result, it will pay for itself many times over," he said.

"And," he added, "we know particularly well that the electric power development will immediately be a self-liquidating proposition.

"The northeast is hungry for the U.S. share of power — 0.3 billion kilowatt hours at half the prepeach is what it is now."

The Wisconsin senator said the U.S. share of the waterway and power would be the cost of building three aircraft carriers.

"I remember, therefore, that this modest cost pro-rated over a five-to-six year construction period is thoroughly within the capacity, Western Electric employees, as well as Bell operators, are members of the C.W.A.

Some workers already had quit work in New York City and Buffalo.

FRANK COSTELLO GAMBLER, COULD GET TEN YEARS

Convicted of Contempt Of Senate Committee

New York, April 5 (AP) —Frank Costello, who twice stalked out of a senate crime committee hearing rather than answer questions, was convicted last night of contempt of the United States Senate.

The 61-year-old gambler and underworld figure, who four times previously beat government efforts to put him behind bars, faces a possible maximum sentence of 12 years in prison and $10,000 in fines. He was continued in $5,000 bail pending sentence Tuesday.

Government prosecutor Myles J. Lane, who finally tripped the Italian born racketeer, hailed the jury's guilty verdict as a "turning point"—and said it was proof that no man "no matter how cunning or powerful he might seem to be, could be higher than the government itself."

The unsmiling calm of Frank Costello, visibly shaken by the verdict, had "nothing to say."

The jury deliberated some shuffling by the judge in chambers luncheon development. Judge Sylvester J. Ryan had fired two of the jurors—and called in alternates.

One of the ousted jurors was the foreman, Mrs. Helen Louise Mason, a housewife.

She told reporters later that Judge Ryan had accused her during involved in a $250 bribe deal to deadlock the jury and prevent a verdict. She called the whole thing "ridiculous."

The judge said his interview with her in his chambers had been "inaccurately reported." But he did not make public any account of his own.

Floods Do Harm Around Toledo

Toledo, O., April 5 (AP) —A second northeaster in 13 days yesterday sent Lake Erie waves pouring again into Toledo residential areas near Toledo through four breaks in the dikes.

"We've got more water now than we had after the first break March 21," said Mayor Roy Stanley. Chairman of the Reno Beach (a lakeside community) conservancy district.

In North Toledo, police said water in some areas was up to city streets. Several cottages in the area were inundated flooded and scores of basements filled with water.

An estimated 205 families in Reno Beach and adjoining Howard Beach have been asked to retire to their homes since the March northeaster.

Carman, Man. — (CP) — The Dufferin Agricultural Society decided to go ahead with preparations for the Dufferin Exhibition in mid-July, after considering the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan recently. The fair learned the.1 government buildings and various other fair boards are going ahead with arrangements.

Cargo Plane Falls Short of Field Making Landing

Cracks Up In Large Business, Residential Area of N.Y.

New York, April 5 (AP) — A twin-engined cargo plane smashed into the heart of populous Queens today, killing at least seven persons and possibly many more.

The big plane dropped from rainy skies, ripped through two buildings, then barrelled into another one, setting several structures aflame.

Officials at New York International Airport, on the south side of Queens, said the plane was trying to make an instrument landing, and fell short.

Wing Hits Car

It swooped down out of the fog-enshrouded area. One wing of the plane slammed a cruising police car, killing Police Inspector Thomas Boylan.

The crash was the fifth major air disaster in the Greater Metropolitan area within a record six months.

The crash came in nearby Elizabeth, N.J., took a toll of 119 lives. Another airliner cracked up in the East Rivers, adjoining Manhattan, but all aboard were saved.

Today's crash occurred within a block-long area into an inferno. Rescuers were kept at a distance, but there was little way of knowing the extent of the casualties.

The tragedy was in the middle of densely-populated Queens, skirted on the north side by busy Long Island Expressway.

Heavy Rain Falling

A heavy rain was falling but airport officials said a visibility of two miles, and a ceiling of 400 feet prevailed, adequate for landing.

United States Airlines, a cargo carrier, said it believes the plane was one of its C-46 transports, with a crew of two inbound from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

At the scene, clouds of smoke swirled into the rain-streaked air, and flames leaped through the smoke.

At least two houses were demolished and four others were burned. Debris of the crash was at the intersection at 169th Street and 88th Avenue, Jamaica, near a busy traffic terminal.

The crash left five automobiles twisted into junk and telephone wires were knocked down.

The smoking tire from the plane lay in the middle of a street.

Smoke Obscures Scene

Witnesses said smoke rolling up from the crash obscured the neighborhood for some time after the crash so it was difficult to see what the first just which buildings were afire.

Parts of the plane were strewn on the streets as far away as 169th Street.

An international airport spokesman said the plane missed an approach for a landing at the field.

An eyewitness, Irving Rothstein, said he saw the plane flying plane coming out of the east. Suddenly, it swooped down and thundered into the earth in a fire-bomb, he said.

At least three bodies were brought out of the houses.

Mrs. John Hughes, in a nearby house said, "we felt the whole house shake and then there was an explosion. I heard people shouting, orders, "Get out of the houses! Get out of the houses!"

A truck, standing near a parking lot, blew up when part of the plane hit it. Burning gasoline was sputtered over streets and buildings.

Shortly after the crash at 8:25 a.m., E.S.T., the Port of New York Authority Operations department announced the International Airport closed for a half hour.

Jack Harris, an Associated Press photographer, said he was in a bus a block from the crash.

"It didn't sound as if the plane was having motor trouble," he said. "It gunned the motors, apparently trying to gain altitude, just before he hit."

Plane Skimmed Low

The plane skimmed low over a half-mile strip of the borough, before it plummeted downward.

Clothing, looking like a giant pinwheel, was dropped from a dozen tree limbs.

The plane was carrying 13,000 pounds of miscellaneous cargo, U.S. Airlines said. It left Fort Lauderdale at 1:07 a.m., E.S.T., and had stopped at Charleston, S.C., for gas.

The airline identified the captain as William B. Crockett, Jr., 26, and the co-pilot as Jack L. Woederhoff, both of Fort Lauderdale.

They apparently were killed. No others were believed aboard.

Fire Chief Peter Foley said his department had been training its men for such as disaster, given added impetus by tragedy.

"We've been secretly drilling for it," he said.

He theorized that the plane exploded just before, or immediately on impact, in as much as the force of the blast flipped one automobile entirely over on its top.

The spokesman said the control tower ordered the plane to pick up altitude again, swing to the right, and circle until it got further instructions.

Mrs. Helen de Franco, an Associated Press receptionist, who lives near the crash scene, said the plane made an "awful sound" before crashing.

"I never had heard anything like it before," she said.

William Doyle, 54, an office worker in Jamaica, said the plane was afire and that its wings fell off as it neared the ground. Boyle said "There was a huge ball of flame surrounding the plane as it was going down."

Towering billows of smoke and flame shrouded the area as several blocks.

Cars were parked on the street were wrecked.

Described as Shambles

The plane apparently struck one house, skidded across a parking lot and struck another house and shot across a street, hitting another building.

Rumors Persist That Armistice In Korea May be Signed Soon

Munsan, Korea, April 5 (AP)—Negotiators made no headway today toward breaking a two-way deadlock holding up agreement on a Korean truce. But there were persistent rumors that an armistice might be signed soon.

The sub-committee on truce supervision wrangled for five minutes over communist nomination of Poland as the third member of inspector and a United Nations demand for a ban on airfield construction.

Observers said staff officers apparently were near agreement on a formula for exchanging prisoners of war.

The secret prisoner talks were recessed indefinitely Friday. The observers said both sides are busy bringing their prisoner lists up to date.

The U. N. command has insisted that it will repatriate no prisoners against their will. The Reds want all U.N.-held prisoners back.

Settlement of that issue, if it does, might pave the way to agreement on the other two unsettled issues.

Communist newspaper men, who freed one of the staff officials thinking, hinted Friday that the Reds would be willing to withdraw their nomination of Russia if the U.N. command abandoned its demand for an airfield ban.

But after a brief session of the joint sub-committee on truce supervision today Maj.-Gen. William K. Harrison said the communists "have suggested no solution."

O.S.D. Graduate Runner-Up In Beauty Contest

Miss Joyce Bouck, a 1946 graduate of the Ontario School for the Deaf, was one of three runners-up in the Dominion Civil Service Beauty Contest held in Ottawa last week.

Preliminary contests conducted in all departments of the Civil Service had sent Joyce into the finals as "Miss Trade and Commerce". There were 23 other contestants in the final judging which took place in the Ottawa auditorium before a crowd of 4,000 people. After a difficult process of elimination the judges narrowed the field to four contestants, one of which was Joyce Bouck.

Joyce is a totally deaf girl who came to the O.S.D. in September, 1935, at the age of five. She spent the next 13 years at the O.S.D., where she received all her education, including her business training. After graduation in June, 1948, Joyce obtained a position as typist and clerk in the Department of Trade and Commerce, Dominion Civil Service, Ottawa. She has had several promotions since that time and so has proven that she possesses not only beauty but ability and skill as well.

It is significant that there was no mention in the newspaper accounts of the fact that Joyce is deaf. Apparently here is a deaf girl who has successfully taken her place in a hearing world and is accepted by her hearing friends as well as her deaf friends.

Three persons suffered cuts and were admitted to Trenton Memorial Hospital for treatment following a collision between two autos on No. 2 highway near the Trenton Air Station early this morning.

Drivers of the two cars were Gurt Vanschepen, R.R. 3, Trenton and Glen Sharpe, Frankford. Passengers in the first car were Sibbel Shortinghose, 160 E. Bridge Street, Belleville, and Lillie Vanschepen, R.R. 3 Trenton. Also in the Sharpe car were Andy Clements and Frank Armstrong, both of Frankford.

Police investigation revealed the cars had been travelling in opposite directions when they collided in the centre of the highway. One auto came to rest on its side and both were badly damaged.

Provincial Police Constable Ivan Thomas of Belleville investigated.

Oil Pipe Line Will Serve Belleville Area

Toronto, April 5 —Following an earlier announcement by the Trans Northern Pipe Line Company that it plans to construct a 36-inch oil pipeline from Montreal to Toronto, Consumers Gas Company of Toronto announced today that it has signed contracts with petroleum producers for the delivery of natural gas to the Consumers Gas Company system.

The contracts are for a period of 20 years and call for the delivery of 200 million cubic feet of gas per day. The gas will be delivered at Montreal East with terminals at Cornwall, Prescott, Maitland, Kingston, Belleville, Port Hope, Toronto, Clarkson and Hamilton. A six-inch, 44-mile line will serve Belleville with a junction in the vicinity of Cornwall.

Work Starts Soon

Mr. Horne said shipments of pipe will start arriving in Montreal from a Canadian pipe mill in Welland on April 7 and that construction of the line will commence just as soon as the frost is out of the ground.

"We are going to build the line in three sections," Mr. Horne said, "and we hope to average a mile a day in construction. The first crew will work west from Montreal to Morrisburg, the second from Morrisburg to Belleville and the third from Belleville to Hamilton. Auxiliary pumping stations will make it possible for the line to carry 60,000 barrels daily.

Army Engineers On Scene As Ice Jam Threatens $1,000,000 Bridge

Swift Current, Sask., April 5 — (CP) — Army engineers were on the scene today as a huge ice jam in the South Saskatchewan River threatened to push out a $1,000,000 bridge and allow all traffic on the main highway north from here.

The year-old 1,215-foot Saskatchewan bridge is about 12 miles north of here, was in imminent danger of being knocked out.

An ice jam built up about 12 miles east of the bridge and the pile-up extends 28 miles back under the bridge and along the river. The army engineers planned to blast the ice in the vicinity of the bridge but government officials said they doubted if blasting operations would do any good. They feared that once the water began to flow freely again the ice would begin to move with greater force.

Meanwhile, at Medicine Hat, about 200 miles to the west, the South Saskatchewan rose six feet in an hour.

Medicine Hat authorities said there was little danger of the river flowing into flooding the city with the heavy movement of ice downstream was the main worry there.

Bus service between Swift Current and Saskatoon on the main highway, at the point of the jam, was suspended. All other vehicular traffic was being stopped by R.C.M.P. who have been posted at the bridge.

Yesterday the bridge stove in from six to eight inches at one end and two decks heaved up about four inches in places.

Packed to Railings

Ice was packed up to the bridge railings and water was up to the deck. At low level, the floor of the bridge is 31 feet above the water.

The gravelled approach to the bridge was washed out for 100 feet on one side and two crossarms supporting telephone cables across the structure were ripped out.

The bridge, opened last June by Premier T. C. Douglas, has six 90-foot concrete spans, three at each end, and three 216-foot steel spans in the centre.

Meanwhile, civic authorities continued to mop up a Medicine Hat area that was the flood of the Seven Persons creek made some $1,000 property damage.

The Seven Persons and Ross creeks, both draining into the South Saskatchewan, were well within their banks, and no longer constituted a flood menace.

The Red Cross has offered to assume all responsibility for relief measures at Medicine Hat until rehabilitation has been completed by civic flood directors.

Number of Unemployed Increases in Canada

Ottawa, April 5 — (CP)— The number of persons in receipt of benefits increased 6,800 to 377,700 by Mar. 13, the Labor Department reported yesterday. This was 161,000 more than in mid-March, 1951.

A major reason given for the higher unemployment was that many workers were being released from logging camps in eastern Canada as the cutting season ended.

Following is a breakdown for Ontario with figures for Feb. 28 in brackets:

Kingston 868 (1,065); Kitchener 2,178 (2,268); Sweet Ground 1,541 (1,547); St. Catharines 2,651 (2,593); Thomas 749 (785); Stratford 700 (733); Sudbury 2,331 (2,027); Toronto 14,555 (34,186); Windsor 5,775 (6,[illegible]).

Imports of N.Z. Cheese Reduced

Ottawa, April 5. (CP)—Trade Minister Howe yesterday announced that arrangements have been completed to pave way for shipments of New Zealand cheese into Canada.

He said New Zealand exporters and Canadian importers have voluntarily agreed to cancel shipments of most of the cheese which was ordered some months ago.

The Canadian government is "grateful" for the co-operation of the New Zealand Dairy Products Marketing Commission and the Canadian trade for the action taken, said Mr. Howe.

The government announced another step restricting imports, this time of livestock from Britain and Scotland, as a result of foot-and-mouth disease in the United Kingdom. No permits will be issued until further notice.

Europe as I See It

By Raymond R. Canon

Parisian Underground Railway Highly Efficient

THE METRO

On my very first day in Europe I was able to ride on the underground railway or the "Metro" as it is called in Paris and since then have had numerous occasions to use it in various cities throughout Europe. In this way I feel well prepared for the opening of Toronto's new subway for I can settle back with smug contentment watching the Torontonians gawk, stare, and generally act as a child with a new toy as they watch the trains glide in and out of the tunnels.

All during my stays in Paris, Madrid and Barcelona, I have used the Metro so much that I know the plan of the city almost by heart — underground that is. To go to any part of the city is no problem at all — as long as I take the Metro. The minute I start to walk I usually get hopelessly lost and have to take along a detailed map of the city. Even then it is usually necessary to ask the way several times.

Walking Dangerous

Walking, at least in Paris, has a disadvantage which is not shared by other cities to such an extent. You have probably heard about the reputation enjoyed by the Parisian taxi drivers. Well, I can assure you that it is really true. In order to give their passengers a few thrills for their money they usually try to run down as many pedestrians in the shortest time possible. This is the case especially at the Place de la Concorde. Only the most hardened of criminals or the most ignorant of strangers would attempt to cross and escape with his life. I, being an ignorant stranger, tried it once, but never again. There is a Metro station near by, which is a God-send, for it is possible to take the train until the danger spot has been passed, so that one can arrive safely at one's destination, without having to worry about the taxis which are roaring about above.

Twice, however, I have had to take the Metro to catch a train, but unfortunately it was just at rush hour so what a time I had!

I had some luggage and of course it took up space in the coach. People tripped and fell over it and didn't hesitate one second to say what they thought of it, with the result that I learned some choice French and Spanish expressions. Every time the Metro stopped a wave of people got out and shoved me out with them. However, the oncoming wave shoved me back into the the train again, so everything was all right in the end. By the time I emerged from the underground I was already tweary before the real trip had even begun.

Getting back to the Parisian Metro, it is a wonderful system and the network is so extensive that it is possible to go from any one part of the city to another in a very few minutes. It costs only cost about seven cents to ride it, which is not nearly as expensive as the two cents charged by the Metro in Madrid or Barcelona, but then the system is much better organized.

Paris Late

Among large cities Paris was rather late in getting into the field of underground railways for it was only on July 19, 1900 that the first line was open to the public. At this time similar railways had been in existence in London and Berlin for over thirty years. However it learned a great deal from the others and work was continued with great rapidity until today the network consists of almost two hundred kilometres of track with over three hundred stations. In an average year it carries about 1,582 million passengers.

To take the Metro one goes down a doorway and buys a ticket at a wicket located at the bottom. There are numerous signs about with the name of the terminal station printed on them, as well as a map of the direction so that a passenger can look first at the map to find the direction he wishes to take, look next for the terminal station and the sign will tell him which corridor to take. Of course it he wishes to transfer along the route he learns the name of the other terminal station and then at the transfer station there will be a sign telling him where he can catch the train. Before he boards it check-ed before he can enter the waiting platform and he gives it to an attendant when he leaves.

When I told an English friend of mine that I was going to write about the Metro in Paris, he immediately said, "We'll make sure that I did, among other things telling me that it had been voted the subway tunnel in the world. Until I visit London I will just have to believe the information he gave me. It's probably true anyway, for just recently I was back in Paris again, and found another innovation. In several of the stations there were escalators but as yet the Parisians didn't seem too sure of them and approached them rather cautiously. Maybe in another year they will have television sets installed so that everyone can see a program while waiting for a train.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By

WINIFRED E. WILSON

NEW MIGRATION ROUTES

In Canada this is Wild Life Week, set to commemorate our own great naturalist, Jack Miner, friends of birds. The date was chosen because of his birthday, but is particularly suitable, being the time of mass migration.

Not only do migrants keep almost perfect time schedules, but they continue to take the identical flyways over which their ancestors journeyed as far back as our records go. Waterfowl seem to be particularly conservative, though no doubt we hear more about them than we do of other birds because of banded ducks shot by hunters. This rule of travelling on old flyways is so seldom broken that any divergence is noticed, we pry into the reason and generally understand it. Perhaps a storm has blown flocks from their regular course, a dry season has caused a food shortage on the old route, or irrigation of a formerly unused area has attracted travellers to this new airway.

Man is often responsible for alterations in direction, as changes in the character of the land may encourage or discourage migrants. A newly cultivated district brings many types of birds to rest and feed, but a district that has no restaurant for weary travellers.

Bird watchers are convinced that for centuries there has been a migration route of our eastern species to extend their breeding range in a northeasterly direction. Ordinarily westerners appear only as a Pacific flyway. But certain common eastern birds, as the robin, chickadee, slate-colored and redovenbird, though they now nest in western areas, still continue to travel along the flyway of the interior.

It seems to be in comparatively recent times that red-eyed vireos have established their breeding area. They winter in the northwestern forests of South America, and in the spring fly north over Panama, cross the Caribbean, and continue on to nest a branch line is now in use. Some birds push into the upper Missouri valley in a northwesterly direction, individuals, even crossing the Rockies, and have been discovered nesting on the Pacific coast near Vancouver. Others go at least as far north as Great Slave Lake.

Only since irrigation has brought large arid areas under cultivation has the western coast, and in southern British Columbia.

Wherever the roll of America's greatest hymn writers is called the name of Fanny Crosby is apt to top the list. Like Charles Wesley, she wrote thousands of hymn-poems, many of them to be forgotten, but some to be remembered and treasured to the end of time.

"All The Way My Savior Leads Me," written about 1860, was inspired by a renewed prayer. It has always been one of the best beloved of Christ's hymns. Other favorites, sung wherever Christian worship are "Pass Me Not, O Gentle Savior" and "Blessed Assurance."

Blindness in babyhood would have conquered most mortals, but instead of crushing Fanny Crosby it seemed to sweeten her spirit and her songs. Even as a little girl she was cheerful and courageous about her affliction and her determination not to be downed was mirrored in her first verses, written when she was 8 years old:

"O what a happy soul am I!
Although I cannot see,
I am resolved that in this world
Contented I will be.

How many blessings I enjoy
That other people don't;
To weep and sigh because I'm blind,
I cannot, and I won't"

Years later, when she wrote her first hymn, she realized that she had found her real mission in life and — in her own words — she became "the happiest creature in all the land." She prayed that her gospel songs might win "a million souls for Christ" and —perhaps because she had a far more glorious vision of Christ and His redeeming love than ever she could have had without her blindness — her hymns became the favorites of America's outstanding evangelists.

Though Fanny Crosby never attributed her blindness to depress her, some of her hymnpoems contain veiled but pathetic allusions to her affliction. Some of these are to be found in the hymn, "Saved by Grace," and "All the Way My Savior Leads Me" suggests how much a guiding hand means to one who is blind. An interesting story is told about how she came to give "Saved by Grace" to the world. She was seated on the platform with other guests at a summer religious convention in New England one day when the evangelist, Dwight L. Moody asked her for a testimony concerning her Christian experience. At first she demurred, then arose quietly and said: "There is one hymn I have written which has never been published, I call it my soul's poem, and sometimes when I am troubled I repeat it to myself, for it brings comfort to my heart." She then recited:

"Some day the silver cord will break,
And I no more as now shall sing;
But, O the joy when I shall wake
Within the palace of the King!
And I shall see Him face to face
And tell the story — saved by grace."

Stories of Famous Hymns

'All The Way My Savior Leads Me'

All the way my Savior leads me;
What have I to ask beside?
Can I doubt His tender mercy
Who thro' life has been my guide?
Heav'nly peace, divinest comfort,
Here by faith in Him to dwell!
For I know whate'er befall me,
Jesus doeth all things well.
For I know whate'er befall me,
Jesus doeth all things well.

All the way my Savior leads me;
Cheers each winding path I tread;
Gives me grace for ev'ry trial,
Feeds me with the living bread;
Tho' my weary steps may falter,
And my soul a-thirst may be,
Gushing from the Rock before me,
Lo! a spring of joy I see;
Gushing from the Rock before me,
Lo! a spring of joy I see;

All the way my Savior leads me;
O the fullness of His love!
Perfect rest to me is promised
In my Father's house above;
When my spirit, clothed, immortal,
Wings its flight to realms of day,
This my song thro' endless ages —
Jesus led me all the way.
This my song thro' endless ages —
Jesus led me all the way.

A DIFFICULT PROBLEM

The other day, an ex-serviceman was dismissed from his position at the huge Consolidated Mining and Smelting Corporation's plant at Trail, B.C., because he was considered a poor security risk. Although Consolidated Mining and Smelting is chiefly interested in base metal production, it is well known (and therefore no defence secret) that the company is working on or experimenting in atomic energy.

This dismissal of a workman on the ground that he was a poor security risk evokes an important question, or rather a series of them. What is going to be done about preserving secrecy and maintaining security at plants known to be vital to national defence when such plants are dominated by labor unions whose officers, or some of them, are extreme leftists? If war should come, how is production going to be maintained at such plants? How is sabotage going to be avoided at factories where all or nearly all the workmen are controlled by people known to be Communistic in their sympathies?

If those who operate Consolidated Mining and Smelting have plugged one possible leakage of secret information by dismissing one workman, they have not solved another and probably more important problem. That other problem is chiefly named Harvey Murphy. Mr. Murphy is British Columbia regional director of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers. Both the union and the C.I.O. have accused this union of being Communistic-dominated. The international union was expelled from the C.I.O. for that reason. Mr. Murphy does not deny his Red leanings. He is a pal of such a well-known Communist as Paul Robeson, the American singer. Various labor organizations have tried to oust Mr. Murphy from his position as boss of the mine-mill union, but without success.

And why not? Are all the members of the mine-mill union as Red as Mr. Murphy himself? By no means, but the union members have a high regard for Mr. Murphy's abilities as a bargaining agent on their behalf. The workmen look at their pay envelopes now, and recall how much was in those envelopes before Mr. Murphy became their bargaining agent. The workmen, or most of them, say in effect that Mr. Murphy, Red or otherwise, has looked after them and they are going to stick with him.

The situation pointed up by Mr. Murphy and his union is by no means confined to Trail, nor to the base metal industry. There are more than a few labor unions this country — some would say many — whose leaders are either Communists or extreme leftists, but whose members stand behind those leaders on the ground that those leaders are good organizers, tough negotiators, and, when a picket line is formed, good fighters.

The problem created by Communist labor union leadership is an important one now; if war with Russia should come, it will become a great deal more so. To find an answer to this problem is not going to be easy. To jail known Communist union leaders could arouse hostility among their followers and probably evoke retaliation, in the form of strikes or sabotage. Besides, in the final analysis, it is not easy for even the most ardent judge to decide when a man really believes, especially if that man is educated in evasion and chicanery, as all trained Communists are.

JUDGES GETTING TOUGH

The judges have apparently launched their own war on the crime wave that has swept across this country in recent months.

In Toronto last Friday, two hoodlums who had beaten a man about halt to death in a robbery attempt were each given 15 years in penitentiary and 10 strokes of the strap. An accomplice not involved in the assault received 10 years.

A Montreal outlaw who had stolen four automobiles and $200 at gunpoint was put out of circulation for 20 years, in this Montreal case, the judge remarked: "If this doesn't scare other prospective holdup men, nothing will."

Most penologists claim that the best deterrent to crime is the certainty of punishment, rather than its severity. But perhaps the judges are right and the penologists wrong.

COLD REGIONS

Extreme cold at high altitudes is due to the fact the air is too thin to absorb the sun's heat.

In primitive times spoons were fashioned of shell, wood, flint and horn materials.

Skis have been used for snow travel in Scandinavian countries since the 15th century.

JUST FOLKS

MY DETECTIVE STORY

'Twas plain murder. Gun and knife
Were used to end the victim's life.
The body, chapter one revealed,
Was in a room securely sealed.
But murderer and knife and gun
Had disappeared. A hot cross bun.
Was left behind; the only clue
With that I started chapter two.
I made my private eye so keen
That nothing passed by him unseen.
But he found evidence so slim
The mystery even baffled him.
I sent him chasing round about
On tips that always petered out.
The cleverest man of Scotland Yard
Gave up and called the case too hard.
I left no fool or finger print
That might have given the cops a hint.
Whatever clues came in proved cold.
And when at last my tale was told,
So veiled with mystery I'd spun it,
I didn't know myself: "Who done it."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TOMORROW

Sufficient for the day is the life thereof — the beauty, the wonder, the glory of it. To-morrow is revealed to no one—not even the wisest. But one thing is sure — we will have the experience of today with which to start the Tomorrow! Plus the experience of all our Yesterdays.

The wisest Teacher Who ever lived told us to take no thought of the Tomorrow. We have the opportunity today to be kind, to observe, to think, to improve our lot in the world, and to increase our influence so as to give hope, comfort and increased faith to others. That in itself is very wonderful.

If we live happily and usefully, as well as patiently and bravely, in today, Tomorrow will take care of each one of us all right if we live to be a part of it. We certainly can gain nothing by worrying about something that hasn't come to pass at all! Yesterday, as I rose from my night of sleep, rain was falling in torrents and the strong winds bent the trees in angry swirls. But today has been fine — a day of quiet sunshine.

Each one our days is a segment of life, so that the richer we make any day, the richer the pineas and the opportunity for assurred we are of continued happgreater service in the world — and we must not forget that the more we do to make others lonely and more courageous, we ourselves rise to greater height.

Handle today in fine fashion and Tomorrow will welcome you with open arms! Live today without worries and Tomorrow you will neither need nor miss them. Worry never did a constructive thing for anyone.

Leave Tomorrow alone — today. All love, energy, ambition and enjoyment are yours for today. Use them all to the limit of your ability and Tomorrow they will be ready for bigger service, and the horizon of your life will have spread to wider areas. Discard all fears. At the close of this day, let us say with Stevenson: "Give us courage and gaiety and the quiet mind."

SHOW NOW ON

Another pleasant aspect to being Canadian is the invitation to sit back and enjoy the rollicking circus of American politics.

Already, with eight months to go before the grand finale, the newspapers, magazines and radio are lashing themselves into a frenzy.

The searing memory of the infallibility of the Gallup poll and the other "experts" in the last presidential contest is such that the pundits this time are giving a chance to everybody but Abbott and Costello.

A Canadian, of course, may miss some of the subtleties involved. Myself, I can see no more difference between Republican and Democrat than I can between Conservative and Liberal. From this side of the border, the whole affair seems like a curious case of in-breeding.

The, like Andrew Jackson say, was President Truman's choice in the beginning. Then he was supposed out to be a Republican—and maybe the best of them all since Theodore Roosevelt. He stands for.

The experts are agreed, as I understand it, that Ike should come home right away or, on the other hand go to Paris and keep his mouth shut. Either way, they say, he would be elected. Ideologically, both parties repeat-calliopes.

The writers themselves obviously become so absorbed in all this intrigue that they forget that any of them seem aware that, fawner, they are said to have present the same old firm.

It's no wonder that there's no more than a token third force in America (Whatever happened to Henry Wallace?). There's room for the hoop-la between the two "tree enterprise" gangs is such that hard to get in a word for a so-called left wing is lost in a din of calipers.

* * *

Reading these interminable articles and listening to the debates on the air, the Canadian can get a good laugh out of it.

Myself, I visualize the American voter under watchful eye and warm glow of three rows of spectators.

The "old" row is occupied by the prospective candidates including, on the Republican side, Ike, Taft, Stassen and Warren, and, on the Democrats, Kefauver, Russell, Harriman, Stevenson, Abbott and Costello.

Behind the row sit what one writer blandly calls "the party officeholders, the patronage dispensers and the big bosses." These are the real professionals, the boys who, in the traditional smoke-filled rooms make the rulers and carve up the loot.

In the last row, and seen through a purple mist, are the representatives of America's big business, the distillers, the automobile makers, the manufacturers and the moneyed gentry of the land. In each hand appears a cheque book.

An excellent example of how this works was the strange case of Estes Kefauver.

Senator Kefauver — on the first row, mind — went about the streets grasping startled citizens by the hand and crying in a Tennessee drawl: "Ah'm Estes Kefauver. Ah'd been proud to have you vote for me." For special occasions he wore a coonskin cap. This so endeared him to one section of the electorate that he won the New Hampshire primaries, one of a series of gory runs that help to keep the pot boiling.

This instantly caused a stir in the second row for the bosses are naturally interested in addling a winner.

The chain reaction now in operation, the Democrats in the last row began to function. As one magazine put it, "The Kefauver victory loosened many an important cheque book."

The Atlanta Constitution called the legitimate part of the fine old game "socially acceptable" and turned out loud what Big Business is buying with its bank-roll.

It was perfectly clear, of course, is that any of these candidates, of course, is a pretty sound investment in The American Way of Life as The Survival of the Fittest. It is no secret what dough can do.

* * *

The American voter, himself, if we may be permitted to read between the lines of these articles, is an odd sort of fish.

The writer, for example that Adlai Stevenson, one of the ablest men in public life today, was nearly turned down by the bosses because there was no public opinion that he'd gone to Oxford. Stevenson denied this and the nomination was put over by machine. The voter, it seems, is suspicious of anybody who is too well educated.

On the other hand another of the Democratic possibilities is Senator Kerr, who made ten million dollars out of the oil and gas ator master-minded a bill to keep natural gas from being regulated by the Federal Government. He's now in a log cabin. Thus the voters admire a successful man.

Above all else they seem to admire what one politician called the "good old American corn."

Come to think of it, Abbott and Costello might not be such a bad choice after all.

GOING DOWN

Montreal — (CP) — Last trunk road in the 8,000 gallons of coal oil stopped in downtown Montreal, and promptly sank to its bulkcase. The rear wheels of the vehicle had stopped over a filled-in pond, dug last fall by hydro workers and filled in loosely. In the winter freeze the fillins held firm, but two trucks had to get the oil truck out.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION SIMPLIFIED

Practically every leader of world thought has in recent years spoken about the importance of things spiritual. General MacArthur continually makes this emphasis. Barbara Ward insists that our national danger lies in the hearts of our people more than in the military preparations of the Moscow.

We should all, therefore, be interested in religious education. Most people fail to realize that religious education begins right in the home. Every parent can read the Bible to his children, secure a copy of well-chosen Bible stories and read these also. Most important of all is that the child should memorize many important verses and short passages of Scripture. After this is done, the child is ready for the study of these commandments and promises ringing up to strengthen him in the hour of temptation or sorrow.

The great problem in religious education does not — as many religious educators think — lie in curricula and Sunday school material. It centres to the bottoms of the home. To the extent that it is a church matter, it depends primarily upon the ability of pastors and Sunday School teachers to put the nuts and bolts of the child first on their agenda and to work for the cultivation in the child's mind of church of a simple, human approach to the teachings of Scrip-

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

If one robin lays four eggs and raises four young birds from two nesting robins that come north this month, six million will go south next September. And since the number of all species of birds who are to come blizzarding into Canada in the fall of 1952 is estimated not in millions but in billions, and since the average bird lays four or five, for each pair, it is strange that we do not have to carry shields with us when we walk about, with which to push our way through a solid fog of birds.

But the enormous wastage of bird life each year keeps this annual tide of birds within control, so that, year after year, decade after decade, about the same number of birds disappear into the vast expanse of Canada. There is, of course, little territory in which they can expand. All territory was explored ages ago, and the changes in territory attributable to man's cultivation is imperceptibly taken over and adapted by the suitable species of birds. Wastage alone maintains the balance being kept. For all the surplus millions that may have gone south to feed on the established millions will return next spring, but only eight sparrows and a robin in his hedge last year. Two broods were reared, but all but two young perished. Only a fraction of the countless billions of eggs laid this May and June across Canada will reach adult birds to fly south in the fall. And of those that do set out on the long journey to and back from their far winter resort. The law of nature in nature is a nasty bit of algebra.

MANY DOCTORS ARE DUBIN ABOUT NEEDLE SURGERY

In 1935 the comic weekly of the American Medical Association said in answer to a query from an Arkansas physician about the ambulant treatment of hernia (rupture, breach):

"While injections appear to be no place at all for the injection treatment, it is possible . . . isolated instances in which an attempt of this sort might be justified."

In 1940 in a report by the Council on Pharmacy and Chemistatory published in the official journal of the AMA the injection treatment fared better:

"The Council now concurs in the opinion that the injection method involves less danger of serious complications than surgery . . .

Obviously, the serious complications" and "danger" which the ever-ready operators so freely ascribed to the new-fangled method in those days were at hypothetical as those conjured up by the anti-vaccinationists whose native query drew the outburst quoted above. In fact a report by Drs. Harris and White, published in the comic weekly in '38, stated categorically that "no serious complications occurred" in the injection treatment of 238 patients.

Despite these uncontrovertible facts many thousands of persons who might be cured of hernia go uncured because they are not "good risks" for operation or because they do not choose to undergo operation, because their physicians are too backward, bigoted or inept to acquire the necessary knowledge and skill for the injection treatment.

Apropos of this shortcoming is the advice in the 3rd edition of Watson's "Hernia" (published in '48 by Mosby)—one of the finest if not the finest textbook on the subject—that the physician contemplating the use of the injection method should first discuss ignorance of and patient with other doctors in his community to familiarize them with the complications of such a new kind should develop he would not be charged with experimentation.

This also applies to new operations for hernia, the author adds.

Three Townships Benefit By New Equalized Assessment By-Law Passed by Council

Following lengthy discussion both by committee and in open council, the equalized assessment for Hastings county for 1953 was reduced by $160,000 at the Friday morning session. The new equalized assessment for next year will be $18,122,800.

Equalization discussions had taken up a large portion of the councillors' time since the commencement of the spring session on Tuesday. A committee on equalization met and came out without a decision and Thursday the whole matter was again discussed in open council.

Friday morning the equalization committee again met and came up with the above recommendation which was later passed by council.

Dissatisfaction by five of the county municipalities representatives of which claimed their equalized assessments were too high, was the stickler which councillors had to overcome. Townships pressing for a reduction in their assessments were Madoc, Hungerford, Rawdon, Tyendinaga and Elzevir Grimsthorpe.

Some Reduced

The report of the committee reduced the Madoc township assessment by $50,000, Hungerford by $100,000, and Elzevir by $10,000, and left the remaining municipalities as they were.

There had been no change in the equalization of the county assessment for 18 years, it was stated.

Madoc reeve Earl Sager and Hungerford reeve Bernard Hunt insisted that their townships had actually lost assessment in the 18 years and there had been little if any new construction. They felt their equalized assessments were out of line with those of the other municipalities.

There was a suggestion in open council Thursday afternoon that the various reeves which fueled their cards on the table and volunteer to increase their equalized assessments and in this way give relief to the townships where the assessment appeared to be out of line.

Several of the municipalities did volunteer to increase their assessment but when only half a dozen had done so in an hour and a half of discussion a recommendation was tabled to allow the equalized assessments to remain as they were.

This recommendation was carried by the committee of the whole council but later deliberations in committee Friday morning brought about reductions for the three municipalities.

Following is the equalized assessment for 1953:

Sidney Twp.	$ 2,838,000
Thurlow Twp.	1,654,000
Tyendinaga Twp.	1,668,000

County Council Discusses Need For Assistant Road Engineer

The possible need of an assistant road engineer or at least an assistant with practical experience who could supervise work and handle men, was discussed Friday by Hastings county council.

It was pointed out that the county this year is spending $300,000 on roads and that the county engineer was on leave of absence for health reasons at a time when close supervision of roads was necessary.

Reeve Rollins of Wollaston brought up the matter pointing out that in view of the money being spent on roads hiring of an assistant was a straight business proposition. He thought such a man would save the county at least 50 per cent of his salary in getting repairs and maintenance done more quickly.

Not Given Authority

Failure of the county engineer to detail responsibility to his road foreman was one of the big difficulties, it was felt by councillors. It was believed that patrolmen and foremen were capable but were not given enough authority. Neither was there any question of the engineer's capabilities, only that he did not have sufficient time to do office work, get out roads and still look after detailed maintenance work on the road system.

No action was taken on the matter but road committee chairman Fred Mitchell after reading his report assured council that road foremen had the authority to repair roads as soon as conditions permit.

Mr. Mitchell noted that snow removal for the first quarter of the year had cost the county $6,800 as compared with a little over $3,000 for the same period last year. Sanding costs were $1,700 as compared with over $7,000 to March 31st last year.

New Piers Installed

The only other work under-taken so far this year was to repair Wilson's bridge to Anson's Island in the Trent River. New piers had been installed and the grade raised at a cost of $550 of which 80 per cent would be paid by grant.

Tenders to repair being made by C.N.R. to the overhead bridge over the railway at West Huntingdon and noted this work was taking longer than anticipated due to labor difficulties.

Deputy Reeve Harry Morrow think ice fishing would seriously reduce the fish population.

Makes Comparison

Reeve Rollins went so far as to say that one or two nights of illegal net fishing in the south did more harm than all the ice fishing would do in the north.

Reeve J. W. Anderson of Faraday noted that game inspectors were really on their job and were quick to spot fishing through the ice. "They keep watch with field glasses," he said. He said he did not have time to fish in summer but would appreciate the opportunity during the winter.

Reeve Parks of Limerick was of the same opinion. He said he had helped to stock northern lakes and would appreciate fishing through the ice.

"If nothing else has been brought out with this discussion, we have at least learned that the game inspectors are on their job," Madoc village reeve Jack Kincaid noted.

No action was taken on the matter.

Northern Reeves Strenuously Hit Regulations Forbidding Ice Fishing in Certain Areas

Reeves from the northern municipalities in Hastings strenuously object to the game and fishing regulations, which forbid fishing through the ice on lakes north of a certain point.

This was demonstrated in county council Friday when it was pointed out that fishing as a tourist attraction was quite all right but the fairness of denying residents of fishing through the ice could not be seen.

"Northern residents are mostly too busy to fish in the summer but they could do a bit of fishing through the ice," stated Reeve Clarke Rollins. "However, regulations prevent them from fishing through the ice."

He said this regulation applied only to lakes in the northern part of the township.

Several other of the northern reeves were of the same opinion. Reeve J. Earnshott of Tudor township pointed out that the people of northern residents who would fish through the ice were few compared with the number of tourists and did not think ice fishing would seriously reduce the fish population.

of Sidney wanted to know what action had been taken to protect the approach to Glen Miller bridge where a car had gone through the railing drowning two persons in the river. Mr. Mitchell replied a concrete wall had been suggested but no action had been taken.

16,000 Booklets Ordered

Deputy Reeve Morrow reported for the publicity committee noting that 10,000 publicity booklets advertising the county had been ordered. These would be distributed to the various travel and other agencies. The number of booklets had been reduced from 20,000 this year as some were left over from 1951.

No booth was being taken at the Cleveland sportsman's show this year but two films on fishing put out by Carlings Conservation Club were to be screened at the show.

Newspaper Work Often Unrewarding Says Novelist

Toronto, April 5. (CP)—Mrs. Germaine Guevremont, Montreal novelist and winner of the Governor-General's fiction award for 1950, gave a Toronto literary group some hints on newspaper reporting last night.

"Journalism requires three senses," she told the Canadian Authors' Association. It needs a sense of proportion, a sense of values and a sense of news. If you have a sense of humor it also helps and thank God for it, but line it sometimes.

Newspaper work is often unrewarding, she said. "I often find that I was like a pearl-diver, spending my lifetime matching a set of jewels I would never wear. But now it is not so. Now the years on the newspaper were good years."

Mme. Guevremont started her newspaper career on the Sorel, Que., Le Courier and was Sorel correspondent for the Montreal Gazette for nine years.

She recalled some of her early trials in pursuit of the news. They included the customary "hot tips" from her children.

"They weren't always dependable," she recalled. "One day six-year-old Hermel, aged 6, rushing home to tell me 'a man had just killed another man. When I asked her where she had heard it, she said the Sister had told her. One man's name was Calin and the other was Mr. Abel."

"Writing for a newspaper is different than writing a novel. For a novel, what is inside you have to get out. In journalism, what is outside you have to get in . . . in the paper."

Old Testament Study Continued at Good Companions Club

The Good Companions' Club met in Tabernacle United Church on Tuesday evening for its regular meeting.

Continuing his study of the Old Testament, the Reverend R. A. Rowley spoke mainly of the Babylonian exile, stating that the people of those days had faced problems familiar to the present generation. "There were governments in exile, refugees, demolished cities, and the haunting fables which the Hebrews took into captivity with them was their faith, and the modern Christian owes a debt to the ancient Israelite which he can never repay.

Mr. Rowley mentioned the fact that always through history when religion was oppressed, when people have had to suffer hardship and have been taken into captivity, then it is that the best in religion has been brought out.

President Lew Andrews conducted the business session, following which the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Bob Johnston and Harold McNish who were in charge of the program. The singing, the first item on the program was merrily carried on, featuring success although there was much improvement after the leader discarded the piano in favour of "Easter Parade" and "Cruising Down the River", in favour of "Home on the Range" and "Way Down Upon the Swanee River."

Deanna Mansfield and Barbara Thrasher, with the unbounded energy of youth, performed a strenuous song and dance routine. Mrs. Elsie Thrasher accompanied the girls at the piano. A skit by two members of the Club brought forth unexpected acting ability.

In the final number of the program, Mrs. George Wright enlightened the club with her beautiful piano rendition of "Il Trovatore."

Refreshments served by Deborah Smith and her committee, brought the evening to a close.

A Prayer For Britain's Queen

Editor's note: The many newspapers of the United States have printed splendid tributes to Queen Elizabeth and one of the most outstanding of these appeared recently in the Miami Herald. The author is Ralph Mc-Gill, Herald, columnist. Dr. George H. Stobbe, who is convalescing in Miami, forwarded a copy of it to this office with the comment it was "so good" he had to send it. We agree with him. The article follows:

For the life of me I could not say exactly why, but I am one of those who think Britain's new Queen Elizabeth has a very special type of beauty in which there is great prophetic dignity and serenity—a quality in which are fused the best of her Scottish mother and her quiet and courageous father.

To her father and mother briefly in the drab, grim years of war, I liked them enormously, and went to bed between the clammy, damp sheets of an Edinburgh hotel that clings forever by the memory of the simple genuineness of them both. I lay long awake thinking of the fortune the Great Britain was to have been instead of the other exiled Duke of Windsor, who was then in polite exile in the West Indies—shallow and lost.

The new British budget, which calls for more taxation—yesterday, is a harsh one, placing further restrictions on the long-suffering, weighted, patient people of those small islands. I like to think, and do believe, they will somehow win through, though, of a truth, only a very great Englishwoman sole would have lasted this far. Their land area is so small. Their natural resources are so few.

Looking at the islands on the map, one thinks of them as "Here are islands where fishermen and farmers might build a cozy, tight little country much as have the Norwegians, Danes, Swedes and Finns. But nothing could be further that—though, to be sure, what Scandinavians have done is good and fine.

Islands Shape History

It is fantastic that much of the history of the modern world is the history of those islands and their people. The answer is the sea about them.

They were people who had initiative and the leadership to build and maintain a great fleet, men of war and merchant ships, to bring food for the growing population to fetch wool, iron, cotton and tin for fabrication into goods which, in turn, were taken by ships to the markets of the world.

They took with them law and respect for it, and if time and the people have outgrown colonies, they can say the history of it was all one-sided.

Rudyard Kipling wrote a poem about the British dilemma in a "School History of England," putting it in language children could understand:

"Oh, where are you going to, all Big Steamers,
With England's own coal, up and down all the seas?"
"We are going to fetch you your bread and your butter,
Your beef, pork, and mutton, eggs, apples and cheese."
. . . for the world is all one, and the biscuits you nibble,
The bread that you eat and the joints that you carve,
They are brought to you daily by all us Big Steamers,
And if any one hinders our coming we'll sink him."

Worry For Queen

This is still true. And it furnishes the lines of the lovely Queen with the great and heavy responsibility of the British commonwealth.

To be sure, it does not seem at all to corrugate the brow of the fiery and volatile Winston Churchill, who now leads Britain's labor's lef' wing and who says he thinks the British economic problem difficult only because there is a rearmament program.

He forgets that the sea is yet open, and that Britain's people are engaged in industry and have markets and economic advances unknown until recent years. The British problem of going to get itching, scratching, shipping out again and selling has changed the whole tempo of life long—with the use of oil instead of coal, with the development of electricity for power, synthetics, and all the currency and trade regulations about the world.

But, somehow, the old strain is there that lifted the islands above fishing and agriculture, though God knows there is nothing wrong with them, and the young Queen is the symbol of that old strength.

Somehow I believe all the ancient warlocks and the ghosts of Britain's great past, Drake, Nelson, Wellington, the first Elizabeth, the lusty Victoria, and many others, will be fighting on her side to help her save the British empire through on the side of freedom and human dignity—as always.

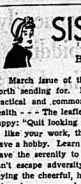
Arranged Marriages Work Well in India

Montreal (CP)—Marriage comes first and love second in India and what's more it seems to work better than the western custom of "marrying for love."

So says M. C. Dharmaraj, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Nagpur, India, adding that India has retained its ancient custom of parents arranging marriages for their children.

"Couples fall in love following the wedding and it seems an effective system as we hear of no cases of broken marriages," he says.



"An Indian girl can be her natural self because she knows she will be married off. There is little danger of her developing an inferiority complex," he says.

Dr. Dharmaraj says marriages in India aren't as much of a "gamble" as they are in Canada and the western world because the girl's parents check the man's background, financial position and other characteristics before they sanction the union.

Some families hire astronomers to decide if the match would be a suitable one. If the astronomer gives the "green light" then the marriage is allowed to take place, he says.

SISTERS ALL

March issue of the Royal Bank's monthly letter is definitely worth sending for. It contains a roundup of some of the most practical and commonsense approaches to the subject of mental health - - - The leaflet finishes up with this one on how to keep happy: "Quit looking for a knock in your motor every day. Learn to like your work, thus escaping tension and gaining satisfaction. Have a hobby. Learn to like people, don't carry grudges or dislikes. Have the serenity to accept things you cannot change - - - You can't escape adversity, but don't let it bowl you over. Practice saying the cheerful, humorous, useful thing and avoid saying mean things however much you want to.

"Finally," the advice continues, "meet your problems with decision. Work out a plan of analyzing them so as to know their real nature. Make a plan to solve them. And then quit thinking about them."

Furs Windows

This morning we went shopping for a change purse to replace the tattered one. New kind has one side made of transparent plastic so that you can see at once how many and what sorts of coins you have. Already this little windowpane is proving its worth in saving time and dignity. It is roomy enough to take folded bills too and cuts fine.

Being able to see exactly how little you are worth at a glance starts you thinking. Suppose everybody's head had a plastic window down one side to show the kind of brain you had. Suppose everybody's bank book had a window to show how the balance stood. Suppose everybody's house sat back and a window which exposed the value of the mortgage - - - Life would lose much of its mystery if we could cut look into a window and see the truth.

Flowers

A friend was taken to hospital this week. We wanted to send flowers as she loved them so—much. Bouquets of a dozen roses are so very expensive that they are beyond the reach of most women. A particular bunch of yellow roses caught our eye in the flower shop.

"Could a person buy just one of those beauties?" we asked. The florist wrapped up the nicest one with all the attentiveness of a clerk who had just been given an order for five dozen. The cost was exactly 40c.

From the reception this rose received in the hospital room, we know that it was more prized than a big bouquet. Maybe all they say it's not what you say, but how you say it. Sometimes - - - The same is true of giving. It's not what you give, as much as how you give it, that really matters. It was only a rose. But what a rose.

How often we all put off writing letters because we think we haven't the time. Then sickness comes and we get letters written at all because of the burden over our heads. It is possible to write to friends at the same time it takes to write to one person, if you write a briefer message.

People enjoy a short letter just as much as a long one.

Exchange Teachers Like British Life

London. (CP)—Canadians were among the 69 exchange teachers from all parts of the Commonwealth who recently attended a reception here given by the League of the British Commonwealth and Empire.

The teachers have been working in Britain for the last year and all said they want to take some part of this country back home with them.

"If I could take something back to Canada it would be the English spring," said Elzie Beauchamp of Ottawa. She also confessed she had her eye on "an English tailored-made suit and your lovely woollens and cashmeres."

Florence Deacon of Winnipeg said she was most impressed with the graciousness of the British way of life.

"How you do it under the physical discomforts you suffer beats me," said Miss Deacon. "You are perfect hosts and are 100 per cent more friendly than you are represented abroad."

Margaret Saddell of British Columbia, described the British education system as "simply magnificent." She found British children more docile and less demanding than Canadian children.

Noise Easy to Take

However, Margaret Carlyle of Ottawa, said that she had learned to endure all kinds of noise from children "and like it."

Miss Laura Wilkie, of Ottawa, had decided that some British children thought Canada was peopled by bears. At her school in Keighley, Yorkshire, she found she couldn't make the schoolchildren believe that the racoon, that she wears wasn't a bear she had shot.

Blue-eyed Jean MacKenzie, of Halifax, has found .since living in Britain that Canadians are the most clannish people on earth. She found it difficult to live in a home town of Pictou, N.S.

Anne Fraser of Toronto, who is teaching at Turf Academy, Aberdeenshire, said that since she has been in Britain she has learned to talk Scottish. Her only fear is that she might lose her Canadian accent.

Cashmere sweaters and Scottish tweeds are the chief things she wants to take back to Canada.

TANKER REACHES PORT

Suez, April 4 (Reuters)—The Swedish tanker Tryton limped into port yesterday after an explosion which almost split the ship apart, started five fires and killed three of the crew. The 16,000-ton ship was steaming south down the Red Sea Monday when it was rocked by the explosion—believed to be oil fumes sparked by a blazing gun. The crew took three days to bring the ship 500 miles back to Suez.

Shalom from Israel

By Leo H. Marcus

(Article 23)

Beer Ora, Israel — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — Fifteen miles north of Elat, the most southern point of Israel and a port on the Red Sea, lies the settlement of Beer Ora. The place is operated by Gadna, the youth cadet division of the army of Israel, and here young boys and girls are doing wonders in the desert and gradually turning Beer Ora into a prosperous settlement in the desert of the Negev.

The settlement receives its water from a well located on the grounds of the settlement. The well is one of the few in the desert and is privately owned. Beer Ora and nearby Elat with drinking water as well as water for irrigation. During the years of the British mandate in Palestine the Royal Engineers had a base here but they left the place when the mandate ended in 1948.

Wanted Youth Village

One year ago the commander of the youth division of Gadna decided that it would be a good idea to found a youth village near the site of the well. The idea received the approval of Prime Minister David Ben Gurion and the project began. The site was called "Beer Elimdi" by the Arabs of the Negev. The name means "Well of Devils."

When the youth of Gadna came they changed the name to "Beer Ora" meaning "Well of Light." Gadna had a twofold purpose for founding the camp in that it would serve as an education institute to give Israel youth a chance to peep into the desert and furnish ideas about reclaiming the land for agricultural purposes and as a scientific venture.

Nobody expects to see large wheat fields in the desert, this being impractical, but in time of war this part of the Negev must be held for strategic reasons for communication and transport were cut off. Beersheva would have to supply food for the armies in that area.

The young cadets come to Beer Ora to spend a period of two weeks. These youths are from the secondary schools all over Israel and during vacations are made in the academic time tables to provide them for the necessary vacation time. About 100 youth come at one time and get a taste of pioneer life. They sleep in tents and work seven hours a day in agricultural and irrigation work as well as any other tasks required of them.

Young, Energetic

During the past week I have had the opportunity of being here at Beer Ora and working side by side with these young and energetic Israelis. During the day the sun beats down and the temperature is quite hot. Even now, in the winter time, the temperature goes over 90 degrees Fahrenheit. A swim in the Red Sea at the end of a hard day's work is always refreshing.

Because Israel is still technically at war with the Arab states and because Beer Ora is close to the border areas, it is necessary to organize night patrols against possible infiltration. Three miles to the east of Beer Ora lies Trans Jordan, five miles to the west is Egypt and Saudi-Arabia lies 25 miles to the southeast. Thus the youth of Gadna are faced with the responsibility of doing guard duty on the border areas. They take the guard duty seriously because of the marauders in the hills and mountains who nightly cross Israel's territory in an attempt to smuggle Chashish (similar to opium) from Egypt to Trans Jordan.

Great Patriotism

As I talked with the Israeli youth at Beer Ora I was amazed and pleased to hear of their great patriotism and love. They realize what the conquest of the desert means to Israel and they are preparing themselves to take their full share in the agricultural development of the land.

Although there is a food shortage in the country and the people are faced with many problems, yet the youth seem not to mind but throw themselves to their tasks. The youth of Gadna, by working in the desert and going on trips into the desert of the Negev, hope to learn the ways of the desert and bring back to the more populated areas the knowledge that they have learned. These boys and girls of Gadna are have already decided that it is their job to be the chalutzim (pioneers) of the Negev.

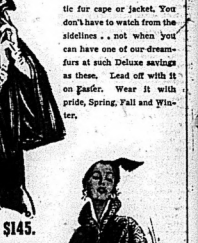
It cleans every inch of the average living room without once being moved from the center of the room — and that's "REACH-EASY" Cleaning!



- LARGEST "THROW-AWAY BAG"— and the most practical. It has to be replaced only a few times a year, and the new neck design means you don't even SEE the dirt — let alone get it on your hands or floor. There are NO RAGS and NO CANS — NO PETERS to empty! . . .
- "REACH-EASY" CLEANING —that's what G.E. calls it and that's what it is! Place the cleaner in the centre of the room — the top rotates — and you reach every nook and cranny without the usual tug-of-war.
- MOTOR'S AT THE BOTTOM —where it belongs, so the cleaner is more stable, yet more mobile. To open it for emptying, you lift only the top, not the whole motor. And thanks to triple filtering, the cleaner maintains its high efficiency as the "Throw-Away" bag fills.

"WALK UPSTAIRS AND SAVE"

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He's "fed up with marriage"

When a man comes right out and tells his wife he's tired of married life and doesn't intend to live with her another week it's certainly shattering enough. But at least the wife knows exactly where she stands, and can, when she has had time to pull herself together, go ahead and plan a new life for herself which may very well have satisfactions of its own.

But when a husband seems to give every evidence of wishing to be free of his marriage, yet continues to insist that he is not interested in divorce and really loves the wife and family he neglects, it isn't easy for her to make up her mind what she should do. Particularly if she still happens to love him.

One wife who is struggling to decide which of these two possible courses to follow has a problem complicated by the fact that her husband is in the Navy. This has made it a simple matter for him to remain out of her reach, thus depriving her of the assistance she would get from watching him talks with him and observation of his conduct, in arriving at a conclusion.

Here, briefly, is the series of events which brought her to her present impossible situation:

When her husband re-enlisted in the Navy and was sent to the opposite side of the continent from their home, she decided to live with their two children. They set my housekeeping in a small trailer, and promptly, he began to stay nights at the naval hospital where he worked. Later, he said, he had no decent place to sleep in the trailer.

One day he came home to her very irritable, and when she asked what the trouble was, she said he didn't exactly know, but he thought he was "fed up with married life." A few days afterwards, his parents came to visit them, and he insisted that they should return home with them, on the ground that he was soon to be sent to Korea. Reluctantly the wife finally yielded to his wishes. Three letters from Korea

In three months since then, his wife—now three thousand miles away from him—has had just three letters, and the first one never arrived, after she had written of silence on his part, she became so worried that she telephoned across the country to him. Each of those three letters has given some excuse why he will never yet gone overseas but is still exactly where she left him.

"He insists that he loves me and doesn't want us to break up," the wife writes, "and I want to believe him but after him sending us back home, what else can I think except that he just doesn't want me with him? Should I go on believing that he is telling me the truth or what should I do?"

What it seems to me would be the best thing for her to do at this juncture is something that would be, obviously, tremendously difficult for any wife who loves her husband, who is concerned about his welfare, and above all, who is beset by dreadful doubts about their own personal relationship. This is, for her to stop all attempts at communication with him. Write him no letters, make no telephone calls, send no telegrams or any other messages; in short, cut herself off from him as he seems to be trying to cut himself off from her.

Since she says nothing about working outside her home, the assumption is that her allowance from his pay is sufficient for the support of herself and the children. Even so, if the children can be properly cared for, I think it would be an excellent idea for her to get herself a job so that she would have something to occupy her mind besides her problem. In addition, she should make a great effort to acquire other interests and to maintain her friendships.

If she can bring herself to do this, hard as it would be; if her husband hears nothing from her but a great silence; it might, before long, bring some sort of response from him that would either trend toward happier things or precipitate a showdown. And even if it were the latter, it would be better to bear than her present uncertainty.

Food for Thought

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION:

Dear Mary: Don't ever leave us. I leave the best till last, the easiest work, the best tasting food and so I save everything in the paper before your column, I feel safe in drying your recipes, as if I had them from a personal friend. Will you please send me a calorie chart? What is the least number of calories a person should have per day? Will you please print a recipe for hot cross buns? —Betty.

ANSWER:

For group averages it has been found that a moderately active woman weighing 123 lb. 2400 calories are required. That is not a reducing requirement though. Some not-too-heavy women cut down their calorie intake to 1700 calories per day but they must have large quantities of meat, eggs, cheese and milk and a carefully supervised diet to make this work. I have sent the calorie chart.

HOT CROSS BUNS

(This if different than the recipe I gave you last week.)

Two cups milk, 1 cake compressed yeast, 1-2 cup sugar, 6 cups sifted flour, 1-2 cup fat, 2 teaspoons salt, 1-4 cup beat quality shortening, 2 eggs, 1 cup raisins, 2 teaspoons cinnamon. Scald the milk and cool to lukewarm. Dissolve the yeast and half of the sugar in 1-3 cup of the lukewarm milk. Sift the flour and measure it. Add the salt to the flour. Add the dissolved yeast to the remainder of the flour, then add half the flour and beat until smooth. Cover this sponge and let rise in a warm place until light and full of bubbles. Melt the shortening; beat the eggs, then add the remaining sugar, melted shortening, beaten eggs and raisins to the sponge. Sift the remaining flour with the cinnamon and add it to the sponge.

Beat thoroughly at this stage. Turn out on floured board and knead the dough until it is smooth and elastic and squeaks as you knead. Place in greased bowl and brush surface with melted butter or margarine, cover, and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk and light to the touch. Break off pieces of even size and roll into balls about 2 1-2 inches in diameter. Place on greased baking sheet about 2 inches apart. When risen very light, make a deep cross at centre with tip of sharp knife. Let rise a few minutes longer. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. They require about 15 or 20 minutes. While they are baking prepare a glaze: Mix 2 tablespoons sugar with 3 tablespoons milk. About five minutes before baking time is up brush each bun with this glaze, working quickly. Return to oven until golden brown and baked. Finish the cooled buns by outlining the cross with plain icing.

QUESTION:

I have read your column and would like a calorie chart. Would you please tell me a quick and different way to do eggs as I cannot eat fried foods.—Helen L.

ANSWER:

I have sent the calorie chart. Thank you for enclosing a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

SHIRRED EGGS

Butter an individual custard (ramekin) and sprinkle fine crumbs in it, then shake to remove excess. Break an egg into this cup, sprinkle with salted and peppered fine crumbs, dot with 1 teaspoon butter. Place cups in shallow pan of hot water, bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until white is firm.

CREAMY EGG

Beat 3 eggs slightly and add 3 tablespoons soft cream, 1-4 teaspoon salt, shake of pepper and 2-3 cup milk. Stir in top of double boiler over boiling water until mixture thickens softly —during very quick cooking. Do not overcook. Serve on toast garnished with parsley or tomato slices.

If she is overweight, she should do something about it.

The first step is a visit to the family physician who is the best advantage of normal weight. He will make a check-up, will give her a three-meal-daily diet. If she will be faithful to his orders, and not raid the refrigerator at odd moments, she will lose two pounds a week, and that is enough.

A healthy, woman who has exceeded herself in the limits of good looks can regain the youthful silhouette by cutting down on food elements that put fat cells on her frame. Sweets, starches and fats are the cause of that depressing report from the bathroom scales.

Instead of buttered white bread she should have toasted rye. For toast, she should have fruit or fruit juices, an egg, toast and a beverage. She should like coffee or tea. The amount of sugar and cream some individuals put in coffee will cause them to gain weight.

The diet may include lean meat, as fowl, poultry—but no gravy —vegetables, fruit and fruit juices. Preserves should be avoided because of the sugar content. Vegetables that are best for her are cabbage, spinach, broccoli, string beans, onions, tomatoes, asparagus. She can have boiled or baked potatoes occasionally, but not fried ones. All fried foods are definitely out. Cottage cheese and buttermilk are her friends. 11 is sometimes necessary to make the appetite do a turn-about. The heavyweight may offer the alibi that she eats almost nothing at all. The statement may be partially true. She may consume very little food, but it is the kind that builds curves and spoils the youthful contour of her body. She should never have chocolate, sugar, butter and flour, the elements that are not favorable to slenderness.

While dieting a woman should have mild exercise. Ten minutes of torso-twisting once a day will bring good results because it is usually the mid-section that thickens first. By strengthening relaxed muscles shaft the waistline, it will help with the disguised. She should stand tall—chest up, tummy tucked in. With arms extended from the shoulders, she should swing from side to side pivoting at the waistline.

Reduce by sensible methods

Be wary of freak diets. No woman whose brain clicks will imperil her health by rapid reducing. If she is overweight, she should do something about it, because excess adipose tissue is a menace. It is not just a blanket that covers the body; it is packed around the inner organs.

Choose Earrings That Flatter

Ears are in the beauty picture, so o, so choose earrings with care. The round earring shape is good for long faces.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN the first short bob appeared, years and years ago, to send women into a state of wild excitement, it was a bowl cut. You'll see it in pictures of little Dutch boys. We realize how ugly it was but, just the same, it was a blessing to the woman with dowdy ears. Now, with the upswept style that's clean off the face, ears are out in the open. Therefore they should be dressed up made presentable. This can be done by including them when the powder pad makes its rounds and the rouge compact is in action. A touch of rosy coloring on large lobes will make them appear smaller because it forms a shadow. If ears are so outstanding as to be a defined defect, a plastic surgeon can take a tuck in the backs of them, thus flatten them down.

Flattering Earrings

They can be made attractive by the addition of earrings, but one must be careful to select flattering designs. If the face is thin, ears long and narrow, the round button styles are best. They will add interest to the countenance, giving it sparkle and animation. When the ears are wide, inclined to be plump, they can be given an appearance of length by pendant earrings.

If earrings are large and heavy they make the small heart-shaped face look even smaller, therefore are out of the style and beauty picture.

Earrings that are oval or rectangular in shape create a feeling of length as well as width. They often aid in emphasizing pleasing facial contour. The plump ducky will find that extremely long ornaments of this kind will make her plump neck look even shorter. The effect of long pendants should be studied from front, side and back views.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Notes on weddings . . . from an aisle seat

A shining and unforgettable moment at a very large, very fashionable metropolitan church wedding last week: the distinguished father of the bride, responding to the clergyman's question, "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" said proudly and happily, "Mother and I." He included his wife in his loving glance as in his loving words. And the words, so distinctly said, referred to everyone in that vast church the bright and assuring message that here, in all the relationships concerned in this marriage, there was a fine ideal and a true understanding.

The radiant moment of this father's response was so gloriously impressive and so significant that one wonders why these devotedly-inclusive words are not oftener used in this type of ceremonies. Not just one giving the daughter in marriage. . .but both, mother and father.

I do wish that all ushers would grow up and learn which is their right and which is their left. Then, when they are invited to be ushers at the altar for a wedding, they will know that they should offer the right arm to a woman guest as she starts to escort her up the aisle, or, after the ceremony, down the aisle. There's no propriety, no harmonious procedure when some ushers offer the left arm and some awkwardly and incorrectly, offer the left arm. It's confusing, too, to a woman guest, who must walk on the wrong side of the usher. Are you listening, ye young men who are to be ushers at the June weddings?

The very light and subtle champagne shade is appearing increasingly in the wedding picture. Occasionally a bride today chooses this delicate champagne shade for her formal wedding dress. . . and this shade is indeed particularly becoming to some skin-tones. And there came a very beautiful church wedding this week in the soft shade of the dresses.

Flattering Silk

Tie silk party dress

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

FOR Southern wear and for all summer too, here is a dream of a dress that's pretty and flattering. The material is tie silk, but treated more daintily than is usual for a fabric that generally is used for more tailored designs. The color scheme is pink with a navy dot, and there are appliqued black-eyed Susans around the neck and armhole done in pink with navy centres. The skirt is entirely of box-pleats, unpressed, and worn over a crinoline.

Should hosts provide cigarettes at their parties?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We've recently been married, and have just moved into our new home. Now we'd like to begin to invite our friends to some small, informal parties, such as Saturday or Sunday evening buffet suppers. Neither boy nor I smoke. But he maintains that hospitality "demands" that we provide cigarettes for our guests. I don't thing this is necessary, as all our friends who do smoke carry their own brand of cigarettes, and I think it would be a ridiculous expense to buy all these different brands. Who is right about this?—Mary L.

Your husband is right. . .It is the accepted "way of hospitality" to provide cigarettes as an item of party-accessories. To show that you are thoughtful about such things, two packs of cigarettes (one pack of two brands) are enough to provide. . .you certainly would not be expected to provide any more variety of brands.

DREW SUGGESTS

Cost-plus Basis Not Likely

Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC — MacLeod) called for a review of the policy under which contracts are granted on a cost-plus basis. He had been told there was a wastage of manpower and materials under such contracts, because the contractors took the view that the more the cost, the greater their profits.

Maj. F. W. George (L — Westmorland) urged that greater encouragement be given the reserve army.

Wing Cmdr. Angus MacLean (PC — Queens) asked that more stress be placed on the research and development of new weapons and on methods to counter the latest weapons.

Col. A. J. Brooks (PC — Royal) said obsolete weapons should be replaced with the latest available types.

Maj. George Hees (PC — Toronto Broadview) said discharged Korean veterans should be given a better deal. A private released from the Korean force receives only $20, made up of pay and allowances for one week, compared with the $100 clothing allowance granted veterans of the Second World War when they were discharged.

Capt. Rodney Adamson (PC — York West) said Canada should concentrate on mobile armoured units, rather than infantry.

O. L. Jones (CCF — Yale) said more money should be spent on improving civil defence in Canada.

CARGO PLANE

An eyewitness, Irving Rothbaum, said he saw the plane come nose-diving out of the east. One wing hit the police car travelling south on 169th Street near Hillside Avenue, he said.

Five fire alarms were sounded.

The crash was the fifth aerial crackup in the greater metropolitan area recently.

Three of the crashes were in nearby Elizabeth, N.J., taking a total of 119 lives. Another airliner crashed in the East River, adjoining Manhattan, but all aboard escaped death.

Centre of Queens

Location of the crash was given as 171st. Street and 89th. Ave., in the centre of Queens. The borough lies midway between La Guardia Field and New York International Airport.

The scene is near a Queens terminal of the independent subway system, in a thickly built business and residential section.

La Guardia Field is on the northern edge of Queens. Idlewild is on the southern side of the borough. Jamaica is near the centre of the borough.

A steady rain was falling, and skies were heavily overcast.

Eight buildings were reported ablaze.

A police inspector was reported injured at the scene.

Queens is one of five New York boroughs. It is situated just across the East River to the east from Manhattan, south of the Bronx and north of Brooklyn.

FRANK COSTELLO,

Will Seek Retrial

After the case had been given to the jury, Costello's counsel, Attorney Kenneth M. Spence, sought a retrial of the entire case because of the reshuffled jury.

The motion was denied — but Spence will argue a motion for a mistrial when Costello is brought into court for sentencing.

Costello, a shadowy figure of the underworld, described by his counsel as a "man of integrity" held up to scorn and ridicule in the widely-televised Kefauver crime committee hearings, was convicted on a charge of contempt charge.

The charge emanated from his two "walk-outs" during the New York hearings of the committee in March, 1951, and his stubborn refusal to answer specific questions put to him by committee counsel Rudolph Halley.

Some of the questions which went unanswered deal with his admittedly sizable wealth, his indebtedness and his relations with former New York Mayor William O'Dwyer, now United States ambassador to Mexico.

GERMAN GIRL CONVICTED

Regensburg, Germany, April 4 (AP)—A pretty 23-year-old German blonde was convicted today in a U.S. district court of "collaborating with the Czech secret service". She was sentenced to three years in prison. The prosecutor said Kunigunde Nagl had lured unsuspecting victims across the border into communist-controlled Czechoslovakia, where they were urged to become spies and then were sent back into U.S.-occupied Germany.

Council Members Will Request Highway Dept. to Extend No. 14 From Marmora to Coe Hill

Hastings County Council will recommend to the Ontario Department of Highways that consideration be given to the extension of No. 14 highway from Marmora to Coe Hill to open up tourist and other attractions in that section.

This was decided at the concluding session of their spring session Friday afternoon, when Reeve Vincent Lynch of Marmora village introduced the motion requesting the highways department to give consideration to the matter.

The motion pointed out there were many lakes in the area north of Marmora which were inaccessible owing to lack of roads. A highway would open them up as tourist attractions. Also there was valuable timber in the area which such a road would enable to be taken out.

Reeve Jack Kincaid of Madoc village vigorously opposed the motion on the ground that the Madoc-Foxboro county road should be taken over by the highways department before any completely new road was built in the county.

Cannot Convince Dept. Claim

"I realize this motion was presented with the best of faith," he said. "But I must point out that we have been blessed with over $300,000 road by-law. Yet we seemingly cannot convince the department that the Madoc county road should be taken over."

"Why has this road been neglected," he asked.

Reeve Clarke Rollins of Wollaston said he had heard rumors that the Madoc county road was soon to be taken over by the department. Just when, however, no one seemed to know.

The Madoc reeve agreed that the Marmora-Coe Hill road possibly should be built. "But let's get rid of the Madoc road first," he urged.

Quotes Official

Roads committee chairman Reeve Fred Mitchell doubted if any road in Hastings would be taken over by the department. He quoted a department official as saying that no more roads would be assumed until those already in the highway system were completely built.

Reeve Irwin McCoy of Marmora township disagreed. He pointed out that the department had designated an alternate route through Renfrew for the Trans-Canada highway after first announcing the route along No. 7 highway.

"The department will take over a road whenever sufficient pressure is brought to bear," he said.

Reeve Rollins pointed out there was no expectation that the proposed road would be constructed this year "or even three years from now". He thought, however, that the resolution to the department was a step in the right direction.

Presents Motion

Just before the council session ended Reeve Kincaid presented a motion calling for immediate additional consideration to be given to the request that the department of highways take over the Madoc-Foxboro road. The motion called upon the road committee to meet with the two provincial government members for the county on the matter. The motion was adopted.

Reeve Rollins agreed that the two members should be included in the discussion stating that the road concerned both Hastings ridings.

Council also passed a resolution asking for an amendment to the game and fisheries act which would allow fishing through the ice in lakes in the northern part of the county. Councillors had earlier discussed the matter.

Committee Named

An assessment committee consisting of Reeve T. C. Graham, of Tweed, as chairman, with Reeve Clarke Rollins and Deputy Reeve Cecil Ketcheson as members, with the warden, was appointed. This committee will work with the county assessor on assessment matters.

Cecil Geen, newly appointed county assessor, expressed his appreciation to council for his appointment.

Briefly discussing assessment matters, councillors urged that no time be lost in getting re-assessment of the municipalities underway. It was agreed that all local assessors should attend a school on assessing to be conducted by a representative of the assessing department of the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs. The school would be held at a central point, preferably at Madoc.

Location of the assessor's office at some more convenient place than in the court house was also discussed but this matter was left to the assessment committee to decide.

Some Increases Given

An increase of $200 to county home physician's salary was approved, bringing the remuneration to $600 per year. The county auditor's salary was increased $100 to $650 per year, while the salary of more than 4½ points. During the day, the exchange's ticker service fell as much as 15 minutes behind the flood of orders.

New York responded swiftly to the news as Canadian oil issues listed on the curb market provided the heaviest trading in more than six years.

Heavy trading continued Friday but the index slipped in sporadic profit-taking. The market split sharply between buying and selling with individual issues showing changes ranging to about $1.

Although most brokers were too busy to analyze the market, a few explained the split as a clash between selling, largely Canadian, and heavy buying from the United States.

Other professionals pointed out that the board's recommendation would be affected by the prospect of cheaper power.

Almost obscured by the attraction of western oils, industrials, golds and base metals maintained a steady advance. Trading was mainly in leading issues and a few selected lower-priced stocks.

Flood of 'Buy' Orders Boosts Western Oils

By DICK BAIDEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Western oil speculators swamped Toronto's stock exchange this week with a flood of "buy" orders that boosted prices and transactions to record highs.

Recommendation Wednesday by the Alberta Conservation Board to permit gas export from the Peace River district to the west coast touched off the most hectic buying since last fall.

The board's recommendation that Westcoast Transmission Company Limited be allowed to tap the gas fields of central and southern Alberta sparked Pacific Petroleum for an opening jump of more than $2 Thursday. Pacific controls Westcoast transmission. Within minutes the advance spread to Anglo-Canadian, Calvin Consolidated, Home Oil, Sapphire, Trans Empire and a broad list of lower-priced issues.

Gains Held Well

Within the first hour the exchange's western oil index jumped more than 4½ points. During the day, the exchange's ticker service fell as much as 15 minutes behind the flood of orders.

Weston Dukes Defeat Junior Hawks 7-2 In Rough, Brawling First Game

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

NO PINK TEA!

They play it rough up around Weston way. Maybe it was because the "little major" Con Smythe was around with Scout Parker of the Rangers, Wilson of the Black Hawks and Carson Cooper of the Red Wings not to mention other ivory-hunters unidentified, were spectators.

Referees Larry Lewis and Jack Liscombe, both of Galt took five minutes out after the brawl straightening out their thumbs that threatened to develop into a permanent hook. They loosed the boys overboard at the slightest provocation but at that the game nearly got away from them in that first period Donnybrook and later in the game.

At least the Hawks showed one trait. That is the reputation and ride-'em-cowboy tactics of the Dukes on their home ice held no fears for them. They dropped gloves and sticks at the sign of a fight and battled their bigger, heavier opponents whenever they showed signs of fisticuffing smiles. Even the mild-mannered Ted DeGray tossed his mitts in the third period and traded punches with the best of 'em.

The Dukes carried chips on their shoulders all night and perhaps the Hawks made the mistake of taking their roughing too literally. And the first blood to the Hawks didn't set well on the royal stomachs of those who Barclay kicking out the best offensive drives they had to offer.

While it appeared the Dukes system of ezzing the opposition into fights and penalties paid off, it must be said the little Leafs showed almost perfectionist style when they forgot their chest-to-the-shoulder tactics and got down to serious hockey business. Harris their smooth working centre was the cream of both crops, his easy style proving very effective. On the other hand it is fairness to the Hawks that set offensives were not clicking and perhaps that can be blamed in part to the disorganization that followed that first period penalty parade.

The Hawks did not lack for support. There were not a few Belleville supporters among the 800 paid admissions. Loudest enthusiasts were members of the Kinsmen Club Boys' Band who occupied a block of seats and gave vociferous support to the home town crew. The lads were taken on the trip by the service club in buses. Approximately 70 all told were there.

BASEBALL MEETING!

The Belleville Minor Baseball Association announced yesterday that its first meeting of the year will be held at the YMCA on Monday evening starting at 8.30 o'clock. Last year the association had 211 youngsters under its wing and did an exceptional job. This year it hopes for bigger and better things but these can only be achieved by the wholehearted co-operation of all concerned in the baseball welfare of the youth of the city.

Chairman Frank Grandame urges all interested in youth baseball to attend the meeting so that the necessary groundwork may be achieved before the start of the season.

CLOSE, WHAT?

The Marmora Millionaires and Trenton RCAF Fivers can start from scratch again. After last night's village 4-3 victory over the boys in blue the teams are all even-stephen at two games each and Monday night tells the championship tale when the squads clash in the fifth and final bout. Clip Editor Claude Tice says the Marmora crew were full value for their victory last night, checking the speedy Fivers lines hard and effectively throughout. The tabbies time out of five home a quartet of markers that came in very handy when the final count was made. It is anybody's title now. The series has gone the limit as championship series should and Monday will see the two better teams win title title. With everything at stake, it should be a hard-fought battle.

AIN'T IT?

The two bosom pals were playing a round of golf. At the fourth hole they caught up with two lady golfers who, they thought, were not in any hurry about finishing the game.

Finally one of the boys said: "I'm going over to see these gals and try to hurry them up."

A few minutes later he returned. "It's alright, Jack", he told his buddy, "Nothing much I can do about it. One of them is my wife and the other a gal I have been seeing on the sly".

A few holes later the same thing happened. Then the other golfer said, "There's no reason why I can't talk with those women about moving on."

A few minutes later he came back.
"How did you do, Bill?" asked his buddy.
"Small world, aint it?" was the reply.

Guelph Swamps Porkies 13-4; Ready for East

Guelph, April 5 (CP) —Guelph Biltmores move into Montreal tomorrow for the first game of their best-of-seven eastern Canada Memorial Cup finals against Montreal Junior Canadiens.

The Bills earned the right to advance against the Quebec champions by sweeping a best-of-three series from Porcupine in a pair of one-sided games.

Wednesday they downed the northern Ontario champs 5-2 at Timmins and last night showed their Ontario Hockey Association junior A title was no mistake by drubbing the Porkies 13-4.

With the eastern Canada finals opening tomorrow afternoon in the forum, the second game is scheduled on the same ice Tuesday and the third here Thursday. There is a possibility the fourth clash will be played in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens next Saturday night.

The New York farm club made no mistake about it here last night as they piled up a 7-0 lead in the first 20 minutes of play then coasted the visitors 5-2 in each of the succeeding sessions.

Hawks Gain 1st Period Lead But Fail to Hold Rugged Foe In Penalty-Riddled Battle

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Weston, Ont. — The Weston Dukes, Big Six champions, showed their Toronto Maple Leafs top brass boss Connie Smythe and three National Hockey League scouts here last night that they were not going to be pushed around by any upstarts from Belleville.

In a rough brawling battle the Dukes battered, banged and barged their way to a 7-2 victory over the Belleville Hawks in the first of their best-of-seven junior "B" semi-finals series.

Twenty-six penalties, one a match misconduct, eight majors, one misconduct and 16 minors were handed out by the officials in a hockey jamboree that saw three fights and one free-for-all break out.

800 ringside customers were present.

The Dukes drew the match misconduct, three majors and eleven minors for 15-49 minutes while the Hawks drawing five majors, five minors and a misconduct. Bob Wilson, Hawk defenceman was the chief offender with a misconduct, two majors and a pair of minors.

Glover of the Dukes drew a major and a match misconduct with a minor tossed in.

Had Edge in First

The Hawks checked the Dukes into the ice in the first period and scored the only goal of the heat when Gilmour climaxed a neat passing play Mahoney and Jacklin to fire the rubber home after three minutes of play.

The penalty parade started at the 39 second mark in the period with Jamieson getting the gate followed by Wilson's misconduct. Doran raced in to score on Allan's rebound shot went off the goalie's skate. Minutes later he repeating after Mahoney and gate followed by Livingstone.

The donnybrook of the latter twelve minutes of play with players tossing gloves and heaving punches at their opponents. Four pairs rolled over the ice with the officials looking on while other players tried to restore peace. Lalande, Wilson of the Dukes drew majors with Jacklin getting a minor, and McCarthy and Sloyan of the Dukes getting majors. Six men were in the hoosegow the most of the latter part of the period.

Twelve penalties were handed out in this period with the Dukes having five men in the box at one time.

Hem Hawks In

The Dukes swarmed to the offensive in the three-penalty second period and hemmed the Hawks in for at least four minutes. Barclay turned in a sensational performance at this point and hurled back the Duke attacks consistently. The Hawks were disorganized by the smooth passing plays of the Dukes who struck swiftly midway through the period. Reid ripped down centre, passed to McCarthy who missed a power drive but the puck trickled across the line off Barclay's skate. Seventeen seconds later, Harris, Jamieson and Jackson wove in and around the Hawk defence with the former firing the rubber. Jamieson scored the Duke's third goal on a neat solo effort.

The biff-bang-and-bashem tactics started in the third period with Jacklin and Chapman going off after 8 seconds of play. A minute later Wilson and Glover were paying for fighting with Glover pushing an official around and getting a match misconduct penalty in addition. Tempers were flaring and a general free-for-all again threatened. Harris raced through on a neat solo effort to make the count 4-1.

Reid pushed Fisher's rebound over the line for the fifth Duke marker and then Lalande weaved his way through the hard-hitting Duke defence to drive a shoulder high shot in the net for the Hawks second and last counter. Jackson and DeGray went off and Jackson stepped on the ice and was immediately penalized.

Even Ted Objected

With nine minutes to go Ted DeGray objected to Garner's roughing tactics and punches followed. Both got majors and a Fisher to Harris to Jamieson passing play paid off. Wilson got the gate again and Harris scored his third goal of the night with two Dukes in durance vile. Garner sat another penalty out and the Hawks showed the first organized fire of the period in the latter minutes of the game but could not break the defensive tactics of the Dukes.

Doran and DeCray toiled like workhorses all night with Barclay again coming up with a fine performance in the Hawk nets. Lalande showed some neat individual work and the rest struggled hard in a lost cause.

Harris, the starry centre of the Dukes was the best player on the ice, scoring three goals and getting an assist.

Jamieson got two and one with McCarthy, Reid and Sloyan getting the marks. Jackson stood out with a pair of assists but completed the penalty box too often.

The teams clash in the second game in Memorial Arena next Tuesday and resume hostilities in Weston next Friday.

Lumber Kings Clinch Series With 7-3 Win

Jonquiere, Que., April 5—(CP)—Pembroke Lumber Kings took a breather today after eliminating Jonquiere Aces 3-1 in the eastern Canada Allan Cup semi-final.

The Lumber Kings clinched the series with a 7-3 victory over the Aces here last night and now await the winner of the western Canada semi-final series between Fort Frances Canadians and Letellier Maple Leafs. Fort Frances leads the series 3-2.

Jonquiere played standout hockey throughout the series but Pembroke's heavier team came through in the long run to win.

Anslow drew first blood for Lumber Kings with an unassisted marker at 4.53 in the first frame. Jonquiere retaliated five minutes later when Leclerc dented the twine after taking a pass from Paul Gagnon.

Gerry Giesebrecht scored Pembroke's second goal at 18:45 on a pass from Carthy, who scored again one minute later on a solo effort, ending the period with Pembroke ahead 3-1.

Both teams played close-checking, defensive hockey in the middle frame and neither side scored.

Lumber Kings opened the final period in a rush. Maxwell Bourdon and Ralph Daoust at 1:30 after taking a pass from Carthy, ended his scoring and goal of the game at 8:24 unassisted.

Jonquiere came back less than two minutes later with a goal by Marcette. Pichette scored again for the Aces at 12.20 on a pass from playing coach Armand Bourdon.

Roy Giesebrecht took a pass from his brother Fred at 16.55 and rapped in a goal, catching Aces goalie Roland Daoust off guard. Fitzpatrick teamed up with Anslow 18 seconds before the final bell to score the clincher.

Marmora Millionaires Even Series With Flyers Winning Fourth Game of Series 4-3

All tied up.

The best team won on the night's play.

The final game will be played on Monday evening at the Memorial Arena.

All the teams on Friday night. Marmora Millionaires facing elimination for the championship of the Trent Valley Hockey League, checked the Stirling Flyers right in to the ice and won the fourth game of the series 4-3, the period scores being 2-0; 1-1; 1-2.

The first period was fairly even, Marmora had a big edge in the second but got disgraced in the third, playing off a determined rally by the Flyers, especially the last five minutes of play.

First Period

Marmora simply outskated the Flyers from beginning to end. They checked everybody in sight. Did not let the Flyers get set with their combination setups and had enough foot to score goals when the opportunity presented itself. The old axiom "a team that will not be beaten cannot be beaten" proved true last evening. The winners went out to carry the play to the opposition and when the ice boil sounded, the Millionaires were still going strong.

The Flyers were always behind. It was impossible for them to get away from their checks. Continued to prove the difference in the final analysis as Marmora were outstanding at all times while the Flyers were hanging on at times.

Both teams got off to a goal tending throughout the piece. Killian, in the Marmora goal, who did not look so good in the game on Wednesday night, turned in an excellent effort and he was backed up by strong defence and every forward that put out by Manager Ward that night. Lavender, Stewart, Trumble, Maynes and Greenwood were the ice for the winners, with Scott in goal for the Flyers and Parnall, Beatch, Atkins and Bowman being the best up front. Faulkner, Beatch, Atkins and Parnall, was strong behind the blueline.

Lavender Gets Two

Lavender opened the scoring for Marmora when his high shot hit Scott on the arm and deflected into the net. The Flyers did not get that one back until 11 seconds before the end of the period when Attrill took Beatch's pass and fired one into the corner of the net.

The second period was all Marmora and they should have scored the game away without trouble. Stewart scored a beautiful goal off Jones' pass and then when Millman's were shorthanded, Trumble fought for possession of the puck with Jones in front and slid it under Scott, when he tried to smother it. This goal was scored while Trumble was being held down from there in it was close-checking and hard hitting.

Strong Offensive

The Flyers opened the third with a strong offensive and it paid off when Dickson potted Maclean's pass and tied the count. They had the Millionaires backed in their own end but Parnall was thumbed for holding and several more chances. The Flyers were always behind. It was impossible for them to get away from their checks. Continued to prove the difference in the final analysis as Marmora were outstanding at all times while the Flyers were hanging on at times.

Both teams got off to a goal tending throughout the piece. Killian, in the Marmora goal, who did not look so good in the game on Wednesday night, turned in an excellent effort and he was backed up by strong defence and every forward that put out by Manager Ward that night. Lavender, Stewart, Trumble, Maynes and Greenwood were the ice for the winners, with Scott in goal for the Flyers and Parnall, Beatch, Atkins and Bowman being the best up front. Faulkner, Beatch, Atkins and Parnall, was strong behind the blueline.

Lavender Gets Two

Lavender opened the scoring for Marmora when his high shot hit Scott on the arm and deflected into the net. The Flyers did not get that one back until 11 seconds before the end of the period when Attrill took Beatch's pass and fired one into the corner of the net.

The second period was all Marmora and they should have scored the game away without trouble. Stewart scored a beautiful goal off Jones' pass and then when Mill-

Freebooter is Favored to Win Grand National Steeplechase

(By CHARLES WHITING)

Aintree, England, April 5 AP) Firm footing made 11-year-old Freebooter a 100-to-30 favorite today to win the 106th Grand National Steeplechase over Aintree's grueling course of four miles, 856 yards and 30 difficult jumps.

Carrying top weight of 175 pounds and the silks of Mrs. Marjorie Straker, Freebooter went to the post the top choice of an estimated crowd of 250,000.

Freebooter faced the challenge of 47 other probable starters in the world's most famous equine jumping event starting at (0:15 a.m., (EST).

Fast Course

The course was fast, a boon to the heavily laden jumpers like Freebooter, although showers threatened before the horses jumped away in a mad run for the first obstacle.

The second choice to Freebooter, winner of the event in 1950, was E. Lane's Teal and that's something of enigma, Teal, an eight-year-old, never had faced the terrifying fences and brooks that dot the Grand National course. He was quoted at 100-7.

Royal Tan, runner up to Nickel Coin last year when only two horses completed the course without falling, was the third choice at 18 to 1. Nickel Coin declined the issue this year.

Canada was represented by Tantivy, an 11-year-old gelding in which Charles Burns, Toronto stock broker, bought a half share last week. After the race the gelding reverted to the ownership of Capt. Thomas Pomfret-bury.

Sentimental wagers, largely by Canadians, lowered the odds on Tantivy from 100 to-1 to 30 to 1.

Besides Canada, horses representing the colors of the United States, England, Eire and Ireland gave this year's running an international touch.

The U.S. was represented by two horses, both bred on this side of the Atlantic. One was St. Kathleen 2nd at 40 to 1 and the other was Pontile, purchased a few days ago from the Duchess of Norfolk by George and Gene Weymouth of Greenville, Del.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamming Sammy Snead took a three-stroke lead yesterday at the 36-hole match of the annual Masters Golf Tournament, with a score of 137.

Playing near-perfect golf, Snead left runner-up Ben Hogan who had a 140. Sammy was seven strokes under par 72. Augusta, Ga., course.

Jim Ferrier, Canadian Open champion, had five strokes off the pace, tied with Tommy Bolt and Johnny Bulla.

Stan Leonard of Vancouver, only Canadian entered in the tournament where only the best compete, dropped far behind. He shot a 78 yesterday to bring his total to 151.

Speed was in a driving contest all the way and it was largely his long game that enabled Jim Ferrier to win. Three of his six birdies came on long, par-five holes. He was disappointed to come close to the pin all day.

Ferrier's total of 71,000 was the Duke of Windsor.

It will be Pembroke Lumber Kings against Stratford Indians in the eastern Canada senior hockey finals for the right to seek the Allan Cup, emblem of the Canadian senior Amateur Hockey championship. Pembroke eliminated Kitchener-Waterloo Ace last night three games to one with a 7-3 win.

Fort William Hurricanes last night eliminated Port Arthur Wings to meet Moncton in their best-of-seven series for the Canadian Junior Hockey Championship.

"Babe would have loved it," said the widow of George Herman Ruth yesterday at Fayetteville, N.C., where she unveiled a marker on the spot where 26 years ago the Bambino hit his first home run as a professional baseball player. It was the first of 714 homers the Babe hit during his fabulous career.

Frank Ortell, veteran handicapper and writer for the Ontario Telegram and Sun, picked the winners of the first seven races at Jamaica yesterday. A $2 parlay would have brought $6,439.25.

Don Cockell, British and European light heavyweight boxing champ, yesterday relinquished his British boxing title and got a purse large enough to make it worthwhile to fight in that class. He will meet Bruce Woodcock in London, June 10 in a middleweight bout.

Robert K. Christenberry, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, said yesterday in New York City that the Ontario Athletic Commission is among the groups which have entered reciprocal agreements with New York. The agreement calls for mutual recognition of boxing suspensions, licences and other sport matters.

Vancouver's Irene Strong, who holds the Canadian Women's breast stroke records, announced yesterday she is coming out of retirement to try for a place on Canada's 1952 Olympic swimming team.

Southpaw Curt Simmons, expected to make Philadelphia Phillies a strong contender for the National League pennant this year, is flying home today from Frankfurt, Germany. He says he will rejoin the Phils without "wasting any time." He won 17 while losing eight in 1950, helping the Phils to a championship before he was called to service.

Gene, 19-year-old six - foot, three-inch amateur hockey star up on Possible, a 108-to-1 shot.

However, generally speaking, odds mean little in this race. The last time an outright favorite won was Sprig in 1927 at 8 to 1.

From a financial standpoint the National is not a rich race. The winner collects a purse of £9,197, 15 shillings. But a victory in the huge ribbon event of jumping is worth thousands more in potential stud fees.

Phillies' Rookie Pitches First No-Hit Game

Savannah, Ga., April 5 — (AP) — A palm ball acquired from the Pittsburgh Pirates organization in the rookie hurler Steve Ridzik of the Philadelphia Phillies pitch his first no-hit game.

The 22-year-old righthander, who pitched for Toronto of the International League in 1950, blanked the St. Louis Cardinals 6-0 in an exhibition contest here yesterday.

It not only was Ridzik's first no-hitter in a brief baseball career but the first such accomplishment in the 1952 spring training campaign. The Chicago Cubs were held hitless on March 17 in Los Angeles but it took two New York giants pitchers to turn the trick, Jim Hearn and Monte Kennedy.

Young Ridzik — he'll celebrate his 23rd birthday April 28 — had every reason in the world to be nervous in the ninth. Wally Westlake, St. Louis outfielder, stepped up to the plate with two outs and sent a fast grounder between third and short.

Willie Jones — who had clouted a two-run homer in the eighth spun around to his left and snatched the ball for the final putout.

Ridzik was more than a little wild in the first four innings. He walked three and hit three other batters before he settled down.

"I was using a fast ball and a palm ball," said the rookie hurler, "alternating them with a palm ball which I picked up from Konstanty this spring. He's working with me on it."

Cage Tourney Gets Under Way

Toronto, April 5 — (CP)—Four opening games of the Ontario interscholastic basketball tourney at Earl Haig gymnasium last night saw laurels carried away by Niagara Falls Collegiate, Ottawa Technical School, Sault Ste. Marie Collegiate and Windsor Patterson Collegiate.

Niagara Falls, the defending champions, downed St. Andrew's College of Aurora 69-42 while Ottawa Tech, representing the Ottawa Secondary Schools Association, defeated suburban Etobicoke Collegiate 49-37.

Sault Ste. Marie, the only northern Ontario school entered in play, won its game from Toronto Central Commerce 36-23. Windsor Patterson broke into the semi-finals by drubbing Hamilton Central Secondary School 60-27.

Play will move into the semi-final round tomorrow afternoon, the finals scheduled tomorrow night.

Trudeaus Win Owl League Title

Trudeau Motors are the 1951-52 champions of the Owl Hockey League. They won the honor and trophy when they defeated Weston's Bread by a 12-6 score in gruelling death game at Memorial Arena.

R. Hilliard, D. Cameron and K. Dewsbury were the top scorers for the winners with three goals each. Breadmen throughout the game.

Trudeau now have a challenge to the champions of the Northern Electric Hockey League.

MOVIES HELP IS CLAIM

Los Angeles, April 5 — (AP) — "Movies and television produce showing how to take narcotics are promoting addiction among children, the Federal Narcotics Bureau official told the California Attorneys' Association yesterday. "Such films arouse the curiosity of youngsters and lead them to try drugs themselves as an experiment," said Ernest M. Gentry of San Francisco.

How to Beat 'No Vacancy' Problem

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

This is being written on Key Largo, Florida, the first key south of the mainland and the largest of the Florida Key group. We drove down last week from Pennsylvania. If you plan at any time to drive to Florida, maybe I should tell you a few things about travel these days.

This is the fourth year we have come down to the Florida Keys for the fishing during late February and March. We stop overnight at "motels" as we find these convenient and quite comfortable. You can park your car where it is handy, right under your front door, and you save time getting under way the next morning.

The first night we stayed in Virginia. Found a comfortable cabin with steam heat, two big double beds, adequate plumbing, plenty of blankets, and, to top it off, television in the room. All for six bucks.

We had already made reservations for the next night at Summerton, South Carolina. We arrived there about five and found all available rooms taken. Our room was ready for us, and while we had dinner we watched at least fifty cars turned away — no vacancies.

The next day we made a mistake. At Ocala, Florida, we could have found nice quarters in a new motel, but it was only three thirty, so we decided to get some more road under us.

No Place to Stay

At four thirty we began looking for a place to stay. Nothing doing. For several hours we found the "No Vacancy" signs staring us in the face. Finally, around eight that evening, and with more than five hundred miles of road covered for that day, we managed to locate a room in Haines City.

It was a miserable affair, with twin cots, not beds, gay-ninety furniture, and miserable furniture. It was on the top floor and much too warm. The boy should have found that they can really gouge you at the last minute, so I laid down eight bucks and was glad to get it.

The next day we drove through the Keys where our quarters were waiting for us. We noticed, during the drive, that three o'clock on the "No Vacancy" signs were on display everywhere.

A news story in the Miami Herald told us that hundreds of tourists were sleeping in their cars or driving all night because there simply are not enough overnight accommodations to meet the demand.

This congestion, of course, affects prices. Rooms that two or three years ago would rent for four or five dollars now go, all too easily, for eight or ten dollars.

We first came to the Florida Keys in March, 1949. At that time not very many people knew much about the keys. The fishing camps were not filled to capacity by any means and there was no trouble about getting good quarters.

Fewer Guides Available

Today most of the guides, the old-timers who know these waters thoroughly, are engaged as much as a year ahead for "the season" which, of course, comprises the months of January, February and March. Now it is extending into April.

Prices, quite naturally, have gone up with the demand. A cruiser, two skiffs, and two guides now costs you $75 a day instead of the former $65. A guide with plenty of knowledge, skiff and an outboard motor costs you $20. Further in the Keys during "the season" can cost you a pretty penny if you wish to do much of it.

However, there is always a solution to most any problem. Take the "No Vacancy" situation, for instance. You can beat this one in two ways. By starting early in the morning, before daylight, and stopping at noon, around three o'clock, you can cover plenty of ground and still find comfortable quarters.

The other way is to patronize "off season" arrange for room and guides at least several months in advance. That is one way, but I know a better one.

Cooler in Florida

In the summer of 1950, August to be exact, my son, Dick, and I were down in the Keys. The temperature in central Pennsylvania the day we left was 98 degrees. Here in the Keys this highest temperature in ten days was 84 and the nights were cool enough for comfortable sleeping.

There is usually a breeze in the Keys — — not enough to spoil the fishing but merely a pleasant movement of air to be sure the sun is hot and care must be used about sunburn, but conditions in general are as pleasant as they are at the average northern seashore resort.

The fishing camps and also the motels along the road have established summer rates and excellent quarters can be found at prices well under those of "the season." Some of the guides have reduced rates — — not all of them, but some. Moreover, you don't have to engage them far in advance. Merely write for a good day, or a convenient day, and you're booked.

The fishing around the Florida Keys is very much worth while. There are tarpon, the big fly-rod man's paradise. In all, there are thirty-seven varieties of game fish which will take the fly in these waters.

Good Summer Fishing

The plug caster can do just about as well. The tournament records show that plugs account for larger fish, as a rule, than flies. You don't need to buy new tackle. Your regular bass fishing or musky rig will do the fish for you on the Florida sand flats.

Last, but by no means least, the fishing during June, July and August is literally out of this world. I have been there, hooked and landed more big fish, of all the local varieties, during those days in August than I have in four years of fishing during the regular season.

This year, instead of competing with crowded conditions in northern waters, take a tip from one who knows and try the Florida Keys. I like northern waters as well as the next fellow, but I believe in trying at least once. Summer fishing in the Keys is well worth including in your trial list.

ORDERED TO INVESTIGATE

Panama City, April — (AP)— M. E. Guillen, Panama's consul in Hong Kong, said his government has ordered him to investigate reports that several ships of Panamanian registry have been smuggling arms into Communist China. Guillen said he believed there were 10 ships of various nationalities, all registered in Panama, running cargoes into red China from ports other than Hong Kong.

AT THE CAPITOL — Jivaro Objet D'Art. A tribesman shows a shrunken head of an enemy, in "Jungle Headhunters," feature film in print by Technicolor, made in the course of the Lewis Collow Amazon Expeditions. The RKO Radio picture produced by Julian Lesser reveals how the Jivaros, after removing the skull, process the skin and manage to retain the trophy's human features in miniature. On the same program, "Tokyo File 212", a powerful spy story filmed entirely in Japan. Both hits are first-city showings and open at the Capitol Theatre on Monday.

AT THE McCARTHY — Nine-year-old Gigi Perreau attempts to solve a romantic problem involving Stephen McNally and Linda Darnell in this scene from "The Lady Pays Off", new Universal-International comedy hit starring the three players. The new film opens Monday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, April 5—(AP)—"Looks like" the Marlon Brando holocaust has struck feminine America.

That's the comment from Tom Wood of the Twin City Sentinel, Winston-Salem, N. C. He reports that all the girls down there are big attraction seems to be the beast in him."

Wood says he asked a girl, "would you like a guy to beat you up like that?" She almost swooned, "with a goony smile at my question." He added: "What good is civilization if they all faint over caveman tactics!"

That's a good question, Tom. It is one that a friend of mine pondered. We'll call him Ambrose Bomelaer.

Ambrose is happily married to a sweet little girl named Agnes. At least they were happily married until Marlon Brando came along.

Agnes first was infatuated with Brando in "The Men." She went raving mad for him when he played Stanley Kowalski in "A Streetcar Named Desire." Her joy as complete with "Viva Zapata."

Plan Devised

All she could talk about was Brando, and she sneered at Ambrose's timid advances. Ambrose was alarmed. His happy home was in jeopardy. He devised a plan.

Ambrose went to see the three Brando pictures. He saw them again and again. He practised the slurring Brando diction. He lifted weights to simulate a muscle-bound condition. Then he sprung his plan.

"Come to dinner, Ambrose," Agnes called in bored tones one evening.

When Ambrose came to the table she stared at him. He was wearing a sweaty pair of dungarees and a shredded T-shirt. He slouched with hair awry, a beer can in his hand.

"You can't come to the table like that!" Agnes scolded.

"Woosez a comdis table likis?" he snarled, scratching his stomach.

"Speak up! I can't understand a word you're saying."

"You hear me! I said 'Woosez la comdis table likis?'" He growled, scratching his bare foot.

"Ambrose, what has come over you? Have you gone crazy?

"Crazy! Who you calling crazy?" he snapped, scratching. "Ijm your husband. Right now I wanna kiss." He grabbed her grabbed her fiercely and planted a kiss on her lips.

"Ambrose, let me go! The broccolis getting cold!"

"Broccoli! 'Til show you what I tink of broccoli!" He picked up the dish and threw it, broccoli and all, out the window. The window was closed at the time.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR SUNDAY, APRIL 6, 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Moon, Mercury, Saturn and other planets in favorable array this fine Sunday. Essential duties must not be neglected, and these should include religious services.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Happy indications for honorable activities. Remember your soul and pray. In free time be not idle; wrongful in pastimes. Children, pleasant socials favor.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Told you make some sacrifices during the holy season of Lent; if you did, you will be the better in every way and will have built blessings for yourself and family. Fine star rays.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Hopeful, pleasant configurations for necessary work, family interests, for planning future activities. Get some needed rest. But attend church.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Excellent influences for most interests. Suppliant unnecessary. Laborious work with spiritual development. This is God's day and too little time is given Him in prayer, good deeds, thanksgiving.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Inspirational ideas, creative work, study, writing, music among the many sponsored this benefic period. Pray, but don't hide away. Lend your entertaining self to others.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—No "clouds" today. Be hopeful and useful and pleasant as you can be, and that will be a lot. The world needs prayer, understanding, good fellowship. Urgent matters, good fun favored.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Let no worry or fear enter into your hearts or activities. Troubles become minor in prayer, happy associations and good deeds. Enjoy a hobby; good reading.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Your urgent work and honorable plans are under friendly rays for most pleasing. Many have to work harder these days and we all should share responsibilities.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Read cautions to other Zodiacal natives today. Your planets in favorable position on whole. Don't neglect spiritual needs, and do enjoy some recreation.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius)—Sort of day Aquarius likes for that free hand to help community, church, other worthy functions, and there are many seeking and needing help. Encouraging influences prevail.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Should have pleasant schedule. Start at church services, then whatever chores are urgent. Thus you will earn leisure, rest later in the day.

YOU BORN TODAY: A bright, vigorous, perhaps snappy personality. Quick of movement, sometimes of temper, but equally as quick and willing to forgive and forget. Unusual talent and managerial ability in this sector. May be successful newspaper personality, a leader in advertising or promotional work. But patience and tolerance must be cultivated and used daily if you are to achieve rightly and keep friends as well. Do not too restless; slowly won success is often more lasting, secure in the end. Whatever U. S. Senator Millard S. Tydings, statesman.

Ontario Legislature Speeds Up Business As Prorogation Nears

Toronto, April 5 (CP) —The Ontario legislature, heading for prorogation next Thursday, voted full budget estimates of the public works department in 18 minutes yesterday and cleared its order paper of several routine bills.

Public Works Minister Thomas announced a series of new capital construction projects in the coming fiscal year.

He told reporters the provincial works program will involve an estimated $17,000,000 expenditure this year—$12,000,000 on works now under construction and $7,000,000 on new works.

Topping the list of new projects are 1,900 new beds in Ontario mental hospitals.

Another $1,950,000 is being set aside as the province's contribution to River Valley conservation projects, provided the federal government will agree to match Ontario's share in each project.

New Bills Introduced

A number of new government bills were introduced.

One, sponsored by Welfare Minister Goodfellow, will provide for provincial grants toward housing projects for elderly persons. Such projects are provided for under agreement between municipalities and the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, and the province proposes to pay half of the municipal share, up to $5,000 a housing unit.

A second bill, which will lift some of the competition on dairy products, provides for licensing of manufacturers and wholesalers of edible oil products. It will give the agriculture minister power to regulate the advertising and labelling of such products.

Mr. Thomas said the main effort of the public works department is toward building more bed space in mental hospitals.

Start Work This Year

Work would start this year on 300 beds for mentally ill children between the ages of two and six at the hospital school at Orillia.

Other mental-hospital additions would provide 400 beds at Port Arthur, 600 beds at Brockville and 900 beds at Smiths Falls.

A new mental hospital of 1,200 beds was planned in the North Bay area to serve northeast Ontario.

Bills dealing with province's share of hydro development of the St. Lawrence River, in conjunction with the deep waterway, were put through committee stage.

Health Minister Phillips introduced a bill to establish the Ontario Cancer Institute, with nine members.

Mr. Thomas said his department plans to establish regional offices across the province to supervise construction projects. The first office would be established at the head of the lakes to supervise all work from Geraldton to the Manitoba border.

The department was also studying plans for new research buildings at both the Ontario Veterinary and Ontario Agricultural Colleges at Guelph.

Make Purchase at Brighton

Premises were being purchased at Chatham, Simcoe and Brighton for provincial police stations which would also provide living quarters for one or more officers.

New O. P. P. detachment buildings were planned for Ignace, Long Lac and Minden.

Two new headquarters buildings for chief forest rangers were planned for Sault Ste. Marie and Trout Lake, near North Bay.

Future plans also called for renovation of fish hatcheries at Sault Ste. Marie, Codrington and Chatsworth, and improvements at the Deer Lake hatchery.

A proposal had been made to Ottawa for a 50-50 sharing of costs for shore-line protection of drainage marshes in Mersea township in Essex county, along Lake Erie.

And a grant would be made to dredge the mouth of the Neebing River at Port William, to which the federal government was contributing.

Blames New Gimmick

Toronto, April 5 (CP) — Ontar Provincial Police were unable to halt most of last year's activities of big-time bookmakers, acting Commissioner Arthur Moss said in the annual report of the force tabled in the legislature yesterday.

He blamed a new "gimmick" by which bookies avoid detection through using long-distance telephone calls.

Such calls were being transposed into local calls with a relay telephone arrangement, he said. Police were powerless to get convictions as long as "these operators know they have immunity on their operations through the use of the automatic dial telephone."

Open Season on Moose Hunting Recommended by Committee

Toronto, April 5 — (CP) — An open season this year on moose hunting for residents of Ontario was recommended today by the Ontario Legislature's fish and game committee, in areas to be designated by the Department of Lands and Forests.

From the department's recommendations to the committee, there was every indication that the season will be opened in a large area of northern Ontario.

"The moose inventory now shows an increase to the point where an open season is not only justified but desirable over a wide area," the department's recommendation said.

An open season, allowed last year north of the northernmost transcontinental rail line, was especially popular with trappers and Indians.

The committee recommended a late season, some time after the middle of November, when cold weather would allow the meat to be kept. However, it opposed opening moose hunting to United States hunters despite the request of the northern Ontario Outfitters' Association.

Reinforcements For Canadians Reach Yokohama

By BILL ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Tokyo, April 5 (CP) —Reinforcements for Canada's troops in Korea arrived at Yokohama yesterday.

The new arrivals, who left Seattle March 19, include elements of the Royal Canadian Regiment and of the Royal 22nd Regiment, which will go directly to Korea.

Other troops aboard will be held in reserve in Japan to await a call for Korean duty. They disembarked for the rail journey to their camp at Kure.

In Ottawa, Defence Minister Claxton told the Commons yesterday it is hoped to have rotation of troops back to Canada over by May and certainly by June at the latest. The 2nd Battalion of the Royal Canadian and Royal 22nd Regiments are being replaced by their 1st Battalions and other relief Korean units are being rotated in the same way.

RESTORED FROM RUINS

Oslo — (CP) — Almost completely rebuilt since it was heavily damaged by the Germans in 1940, the town of Steinkjar recently opened a attractive new civic centre, first built in Norway since fire dominating the new market in the war. The big three-way edifice has a large theatre and many offices.

IDEAS FROM AFAR

London — (CP) — Letters from two British army men serving in Singapore were among those reaching a "staff suggestions" box at a local railway station. Officials said "If it is possible for men in Singapore to send ideas, it should encourage men at home."

Canadians Urged To Observe Wildlife Week

Ottawa, April 5 —(CP) —Prime Minister St. Laurent said yesterday it is the duty of all Canadians to conserve the country's stock of wild creatures.

That, he said in a statement, is the significance of National Wildlife Week, observed April 6 to 12, and begun in 1947 to remind Canadians of the value of their wildlife resources and the importance of conserving them.

"With the privilege of deriving both profit and pleasure from our wildlife there is an accompanying responsibility. It is our duty to conserve the stocks of wild creatures in Canada for the continued use and enjoyment of Canadians of this and of future generations."

PAYDAY SHOCK

Birmingham, England — (CP) — Workers were startled recently when pound notes in their pay envelopes had no metal thread running through the paper, a device introduced in 1940 as a safeguard against forgery. But the notes were simply old stock, still good.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

It could have been that a second, pounding in. Single file, and a few minutes apart, through every door in the place."

tragedy had only barely been averted a few short moments ago. Perhaps the unknown had suddenly become aware of my own presence. Perhaps, too, without pausing myself on the back untidy, my coming had prevented him from striking in the mist and dark.

Presently Eve's voice sounded low, clear and unwontedly animated, "darling, we simply must go back."

The rest of it was lost to me, because I ducked behind a convenient bush. But they appeared a moment later, two indistinct shapes moving slowly and reluctantly out from under the trees. I trailed them at a safe distance. They parted a hundred yards from the house. Eve glooted away into the darkness. Eve, though very attractive, was not very large. I let her go and kept Cravath in sight until he had gone around to the front and into the house by the main door.

I stood there a moment trying to decide what to do. A plane flew in from the south, deafeningly low interrupting my thoughts.

I then made a laudable gesture toward self-discipline. The mist had definitely turned to rain and I would have liked to call off this peregrination of the premises. I didn't immediately, for I thought it just possible that by hanging around outside I might get the identity of that fourth party. Now that Eve and Cravath had gone, it seemed likely that he or she might also be ready to slip back into the house. I wanted to find out who he was. So I haunted the lawn for another 20 minutes. For this dismal chore I got nothing except a consistent wetting. No one tried, surreptitiously or otherwise, to get in by way of the entrances I could see. But I couldn't cover all sides of the place at once. When from within I finally heard the sonorous boom of Manila's gong, I gave it up as a bad job.

Sally Cravath, still in the glen plaid of the afternoon, was crossing the lower hallway when I arrived, dripping. "So you're another one," she said.

I stared at her, not getting it.

"Another rat who seems to have decided that the ship isn't going to sink just yet. And come back on board."

I shook my head. "I guess I'm just dumb."

"That doesn't make you unique tonight. So was everybody else, except me. Where, my pet might you, for one, have been?"

I led her about the entire for a walk in the mist, but nothing else.

"Well, well," she said. "You seem to have become a hotbed of hikers and fresh air fiends lately. And what a lovely night all of you picked for your rambles."

"Ain't," I felt my face go up.

"So far as I can see. I came down at the usual time for drinks and found precisely nobody — except Manila."

"Where were the others?" I inquired.

"Dad, my dear is what I'm asking you. Apparently they were outside. Every last one of them. Then a little while ago, they started

Kills Officer as "Best Way" to Escape Army

Private Michael P. Kunak, 19, of Baltimore Md., a cook's helper in U.S. airborne division, is being held in jail at Lampasas, Texas, in the fatal shooting of an army lieutenant. Pte. Kunak told James Evetta, district attorney: "I decided the best way to get out of the army was to kill a man." Pte. Kunak, according to the report, walked up to a group of officers and reporters, raised his carbine and killed the officer with a home-made bullet. He then laid aside his rifle after the shooting and stood "at ease" until arrested. — Central Press Canadian.

Down a straight narrow tree-bordered strip where once. I understood, gaily colored peacocks had preened and strutted.

An instant later I was conscious of William also, slowing his steps. And I could just make out the fence posts, stubby white spectres in the receding gloom.

Williamson stopped altogether. The three of us behind him stopped too, a bumbling excited little huddle of men, falling over each other, swearing, disentangling briefly, and straightening up. Williamson's flashlight bored a tunnel of radiance through the damp and sticky dark.

We saw it, distinctly but horribly. A big misshapen bundle, beaten by the rain, draped limply and pitifully over the sagging chains that guarded the end of the Peacock Path.

"Dolly!" Dumont's strident cry came back to us through the monotonous patter of raindrops.

Cravath grabbed my arm and we moved slowly forward. And I had to force myself to look. Dolly Dumont, lying across that cold wet iron, was an even more grotesque and awful spectacle than the broken body of Ames Warburton.

Her head, hanging sideways that it bottom of the steps.

"All right, Williamson!" Cravath snapped. "Lead on!"

Williamson, the chauffeur, seemed to want to explain himself. "I was having a look around, sir," he began "like you says to, and I . . ."

Cravath pushed him roughly. "Later man!"

Without another word Williamson turned and broke into a run, his torch blazing full-on now. Cravath was hard at his heels. I came next, Dumont, who until now had appeared stunned, panted in the rear.

But suddenly Williamson sprinted past me; past Cravath.

"Stein . . ." he puffed at William-son's elbow, but I lost the rest of it as Cravath stumbled and swore. Cravath sprinted himself. And I heard Williamson, flinging it over his shoulder "I don't know, sir. Couldn't say."

Dumont dropped back then, between Cravath and myself, a short muffled ejaculation escaping him. After that we just ran, behind Williamson's flickering swaying light.

I found myself saying down that accursed path before I knew it. not dead. At least, not yet."

I did as he had done, put the back of my hand down close to her lips. I felt breath, faint but warm. We had manifestly been deceived by her dreadfully lifeless look.

"What?" The news snapped Dumont out of his stupor. His voice rose in a clear ringing shout. "Are you sure, Marney?"

"Absolutely sure," Cravath cut in. "But she's in bad shape. We've got to get her inside at once. Orth and I can manage that. Go to the house, Jack, and phone Dr. Dreeves at Port Lizton. If you can't get him, get somebody else. In a hurry, Williamson, you help us lift her. Then bring a car up to the house. We may have to take her to the hospital."

Dumont, all trace of dazedness vanished, was off even before he finished speaking. Then Cravath and I made a "chair" of our hands. Big Williamson lifted Dolly as if she were a baby, eased her into it, putting a dark arm around each of our necks. She was a dead weight, of course, and her head rolled lollingly, drunkenly, between Cravath's shoulder and mine. But when we started back along the Peacock Path, she suddenly gave a little moan. It was a weak pathetic sound, but one of the most welcome I have ever heard.

We made the house slowly but without too much difficulty, went in by a side door. There Dumont met us.

"How is she, Marney?" He clipped it out anxiously.

Cravath's reply came in puffs. "I've a hunch she'll be all right."

We carried Dolly up to the rooms occupied by the Dumonts. She moaned again as we laid her on the bed.

"Get Ring, Jack," Cravath said. "She'll know what to do before the doctor gets here."

67,000 Workers In Communications Across U.S. Strike

Entire Telephone Service Is Threatened by Walkout

By EUGENE LEVIN

New York, April 7 (AP) — A two - pronged communications strike flared across the United States today as Bell system telephone and telegraph spokesman said "most service is normal."

The CIO walkouts hit the Western Electric Company, installation and maintenance subsidiary of the Bell system in 43 states, and the telephone system itself in five states.

Coupled with a continuing A.F.L. strike against the Western Union Telegraph System, the new walkouts made the communications snarl a three-way affair.

About 67,000 workers—18,000 of them employees of Western Electric and 51,000 of them telephone employees in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Northern California and Nevada—quit their jobs.

They are all members of the Communications Workers of America (CIO).

Picketing Only Sporadic

Although picket lines of the 43-state Western Electric strike would threaten telephone service generally, picketing was only sporadic so far.

In the Western Union strike, now in its fifth day, the company claimed today that service has been restored in 83 major cities of the some 2,000 cities and towns.

The union, the Commercial Telegraphers (CIO) said the claim was company propaganda, and that "we have the country under the control of New York City."

Further mediation efforts were scheduled today, both for the telephone and Western Union phases of the strikes.

Will Picket Offices

The Western Electric dispute appeared to be the most serious. This company is a Bell subsidiary, and the union plans to picket telephone company offices.

Ernest Weir, A.T. & T. official in New York, said 300,000 Bell telephone workers in the 43 states were prepared to respect the Western Electric picket lines.

In the Bell system disputes, most of the issues involved are operators. Wage demands in the various scales vary in different areas.

Federal mediator J. R. Mandeville was in conference with Western Union officials today at their New York offices.

The A. F. L. union is seeking a 16-cent an hour boost from the telegraph company. It also is asking a shorter work week and vacation benefits. Present wage average between $1.53 and $1.63 an hour.

CHARLOTTE WAS COY

Toronto, April 7 — (CP) Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa just wouldn't be kissed by Toronto's Mayor Allan Lamport.

He did his best at the women's service clubs' dinner Saturday, when Allan presented a bouquet of the citizens of Toronto to assure her that the dove of peace still could flutter after their recent verbal skirmish.

As news photographer was all set to take a picture of the kiss. But Miss Whitton's mayor settled for a handshake.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 7 (CP)—Synopsis: The Atlantic and the United States are a rather sodden gray over the weekend, as flanked by moving Maritime pressures, and by this evening cloud and precipitation will spread to cover clearing skies.

The western United States and southern Prairie provinces have been enjoying pleasant spring-like weather but the north is in for a contrast with the cool temperatures experienced yesterday by Ontario inhabitants. Medicine Hat, Alberta, reported maximum temperatures of 75 degrees.

Temperatures will remain cool throughout the province but not but a high pressure area moving into the forecast region will bring rising temperatures, light winds and sunny skies on Tuesday.

Blast Furnaces Being Cooled Before Deadline

New York, April 7. (AP)— Hopes that the government can settle the steel wage dispute flickered away, like fires in the industry's blast furnaces already being cooled before the strike deadline today at midnight.

The Wage Stabilization Board chairman, Nathan Feinsinger, and two members of the board planned new meetings today with representatives of steel's "Big Six" and the C.I.O. United Steel Workers.

Feinsinger met with union and industry representatives for several hours yesterday and later spoke cautiously of "gradual progress" toward a "better understanding" of each other's problems.

"It is too early, however," Feinsinger added, "to state whether or when the dispute will be settled."

His cautious optimism was tempered by these immediate developments:

U.S. Steel Corporation President Benjamin F. Fairless asked the union to call off the strike; and the Steel Workers' President, Philip Murray, promptly said it was the industry, not the union, which was "forcing the strike."

Merchants Report Slump

At Pittsburgh and in nearby steel towns, there was a growing feeling that the strike, postponed several times, now probably can't be avoided. Retail trade officials cooled their enthusiasm and closed their cool mines. Steel workers were deciding on to their cash, and merchants reported an Easter buying slump.

Major manufacturing firms planned for steel shortages. The General Electric Co., meanwhile, its executives in a news letter to stop all overtime work as soon as a steel strike started.

One spark briefly lighted the dreary picture. The Barium Steel Company, with four Pennsylvania plants and 2,500 workers, signed an independent agreement with the union, which now has pacts covering five companies with 15,000 workers.

The Independents accepted the union's terms, that contracts be based on the wage stabilization board's recommendation for a 17 1-2 cents-an-hour total wage increase and other fringe benefits.

Other steel firms, including the "Big Six", have opposed the board's recommendations.

103 YEARS OLD

Windsor, April 7 (CP)—Cappy Spheare—Captain Willington B. Spheare to you—celebrated his 103rd birthday today.

Still hale and brisk, he received friends' congratulations in the cottage on Windsor's western outskirts where he lives alone.

The captain, who for 60 years has held papers as a Great Lakes' skipper, retired at the age of 90.

PORT OFFICIALS LOOK FORWARD TO BUSY SEASON

Claim it Will be Good Judging Early Activity

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadian port officials today looked forward to a shipping season they predict will be good, if not better than average.

A Canadian Press survey showed that port workers at Halifax, Vancouver, Saint John, N.B., and various other deep-sea ports all were in the midst of initiating annual springtime bustle of business.

The inland ports of Montreal, Quebec, Three Rivers are set for the 1952 navigation season which, although officially opened, has not yet swung into high gear. Opening of the locks will, as usual, cause a slackening off of activity in the east-coast ports.

A huge new pier, officially opened at Halifax last week, will provide much-needed dock space. During the last season some ships have had to "line up" for berths.

Some 10,000,000 bushels of grain, double last year's amount, has been shipped from Halifax so far this year. Another 500,000 bushels now is on its way there by rail.

YWCA Secretary Protests Action Catholic Church

Rome April 7 (AP) —The national secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association of Italy protested today against an Italian Catholic action directive warning its members against both the young Women's and Young Men's Christian Associations.

In a letter to the Rome Daily American, English-language newspaper, Miss Ruth Rikli said the Catholic action pronouncement "can only bring a sense of dismay" to those Italians who have been in America and seen what religious cooperation is.

The president of the Catholic group on March 25 told its members they "must regard" the YWCA and YMCA as forbidden "organizations" under Roman Catholic Canon law.

The directive referred specifically to canon 684 of the Church code which orders Catholics to guard themselves from "associations that are secret, condemned, seditious, suspected or that seek to free themselves away from the legitimate vigilance of the Church."

The YWCA secretary wrote:

"I cannot think of any aspect of our association which might have led the leaders of Catholic Action to list us as an association "secret" or 'seditious' for our history from Queen Victoria's time (and we are about to celebrate our centenary) is too well-known."

She added: "I am only happy to point that Italian Catholic Action is so inconsistent. Hardly a year ago, official leaders of their youth organizations came in person to our national headquarters in Rome (both to the YMCA as well as the YWCA) to insist that both of our associations attend the meetings for the constitution of a W.A.Y. (World Assembly of Youth) Italian committee."

India's Ambassador to Moscow Calls for 'Top People' of World To Meet After Visiting Stalin

Moscow, April 7. (AP)— A half-hour conversation between Prime Minister Stalin and India's ambassador to Moscow has produced a new call for the world's "top people" to meet in an attempt to settle major international problems.

"There is no outstanding problem now dividing the world which could not be settled with discussion and negotiation. . . . Every effort should be made to get the top people together," said the Indian ambassador, Sir Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan, after his conversation Saturday night with Stalin.

Stalin's interview with the Indian diplomat was viewed here as another in a series of important Soviet moves apparently aimed at fostering the hope that the top leaders can settle its differences peaceably.

The communist moves in this direction Inhibit:

1. Stalin's statement last week to a group of American newspaper editors and radio men that a Third World War is no nearer than it was in 1949 or 1950 and that a meeting of the big power chiefs of state should be urged.

2. The International Economic Conference now under way here at which Dr. Nekrasov, president of Russia's Chamber of Commerce, said Communists in the Soviet Union is ready for a vast expansion of trade with all countries.

3. The Russian proposal nearly a month ago that the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union get together to negotiate a peace treaty with a United Germany.

The Indian Ambassador talked with Stalin during a farewell call before leaving April 8 for India to become the country's vice-president.

Radhakrishnan said Stalin looked "as usual" and was in "a good humor".

Though there was no immediately official reaction in the Communist bloc to Stalin's suggestion for a top-level conference, non-communist observers pointed out that the Soviet may be about to declare that the Soviet Union is ready to "sit around the table" with the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union.

3 Centre Spans Of Swift Current Bridge Collapse

Swift Current, Sask., April 7. (CP)—A flood crest weighed with boulders of ice swept away the brand-new $1,000,000 Saskatchewan Landing bridge with a great roar early Sunday morning.

Three steel centre spans, weighing hundreds of tons, were carried 200 feet, then sank in the South Saskatchewan river. They left no trace save an eddy in the current marking where they lay on the river bottom.

The 1,215-foot bridge, completed last summer, linked Swift Current and the southwest corner of Saskatchewan with the province's west-central region. Today the area failed a temporary return to a ferry service which plied the river for 68 years before the bridge was built.

Meanwhile, the flood crest moved northward toward Saskatoon. Already thousands of acres of farmland in the Pike and Moon Lake areas 15 miles west of Saskatoon were flooded. In the city itself, chunks of ice battered the piers of Saskatoon's five bridges.

Saskatchewan Landing bridge went out at 1:55 a.m., after undermining the battering ram of ice and water for three days. The river level, which had been even with the floor of the bridge, suddenly rose another three feet as the flood crest roared downstream.

The three big centre spans slung across the river became spans splinted into the water and disappeared in 10 seconds. Left standing were three concrete spans at the south end and two at the north end.

Premier T. C. Douglas placed damage at between $200,000 and $300,000. Highways Minister J. T. Douglas put the figure at $1?7,-000. Action on original plans to be believed cost of replacing the missing spans at today's prices will be considerably higher.

Return to Work

The walkout of the guards, which started when the company refused to bargain with a union representative, closed 15 banks and 1,000 branches in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut.

The drivers struck in sympathy with the guards.

Hound Dog Carries Burning Sheets From House, Rubs Flames Out in Mud

Toronto, April 7 (CP) —A blackand-white hound dog kept a bedroom fire from spreading in suburban Scarboro yesterday, firemen said today:

The dog, Gunner, ran out of the house with burning sheets in his mouth and rubbed the flames out on the ground.

Firemen found three men asleep in the house and almost suffocated from smoke. They were George McNeil, 22, brother of the owner, Gordon McNeil and William Kellogg, 21.

The dog leaped on the pillows, tore the sheets and stamped the flames out in a mud puddle.

Then, when firemen arrived, discovered the fire but said he was unable to enter because of the heavy smoke, called the fire department.

"When I came back I was amazed to see that the dog had smashed three trips into the house," he said. "I was sure the fire had been put out earlier in the night and the three men had extinguished it with a pail of water. Then it broke out again.

PRAIRIE FARMERS GETTING READY TO HARVEST

130 Million Bushels Still Lying in Fields

Regina, April 7 (CP) —The calendar says spring, but western farmers are getting ready to harvest.

As winter snow melts and runoff water builds up into small lakes in the prairie sloughs, about 130,-000,000 bushels of grain from the 1951 crop is lying in the fields in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The western farmer is preparing to tackle a job that might well baffle the more cautious agriculturist. He has to get one crop off, put another in, all in short space of time.

The large holdover from the fall harvest, amounting to from one-quarter to one-third of the crop was caused by winter's early onslaught. A large part of the grain buried in drifts in the fall was taken off so sodden it needed artificial drying, but that's another story.

The chances are that when the farmer gets his spring harvesting started, the grain will grade better and bring him more money, than that taken off in the fall. But he has to be sure the grain is dry before he puts it in bin.

That is not too much of a problem, because the experts say that by the time it is ripe enough to support the weight of a combine, the grain will generally be dry.

Patrol Bomber Makes Flight Over North Pole

Anchorage, Alaska, April 7 (AP) —A United States Navy patrol bomber has landed at Thule air force base in northern Greenland after a flight over the North Pole, the Alaskan air command reported early today.

The plane, well known here whether the ski-equipped bomber, carrying 11 men and 5,000 gallons of fuel, had actually put down at the pole, as planned. The plane was to refuel at Thule before flying to Fort Barrow, Alaska, headquarters of the Alaskan air command reported.

The plane was one of the two P2V Neptune bombers, each carrying a crew of eight, which set out late Saturday from Point Barrow to attempt the first landing strip flight had actually put down at the pole, as planned. The plane was to refuel at Thule before flying to Fort Barrow, Alaska, headquarters of the Alaskan air command reported early today.

The plane was one of the two P2V Neptune bombers, each carrying a crew of eight, which set out late Saturday from Point Barrow to attempt the first landing strip flight on the strategic polar ice cap at the top of the world.

The two planes landed on "Ice Island T-3" several hundred miles north of the pole, after trouble forced one of the bombers to return behind on the island yesterday.

Churchill Agreeable to Meeting Stalin if Circumstances Favorable

London, April 7. (Reuters)— His Prime Minister Churchill-said today in the House of Commons, he would welcome a meeting with Premier Stalin, and President Truman if the circumstances were favorable.

Labor member Norman Dodds question Churchill in the House of Commons, urging that most people would welcome that he try and talk than not to try at all.

Dodds wanted to know whether Churchill would take a constructive about a meeting with Stalin as he had done with President Truman in last October when Churchill advocated such a meeting in his election campaign.

Churchill replied: "It is not so much a question of enthusiasm but of earnestness, and on my part that has in no way diminished."

Another Labor M.P., former Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell, asked: "What has caused you to change your mind? Have you been thinking again?"

Churchill brought cheers from his supporters with his reply: "I have not stated my mind at all apparently Mr. Shinwell has changed his, since he and his party called my proposal in 1951 a stunt."

"Are you to understand," Shinwell countered, "that the reason you are reluctant to take up the point is that you never regard it as a stunt yourself?"

Churchill said: "I have no reluctance at all. If the circumstances and the situation were favorable I would welcome the occasion."

The last time the Stalin meeting came up in the House was Jan. 19, also on a question from Dodds. Churchill then said that he had nothing to add to a reply he had given Nov. 12 which was:

"There are at present no plans for negotiations on general problems with the Soviet Union but the possibility of a high-level meeting should not be excluded if circumstances are favorable."

White Paper Indicates Revenues Set All-Time High

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, April 7 (AP) — A budgetary surplus of $355,737,000 for the 1951-52 fiscal year was reported today by Finance Minister Abbott. The surplus, sixth in a row for the federal government since the end of the Second World War, compared with $211,294,000 in the previous year.

Revenues for the year ended March 31 last, setting an all-time record, totalled $4,003,111,000 and expenditures $3,647,374,000. In the previous year revenues were $3,112,536,000 and expenditures $2,901,-242,000.

The surplus reduced the country's net debt to $11,077,000,000, a decrease of $2,343,800,000 from the peak of $13,421,400,000 in 1946.

The figures were included in the government's annual White Paper containing an economic review of the last fiscal year, Mr. Abbott, due to present his budget to the Commons at 8 p.m. E.S.T. Tuesday set a precedent by tabling the White Paper a day in advance of his budget speech.

Predicted Small Surplus

In his budget speech a year ago, Mr. Abbott forecast a surplus of only $300,000 for 1951-52. Last fall, he revised his forecast and said he believed he would end the year with a surplus of between $200,000,000 and $300,000,000

At the end of nine months of the fiscal year, the surplus had climbed to $727,000,000. The White Paper did not list the expenditures month-by-month and did not explain what expenses had reduced the surplus from its peak to $355,000,000 at the end of the year.

A detailed explanation was given for the wide margin between the original forecast of a $30,000,000 surplus and the actual experience.

Revenues were $292,000,000 greater than anticipated and defence expenditures were $200,000,000 less than estimated.

The original revenue forecast was based on the expectation that the gross national product—the value of Canadian production—would be $20,000,000,000. It actually reached $21,200,000,000. Profits, incomes and imports were all higher than anticipated.

Corporation Tax-Yield Up

Corporation tax, the 85-page White Paper:

Personal income tax yielded an estimated $980,000,000 in 1951-52, an increase of $327,700,000 or 53.3 per cent over the previous year.

Corporation income tax, again the largest single source of government revenue, yielded $1,-134,000,000, an increase of $334,-800,000 or 42 per cent over the previous year.

Revenue from taxes on cigars, cigarets and tobacco was $24,-800,000 higher, although the yield from excise duties on tobacco products and alcoholic beverages was $19,000,000 lower due to reduced sales.

The company said it has acquired exploration options near Peterborough, in Durham, Northumberland and Frontenac counties and in the Kingston vicinity.

J. and L. said it has told owners of the land "there is indirect geophysical evidence of possible iron ore occurrence and that their property merits more detailed examination."

The first field crews of geologists are expected to be in the field in a few weeks.

William M. Fiedler, J. and L.'s chief geologist, said, if iron ore of acceptable grade is found, it will have to be recovered by deep-mine operations.

Former member of the club, Rev. Donald Amos, was the speaker for the occasion. He used as his subject and text the familiar nursery rhyme "Little Jack Horner" from Mother Goose. He introduced that this fictional character would not make a Y-man. Stating that there were some traits of the fellow which were common to many Y'men, the speaker said that in such cases the Y-man and the Y's men's movement were not enriched. He pointed out that Jack Horner sat in a corner as an nolationist whereas a Y-men are world minded. He also mentioned that Jack Horner by his very name the story book personality, feasted on plums, which is frequently an occurrence in all walks of life.

The thanks of the club were ably expressed by G. Spence Wonnacott. In an extensive and humorous speech Harold T. Hankinson, Gertrude to the ladies, to which toast Mr. Erle R. Whitfield made an appropriate reply of thanks and appreciation.

District Governor Heard

District Governor C. M. Whitcher of Midland spoke briefly and presented attendance pins as follows: One year perfect attendance to Wm. G. Hutchings, Jack Fletcher, Bert Hiles, Harold Schickler and W. Scott Hutton. Two-year attendance pins were presented to Robby Clarke, Art Davis, Bud Vanalstine and Wm. Williams.

In looking at the year in retrospect, president Leslie reminded the members that on taking office he had chosen as his theme "Service." In taking stock a year later he said he wished to review what had been accomplished.

Capital expenditures were noted for the Y. M. C. A. in the renovation of the auditorium, repairs to the boiler and filtration plant and equipment for the Y. M. C. A. camp at a total cost of about $12,000.

Other services were noted by the president including assistance to the Y. M. C. A. Flower Fund for which full sponsorship had been accepted on behalf of the Y. M. C. A. A bantam hockey team and a bantam hardball team were sponsored. Help was assisted in going to the Y. M. C. A. camp at Littlejohn and parties for boys and girls was conducted. A Father and Son banquet for the Y. M. C. A. boys was held and another is planned for April 25th. Luncheons were provided for Y. M. C. A. boys and girls during Christmas week recreational program and trophies were being donated for the coming Easter week Y. M. C. A. tournaments.

Financial Assistance Given

Financial assistance was given the work of the Y. M. C. A. and Y's Men's Club during the year to such agencies such as World Service, disaster relief, and food parcels. Two scholarships were provided for collegiate students and bowling was sponsored for the blind. These and other endeavors cost the club members an additional $1,000 in assessments.

The president explained that the total accomplishments for these worthy projects were Radio Auction sets which netted $2,000 and the thanks of the club were extended to the public for the support given to these worthy work possible. He referred also to the assistance given by the club to the club accounted for in no small way by the service which the club is rendering the Y.M.C.A. and the community. Entertainment of the elderly at the Hospital and community relations and understanding and attendance at conventions by large numbers of delegates had added much to the understanding of Y.M.C.A. work and Y'dom by the members.

Emphasized by the club was not a social club but a service club of and for the Y.M.C.A. president Leslie referred to his furthering the fine character development of the Y.M.C.A. and the Y'men found their greatest social enjoyments. It would be well to find still greater enthusiasm and good social fellowship that was to be found with Y'men and their families.

New Officers Inducted

Following a fitting introduction by Gerry Hyde, Edward John Lorne Littlejohn inducted the new officers in an impressive ceremony. He challenged each to accept the responsibility of a Y'man and a Y's men's member with sincerity of purpose for their tasks were great and the success of their endeavors would lead to the attainment of the objectives of the Y.M.C.A. and Y'dom.

President-elect Littlejohn assumed his role of leadership, congratulating the retiring president and officers for their attainments which he termed set up a high standard, but pledged his every effort with no half-way measure to extend the work of service initiated during the past year.

Miss Sharon Lord entertained with vocal selections. The evening was concluded by dancing to the music of Bob Hutchinson. Special numbers were directed by Robby Clarke. TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 7 (CP)—Prices drifted downward today in early afternoon stock market dealings.

Trading was heavy as western oils and golds drew speculative interest. Industrial dealings spread from leading issues while base metals showed only sporadic activity. Volume for the first three hours was 2,697,000 shares.

Papers, utilities and refining oils led industrials with a broad list of declines. Agriculturals, constructions banks, manufacturing companies and miscellaneous issues also slipped but steels, foods and retail stores held gains and losses in balance.

Western oil losses ranged from pennies to about 50 cents. Anglo-Canadian, Calvan Consolidated, Del Rio, General Petroleum A, Model Oil, New British Dominions and Western Homestead dipped.

Base metals were mixed as East Sullivan, Mattarrow, Quebec Copper and United Keno Hill showed strength while Consolidated Smelters, East Rim, Labrador and Yukeno eased.

Senior golds made little headway. Bralorne and Dome strengthened while Lake Shore and Teck Hughes weakened. Wright Hargreaves added pennies in active trading. Definite, Pioneer and Kerkland Hudson climbed strongly in a firm secondary list.

Further Union Of Churches Seen Possibility

Toronto, April 7—(CP)—Announcement of "confirmation services" by two United Churches brought renewed speculation today of possible union between the United Church and the Church of England in Canada.

Rev. E. S. Lautenslager of Howard Park Church and Rev. A. H. Ferry of Olde Davenport announced the "confirmation services" and performed the ceremony themselves. The word "confirmation" is used in the Church of England for the ceremony of joining the church. In the United Church a less elaborate ceremony is known as a reception of new members.

While senior United Church officials saw no great significance in the "adjustment," one clergyman said he detected an "approach to union" with the Church of England in Canada.

In the ceremony Mr. Lautenslager laid hands upon the head of each new member in turn and said: "I confirm you into the Church of Jesus Christ by the confirmation of your baptism; and may the Lord bless and make you a blessing."

Girls and women wear long white veils for confirmation in the Church of England. In the United Church they wear hats.

Mr. Lautenslager got around the difficulty by laying his hands on their temples.

British Budget Seen As Affecting Canadian Exports

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor.)

R. P. Bower, commercial counsellor for Canada in London, comments on the recent British budget in its current issue of Foreign Trade, published by the Foreign Trade service of the department of Trade and Commerce.

He says the effect of the budget on Canadian trade is difficult to assess, and adds, in part:

"Withdrawal of open-general-licence treatment from a number of commodities will not directly influence Canadian sales to the United Kingdom, because none of the affected products are currently moving from Canada to the United Kingdom.

"However, the austerity involved in all recent U.K. corrective measures is bound to work toward a lowering of internal demand. Ultimately, this may have an adverse effect on Canadian exports, even of the so-called essentials, and more probably upon some of the products covered by token imports.

"On the other hand, the ultimate solvency of the U.K. is the best guarantee of a long-term market here for Canadian goods. Whatever the short-term consequences, therefore, the long-term goal of strengthening sterling is desirable.

"For U.K. exports to Canada, the budget is likely to be helpful."

Leo Reise Lost To Detroit Red Wings for Series

Detroit, April 7 — (AP) —Detroit Red Wings lost the services of regular defenceman Leo Reise for the Stanley Cup hockey finals when he suffered a cut left instep in practice today.

The Wings' other regular defenceman, Red Kelly, is already sidelined by a wrist injury. But he is expected to be ready for the series which start this week against the winner of the Boston-Montreal semi-final.

Reise's instep was punctured by Marcel Pronovott's skate when the two collided.

The Wings said they are trying to locate defenceman Hugh Coflin of their Indianapolis farm club who is reported "somewhere in Saskatchewan." They would fly him here as Reise's replacement...

On the Farm, It's No Time for Spring Fever

Shipping Season Starts

Canada's inland merchant fleet numbering almost 300 ships is beginning what shipping men say may be the biggest season since the end of the war. The Imperial Redwater, the world's largest fresh-water tanker, is shown clearing Lock 1 of the Welland Canal this week at Port Weller on the south shore of Lake Ontario. The tanker was the first into the lock to start the 1952 navigation season. —(CP Photo.)

THE NEW HIGHWAY

During discussion of the estimates of the department of highways in the legislature on Wednesday, Hon. George H. Dunbar, acting minister of highways, announced that work will begin soon on a new four-lane highway which will by-pass Belleville and thus help reduce traffic congestion here.

The new highway is part of a projected four-lane route connecting Montreal and Windsor. The part to be built in this region will start at Trenton and return to the present No. 2 Highway at Gananoque, where a stretch of four-lane highway has already been built. Mr. Dunbar said the construction would be "rushed."

Residents of the whole district will applaud the decision of the government to initiate construction of the highway in this area. For some years No. 2 Highway between here and Trenton has been so congested as to make it dangerous at times, with the volume of traffic making for improved conditions at all times. The department of highways and the Ontario government are to be commended for recognizing the immediate need for the new highway and making provision for having the work begun.

The streets of Belleville, like those of many another of the older communities of Ontario, were laid out in a day when no one anticipated either the volume of motor traffic or the weight of the vehicles traversing the roads. Where provincial highways run through a town or city, as they do here, maintenance of the streets concerned not only constitutes a heavy expense; there is also serious traffic congestion and consequent increased danger of accidents.

In Belleville, the situation is particularly bad on the West Bridge Street hill, the lower city bridge, at Bridge and Front streets and at Dundas and Front streets. Construction of this new stretch of highway should go far toward correcting the undesirable situation which has developed.

Only a short time ago, a delegation from the Belleville city council waited upon Premier Frost and his associates asking for action to relieve the pressure of heavy traffic through this city. The delegation's request was granted with a speed that leaves little room for complaint.

ON THE RIGHT TRACK?

The Sudbury Daily Star views with approval what it regards as a decision of the Progressive Conservatives to drop the Progressive part of their title. (During a long speech which he made a short time ago, Premier Frost of the party's leader, George Drew, used the term "Conservative" several times, but the expression "Progressive Conservative" not even once).

After some facetious remarks about the difficulties experienced by editors, printers and proofreaders with long and unwieldy titles, the Star, in more serious vein, recalls the Progressive part of the party's title was adopted to please John Bracken, who had been the Progressive premier of Manitoba.

As all older people will recall, the party did not do very well in the election it fought under Mr. Bracken's Progressive or Liberal Progressive leadership. Since Mr. Bracken's time, the party, still calling itself "Progressive Conservative," has done even worse.

Perhaps Mr. Drew and the other policy-makers of the party are showing good judgment in dropping the word "Progressive." Perhaps they would be showing still better judgment if they came out flat-footedly and began referring to themselves as "Tory." When they called themselves "Tories," the Progressive Conservatives or Conservatives began officially in making friends and influencing people than they are experiencing today.

Probably that able writer and shrewd observer, R. M. Harrison of the Windsor Daily Star, was right when he remarked, as he once did: "An imitation is never a success."

TIME TO PAINT UP

Many changes have taken place on the farm during the last three decades. The tractor is replacing the horse. The electric light bulb is replacing, or has replaced, the kerosene lantern. The automobile has become almost an essential. The farmer's productivity per man hour has increased sharply.

But many farms are still lagging behind the times in one respect — they need a big paint job. Wherever one goes in rural Ontario, there are houses, sheds and barns that either have not been painted for years or have never been painted at all.

Paint not only adds to the appearance of a building; its adds to its life span. A well-painted and frequently-painted building not only looks better — it lasts longer. It also adds much to the pride of ownership which is a good thing at all times.

THE MISSING TALENT

I should have learned mechanics, as once my grandaire told,
Said he: "You'll need a skill with tools whatever post you hold.
You ought to know how things are made and how they are repaired."
But, of no love for carvings and gears, it was for books I cared.

My grandpa was a useful man and handy as could be.
But what he knew of wrench and drill he could not pass to me.

Perhaps it is with some of us that tools and books won't mix,
But there was nothing in the house that grandpa couldn't fix.

To grandpa things were feminine, and in his simple way
Whenever anything broke down: "I'll fix her;" he would say.

But I, when clock or motor stops, in ignorance remain,
Wishing my grandaire still were here to "start her up" again.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

GREEN WORLD

A friend of mine named Norm, age 14, invited me to go fishing and we were along the trail by eight o'clock.

We followed first an old colonization logging road and the going was easy. Then Norm cut off on a nature trail, almost overgrown and mounting in a series of switchbacks through a steep slope of second growth cedar and fir. I was soon wishing I, too, were 14.

It was maybe 20 minutes before I got my second wind, that mysterious release of hidden power. All of the old familiar sensations of hiking came back: the pleasant ache in the thighs, the lovely feeling when you come to a sudden downward dip in the trail, the vast sense of peace and aloneness.

It was a bright and windy day. The sun filtered in green light through shafts through the forest with that effect to be seen only in the woods and in cathedrals. The evergreens creaked and goaned restlessly. There were dead trees that bowed and nodded to each other. The forest floor was a green tide with the trilling, chattering, liquid calling of birds. The air was wine clear and tasted bright in the lungs.

Once, when I stopped for smoke, Norm grinned with sheer delight, looked down into the valley below, and said: "gee, I'd like to do this every day." I had that feeling of fishing trips in distant memory.

We came upon the lake suddenly and startled a deer on the side. She was a delicate little thing. She poised her head for a split second, then stare at us curiously for a moment with one front hoof in the water then moved off into the trees, uneasy but without loss of her dignity.

The lake is not large. More than a large pond spring fed and caught in a hollow in the hills and mountain. At the far end was a small meadow, rimmed by jack-pine. The water was still but for a light breeze, but at the far end it was shattered and out from among the stunted pine were reflected in its surface mirror. It looked like a lake in a Disney advertisement.

We followed the faint trail around the shore of the lake to the meadow and there we found a small raft of saplings nailed to shingle bolts. We cut rods of alder branches and then got aboard and from poled out from the shore, into the middle of the lake. Every few minutes a fish would jump, small, silver-sided trout. We glanced at each other and nodded our heads up and down.

Soon we had our lines out, tiny hooks baited with fat, juicy worms, six or eight feet of line below the green-and-white bobbins. Norm's was a tiny lead pellet, the size of a bee-bee shot—14-year-old style fishin'.

We sat down on opposite ends of the raft, back to back, eyes on our bobbins. Nothing at all happened. We talked about a lot of things. We talked about what a 14-year-old fellow ought to be when he grows up and about big fish we'd caught and how good it was to get away from things and get into the woods.

The breeze died down. The April sun climbed over us. We doffed our heavy Indian sweaters and sat in our shirt sleeves, eyes always on the bobbin. An eagle planed slowly overhead, a mile in the air, riding the unseen currents. A woodpecker hollered on an old snag nearby. We wondered if a woodpecker ever got a headache.

Then suddenly we were in business. The first bass was Norm's. Norm's line. The bobbin tilted up on end a few times. Then it disappeared entirely and Norm expertly up his rod and the small trout he hooked broke a little high above perhaps 10 inches long. We stopped talking and started fishing.

We had caught and released a dozen one of them a Rainbow that went a pound and a half, when I felt a bump and with a blush of coloring that's as beautiful as anything in nature.

Norm poled the raft into shore again and we had our lunch of sandwiches, fruit, and hot, but warmed moss awhile, hands clasped under our heads, looking up at a red tail hawk soaring high above.

We wrapped the trout in fern and put them in the packs and headed back down the trail. The sun had got in the sun and there was a warm and golden atmosphere about the trees. The heat of summer locked for the moment in the vault of the forest.

We came again to the clearing where I'd stopped for, a drink and where we paused again and looked down into the valley. We saw a car moving along the road, the smoke from the farmhouses, a single figure walking across a field and to a barn.

"This is what it must look like to the eagles," Norm said with the unconscious poetry of the 14-year-old.

We slung our packs on again and logged down the trail, leaving behind with reluctance the green and happy world of the woods.

LISTEN!

The reason why some people appear not to profit from praying is not because they are not good pray-ers, but because they are poor listeners. They speak to the Lord, asking for guidance or for gifts; then they do not wait to find out what that guidance is, what those gifts are to receive the gift.

Someone has said that praying is half-listening. Few people, however, in the time set aside for prayer, make provision for listening. They pray, say amen, and get going again. Those who have been pre-eminently successful in the great work of prayer are those people who ended every season of prayer with a period of silence, meditation, listening.

Prayer for some people is like meeting an appointment at the office of a psychiatrist. They come out their troubles, their confessions, their desires; positively walking out on the delightful opportunity of being able to talk about themselves and their troubles. Then, when they get tired of all this, they say amen and hurry home to their troubles.

Many psychiatrists declare that the success of their efforts depends on their ability to get the patient talk to them but on their having the patience and skill in listening to the patient. Likewise in prayer, the important things are not what we say to God, but what God says to us.

In a period of quiet, the waiting soul readily comes to understand the message God is anxious to give to him.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Once or twice a year, there comes to me from a friend in England a long, six or eight page letter full of the masterpieces of the letter-writing art, as exciting as a newsbreak over the Reuter's tape carry around in your pocket for days to show to others, the kind of letter you treasure.

The art of letter writing is very nearly extinct. The best communications between devoted friends, even, are as brief as telephone calls, as bare and factual as cables or telegrams. In the days of the great letter writers like Horace Walpole or even Robert Louis Stevenson, great distances and slow transportation made writing a letter a literary effort. Today, air mail, the telephone, instant access to one's friends and family by motor car have reduced letters to the status of mere messages.

Lately, I wrote my friend in England, who is a newspaperman, radio personality and occasional novelist, and told him how much I appreciated his rich, racy letters. This is what he replied: "I write letters as a means of warming up to my work. An athlete would never dream of going on the track or into a game without limbering up. A dancer or a singer never fails to warm up immediately before going on stage. For years I have made it a practise each morning, before settling down to my writing work, of composing a letter to somebody, often a friend, like yourself, or often just a routine letter I have to write in connection with my business or affairs. Apart from the pleasure it gives me to keep touch with my friends, the more physical act of loosening up my wits by writing a good letter seems to me in exactly the same fashion as do the preliminary knee bends and kicks of an athlete or dancer, or the trills and preliminary notes of a singer or a radio announcer."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE NEW DAY

All over this world the breaking of light, that signifies a new day, is a matter of concern. The late Dr. John H. Finley expressed this thought beautifully when he said: "To be seeing the world made new every morning, as in the morning of the first day, and then to make the most of it for the spiritual soul, as if it were the last day — is the daily curriculum of the mind's desire."

Every morning the entire world news for each one of us. Something to live for, something in which to express new resolves and a better use for all our faculties. Each day is not much more than a day. They want their new day without fail.

When is this new day to come about? Not until the thinking of the world changes and the united effort and treasure now devoted to war are turned to peace and good will by all the nations of the world. The brave boys who fight a war abhor it, no matter on which side they may be! This is their prayer: "Give us this day."

Ottawa Says Inflationary Pressures Now Under Control

Forecaster Thinks Employment To Continue High

White Paper Makes Predictions About Future

By GEORGE RITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, April 7 (CP)—Inflationary pressures have been brought under control, though the underlying inflationary potential remains high, the government has reported in a financial white paper.

The paper, giving a review of the 1951 general economic position, said the opening months of 1952 showed that the outward inflationary pressures have been curbed.

At the same time, it warned that any series of events which sharply raised international tension "would limit and reverse" current direct inflationary pressures that might seriously test our economic defences."

But, for the moment, the prospects for 1952 indicated "continued high levels of employment and general business activity, without any renewal of over-all inflation, and with most of the increased output occurring in the defence and defence-supporting sections of the economy."

The white paper, ordinarily issued with the budget, was made available this year a day earlier. Finance Minister Abbott brought down his budget in the Commons tomorrow evening.

The paper said those inflationary pressures which still persist are not evenly distributed through the economy.

Expansion Uneven

At some points in some regions the economy was likely to be "fully or more than fully extended," at other points and in other regions, the available resources likely would fall short of "full employment."

Personal spending on consumer goods and services was shown at $13,062,000,000 against $12,342,000,000 and $10,983,000,000. Taxes, compared with $735,000,000 and $789,000,000.

The remainder of personal income went into personal savings, which totalled an estimated $1,740,000,000 compared with $2,000,000 in 1950 and $1,005,000,000 in 1949.

Labor income was estimated at $9,640,000,000, 17 percent above 1950. Annual average earned income per paid worker rose from $2,318 in 1950 to $2,551 in 1951. Hourly Wage Rates

Average weekly earnings in nine leading manufacturing industries averaged $49.61 against $44.84. The December figure was $52.41 for 1951 and $47.61 in 1950. Hourly earnings in manufacturing were $1.24 at the end of 1951, compared with $1.08 a year earlier.

Part of the increase in total labor income was accounted for by higher employment. The number of people employed in non-farm work averaged 5,175,000, an increase of 129,000 over 1950. The civilian labor force, which includes both employed and unemployed, averaged 5,284,000 up 97,000.

Investment in plant, equipment and housing continued to increase and formed a slightly larger share of gross national expenditure. It totalled $6,900,000,000 compared with $5,000,000 in 1950 and $2,968,000,000 in 1949.

Preliminary estimates indicated new residential construction would climed to $778,000,000 from $801,000,000 in 1950, while other new construction rose to $1,215,000,000 from $1,026,000,000 and investment in new machinery and equipment climbed to $1,814,000,000 from $1,390,000,000.

"While these contrasting situations will not persist indefinitely, it may take time to adjust them since resources both in labor and plant and equipment are not fully or easily transferable, either technically or geographically."

Noting the steps taken to control inflation, the paper reported that total money supply and bank loans increased, but net declined slightly during 1951 after a sharp rise in 1950. Consumer credit outstanding, which increased by nearly 20 per cent in 1950, declined by about four per cent during 1951.

Prices went up in 1951 and, in the entire period from the outbreak of Korean war in June 1950 to date, the wholesale price index rose by slightly more than 15 per cent and the cost-of-living index by almost 13 per cent.

For 1951, as a whole, wholesale prices average 12.7 per cent above 1950, but the larger part of the increase was confined to the first quarter. It has declined steadily since last July. The index of farm products also shot higher, but by February, 1952, was back to the rate of January, 1951.

Except for clothes, the cost-of-living index rose every month

Net Debt Drops $2,343,800,000 Since 1946

Ottawa, April 7 — (CP)—Canada's net debt dropped by $355,700,000 in the 1951-52 fiscal year — from $11,433,300,000 to $11,077,600,000 — the government reported Monday in a 12,000-word white paper tabled in the Commons.

The $355,700,000 figure represented Finance Minister Abbott's budgetary surplus from his 1951-52 financial operations. It is applied to the net debt.

The decline meant that the net debt has dropped $2,343,800,000 since it reached a post-war peak of $13,421,400,000 in 1946. At the end of fiscal year 1939, it totalled only $3,152,600,000.

Here are the net debt totals since 1939:

1939 — $3,152,600,000; 1940 — $3,271,300,000; 1941 — $3,648,700,000; 1942 — $4,045,200,000; 1943— $6,182,900,000; 1944 — $9,118,100,000; 1945 — $11,298,400,000; 1946— $13,421,400,000; 1947 — $13,047,500,000; 1948 — $12,371,600,000; 1949 — $11,776,100,000; 1950 — $11,644,600,000; 1951 — $11,433,300,000; 1952 (estimated) $11,077,600,000.

Cigarets, Liquor Revenues Down $19,000,000

Ottawa, April 7 (CP) —Reduced sales cut into the government's revenue from excise duties on cigarets and alcoholic beverages in 1951-52, it was shown Monday in a budgetary white paper tabled in the Commons by finance Minister Abbott.

Estimated total revenue from the duties on cigarets and drinks dropped $19,000,000 to $241,000,000 from $241,000,000 in 1950-51. Excise duties on cigarets alone increased $12,000,000 against $114,500,000 and on alcoholic beverages $123,000,000 against $129,400,000.

The decline was offset by the increase in revenue from the general federal levy, which was put on tobacco products in last budget. It yielded $24,000,000 in the new fiscal year.

Representations have been made to Mr. Abbott to reduce tobacco taxes in his new budget on the ground it has reduced cigaret sales.

HONOR COURT REGISTERS

Gainsville, Fla, April 7 (AP)— The University of Florida honor court, student judiciary, resigned in a body at a night in protest against faculty modification of penalties the court imposed on students for alleged cheating. Some of the modified sentences included the suspension out to football players. There were 215,000 sentences meted out concerning the number of students permitted or the extent of the punishment.

TRIO ENTER HOME

New York, April 7 (AP)—An armed trio entered the Brooklyn home of Mr. and Mrs. Murray Herman yesterday morning and, during their victims in his wife's face down on a bed, fled with $6,700 in furs, jewels and cash while three Herman children slept.

PERSONAL INCOME

4. Inflationary pressures have been brought under control but the international events "could bring about a renewal of direct inflationary pressures that might seriously test our economic defences."

5. Prospects for 1952 indicate "continued high levels of employment and general business activity, without any renewal of overt inflation, and with most of the increased output occurring in defence and defence-supporting sections of the economy."

Sales Taxes Gain

The year's highest yield from indirect or "hidden" taxes came from the 10-per-cent sales tax. It brought in $509,000,000, or an increase of $125,400,000 over the previous year.

The sales tax was among the levies which yielded more than was forseen in the budget a year ago. Mr. Abbott obtained $110,000,000 more than anticipated from personal income tax; $158,000,000 more than anticipated from corporation income tax; $38,000,000 more from customs import duties; $2,000,000 from the excise tax and $2,200,000 from settlement of accounts on the excess profits tax, repealed several years ago.

Revenue from excise duties was $23,000,000 less than anticipated in the last budget. The yield from excise taxes was $13,400,000 heavier and the amount obtained from succession duties was $2,000,000 lower than expected.

The forecast of revenue from personal income tax was based on an anticipated increase of about 10 per cent in salary and wages during the year. Salaries and wages increased by approximately 12 per cent, but estimates of corporate profits proved to be about 20 per cent too low.

Excise Duties Less

"The actual revenue from excise duties in 1951 - 52 fell well below the budget forecast because of a short fall of 24 per cent in the revenue from matured spirits and of 14 per cent in the revenue from the tax on cigarets," said the White Paper.

Referring to the $11,000,000 drop in excise taxes, it said:

"This was more than accounted for by the fact that additional revenue from the increased tax on tobacco products was about $10,000,000 less than expected, and that the revenue from the new tax on stoves, washing machines and refrigerators was $2,000,000 or 000 short of the $18,000,000 expected at the time of the budget."

Change in Rent Control Law Recommended

Toronto, April 7 (CP)—A change in rent control regulations to permit the landlord to increase rents before March 31, 1952, to take account of the increased sales tax was recommended today by the Ontario legislature's committee on rents and housing.

Present regulations permit a six-per-cent increase in rents only in cases where an occupied house was bought before June 30, 1946.

The recommendation will go before the cabinet for decision. If approved, it will mean that owners who apply immediately for occupancy could obtain possession in early autumn.

The recommendation was made by Gordon Conant, MPP (PC), committee chairman, and was adopted unanimously.

The committee also decided to ask members of the legislature to check rent control orders and complaints which are to be kept under control by decision of the local municipal council for several months after the decontrol order.

Gordon Conant, committee chairman, said that, up to the end of February, some 2,600 applications for notice to vacate had been filed.

Canadians Salt Away Fair Chunk Personal Income in '51

Ottawa, April 7 (CP)—Canadians salted away a fair chunk of their personal income in 1951.

A government budgetary white paper reported today that Canadians earned $15,818,000,000 last year and put $641,000,000 of it into personal savings, boosting total personal savings to $1,740,000,000.

In 1950, personal income totalled $13,457,000,000 and personal savings declined to $500,000,000 from $1,005,000,000 in 1949.

Expenditures on consumer goods and services ate up $13,062,000,000 of the 1951 personal income, compared with $11,862,000,000 in 1950, while direct taxes took $1,016,000,000, compared with $735,000,000.

The bulk of 1951 personal income—$8,640,000,000—came from wages, salaries and supplementary labor income. Other sources included ..... $2,191,000,000 as net farm income, $1,595,000,000 as net income of non-farm unincorporated businesses, $1,454,000,000 in interest, dividends and net rental income and $1,001,000,000 in government payments of various kinds.

The personal savings of $1,740,000,000 constituted slightly less than 35 per cent of the nation's savings—$5,059,000,000 from all sources in 1951, compared with about 22 per cent in 1950, 30 per cent in 1949 and 27 per cent in 1948.

"While a good part of the increase in savings took the form of a reduction in consumer debt," the white paper said, "there was also some increase in liquid savings."

Time to Start Annual Assault On Fish Just Around Corner

(By The Canadian Press)

It's time to start getting that fishing gear together.

The warm days that inspire Canada's fishermen to start their annual assault on the country's thousands of rivers, lakes and streams are just around the corner.

Provincial rules and regulations vary widely according to the type of fish and location. However, a Canadian Press survey today shows most seasons open between April 15 and May 1 and extend as late as Oct. 31.

Although the season opens May 1 in most of British Columbia's lakes fishing is at its best in June and early July and again in September and October. Spring salmon have already been caught along the coast.

In Alberta the over-all season on fishing, except for rainbow trout, will extend over the entire year, having been opened on a trial running until March 31 next year. Limit catch is 25 fish. Minimum size of pickerel is one foot.

New rules are included this year in Saskatchewan's fishing regulations. The element of weight will be used for the first time in catch limits. Also, regional catch limits will replace the old laws which were on a broad north and south sector basis. Non-resident licence fees have been increased while resident permits remain unchanged.

Depends on Side

In Manitoba, length of the trout season depends on the side of the 53rd parallel on which you try your luck.

The Provincial season opens April 15. North of the 53rd it lasts until Sept. 15 and in the southern area it lasts until Sept. 24. An exception is God's River area where trout are May 15 to Sept. 1.

Angling for sturgeon is not permitted in Lake Winnipeg. Officials of the Manitoba Fish Culture Service say adult perch and pickerel will sold at $30.

Ontario season openings are numbered in three zones. Zone 1 includes the largest. Fishermen have been catching the fish since Jan. 1 and the season ends Dec. 31. The season on salmon and sea trout will run until May 15. Salmon fishing is the biggest attraction with non-resident licences being sold at $30.

POLICE BLOTTER

City police had a comparatively quiet weekend in so-far as it was concerned with the blotter containing mostly occurrences of a minor nature.

A water-filled ditch at the corner of St. Paul and Pinnacle Street halted another auto. The shotgun axle was bent the turn and due to water covering the roadway failed to notice the ditch. A wrecker had to be called to haul the car out.

Provincial police were called upon to act the good samaritan when they delivered a message to their home in Cherry Valley.

Mrs. C. Shaver Gives Talk on 'Training Of Missionaries'

The Easter meeting of the Holloway Street W.M.S. Auxiliary was held in the church parlors, Tuesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. G. Coulter, presiding.

During the business session, the Christian Citizenship secretary, Mrs. Johns, said that "alcohol is the opponent of Christ and the Church and caused the deterioration of religious interests". Mrs. Cordes, the Christian Stewardship secretary, stressed the giving of not just our money but ourselves to the extension of Christ's Kingdom.

Mrs. Kilbank led the worship service with the theme "Easter Gave Us the Bible". Mrs. R. Bell gave the Resurrection story in song with the singing of the Negro spiritual, "Were You There When They Crucified My Lord". The Scripture readings told the Easter story from Christ in Gethsemane to His Ascension from the Mount of Olives.

Guest Speaker

Mrs. G. Coulter introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. C. Shaver, of Emery Village, who has been a missionary, serving in home mission work in the Sudbury area and also at Port Arthur and Kirkland Lake. Much of her work was among new Canadians.

Mrs. Shaver spoke about the campaign for a new United Church Training School, and told of the work the school was doing in the training of women missionaries and deaconesses. The qualifications for entrance were senior matriculation plus a college degree or a profession and a desire to serve God with full-time work in the church.

The course of study includes Bible Study, Church history, public speaking, music and some classes with the theological students at Emmanuel College.

Four Positions

At present there are four positions for every graduate. "A new building at the cost of $600,000 is needed to accommodate larger classes and also that the students may live and study under one roof instead of being scattered in several buildings as they are now. The women of the United Church have two objectives, the first, to build the school that will accommodate 75 students; the second, to find these students to fill it.

Mrs. Kilbank thanked Mrs. Shaver for so ably bringing the campaign and the reasons for it to the Holloway Street Auxiliary.

Miss E. Donnan and her group served tea and all enjoyed a pleasant social half hour.

Leadership Factor In Industrial Life

Montreal (CP) Canadian industry is suffering from a serious lack of trained leaders, says Mrs. Alma Carbonneau, one of the few Canadian women business organizers and trainers of personnel.

"Industry is developing at such a pace that we are faced with a shortage of qualified leaders to train the mass of workers," she says.

Training programs, she says, would result in an increased national output but only a few of the bigger Canadian firms have established them for their personnel.

"Training is not preaching or criticizing, or trying to regulate or change anyone," says Mrs. Carbonneau. "Rather, it is a means of increasing production and the quality of work, as well as improving human relations and decreasing operation costs in industry."

Mrs. Carbonneau entered the business organization field last year with 20 years of experience behind her. Professionally she is known as a "business analyst and counsellor."

Her job consists of "moving in" on the firm, uncovering the source of trouble, talking with employees and employees, and then making recommendations.

Training is one of Mrs. Carbonneau's favorite topics. She sees it as a solution to many ailments in present-day industry.

"Training is re-orienting people's thinking. It is urging people to learn more, so more can be created, accomplished and produced," she says.

Brigadier Gage Tells Guild Of Her Work During World War

The regular meeting of the Albert College Women's Guild was held on Friday in the ladies' parlor of Bridge Street Church, with the president, Mrs. A. May, presiding.

The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. A. H. Fisher, who chose her Bible reading from St. Mark 10th. Mrs. Fisher said that, "as spring is the beginning of new life in the world of plants and flowers, so Easter is the promise of new life to the people of the world. Men can face the future with eagerness and hope because Christ, in His death and resurrection, has overcome the sting of death."

Piano Solos

Alex. Olivitch, a pupil at Albert College, whose home is in Moroacibo, Venezuela, played two piano solos, which were much enjoyed. Alex. came to school last autumn. His father is a chemical engineer with the Shell Petroleum Company. Although Alex. is only fourteen years old, he is already an accomplished pianist.

The speaker of the afternoon was Brigadier Gage of the Salvation Army. Mrs. Gage has been in Salvation Army work for 30 years. She was divisional commander in Manitoba for a while and is now stationed in the Belleville district.

Mrs. Gage spoke of her service with the armed forces during the war. At the beginning of the war, she and her husband were sent by the exhibition grounds in Toronto, to open a canteen for the soldiers.

Later, she and two other women went to London to open a canteen there. On the trip across the ocean, Mrs. Gage conducted a Sunday evening service for the soldiers and sailors on board the ship. Many of these were men from Quebec and Newfoundland, who had volunteered for mine-sweeping duty. An offering was received at this service and the proceeds were used for the dependents of men lost at sea.

In Charge of Three Hotels

In London, Mrs. Gage was given charge of three hotels where men from the army, navy and air force came. They were given socks and scarves and sections were arranged for each service. Articles were so arranged that they could be found in the dark, in case the electric power failed.

A sewing room was organized where buttons, wings and stripes could be sewn on uniforms. Men came there from the Canadian, Australian and New Zealand forces.

In August 1940, life became difficult on account of the heavy bombing over London. Cots were set up in the basement and windows were filled with sandbags. During an air raid, tea would be served about two o'clock in the morning. This helped to calm nerves and make the waiting hour seem shorter.

Many Wounded

After the Battle of Britain, many men came to the hotels who had been wounded in the air battles. Some of these were waiting to have plastic surgery operations on their faces. These operations were usually successful. After evacuation of the British army from Dunkirk, men came to the hotels who had been in the fighting in France and Belgium. Sometimes the hotels became so crowded, that it was difficult to find room for all the men.

Mrs. Gage and her helpers strove to make their canteen as comfortable and homelike as possible. They used white table cloths and silver on the tables. Queen Elizabeth, now the Queen Mother, came to the hotel and had tea with the workers. She complimented them on the comfort of their arrangements saying "Your place is very homey."

In closing, Mrs. Gage paid a tribute to the women of England; in their courage during air raids; to their cheerfulness and to the fortitude with which they bore the loss of their homes.

Rev. H. M. Cameron moved a vote of thanks to Brigadier Gage for her fine address.

After the meeting closed tea was served.

BAYSIDE W.M.S.

White's District — Mrs. Walter Jones was hostess to the ladies of the Bayside Woman's Missionary Society and Auxiliary afternoon with the first vice-president, Mrs. H. J. Mooney, presiding. The meeting opened with quiet music by the pianist, Mrs. W. Jeffery, as a prelude for the Easter service under the theme, "Easter Gave Us the Bible." Easter hymns were used throughout the service. Mrs. Frank Leach read the Scripture, giving Mark's account of the crucifixion and resurrection. Explanatory readings were given by Mrs. Mooney, who had chosen as her subject: prayer should be used more by the members of the Church. It was decided to send for a book for each mother of the Baby Band to assist in the work.

Mrs. Walter Jones as delegate, gave an interesting report of the W.M.S. Presbyterial annual meeting held at Grace United Church by Trenton, on Thursday.

Mrs. H. Rutter gave an account of "Immigration of Canadians to Be" from the study book. She said: "It is the aim of the United Church to assist in making these new Canadians feel at home in Canada."

Mrs. L. Young reported on Christian Stewardship. Prayer was answered, also interest in this work, which is nation wide and world-wide.

The hostess served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Troubled Boy Overseas, and a Troubled Family Back Home

The problems raised by overseas service have with the folks back home usually into certain familiar categories. Chief among them, of course, is the problem of the girl who loses interest in the man who has gone away and turns to another close at hand. There is also the problem of families and friends who don't write often enough to the boys who are away.

A curious twist to this latter angle is described in a letter from a woman who writes about her husband's 21-year-old brother, who is in Korea.

"He writes that he is tired of getting only one letter from my husband for every two he writes himself," the letter says, "and says that if my husband prefers to watch television instead of writing to him, then when he comes home my husband should do him the favor of never speaking to him again. He said that he always wrote to my husband when he was in service during the last war, but this boy was quite young then, and perhaps doesn't remember that he usually wrote to his older brother only when he wanted some money. He also says he discovers him as a brother, and doesn't even want an answer to this letter.

"I haven't told my husband about this because it would hurt him deeply. He has been very ill, and has just started working again, and I'm afraid if I show him the letter he'll worry himself sick again.

Meant as Family Letters

"I have been writing regularly to my brother-in-law and sent him things we thought he'd like. My letters were really meant to be family letters from all of us, so I can't see why he complains. I didn't tell my brother-in-law about my husband's illness, as I have always made it a point never to tell anything that might worry him when he is so far away.

"As I say, I haven't told my husband about his brother's letter, yet if I were going to ask why we don't receive any more letters from overseas and why I don't write any more."

What I think is the most likely cause of this lad's and boy having written such a letter to his older brother is that he feels that the boy is extremely homesick and in a very nervous state, besides. Letters from home often make him feel apprehensive and anxious if he did not receive letters he would like to get, and anxiety makes all of us abnormally edgy.

Normally, I think, he should understand that a sister-in-law's letters are intended to be messages from the whole family, but it is hard to maintain complete normality when one is in the front lines, fighting, far away from home. So I think allowances must be made for the boy, with understanding, rather than hurt feelings, on the part of his relatives.

Mistake to Stop

I'm sure it would be a serious mistake for this sister-in-law to stop writing the boy. Instead, I think she should keep on with warm and affectionate letter, referring as little as possible to the irritable things he said in his, but telling him she knows he did not mean all those things, and that she is sure he is aware of how much they all love him and how constantly they remember him. I think, too, that she should tell him that his brother has been ill and unable to write.

As for the wife telling her husband about this particular letter that is troubling her so much, I would feel that she could do so without placing too much importance on it but explaining it in the way I've indicated. Unless her husband is an abnormal worrier, he should accept the explanation.

One more thing the sister-in-law might do is to drop a note to the chaplain of the boy's outfit, tell him the circumstances which are worrying her and ask if he could possibly make a point of seeing the boy, without telling him he has been asked to look him up, and then letting her know just how he is. It should reassure her to get a direct report from someone who has seen him, and if there is some particular reason for the boy's attitude, the chaplain should be able to discover it and help adjust it.

Revelation of Canadian Cookery Talent

By MARY MOORE

You may have read in one of our Canadian magazines for women's interests, that the Can-ada-wide contest for the best canned salmon recipe.

Out of the 20,000 recipes submitted 20 were tested and chosen in the magazine's home bureau in Toronto.

The contestants who originated these 20 salmon recipes were notified of their success. Besides winning a deluxe model electric range they were invited to go to Toronto, all expenses paid by the salmon canners and the magazine, to compete against one another at the public cooking contest. The winner of the final contest was to win a new car.

I attended that cooking party, where each contestant actually made her own dish, and I thought it was a wonderful show.

A broad section down the centre of the showroom was occupied by the 20 contestants who each had an electric range and refrigerator, and a table and a table to work at. The audience of 1000 was seated by four at tables on tiered platforms at the sides. The contestants was on the stage at one end and the judging was taking just below and in front of them. The brand new car was at the other end at the entrance. The contestants all seemed to be pretty and efficient and composed.

I wish I could give you those prize-winning recipes here today but you will have to wait for the May issue of the magazine.

I spoke to Mrs. Gordon Hill of Chatham, Ontario, who was the winner of the car, long before she knew the decision. Her salmon and almond casserole looked as if it had prize-winning class from the outset, for I watched her coolly prepare the dish, tasting. Her two proud young daughters sat only two tables away from me.

While we are waiting a while months for the May issue of the magazine to arrive giving us these prize winning dishes let's try our hands at

Salmon Panada

A creation of my own that I think I should have sent into the contest. (Blushing Violet style speaks again.)

One 1-lb. can red salmon or 1 lb. cooked fresh salmon; in frying pan, melt 3 tablespoons butter, but do not brown it — merely melt it. Add the salmon and break it into large chunks with a fork. Gently turn it over so that the butter soaks into it — over very low heat. Meanwhile have ready 1 cup breadcrumbs made from dry toasted bread. Soak these in 1½ cups hot milk, mixing with a fork. All the milk should be soaked up. This is where the dish gets its name panada. To the hot panada add 1 cup finely chopped parsley, 1 small clove garlic chopped as finely as possible, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, and 2 tablespoons very soft butter. Mix well. Transfer hot salmon and butter to baking dish, spread panada over evenly, and sprinkle with grated old cheese, preferably Parmesan. Bake at 325 deg. Fah. for about 30 minutes. Just before removing from oven, if it is not a delicate brown and crisp on top, raise it up to top or broiler, to top brown evenly and brown it to your satisfaction but watch it closely. (Chopped parsley may be sprinkled over but that's another story.)

CAMPBELLFORD
Citizens' Association Discuss Activities

Campbellford—The Campbellford Citizens' Association held its regular monthly meeting with a good attendance at Edgewater Park pavilion, when a number of questions was discussed by the members.

Mr. W. C. Tatham, chairman of the industrial committee, gave a report on the activities of his committee during the past month and said that one and possibly two industries were seriously considering locating in Campbellford. One industry would employ about 60 men, but no details of the other industry were made public.

Considerable Work Done

Mrs. W. C. Tatham reported on the work of the welfare committee, saying that considerable work had been done during the winter months, and that with the co-operation of the Home and School Association, a number of school children had been provided with warm clothing.

Mrs. Vera Newman reported for the edication committee and emphasized the need for parks and playgrounds in the town. She further suggested that the public school board would be well advised to consider the purchase of a vacant lot across from the public school on Booth Street for future use as a school playground. Another suggestion made by Mrs. Newman was that the town council should secure the facilities of the department of planning in laying out parks and playgrounds and other areas which might come up in the future. The taxpayers are now paying for these services and receiving no benefits.

Ways and Means

There was considerable discussion on ways and means of raising funds to complete the Campbellford Memorial Hospital. A fact-finding committee was appointed and this committee, consisting of Mrs. Tatham, chairman, Percy White and Mrs. W. F. Scott, will report its findings at a later date.

The question of the high cost of milk in Campbellford and what should be done about it, came up for discussion, and after considerable talk on the matter, it was agreed that investigating the question fully to try to find some way of lowering the price of milk to the consumers. Milk now sells in Campbellford for 21 cents per quart, or 22 cents for homogenized.

Fashion Flashes

ANY NUMBER of beautiful silk suits will enliven the Spring scene. Silk cottonan, the jacket striped with white and the skirt plain, makes a handsome, tailored suit. The skirt is kilt-pleated all around, and the jacket is fitted with lightly padded hips and fastened with tiny self buttons.

RICH SILKS are being used for afternoon and evening clothes. Imported black tapestry silk makes a handsome late afternoon ensemble. The front-buttoned dress is strapless and is worn with a short, side-slit jacket that has enormous white fox sleeves.

A PERFECT DELIGHT, that's what the new printed silks are, made up into clothes that are good buys in every price range. A tiny black scroll print on taupe silk makes a handsome dress, the puffed sleeves and wide skirt engandering it. Molded bodice has surplice closing, and a black chiffon hankie is looped into the belt. Black jet buttons on the side closing.

IT ISN'T SPRING without a navy suit with white touches. Navy woollen is used for a suit featuring a fitted-double-breasted jacket with slight hip padding, and a dress-like neckline that has tiny, white linen collar and cuffs. Skirt is group-pleated.

A BIT of flattery should be a part of every hat. Very flattering is a small plateau of fine Milan straw in a pretty cream shade. The front of the brim is slit to permit passes of white roses placed to nestle under the brim against the forehead.

FAVORITE with buyers and consumers alike is the dress with a matching jacket. Wool worsted, with tiny navy and white checks, is used for a pencil dress with deep neckline and brief sleeves. With it is a boxy jacket that has a white overcollar and lining of bright red linen.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When You Give a Tip . . . Give a Smile, Too, and Say Thanks

When you give a tip to anyone who has served you, in any store, city, there is a Pleasant Trio that should accompany the tip. (1) A cheery "Hello." (2) A nice smile. (3) A "Thank You". Or "thank you very much". Or "thank you so much." Or "you have been very kind (or 'very helpful')."

This Fiance and Fiance Make a Real Social Error

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance and I became engaged quite suddenly, and we decided that we want to have our engagement announced in the simplest possible way. No "host", no engagement - announcement party. We told only our parents about our engagement, and at my request, my parents simply sent the formal announcement of the engagement to the two local newspapers. Since then we have been severely criticized by our relatives and his relatives, by my friends and his friends, and by our mutual friends. I have been told that it was "incorrect", "discourteous", "thoughtless", "inconsiderate" and "I can't remember what else! — for us not to tell them personally that they didn't like being told about the engagement by reading it in the newspaper. We think we did really so terribly incorrect!—Dorothy K.

Yes, what you did was indeed "terribly incorrect" — "discourteous", too, "thoughtless" and "inconsiderate." You see, my dear girl, an engagement announcement is a very personal item, and a very important and significant milestone in the life of every true friend. And so, naturally, most naturally, relatives and intimate friends expect to be informed by word of mouth or by telephone or by note of the engagement of a relative or close friend. And certainly they can't be expected to feel honored or complimented in receiving this important news thru' the columns of a newspaper. This just isn't the way of courtesy, the kindly way of consideration for a relative or friend. You and your fiance missed a wonderful opportunity of writing high-hearted notes telling the Happy News before it was "publicly" announced.

Seating in a Restaurant

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When two couples dine together in a restaurant that has seats against the wall, what should be seating arrangements be? That is, should one couple sit together on one side of the table, and the other couple on the other side?—Georgette S.

It is better restaurant procedure for the women to be given the wall seats, and the men to sit opposite them.

Child's Father's Responsibility

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At a christening, "A" says that the godfather gives the fee to the minister. "B" says it is the baby's father who gives this fee. Who is right?—A and B.

"B" is right.

BEAUTY

HELEN JAMIESON

WHAT PRICE BEAUTY?

Much money and a great deal of time are required to make the members of the frail sex attractive to the eye, and the results are worth the investment. Good appearance builds confidence and self-respect, makes better friends with the lady in the looking glass. Woman is a spectacle. She knows it. She wants to be a pleasing one.

Some years ago a survey was made at a large university. Nearly 300 young women were requested to make notes of the time spent each day on hair, fingernails and complexions. The average was 64 minutes, which amounts to more than sixteen days of the year. Many girls spend more time than that. Some high school lassies give themselves pin curls every night, a good looks rite that takes all of forty minutes if the hair is heavy and of shoulder length.

Beauty seekers are getting more and more fastidious. Fewer of them are following the glad-dash method of laying on the synthetic complexion, with the result that make-up is subtle, closer to the natural coloring. To properly blend powder and rouge, apply lip pigment, brush the lashes, and darken the eyebrows one must never be hurried.

Beauty shops are crowded. Many women, in order to retain their favorite operator, make appointments a fortnight ahead. Or they have a regular weekly appointment for shampoo, wave set and manicure. They are always perfectly groomed and perfect grooming is expected these days. The blowsy femme, with rag-tags and bobtails among her curls, has at last disappeared.

With short hair — which insists upon growing to the tune of an inch or more every two months — a permanent wave is necessary every or three months. That means that about four hours are given over to the ritual. But satisfaction results! Only the young and the beautiful can get away with straight hair. Movie stars and starlets are all curly girls!

Even though one has a weekly manicure, the nails require a certain amount of attention. To keep the nail fabric healthy and delicate, so it will not thicken, the nail should be creamed frequently.

Figure molding salons have long lists of patrons who are placed in steamy baths, pummelled by long-armed attendants, made to go through strenuous exercises to melt the fat cells. Sometimes the cost is terrific.

WHITE'S DISTRICT
Many Pay Tribute To Departing Neighbors

White's District — About 100 neighbors and friends from the surrounding districts honored Mr. and Mrs. Glen Meyers on Tuesday evening prior to their departure for their new home near Foxboro.

Community singing with Mrs. Frank Sherwood as organist, included "Get Together," "The More We Are Together", "School Days" and "Home on the Range."

Rev. A. C. McCallum called the gathering to order and with his usual Irish wit eulogized Mary and Glen, who have spent their married life in this district and as witnessed by the assembled gathering have made many friends. Glen also grew up here, attended the little red school house and the near-by church, so it was felt that an "April Fool" parcel would be appreciated as a joke.

Assisted Choir

Mary has helped in the choir and Sunday School of White's Church; has acted as president, treasurer and secretary of the Woman's Association; as president of the Bayside Women's Missionary Society, as leader of the Baby Band and Mission Band and was also a member of the Bay of Quinte Institute.

Glen has acted as treasurer and steward of White's Church and has always been willing to help whenever he was called upon.

Mary and Glen were asked to take seats of honor and an address, signed by Mrs. R. Ketcheson, Mrs. C. Ketcheson, Mrs. L. Young, Mr. A. Hockaday, Mr. A. Jones and Mr. F. Reid on behalf of the community was read. They were presented with a coffe table, a tri-lite electric floor lamp, a fancy cushion and a briar pipe.

Mrs. Cecil Jeffrey, president of the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute, presented the couple with a wall plaque.

The couple responded, thanking one and all for the lovely gifts and inviting them to visit them in their new home.

Mr. Percy Boulton and Mr. Fred Wilson also spoke highly of the couple who were so well and so favorably known.

Mrs. Benson Bonisteel gave a humorous reading.

The refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed by all.

PICTON

'Student Teacher Relationship' Subject of Address by Dr. Howard At Mountain View School

Picton — Mountain View school was aglow with beautiful decorations on Thursday evening when Miss Mary J. Huff, capable, energetic teacher, acted as hostess, when the Wellington Unit of the Women Teachers' Association of Prince Edward County district entertained the trustees and ratepayers and their wives.

On entering the school one was amazed at the display of handicraft, the work of the pupils of the school. The children had decorated the windows for Easter with eggs and rabbits in a color scheme of yellow and mauve. The blackboards were headed by "Bury Bunnyville" animals. A large bouquet of snapdragons in a silver basket stood on the teacher's desk and a potted Easter lily on the piano.

All about the room were exceptionally fine handicraft exhibits of fine quills, bouquets of enamelled milkweed pods, needlework and stencilwork, articles, such as hatch cloths, clothes-pin aprons and vanity sets, stuffed animals, lawn markers, corner shelves, tie and magazine racks, beautifully executed.

Mr. A. F. Brown, I.P.S., gave a lucid explanation of government grants to schools. He demonstrated how cards and reports should be filled in by teachers and school boards to qualify for grants.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker, the Rev. Dr. Bert Howard, principal of Albert College, Belleville, was introduced by Mrs. Eleanor Freeman, of Wellington, who expressed regret at Dr. Howard's retirement in June after 18 years at Albert College.

Dr. Howard chose for his subject, "Student and Teacher Relationship". After 40 years' teaching experience Dr. Howard considers by whom they are taught far more important to children than what they are taught, as well as the teacher and his or her attitudes, as the crux of the educational system, and far more important than the text books.

Dr. Howard recalled his own early school days when pupils learned for fear of the cane, now the teacher tries to win the confidence of the pupil, as well as to instill factual knowledge.

Encouraged to Think

The pupil is encouraged to think for himself, and to acquire self discipline. Teachers must recognize that a child is, first of all, a human being, in need of friendship and understanding. No two children are alike. One cannot deal with a group as a unit. There is no "assembly line of children". Their friendship, loyalty, honesty and love must be brought out.

Dr. Howard also advised teachers who did not feel a satisfaction in their work to leave the profession. A poor teacher may cause frustration in a child, that may mean tragedy to the child all his life.

The demands and needs of a child are divine urges within himself. One cannot give a child happiness but only create the condition that allows a child to acquire happiness. A child needs recognition to unfold and develop.

Purpose in Life

Each child has a purpose in life but it may not be the purpose in life one would choose for him. The child's aptitude must be found and he must be guided. A happy child has a much better prospect of success in life than an unhappy child.

Speaking of analyzing children, Dr. Howard said "it did no good to ferret out a child's abnormalities to satisfy our impertinent inquisitiveness."

Mrs. Lily Walt, of Consecon, thanked Dr. Howard for his fine address.

Musical Portion

The musical part of the program consisted of the following:

O Canada, with Miss Lois Doxsee at the piano; a duet by Ronald and Sandra Green, of Victoria school, accompanied by Mrs. Reilly; a duet in costume by Elsie Soble and Lois Squire, "Pussy Cat", accompanied by Mary Huff; musical selection by Carl Gilbert, with mouth organ and guitar; a solo, "Egbert and the Easter Egg" by Jean Barber; two vocal solos by Mrs. Reilly, "Smiling Through" and "Tying Apples on the Lilac Tree."

Teachers Congratulated

Mrs. Bonnie Hart, president of W.T.A., of Prince Edward County, congratulated the teachers on the fine program presented, stating she was glad to see so many present. "Teachers," she said, "need the support of every citizen in their work."

Mr. Grant Minaker welcomed the guests on behalf of Mountain View school board.

Mrs. Harry Bates, principal of Massassaga school, expressed the appreciation of those present for the fine program presented. Mrs. Alfred Hillman voiced the appreciation of the trustees; Mr. Don Foster, teacher at Centre, thanked Miss Huff for her efforts in making the evening possible. Such an evening strengthens a feeling of co-operation in a district.

Following the close of the program refreshments were served by the teachers of Wellington Unit.

The Busy Bees won in the playoff with a score of 6780, with the following ladies doing the bowling: Mrs. Isabel MacIntosh, Mrs. Lottie Jeffrey, Mrs. Florence Gordanier, Mrs. Doris Woodbeck and Mrs. Margaret Tanner.

Each one of these 12 ladies received two lovely scatter pins.

High average for the season went to Mrs. Lenora West with 164 points. High single in playoffs, Mrs. Lottie Jeffrey, with 239. High triple in play-offs, Mrs. Doris Woodbeck, 618. These ladies received earrings to match the pins.

Birthday Gift

On behalf of the subs, Mrs. Tillie Green made a fine speech and Mrs. W. Dingman presented Mrs. Lulu Harlow with a gift, who was celebrating her birthday anniversary. Mrs. Harlow made it possible for the subs to attend this dinner. Everyone sang happy birthday and a couple of numbers of community singing.

Mrs. Isabel MacIntosh gave a reading and Mrs. Verna Woodbeck favored with a solo.

The four captains expressed their thanks to everyone for the lovely evening and the enjoyable afternoons together, especially thanking their own team and subs for co-operation.

Mrs. Utman read a poem about the Energetic Bowling League.

Mrs. Lenora West acted as pianist throughout the program.

Mrs. Verna Woodbeck and Mrs. Margaret Tanner were re-elected as president and secretary-treasurer for the coming season. After the meeting adjourned most of the ladies enjoyed some bowling on the Belleville alleys.

Women's Institute Hears Fine Address On Natural Fabrics

Roslin — On Tuesday the Roslin branch of the Women's Institute were hostesses for the district conference on clothing and textiles, which was held in the Anglican Church hall, Roslin, with W. I. members present from Chapman, Tweed, Plainfield, Phillipston - Elzas and Roslin.

At noon a hot dinner was served by the local branch.

Guest Speaker.

The departmental speaker, Miss Kidd, spoke on "The Fabrics We Buy and Use," and explained the difference in the great variety of fibres, weaves and finishes in the fabrics of today which are apt to confuse the buying public. This conference was planned to help women increase their knowledge of fabrics and their use.

The speaker said: "We should look for the labels and read them carefully before we buy, as there are many new fabrics coming on the market. The weave of material is important, plain weave as in factory cloth, twill as in tricotine and gabardine, which is a much stronger weave than plain. Natural Fibres

The natural fibres are: Linen derived from flax, cotton derived from the cotton boll, wool from fleece of sheep and other hair bearing animals, silk from the cocoons of the silk worms.

"We should learn what percent of fibres our fabrics contain, these are important regarding the strength and warmth of our garment. Broadcloth is one of our best cottons, the fibres used in this are long fibre cotton. Crinkle cottons, crinkle crepe is pressed on rollers, seersucker is woven with a permanent crinkle. Organdy can be stiffened with gum Arabic."

Samples Displayed

Miss Kidd displayed samples of all kinds of fabrics used in making wearing apparel, household linens and homefurnishings. These were made from linen, cotton, wool, silk, rayon, nylon, vinyon, orlon, dacron, fibreglass and plastron, dacron, fibreglass and plastron stand excessive heat when laundering, use warm water and keep the temperature of the iron low.

The speaker demonstrated ways of testing material to determine the kind. Raw materials used in the making of rayon were shown. Rayon is weak when wet, handle carefully till dry.

At the conclusion of the address Mrs. Slingerland moved a vote of thanks to the speaker for her instructive address and demonstrations.

Will Repair Bridge

Premier Douglas said the bridge will be repaired within three months. In the meantime, he said, ferry service would be set up immediately and the army would be asked to lend a Bailey bridge, the kind the Allies used for spanning rivers in the Second World War.

Highways Minister Douglas said the concrete piers and abutments along with the five remaining concrete spans are intact. He said the condition of the piers and remaining spans is evidence that construction was not faulty.

Liberal leader Walter Tucker urged that the bridge be rebuilt at a greater height to eliminate the possibility of a recurrence of Sunday's collapse.

Closed Since Thursday

Only a few persons witnessed the early morning crumpling of the bridge. It had been closed to traffic since Thursday. The gravelled approaches, forming a part of No. 4 highway, were washed out by the surging water and ice. Chunks of ice as big as small houses were thrown up on the river banks.

The bridge, 35 miles north of Swift Current, was completed last year but most of the work was done in 1950 and there was no trouble when the ice went out last spring. This year ice was piled up for 70 miles upstream from the bridge.

But after the bridge went out the river level dropped 14 feet in three hours. When daylight came the river was relatively free of ice.

It was moving northward toward Saskatoon. There, some houses were flooded and the families evacuated. Cattle were moved to corrals on higher ground. Tractors, farm machinery and grain were moved out of possible danger.

The highway parallelling the river was partly blocked. Telephone lines were washed out.

PRAIRIE FARMERS

Most springs there is some grain from the previous year's crop left over to be harvested. But this year's situation is extraordinary. In Saskatchewan there are about 88,000,000 bushels of wheat in the fields, and there are an additional 26,000,000 bushels of oats and barley. The wheat is roughly one quarter of the 329,000,000-bushel wheat crop.

About three-fifth of the unharvested wheat lies in the swath. That means it was cut before the winter set in. Some is in stooks arranged in conical piles in the fields. The rest was left standing. More Difficult to Handle

Agriculturists say there is likely to be little difference in the condition of the wheat, whether standing or in the swath. But the uncut grain will have been knocked down by the snow and will be much more difficult to handle than the swathed grain.

About 42 per cent of the wheat harvested in Saskatchewan last fall graded No. 3 Northern or better. (The top grade is No. 1 Northern). Experts say the grain harvested this spring could improve by as much as two grades over the fall harvest.

The main hazard is spring rain which could drive the grain into the soil and cause deterioration.

Most of Saskatchewan's unharvested grain is in the northeastern crop district, around Humboldt, Melfort and Hudson Bay, and in the west-central area, which includes Kindersley and North Battleford.

The unthreshed area covers some 8,500,000 acres and of this 4,000,000 acres is wheat.

Spring Crop Delayed

The spring harvest certainly will delay seeding the new crop. But in many cases the unharvested fields are earmarked for summer-fallow this year. There the farmer will be able to get his seeding done first, then turn to the 1951 crop.

Alberta has an estimated $80,000,000 worth of the old crop still in the fields. This includes 40,000,000 bushels of wheat, 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 bushels of barley and 30,000,000 bushels of oats. Manitoba, which grows grain on a smaller scale than the two provinces to her west, fared better last fall and has only trifling amounts still to be harvested.

So far the spring has been dry and sunny. If present weather conditions continue, many fields should be sufficiently dried out in three weeks or so to allow the farmer to get at his spring harvest.

NOT ENOUGH HORSES

Toronto, April 5 (CP) —B. B. Warnica, president of the Ontario Beef Cattle Producers' Association said yesterday that horsemeat stores soon will go out of business because there are not enough horses left in Canada to keep them going. "Beef cattle producers need not worry about competition from horsemeat," he told the association's annual meeting.

PORT OFFICIALS

General cargo is moving smartly aboard ships at Halifax from the Far East and Europe while trade with the British West Indies and Newfoundland keeps many ships busy.

Ship Pulpwood in Quantity

Large quantities of pulpwood will be shipped to Britain and France this year from Saint John. Such shipments were curtailed during the busy winter season because of harbor congestion.

In British Columbia officials expect at least equal last year's record shipping season. Most deep sea ships operating from that area are foreign. Japanese shipping, reopened last season, is expected to increase this year.

In Quebec grain elevators are scheduled to be filled to their 4,000,000-bushel capacity when the navigation season opens about the first week in May.

Extensive plans for increasing the pilot services and installing 131 navigational buoys are being made.

Toronto Harbor Commissioners expect an average season. At least one new shipping company has agreed to use the port this year.

The season at Churchill, 600 miles north of Winnipeg, will open about July 27. National harbors board men are arranging to receive grain about May 1. Some 15,000,000 bushels will pass through this port as compared with 7,500,000 last year, a record movement.

Shipping through Churchill is expected to be at least double that of last year, as heavy equipment and supplies are moved 350 miles to Ferguson Lake, in the Northwest Territories, where a new nickel plant has been established. More tonnage than last year has already been signed up for inward shipping.

Experts Eye Dodgers, Giants, Cards Could be Dark Horses

By JOE RICHLER

New York, April 7 (AP)—The defending champion New York Giants and the powerful Brooklyn Dodgers, in line with most of the experts, will have eyes only for each other. This might make it an interesting two-club league.

For, while the Giants and Dodgers are battling each other, it is not at all unlikely that Eddie Stanky, freshman St. Louis manager, could steer his dark horse Cardinals right into the World Series.

That, at least, is what the writers or predicts will happen. So, the 350 infield because of having seen fortunate to pick both pennant winners in 1951, as well as the one last season that Branch Rickey's Dodgers finished second in '50, the choice here is the Cardinals. Finished third last year, 13½ games behind the Giants.

The Giants boast the best pitching staff in the league but the loss of Monte Irvin, who fractured his ankle last week, was a crippling blow to their chances to repeat. They are certain to miss Stanky who contributed so much to their come-from-behind pennant conquest last year. They also face a difficult job replacing Whitey Lockman, the fine young centre-fielder, whose call to service is imminent.

The loss of ace righthander Don Newcombe has hurt the Dodgers where they were weakest last year—in the pitching department. Although there have been flowing reports on the progress of Clem Labine, Dan Wade and John Rutherford, it is most unlikely that any, or all, of the trio can make up the 20 victories Newcombe took with him into the army.

Remember This

The writer picks the order of finish this way:

1. St. Louis; 2. Brooklyn 3. Philadelphia 4. New York 5. Boston 6. Cincinnati 7. Pittsburgh 8. Chicago.

The Redbirds, who haven't won in six years, appear ready to challenge again. If there is a pennant left in the Stanky dispensation, Stan Musial, Enos Slaughter, Red Schoendienst and Harry Brecheen, also should be the year to bring it off.

The presence of Stanky, both as a player and manager, is certain to aid the Card cause. He has brought to the Cards the same inspiring leadership, flaming spirit and contagious hustle that has played such a vital role in bringing pennants to three clubs within a space of five years.

The Phillies could create a heap of trouble with Curt Simmons' return from the army. They have one of the best outfield staffs baseball in Robin Roberts (21-15) and a good looking freshman pitcher in Steve Ridzik. But there are Bubba Church, Russ Meyer and Howie Pollet.

The Braves are going in for the youth movement. They've come up with some fine looking kids but they still need a good shortstop, a hard-hitting outfield headed by Warren Spahn, the league's ace lefthander, makes the Braves a constant threat.

The Reds have picked up some power with the acquisition of catcher Andy Seminick and outfielder Dick Sisler from the Phillies, but they need more hitting strength, greater speed and a better defense to cope with the leaders.

The Pirates and Cubs are in the rebuilding stage. Branch Rickey, up to his old tricks, has his home-wreckers at work in Pittsburgh and is stripping a decaying ball club in Brooklyn.

Another dreary year looms ahead for the Cubs whose best pitcher is 42-year-old Dutch Leonard and whose best infielder is second baseman Eddie Miksis, who hit only .231.

Providence Reds Oust Mohawks; Move Into Finals

(By The Canadian Press)

Providence Reds moved into the finals of the American Hockey League during the weekend, downing Cincinnati Mohawks 8-2 to take the best-of-five, semi-final series 5-1.

The Reds now tangle with Pittsburgh Hornets, winners of the western division championship, in a best-of-five series starting at Pittsburgh Tuesday.

It was a second-period scoring explosion that shot the Reds into the finals.

A first-period 1-1 deadlock was blown wide open in the second 20 minutes when the Reds tallied six times before Cincy Mohawks' netminder Al Rollins got on an interference penalty. After that the Reds went into a defensive shell to protect their lead.

Gananoque Trims Collingwood 6-1

Gananoque, April 7—Gananoque G Max gained a one-game lead in the OHA Intermediate A semis-finals here Saturday night when they walloped Collingwood Shipbuilders, 6-1. In the series' opener the teams tied, 4-4, in overtime.

A record breaking crowd of 1,200 fans watched Gananoque spoil the Builders' last-ditch bid, then tie the score at the end of the first period. The G-Men scored twice in the second and three times in the third period without a reply from the Shipbuilders.

Ronnie Anderson led the Gananoque snipers with two goals. George Whalen, Grant McIntosh, Johnnie Redmond and Connie Switzer scored singles. Playing coach Eddie Bush scored Collingwood's tally.

The final period produced 10 penalties with Coaches Bush and Ross Atkins banished with a matched misconduct.

Junior Gridders Want More Money

Brantford, April 7 — (CP)—The Big Four junior football league executive and team representatives Sunday discussed methods of improving junior football and strengthening the financial structure of the loop.

The meeting decided to ask the Canadian Rugby Union and the senior Big Four to increase their grants for the 1952 season. The C.R.U. will be asked to increase its grant from $300 to $400 and the Big Four from $500 to $700.

Attending the meeting were delegates from Hamilton Tiger - Cats, Toronto Parkdale and Brantford Barons.

Big Four Sets Up New Draft Rule, Then Grabs Seventeen College Stars

Ottawa, April 7 (CP) — Canadian football's first draft rule was set up and signed by a closed meeting of representatives of the Big Four clubs Saturday.

They didn't announce following the meetings the selections made but it was learned later that 17 college stars were drafted, five by Montreal and four each by Toronto, Hamilton and Ottawa.

Under the draft rule, each club takes a turn at naming a player whose services it will seek for the coming season. Other clubs agree not to approach that player. The choices begin with the last-place club and proceed to the first place team of the previous season. Ala Get Reds

Montreal's tall-end Alouettes, represented by manager Lew Hayman and coach Dong (the Head) Walker, picked Harry Lampman of Queen's University. Other clubs' other choices all were from McGill University. They were half-backs Ken Wagner and Gene Roblard, and linemen Dawson Tilley and Bob MacLelland.

Toronto Argonaut choices leaned heavily to linemen, including University of Toronto's middle Marsh Hames, snap Al Dancy and outside Jack Roberts. Their only backfield choice was Queen's halfback Ross McKelvey.

Hamilton Tiger Cats picked the Ontario Rugby Football Union's leading point getter among its backfielders—half Mel Hawkridge of McMaster University. They also named snap Bill Berezowski of McMaster, and two University of Western Ontario players, half Bob McMonagle and outside Gerry Fitzgerald.

Ottawa Rough Riders named three Varsity players and one from McMaster. Two were backfielders —half Bob Garside and quarterback Alex Lawson, both of Varsity—and middle Walt Bashak of McMaster and Al Brown of Varsity.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Niagara Falls Collegiate seniors are Ontario interscholastic basketball champions for the second consecutive season.

But it took all their prowess to eke out a 63-61 victory Saturday night over Windsor Patterson at the University of Toronto's Hart House gym. The title wasn't decided until the last 20 seconds of play when Peter Potter sank a set shot.

Patterson had gained the final in the other half by defeating Sault Ste. Marie Collegiate 59-54 while Niagara Falls needed a 78-37 win over Ottawa Technical School.

Niagara Falls led all the way in taking their second title but a strong Windsor team gave them a scare. The winners held a 19-12 lead at the end of the first quarter, a 32-31 edge at the half and a 55-47 margin at the three-quarter mark. Windsor tied it up with less than a minute to play.

Slammin' Sammy Snead yesterday won his second Masters golf tournament title at Augusta, Ga., with the worst score ever shot for victory in the first major links competition of the year. He had a 286 total, par for the course. Vancouver's Stan Leonard was far behind with a 305. Canadian Open champion Lew Perrier, tied for third with a 292.

The third no-hitter of the 1952 grapefruit circuit and the second combined one game yesterday at Chattanooga when Warren Spahn and Ernie Johnson combined to hurl Boston Braves to a 1-0 victory over Brooklyn Dodgers. A home run by Willard Marshall decided the issue. Spahn went seven innings, striking out three and walking one. Johnson fanned two and had little difficulty finishing up.

New York Yankees may have a hard time living up to the first-place position most of the experts predict for them in 1952. They lost first baseman Joe Collins Saturday when he suffered a sprained ankle sliding home in a game with Boston Braves at St. Petersburg, Fla. He will be out for at least two weeks, Earlier, it was announced second baseman Gerry Coleman is being called back to the Marines.

Intercounty Moves to Withdraw Minor Leagues From OBA Playdowns

Guelph, April 7 (CP)—The Ontario Baseball Association was strongly criticized for its methods of conducting minor league playoffs when the Intercounty Baseball Association held a special spring meeting here Saturday.

Bill Farquharson of London presented a special report of minor league playoffs, backing a recommendation that the association withdraw its minor league teams from post-season O.B.A. play. The recommendation was based on several grievances, including the lack of time available to inter league players after school started in September, the long trips involved and the lateness of the season.

Farquharson said he thought the I.B.A. would adopt his committee's report as it stood and move to strengthen the association with sponsorship of eight team Inter-County Senior Baseball League which opens its season May 16.

Tim Hurlow and Les McLeod, both of Preston, defended the O.B.A. and said they thought there would be reorganization of the minor league set-up in the near future when a change in the association's executive was scheduled.

Play-Round Robin

It is reported the O.B.A. will adopt a tournament system for its playoffs and each division will play a round-robin elimination.

The Farquharson report was adopted, but not until after McLeod changed it to read that the Intercounty league would not participate in minor O.B.A. playoffs unless they were conducted on a tournament basis and prior to the middle of September.

The Intercounty group decided to raise its entrance fee to almost double that of 1951 in all classes, a move which will bring about $500 in revenue over last year. It will also charge a certificate tax over and above the one collected by the O.B.A. This would amount to a maximum 25 cents a certificate, not to exceed $5 a club.

Still dealing with its minor league clubs, the Intercounty decided to run a baseball school designed to improve both coaching and playing methods. It is hoped to obtain instructors in players from the International Leafs for the first school early in May.

In a special meeting following the general gathering, the Intercounty Senior Baseball League decided that George Boniface belonged to Kitchener. Boniface originally played with Stratford, but signed with Guelph after the Indians folded in 1951.

Kitchener picked up Boniface in a draft waiver, but Guelph objected to league headquarters that he had not played enough with Stratford and therefore was not eligible in the league draft. However, Association Secretary Jack Blakney of Brantford said the release was never registered with him.

Fireworks Feature Stouffville Win

Stouffville, April 7 (CP)—Six spectators were removed from the rink and the visiting coach was ejected from the game here Friday night when Peterborough Petes were downed by Stouffville Clippers 4-3 in the fourth game of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior B quarter-finals.

Stouffville took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven-series with the victory.

The row started when referee Ken Holmshaw called back a Peterborough goal midway through the third period. Coach Jim Elics of the Petes argued so heatedly over the incident that he was tossed out of the game. Then some spectators started a fight in the stands and some showered the officials with bottles and programs.

Police had to be called to still the battle.

Tigers Get Coach

Waterloo, April 7 (CP)—Alex Kvasnak will return as playing coach of Waterloo Tigers for the 1952 Intercounty Baseball Association senior season it was announced Saturday.

His signed contract was received Friday after several weeks of negotiations. Kvasnak came to the Tigers two years ago and coached them to the championship. He played senior baseball for seven years, including a step with Washington Senators of the American League.

The Tigers also acquired outfielder Dale Markert of Galt Terriers in exchange for Wes Lillie.

Frankford Sport

Frankford — The Frankford Bowling League entered the first round of the playoffs last week, with the games going just about as expected. Bohemoh virtually assured themselves of a first round victory, by taking all three games from the Skeeters, at the same time building up a 251 nuphlus in total pins. The Crackpots took two games from the Hotshots, compiling a 227 pin lead. The Inkspots took two games from the Fireballs, but dropped high total by 39 pins. The Pinpoppers took two games from the Rockets, but dropped high total by 23 pins.

The next night will see the same teams bowling, and the following week will bring the four survivors into contest.

AT THE CAPITOL — Death trap. Poisoned spikes bristle from this Indian's rope stretched across a jungle trail to discourage a raiding party of savage Jivaros, as seen in "Jungle Headhunters," factional feature film in print by Technicolor. The RKO Radio picture produced by Julian Lesser pictures, adventures of the Lewis Cotlow Amazon Expedition. On the same program, "Tokyo File 212", a powerful spy story filmed entirely in Japan. Both hits are first city showings and open tonight at the Capitol Theatre.

AT THE McCARTHY — Glamorous school teacher Linda Darnell is reminded of her gambling debt by Reno gambler Stephen McNally in this highlight scene from Universal-International's hilarious new comedy, "The Lady Pays Off", which also stars Gigi Perreau and features Virginia Field. The new film is Miss Darnell's first assignment as a free-lance actress. "The Lady Pays Off" opens today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The fact that a bridge player opens the bidding does not always mean that his side is the strongest pair. The majority of power may still be with opponents by the combined bidding.

The first idea of a takeout double is to show partner a hand so good as an opening bidder. Thus, as a foundation for either side, the folks are as good as the people.

After that, the strongest pair will no doubt turn out to be the one whose partner has the best helping hand. Thus, each of the partners must quickly announce their strength or weakness.

When there is an intervening pass or redouble, partner of the doubler is expected to bid. The only exception to this is when the partner of the doubler can help defeat the current bid.

Therefore, when partner of the doubler comes in with a bid it is an indication that he does not have a strong hand. That is, if the bid he makes there is without a jump.

Consequently, some other kind of a response must be used by the doubler's partner to show he has a strong hand. What other response? Either a pass or a jump bid.

But after a takeout double, suppose there is some kind of a bid by the intervening opponent. Then, partner of the doubler may pass. And such a pass denies having a strong hand.

Consequently, when there is an intervening bid, some other kind of a response must be used by doubler's partner to show strength. What other response? A bid of any kind or a double.

South opens with a club. West doubles for takeout. North bids a heart. If east bids he will show a hand that is not weak. His bid is one spade with the hand shown here:

W. E. Smith Speaks On 'Fear and Courage'

Marmora—"Fear and Courage" was the topic of a witty address given by W. E. (Ezra) Smith, secretary-manager of the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, at the monthly dinner meeting of the Marmora organization held in the Royal Hotel on Thursday evening.

Fear Greatest Enemies

"Of all the emotions which disturb mankind, fear is the greatest," said the speaker. He then spoke in turn on five types of fear: those of accident and disease; loss of valued possessions; displeasure of the group; failure and unknown. Concerning each, the speaker used more than one humorous story to clinch counteracting fear.

"Physical courage" he emphasized that that is the quality a man shows when he goes ahead at the time he is afraid. The best antidotes for fear besides courage, he showed, are a realization that there is a certain amount of good luck in every case, the practice of co-operation, and above all, the exercise of faith in one's self, one another and God.

The speaker was introduced by the Rev. G. D. Young and thanked by A. F. Fraser, past president of the Chamber. Vaughan Glover, president was in the chair and the attendance was a little below the average.

The president after welcoming those present, mentioned that the May meeting would likely be a ladies' night and the program would be put on by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Britain Tenders Greetings

Prior to his address proper, Mr. Smith brought greetings from the Trenton Chamber of Commerce, and pointed out the Marmora Chamber on its fine membership and suggested that it might emulate Trenton in securing group insurance on the Chamber of Commerce's own group plan now operative in 57 communities.

A F. Fraser as chairman of the committee in charge of the Red Cross drive, mentioned unavoidable delay in completing it, but was happy to announce that the total now stood at $397.80 due to goodly help from Delora and a half of the canvassers were yet to be heard from.

Roger Young, chairman of the membership committee, reported that 20 new members including the total membership to date to 107. Further efforts will be made in the attempt to reach the 100 mark.

Artificial Ice

One new project was briefly discussed, that of flooding the rink with artificial ice. A. J. Meynes, R. J. Walsh, J. Appleton and R. Glen were named as a committee to go into the matter and submit a report.

The question was again raised after a year's lapse, of having signs placed at the ends of the streets, indicating their names.

A motion was carried recommending that Marmora village council deal with this matter as soon as possible.

Church Auditorium Renovated

The interior of Beaver Creek Free Methodist Church in Marmora Townahip has recently undergone renovation. The ceiling has been covered with modern ten-test squares and the walls with the same material in panel effect. The floor which has served the church since its erection in 1895, was completely covered with quarter board over which was laid a suitable shade of marbeleum floor covering.

Other alterations have been made on the church property. A neat wrought iron fence, built at the back of the church last fall and a new fence is to be put up around the church land and cemetery, necessitating the tearing down of the old wire and board fence which have outlived their usefulness.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

Dumont disappeared, but returned almost immediately with the grim-lipped housekeeper. When Mrs. Ring took over, she took over. She asked no questions. Only a momentary flicker of surprise and shock crossed her sharp face. Then she issued orders.

"Marney Cravath and I found Sally, Ive Wheeler and Sladen finishing dinner downstairs. Briefly Cravath described the finding of Dolly Dumont.

"Why didn't Williamson carry her in himself as soon as he found her," Sladen asked.

"I haven't had a chance to ask him," Cravath told him. "I suppose he thought she was dead and he'd heard that bodies aren't supposed to be moved before the police arrive."

Sladin brought us a light meal, and Mrs. Ring came into the dining room as we worked on the brandy.

"You'll be glad to hear," she said, eyes on the brandy with disapproval, "that Mrs. Dumont isn't as badly off as she seemed at first. The doctor wants to see you."

Dr. Dreeves, a tall straight man with grizzled black hair and dark serious eyes waited with Dumont in the hallway above.

Cravath greeted him, introduced me, and led the way to the then off my room. We sat down.

"Mrs. Dumont," he said then, "will be perfectly all right, if she is kept quiet. She suffered from shock and a slight concussion. The concussion was caused by a blow on the back of the head."

He paused, his eyes sweeping our faces.

"I took the liberty, Marney," Dumont said at once, "of sending Williamson for a nurse. She's a Miss Burroughs over in Port Liston."

"Quite all right, Jack," said Cravath. "Naturally. But about this business, Doctor?" Mr. Dumont will have told you that none of us actually know what happened to his wife. I mean that the—er—circumstances of the thing."

Dreeves nodded. "So I understand. And the circumstances seem a little—well, peculiar. For one thing, in my opinion, the blow could not have been self-inflicted."

"But why should she want to knock herself out?" Dumont asked.

"I couldn't answer that," Dreeves shrugged. "Except to say that I don't believe she wanted to. Or did. The answer lies in what she was . . ." Again his eyes sought Dumont's.

Dumont said resignedly. "Oh tell them Doctor. Might as well call the spades. Everybody around here knows about it, anyhow."

"Very well." The doctor spoke quickly, as one trying to get an unpleasant chore behind him. "To make a bald statement, Mrs. Dumont had been drinking heavily —Which put it, perhaps, as charitably as possible.

"When do you think she'll be able to tell us what happened, if she can?" asked Cravath.

The doctor pursed thin lips. "Not tonight, certainly. We'll see about it in the morning."

He hesitated. There was something delicate, subtle about the hesitation.

"Go on, Dreeves," Cravath invited. "We might better hear everything."

"Well," the doctor spoke slowly, "I said that I didn't think Mrs. Dumont's would have been self-inflicted. But there is some slight possibility that she may have had a fall."

"Fall?" Dumont looked both startled and sceptical. "You mean she—could have slipped, hit the back of her head, got up, wandered around the grounds and finally barged into those chains?"

"Something like that. I'd bet against it, mind you. But I've been a physician for a long time, Mr. Dumont. Long enough to avoid making a positive statement that such-and-such a thing absolutely could not have happened. Queer things, very outlandish things, do happen to people. Especially, if you'll forgive me, when they're—ah, when they have taken too much."

Nurse Burroughs was a small dark female who moved efficiently in a swish of starch and wore a no-nonsense expression. Williamson arrived with her while we were talking. Dreeves left us to give her instructions, then took his departure.

As if by tacit consent, everybody went to bed early. Personally, I thought it a good idea. I'd been afraid that we'd sit far into the night, hashing and re-hashing a matter for which no person had even the foggiest explanation.

I got into pajamas, slippers and a light robe. Then I fetched a book from Cravath's den and stretched out on the bed, thought I'd read for half an hour or so. After that, I was sure, I could knock off eight solid hours of shut-eye without moving a muscle.

Well, I couldn't read or sleep either.

Questions, completely unanswerable questions, moved in on me the moment I was nicely settled.

Finally I slung the book into a chair and stopped trying. Then everything just seemed to sweep over me like an avalanche.

The unsuccessful attacks on Cravath! The tragically-successful one on Ames Warburton. Now Dolly Dumont, another near-success.

I'd assumed that we had to deal with a clever and competent killer. Someone with a genius for careful planning and neat execution. But . . . three failures in four tries. Clever killer? Clever killers didn't muff it, at least not more than once.

Suppose—wild idea—but suppose the intellect, or, intelligence, pitted against us were—well, only human. It seemed inconceivable, fantastic. Ames Warburton, however, if Ring's eyes hadn't played her tricks, pushed or flung violently over the cliffs by something so dark and swift as to remain unseen. In other words, could it be that we were fighting not a person, but a thing? And did this great Long Island estate — lush, green and innocuous in broad daylight—harbor something inhuman and hellish that came by darkness to haunt the Peacock Path?

Just there I stiffened suddenly. Two soft but imperative raps had sounded at the door.

I slipped quietly off the bed, opened the door a crack. All my vague imaginations, I guess, had gone jittery.

Sally Cravath stood there, in something dark-blue and clingy.

"Open it wider, you dope," she whispered. "What do you think I am, an eel?"

I obeyed mechanically with, I presume, my mouth open.

Sally said, smiling faintly: "Jim please stop ogling me. And try and keep the wolflight out of your eyes. I had to come for—for help."

I dropped the offensive eyes.

"I should think," I said, "that any girl belonging to a plush establishment like this could afford a pair of mules."

Sally extended a bare foot. She blinked, as if surprised to find that she owned it. "Oh, I must have kicked them off in Uncle Marney's room. And forgot them when I . . . well, flounced out!"

"You've been flouncing!" I said politely.

She perched on the bed, drew her knees up, rested a small chin between them. "Don't be so humorous. But I think you'd call it that. Anyhow, I left that stubborn obstinate, pigheaded character in a hurry."

I saw that she was indeed agitated. There was a trace of a flush beneath the tan-and-cocoa of her cheeks and her voice shook slightly.

"Take it easy," I said.

"Look, Jim," she said. "I've been in there begging him to go to the police. It's obvious to me—and I know darn well to you too—that we should have called them hours ago. Will you please tell me what he's waiting for after this thing happened to Dolly? A bigger and better murder, maybe?"

"We haven't established one murder yet."

"Oh, nuts. Let's not kid ourselves. Ames was killed and Dolly half-killed. And before that someone tried to get Uncle Marney." She looked at me steadily, shadows in her big gray eyes. "And anybody who thinks the whole thing is just a series of coincidences ought to have his head read."

Personally, I agreed with her. And I began wondering a touch disturbedly, about Marston Cravath. Up to a certain point, protecting the family escutcheon against notoriety was laudable. But beyond that point it became plain stupidity. Unless . . . unless Cravath had a more cogent reason for keeping the law out of this.

"Sure," I inquired, "was it left with your uncle?"

Sally's lips thinned to a firm red line. "I issued an ultimatum. I've given him tonight to think it over. Then, if he doesn't come to his senses, I'm calling the police myself."

"What did he say?"

"What didn't he say!" She gave me a wry smile. "And he said it all with his top blown. He bawled me out for 10 minutes straight and never stopped for breath."

"Listen," I said, "you picked a bad night for ultimatums, that's all. Your uncle's upset and I don't blame him. It was pretty rugged out there, with Mrs. Dumont."

"Oh!" Her voice hardened. "My uncle's upset is he? Well, what about Ames . . . and Dolly? Himself too for that matter!"

"Okay," I said soothingly. "But where do I come in?"

She hugged her knees. "I'd like it if you went to Uncle Marney in the morning, when he's cooled off and tried to knock some sense into his head. After all, Jim, it's up to him to call the police. He's the head of this house. It's going to look very funny to the police and—everybody else, if his niece has to send for them."

I arose then, stood facing her. There was, between us, about two feet of floor space. "Okay. It'll probably cost me my job, but I'll make your uncle a few polite suggestions."

Sally let a moment pass. Then, quite softly, "Did anybody ever tell you, Jim Orth, that you're a very nice guy?"

Huge Ice Jam Crushes Bridge

An aerial view of the Saskatchewan Landing bridge shows the ice jam — 70 miles long — grinding against the $1,000,000 structure which was finished during the weekend. The 1,215-foot bridge, only completed last summer, linked Swift Current and the southwest corner of Saskatchewan with the province's west-central region. — (CP Photo.)

Bridge Washed Out

Pounded by huge ice boulders and rising west ers for two days the $1,000,000 Saskatchewan Landing bridge, 35 miles north of Swift Current, had three centre steel spans swept away. The spans, weighing hundreds of tons, were buried 40 feet, then sank in the South Saskatchewan river. Premier T. C. Douglas placed damage at between $200,000 and $300,000. He said the bridge will be repaired. Meanwhile ferry service would be set up and the army would be asked to lend a Bailey Bridge. — (CP Photo.)

Not Much Tax Relief Expected When Finance Minister Brings Down Budget in Parliament

Ottawa, April 8, (CP)—The federal budget, with its story of what this 1952-53 fiscal year holds for the Canadian taxpayer, will be brought down in the Commons tonight by Finance Minister Abbott.

Amid indications that any tax relief will be meagre, Mr. Abbott will begin his budget speech at approximately 8 p.m. E.S.T. After his customary review of the past year's fiscal operations, he may reach the taxation portion an hour later.

Both Mr. Abbott and Prime Minister St. Laurent have warned taxpayers not to expect much tax relief while the Korean war and other international tensions continue.

Three main possibilities exist:

1. An easing of the excise tax on cigarets, which was boosted last year.

Preliminary government statistics already have shown that the government lost money on excise duties on tobacco last year because of reduced sales. The high tax also led to increased smuggling of cheaper American smokes.

2. A realignment of income tax schedules which would incorporate into the basic tax rates the 20-per-cent defence surcharge placed on personal and corporate income in the last budget. This does not necessarily mean there will be alterations in the figures.

3. A better break for the taxpayer who has medical bills to deduct from his income for tax purposes. The Commons recently adopted—apparently with government agreement—a private resolution asking that limits on the amount of deductible medical expenses be widened.

A budgetary preview of sorts was provided yesterday when Mr. Abbott tabled a government White Paper detailing the economic position of the country. The paper ordinarily is tabled with the budget, but Mr. Abbott introduced it a day earlier.

It showed that he ended the 1951-52 fiscal year with an estimated budgetary surplus or budgetary surplus of $355,737,000 against his forecast last spring of $30,000,000, and explained that this revealed from $100,000,000 to $120,000,000 more revenues than the government had anticipated.

Revenues reached a new peak of $4,003,111,000, compared with $3,112,352,000 the previous year while expenditures totalled $3,647,374,000, compared with $2,901,342,000 in 1950-51. Defence spending plus was used to reduce the net national debt by $11,077,000,000.

Of 1952 prospects, it said there are indications for "continued high levels of employment and general business activity, without any renewed sharp overall inflation, and with most of the increased output occurring in the defence and defence-supporting sections of the economy."

Speculation Over Hitler's Fate Revived by Salvage Work on Sub

Copenhagen, April 8 (AP)— A dynamite blast which raised the hulk of a sunken German submarine brought Danish speculation today that leading masters perhaps even Hitler — died to the falling Reich in a U-boat.

The sub was one of three bombed by the RAF May 4, 1945. At least two were found sunk near the Danish coast. The fate of the third is unknown.

The dynamite charge, set off during salvage operations, broke a torpedo tube and raised huge amounts of rotting food. Investigation showed the U-boat was crammed with goods and carried no munitions.

No papers were found to identify occupants, but they grew the deduction the U-boat might have transported "important people, big nazis."

Some Danes wondered whether Hitler might have been one, although Allied investigation has indicated he probably died in a Berlin bunker as the Germans said he did.

The mystery of the submarine probably will never be known. Salvagers are starting the ship to salvage the steel. Corpses of those drowned have been carried away by the water, and only a few skulls have been left.

ONLY FEW WILL BENEFIT SAYS WELFARE MINISTER

Challies Suggests Raise in Hydro Rates

Toronto, April 8 — (CP)—Welfare Minister Goodfellow said in the Ontario Legislature yesterday that the government's new "pioneering" legislation to pay $46 monthly to totally disabled persons will be "quite restrictive."

"A great many people are going to be disappointed," he said at a night sitting that gave second reading to the bill. It would be paid generally to those bedridden or in need of personal care.

Where the $46 was below the amount a permanently disabled person would have received in direct municipal relief, the government indicated it will pay half of any extra payment made by the municipality to bring the pension up to relief levels.

Possible Increase

Hon. G. R. Challies, vice-chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, suggested a possible increase in hydro rates.

He said in his annual report—"The effects of costly fuel-electric generation and the rising costs of materials and labor must soon be reflected in hydro finance."

Hydro now was selling all the power produced but when Ontario Hydro expansion is completed the commission would have a "modest reserve" of dependable capacity. After that, "the only answer within economic acceptability, is the St. Lawrence project."

Opposition Leader Farquhar Oliver said the present "serious decline" in farm prices may mark the end of Canada's present overall prosperity.

$826,397 Paid In Damage Claims By Government

Toronto, April 8 (CP)—A total of $826,397 in damage claims was paid from the province's unsatisfied judgment fund in the 15 months from April 1, 1951, to Feb. 29, 1952. The government reported last night in a reply tabled in the Ontario Legislature. At Feb. 29, 1952, the fund's balance was $178,506.

Payments from the fund are made in automobile accident cases where the driver at fault cannot pay damages or cannot be found. The province's drivers each pay 50 cents a year into the fund.

Mr. Thomson said he proposes acquiring further American newspapers if they become available. He now owns 14 Canadian dailies and one weekly, The Orillia, (Ont.) Packet and Times.

Lt.-Col. 'Big Jim' Stone With Third DSO Heads List of Decorations for Canadians

Ottawa, April 8 — (CP) — Lt.-Col. James Riley (Big Jim) Stone got his third D.S.O. today to top the longest list yet of Korean decorations for Canadian troops. It was for leadership "of great distinction, courage and energy."

The rugged commander of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry was in Calgary with his unit — was one of 49 members of the 25th Brigade to win awards ranging from the D.S.O. to mentions-in-dispatches.

Fourth Award

It was the fourth gallantry award for the 40-year-old soldier from Salmon Arm, B.C. He won the Military Cross at Orione, Italy, in 1943, the Distinguished Service Order and later two D.S.O.'s.

Other original commanders of the main brigade units were made Officers of the Order of the British Empire.

They are Lt.-Col. J. A. (Jimmy) Dextrase, D.S.O., 32, Montreal, of the 2nd Battalion, Royal 22nd Regiment; Lt.-Col. R. A. (Bob) Keane, D.S.O., Fort William, Ont., 2nd Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment; Lt.-Col. A. J. R. Bailey, D.S.O., M.B.E., 37 of Sandwick, B.C., 2nd Regiment Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, and Brig. Maj. Donald Rochester, 34, Toronto, of the Brigade's engineer unit.

All these officers were back in Canada.

Capt. H. C. Stevenson, 33, of Minnedosa, Man., was made a member of the Order of the British Empire and three other officers won the Military Cross, the junior officer's gallantry award.

Three Get M.C.

The M. C. went to Lieuts. F. R. Freeborn, 28, Calgary, an engineer, J. A. C. McKinlay, 24, Vancouver, Princess Patricias, and M. T. O'Brennan, ,30, Regina and North Battleford, Sask., artillery.

Two young soldiers led the list of other ranks winners. They were Cpl. E. W. Poole, 20, Regina, and Duff, Sask., a medical assistant, and Pte. R. E. Bauer, 22, of Hallfax and Winnipeg, R.C.R.

The other awards included two military medals, two British Empire Medals and 34 mentions-in-dispatches.

The Stone Citation recalled his molding of the battalion that first brought Canada's colors in Korea and its outstanding actions under his command. The Patricias won United States Presidential citation last year for holding off a vital section of the Chinese spring offensive. Again in October, the Patricias refused to give ground under furious assault.

Displayed Aggressiveness

The citation said:

"At all times Lt.-Col. Stone led his troops with courage, coolness and aggressiveness. He is always to be seen walking from company to company, urging his troops to destroy the enemy, advising and encouraging his officers and NCOs. He has shown complete disregard for his own safety and endless energy in aggressively attacking the enemy.

Lt.-Col. Bailey, now a colonel, was cited for commanding his gunners "in an outstanding manner, displaying exceptional devotion to duty and personal courage." Lt.-Col. Dextrase was honored for the "inspiration and magnificent example" he gave his Royal 22nd Comrades in taking every objective assigned to them and in refusing to give ground.

The citation for Lt.-Col. Keane cited his "great leadership and courage" and said "he has always been found with his forward troops, advising and encouraging them and directing their efforts towards the attainment of their objective."

100-Mile Winds, Bitter Cold Harass Scientists Living Near North Pole

By JACK RYAN
(Managing Editor, Fairbanks Daily News-Miner)

Fairbanks, Alaska, April 8 (AP)—A scientist who spent nearly two weeks near the North Pole today described the struggle against hurricane winds and bitter cold that froze kerosene solid.

The Norwegian-born scientist Dr. Kaare Rodahl, was a member of the original three-man air force party that landed on an ice island near the pole to set up a semi-permanent weather observation station. He said that during the first week of their stay, the island was lashed by hundred mile winds.

An air force C-47 on March 19 landed the three scientists on the island along with a considerable load of supplies. Then the plane and its three C-54 escort craft returned to a base in Greenland.

The men set to work building a shelter of blocks carved from frozen snow. A canvas tarpaulin was used for a roof. The canvas was supported by fuel drums piled up inside the structure.

"We were hampered by temperatures which we estimated as being in the 60s below zero, or colder," Dr. Rodahl said. "We had no thermometer, but our kerosene froze solid when we tried to pour it into a frigid stove. A bottle of whiskey the plane crew threw us also froze. That would make it colder than 60 below."

On the fourth day of the stay on the island, a sudden gale sprang up within a period of 30 minutes. The wind grew in velocity until it reached a force of 70 miles an hour with gusts up to 100. Powdery snow whipped up by the wind reduced visibility to zero.

The ice island is about five miles long, eight miles wide and 200 feet thick in places but it "jerked and twisted as the ice pack battered it from all sides," the scientist said.

"Above the roar of the gale, we could hear the pack grinding and roaring around our island. As pressure on the ice built up under the surface of the island, loud noises like cannon fire came from the ice floes."

The men could do nothing but crawl into their newly built shelter and cling to the canvas roof to keep it from blowing away.

The storm subsided in about 24 hours and the men resumed work on their shelter. They now have completed four snow-block buildings roofed with canvas. Tunnels connect the four rooms.

Costello Fined, Given 18-Month Term in Prison

New York, April 8 (AP)—Gambler Frank Costello was fined $5,000 and sentenced to 18 months in prison today for refusing to testify before the Senate Crime Investigating committee.

Sentence was pronounced by Judge Sylvester J. Ryan who also ruled Costello's last-minute effort to obtain a mistrial.

The sentence will be served in a federal prison.

It will be the first time Costello with a long career as a rackets boss, has served time behind bars since 1915, when he served two months in jail for carrying a gun.

The punishment could run four terms of one year each, to run concurrently, and three of six months each, also to run concurrently. The two sets of sentences are to run consecutively.

Costello, convicted last Friday on 10 counts of contempt of the senate, could have received a maximum of 10 years in prison and $10,000 in fines.

Costello's lawyer said he will appeal.

Mobile, Ala., April 8 — (AP)— A new ship will be ready for Capt. Kurt Carlsen's Alaska Eskimo Pup-skipper arrives here late this week. The Isbrandsen Co. Inc., is preparing the transportation service it recently returned from mothballs to Isbrandsen purchased the 8,236-ton Alcoa Pilgrim recently from Waterman Steamship Corp. here.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 8 (CP)—Synoptic: Cloud still persists over part of southern Ontario but will gradually dissipate during the day. With the welcome change in sunshine, temperatures will rise to the low fifties today and even higher on Wednesday. However, cold air is approaching from the northwest and will invade at least the west easterly parts of the province by midnight Wednesday.

Deemed Unfit To Stand Trial For Murder

Bowmanville, April 8. (CP)—Harold Allan Deneau, 16, charged with the murder of a man who had befriended him, today was committed for trial and sent to a mental hospital for further examination.

Deneau was charged following the discovery March 14 of the body of Sidney Goff, 36, under a pile of straw on the Goff farm in Clarke Township, 10 miles north of Oshawa. The youth had been living with Goff on the farm.

Dr. C. S. Tennant, psychiatrist for the Ontario Department of Reformatories, told the court in his opinion the youth was mentally deficient.

Deneau was remanded in custody of the superintendent of the mental hospital at Whitby for further series of tests as to his mental condition.

Justice Bowlby Dies in Toronto

Toronto, April 8 — (CP) — Mr. Justice C. W. Reid Bowlby, 71, a member of the Ontario Supreme Court bench, died at noon today. He was taken to hospital Saturday after being stricken with a gastric hemorrhage.

Mr. Justice Bowlby was one of Hamilton's best known trial lawyers before his appointment to the Ontario Supreme Court in 1949. A graduate of Osgoode Hall, he was Assistant Crown Attorney for Wentworth County from 1916-1922.

Born at Tapleytown, Ont., Mr. Justice Bowlby was a veteran of the First World War. Besides his widow he is survived by four children including a daughter, Mrs. F. B. Harris, Hamilton.

Germans, Given Helgoland by RAF, Wonder How to Retake it From Rats

Helgoland, Germany, April 8 — (AP)—For seven years, this rocky island's Germans are wondering so hard a would seem nothing else matters.

But the rats did. Millions of them. They are no respecters of persons — the Germans who at long last have won the island back from the RAF now are wondering how to retake it from the rodents.

Helgoland was used as a bombing-practice target by the RAF from the war's end until last May 1. Then the British turned it back to German control. The Germans are planning to remodel and resettle the place.

But they'll have to get rid of the rats rist.

The rodents are making life miserable for the advance guard of German workers now cleaning up bomb debris. They gnaw through the strongest cloth and eat up all the food supplies. They chew wooden shoes, burrow under floors, undermine floors, and cut telephone lines with their strong, sharp teeth.

Rat hunts have become the spare time occupation of the workers. Poison attacks also were the order. Poison attacks also were useless for which the island used to be famous.

Nearby Hamelin had a similar rat problem once. But it's been many centuries since a Pied Piper was heard of.

U.S. Wage Chief Hopeful Dispute May be Settled

New Suggestions Presented To Union, Steel Industry

New York, April 8. (AP)—The government's wage chief said today he had "some confidence" that the steel wage dispute may be settled before a country-wide strike at midnight tonight.

It was the most hopeful sign in recent days in the darkening steel picture, that has already caused mills to begin cooling their furnaces in expectation of a shutdown.

Nathan P. Feinsinger, chairman of the War Labor Stabilization Board told reporters he has presented some suggestions to the industry, and now will present them in a separate conference to United Steelworkers (C.I.O.) leaders. This is the first time, he said, he has offered direct suggestions for a settlement in five days of talks.

Gov't May Act

Washington. (AP)—The Commerce department today was reported ready to operate the strike-threatened steel industry in the event President Truman backs down on government seizure.

Officials gave this word to reporters today on the heels of a public disclosure that Truman has asked Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer to interrupt a mid-western tour and return here immediately.

These officials said seizure orders have been drafted for Truman's signature.

Hopes in official quarters appearing had been all but abandoned for settlement in the industry's wage dispute with the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.).

However, there apparently has been no definite decision to seize the industry.

Pittsburgh, April 8 — (AP) — The American steel industry rushed toward a complete shutdown today with government, industry and labor leaders hurling without scant hope of averting a defence-crippling steel strike at the stroke of midnight.

Mill shutdowns already have made idle more than 100,000 of the 650,000 United Steelworkers (C. I. O.) ordered on strike when 98 steel producing companies.

Allied industries, such as railroads, also are laying off workers in the expectation of losing business.

Already the walkout is on at Bethlehem Steel Corporation's huge plant in Sparrows Point, Md., near Baltimore.

Hectic mediation efforts in New York have produced some faintly optimistic statements but no apparent enough to slow the shutdown process.

President Philip Murray of the steelworkers took time out from the New York sessions to declare over an NBC radio network:

"The steelworkers have a 5,000,000 18.2 per cent record from the January, 1951, total of 6,176.

PRIME MINISTER EXPRESSES VIEW ON DIVORCE

Opposes CCF Proposal To Deal With Question

Ottawa, April 8 (CP)— Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons yesterday he does not believe the majority should "force upon the minority who do not believe in divorce the acceptance of divorce as a legal institution."

By the same token, he does not believe "the larger minority should impose on a smaller minority the position that there could be no divorce at all."

Mr. St. Laurent expressed that view in opposing a CCF proposal that parliament be relieved of dealing with divorce petitions from Quebec and Newfoundland and that the Exchequer Court of Canada be given the job.

The discussion developed during study of private members' business. The CCF group attempted to delay passage of one of a group of 211 divorce bills until the chamber had debated "alternative methods" of handling divorces from the provinces, which have no divorce courts.

Later the chamber debated a private motion by Hughes Cleaver (PC-Halifax) calling for drastic alterations in House procedure as a means of speeding up business.

More Births, Deaths Reported in January

Ottawa, April 8 (CP)—Registrations of births and deaths increased during January over the corresponding month a year ago, but marriages declined, the Bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

Births during the month increased 14 per cent to 30,014 from 29, 210 in January last year. Gains in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Saskatchewan during more than offset declines in the other provinces. Ontario was responsible for 40 per cent of the all gain, increasing to 10,103 from 9,661.

Deaths were four per cent higher at 11,068 from 10,667, with Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan registering the only decreases. Marriages declined 5,054, down 18.2 per cent from the January, 1951, total of 6,176.

Cheese Industry Sees Increased Surplus Over Domestic Needs, No Prospects of Export Sales

Alarm over the recent trend in the Canadian cheese industry which threatens an increased 1952 surplus over domestic requirements with no prospects of export sales, was shown here Monday by directors of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association at their quarterly meeting.

An increased production of cheese of at least 10 million pounds over last year was foreseen. Together with this was the statement by W. O. Coon, association president, that there would be no export contract with Great Britain this year owing to lack of dollars in the United Kingdom.

Following a day long discussion the directors here unanimously agreed to foresee any immediate remedy for this situation.

Today (Tuesday) members of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board are meeting with representatives of the cheese buying trade to negotiate a price for cheese this year.

At Monday's meeting directors agreed that every effort should be made to secure a government floor price of 25 cents per pound.

Want Meetings Held

At the same time a resoution was passed calling on directors to hold local meetings in their own counties with all dairy producers present for the purpose of impressing on local members of parliament the serious situation existing in the dairy industry.

Also feeling that the present "emergency" situation in the cheese industry merited the whole milk industry, a second motion was passed calling on the Ontario Dairy Producers' Co-ordinating Board to move immediately in the direction of establishing a milk marketing scheme. If the co-ordinating board fails to do this at their next meeting cheese milk producers will attempt to sell their milk in any available market.

No Export Contract

In opening discussion President W. O. Coon told his directors that the cheese industry was starting this season with three strikes against it.

With no export contract with the United Kingdom, Mr. Coon said the big problem would be what to do with Canada's export cheese. Importation into Canada during the winter of over five million pounds of New Zealand cheese meant there was considerably more cheese now in storage. Further aggravating the problem was the foot-and-mouth disease outbreak in western Canada which has shut off the export of cattle to the United States.

Thousands of milch cows sold or expected to be sold for export had to be kept in the country. This meant they would be milked next summer. Mr. Coon estimated this would mean an increase of over 10 million pounds of cheese would be made.

Increased Production Expected

County directors in their reports to the meeting were almost unanimous in stating there was certain to be increased production this year but few were able to offer any possible solution to the problem of what to do with surplus cheese.

It was pointed out that the condensaries and the powder milk plants could only absorb a certain amount of milk. After that over-production would undoubtedly serve to reduce the price received by farmers from this outlet. A price of $3.50 per cwt. for such milk had been unofficially announced, but it was pointed out this price applied only for milk going into cans.

Despite the gloomy picture for cheese, directors stressed the importance of keeping the factories operating. "If we drop this then they will stay closed," was the way one director put it.

Not Bad Idea Claim

Areas in which there were condensaries were termed lucky but this was not the case in many counties where the only alternative to sending milk to the factories was separating and sending to creameries.

Some directors felt this was not a bad idea. It was pointed out that the government was urging that more butter be made. H.C. Arnold, Campbellford, and vice president of the producers' association, went so far as to urge there be no hurry to get factories operating this year. This would serve to build up butter supplies and at the same time cut down on the cheese that would find its way to the market.

The afternoon session was thrown open for discussion. It was felt that the unsatisfactory export situation confronting the cheese industry was an emergency one and action which could not have been foreseen. Members were unanimous, however, in the feeling that Canada's surplus cheese this year would be a government responsibility and that a floor price must be established to save the industry.

Surplus Cheese Problems

Even at that Mr. Coon was at a loss to know what the government would do with the surplus cheese after it was placed in storage.

Mr. Arnold said there was no use trying to compete in price with New Zealand cheese. Canadian labor was not competing with labor in other countries. So why should the latter undercut?

Henry Montgomery, Prince Edward county director, said producers in his county were "not well pleased" with developments. He doubted that many factories in his county would attempt to operate this year. He noted that a concentrated milk plant in his county had absorbed a great many factory patrons. Yet the same concensary owned a cheese factory, where cheddar milk was made into cheese. The two facts did not add up, he said.

No Sale For Cows Claim

Hastings county director W. E. Bateman said production of milk would be up in his county due to the cattle export to the United States being held up.

Mr. Coon told directors did not yet realize the seriousness of the situation due to the fact that the cheese making season was not in full swing. "We have a surplus of our product and no sale for our dairy cows," he said.

It was the first time since confederation that Canada had no prospect of exporting cheese to the United Kingdom.

He was inclined to think the responsibility for the present state of its difficulty was up to the department of trade and commerce. But he pointed out this department was not working for the farmers rather it was the cheese industry trying to sell manufacturer goods and thus keep labor happy.

But the cutting off of the cattle export to the U.S.A. was already affecting industry to the extent that machinery sales were being cancelled by farmers who had expected to sell dairy cows. This condition would spread when cheese men began to feel the pinch.

Feeling Milk Probable Answer

Mr. John Ballantyne, Perth County stressed the present situation in the dairy industry affected all branches of the industry and said one of the answers was to pool the milk. He did not like the attitude of the whole milk producers who he said were "thumbing their noses at us."

"They have the same old excuse that they are required to give their milk more care and that they have to get more quotas," he said.

He went on to point out, however, that cheese milk producers sent their milk to city dairies in the winter months with no more care than their milk. "And we are ready now to take care of some their quotas for them," he said.

No Reason

"Just because we have stuck with our cheese factories while others jumped around is no reason why we should continue to take less for our milk," he said.

Mr. Coon stressed that merely agreeing that a request should be made for a 30 cent floor price for cheese was not enough. He urged that public meetings be held to drive home the seriousness of the situation across to the public and to members of parliament. The resolution for directors to call local meetings was approved by directors and was Mr. Ballantyne's motion calling for the Ontario Dairy Producers' Co-ordinating Board to take some action in establishing a milk marketing scheme for Ontario.

Mr. Coon called for greater support by the cheese factory patrons of the June set-aside through which money is raised for advertising dairy foods. He said contributions from cheese factories had fallen of during the past year.

"This year, more than ever, advertising was needed in an effort to increase the domestic consumption of cheese," he said.

Profit Sharing Is Suggested By Malcolm Robb

London, Ont., April 8 (CP) — Profit sharing as a means of eliminating conflict between management and labor was suggested last night by Malcolm Robb, Belleville lawyer.

In an address to a meeting of the builders exchange, he said the plan already is used successfully.

Mr. Robb attributed most industrial strife to lack of recognition that the interests of management and labor are identical. It was in the interests of both when the produce was turned out at the lowest possible cost consistent with quality, when workers were well paid and when management had an adequate return on its investment.

He said the several hundred companies in Canada and the United States using the profit-sharing method had been successful and produce with constantly increasing efficiency.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, April 8. (CP)—Stock market prices recovered in early afternoon dealings.

Western oils and penny golds attracted most speculative interest. Industrial dealings spread slowly from leading issues and a few base metals showed activity. Volume for the first three hours was 2,290,000 shares.

Utilities came back strongly to form industrials' strongest section. Manufacturing companies also drew fair support but liquors, retail stores and textiles remained weak.

Western oils brought gains and losses into balance as Anglo-Canadian, Canadian Atlantic, Charter, Dome Explorations, General Petroleum, National Petroleum, Security Free and Canadian Williston turned upward.

Base Metals were mixed. Cassiar, East Sullivan, New Calumet and United Asbestos strengthened while Barvue, Noranda, Quemont and Osisko weakened.

Salvation Army Commissioner Will Speak Here

Commissioner William R. Dalziel, newly-appointed territorial leader of the Salvation Army for Canada and Bermuda will address a special public service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Good Friday evening. His subject will be "A Meeting of Meditation."

Many prominent churchmen and other high ranking citizens will attend the meeting to hear the new Army leader's first address in Belleville.

Prior to the service, Commissioner Dalziel and Mrs. Dalziel will be special guests at a dinner at the Quinte Hotel, where he will meet local civic officials, members of parliament, representatives of service clubs and other city organizations.

Commissioner Dalziel brings a wide experience in Salvation Army work with him. He served with it in World War I and later was appointed chief organizer of the Army's second movement in Britain.

Promotion to commissioner brought with it the appointment to take charge of the Army's work in the Australian east territory. He moved from there to the south territory. He has an enviable record of service in World War II.

He served as British commissioner in London from 1946. He takes charge of operations in Canada on June 7th. Mrs. Dalziel, formerly Ensign Lily Bingle, has contributed much to her husband's work and has accompanied him on many tours and campaigns.

Three children are already resident in Canada. Dr. Ronald Dalziel, M. C. is attached to the Royal Military College, Kingston. Dr. Douglas Dalziel was recently repatriated from medical missionary work in China and Lieut. Muriel Dalziel, a nursing sister with the RCAMC, is stationed at Whitehorse in the Yukon.

News of Trenton

Mr., Mrs. Harvey Windover Visited by Daughter, Grandson From Faraway Australia

Trenton (Special) — The C. N. R. junction platform was the scene of a long awaited get-together yesterday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Windover of 42 Dominion Street welcomed their daughter, Mrs. Stan Cowling and 16-months-old grandson Stephen, who had travelled more than half way around the world from their home in Australia. Mrs. Comino married an Australian serviceman and returned to Brisbane with him in 1945. She had not seen her parents since then.

Shortly after the middle of February, Mrs. Comino with her little son left Australia on a world tour steamship for Canada. Meanwhile mother and son have touched a dozen different countries and various climates but seemed relieved to reach Trenton, where they will holiday for six months. Mrs. Comino mentioned that there was snow in England when they left there a little over a week ago. She had a great deal of trouble acquainting herself with the different kinds of currency needed for shopping in the numerous foreign countries.

Mrs. Comino has four sisters and three brothers. Her sister Ivy likewise married an Australian and resides in Sydney, Australia. They visit each other often and both of them manage to keep from getting desperately homesick.

There will be a big party at the Windover home tonight with daughter Hazel the guest of honor. Among the many relatives and friends celebrating her homecoming are sisters and brothers including Mrs. Henry Gerow of Havelock, Mrs. Gordon Kindy of Niagara Falls, Mrs. Howard Cronkwright, 29 Crown Street, Trenton and Kenneth Windover, of Foley, Ont., Jack and Carmen of Trenton.

Many Eat Muskrats

Trenton —(Special)— Friends of Smithfield trapper Tom Westherburn have enjoyed a new delicacy since the trapping season for muskrats opened this spring. And their meat bill has almost disappeared, because Tom won't take pay for any of the meat he gives away.

Tom, who has spent 35 years of his life trapping in the spring, says the rats are plentiful this year but the high water has caused him to lose a lot of them. Everytime he skins a day's catch a crowd of villagers gather around to get their free issue of meat. He claims the legs of the little water animal taste better than chicken if you cook them according to his instructions.

Tom's recipe for preparing muskrat legs is as follows: cut out the tendon from between the leg muscles, soak in salt water overnight to remove wild flavor, pour off salt water and parboil in clear water until tender. Rub frying pan with garlic and fry legs in butter until crisp and golden brown.

Incidentally there isn't anything that pleases Tom better than a lover of muskrat meat who returns for another feed.

Shrine Club and McCarthy Theatre Hosts to Crippled Kiddies Friday

Friday will be a red-letter day in the lives of the crippled children of the city and district and their guests.

For on that day they will be the guests of the Belleville Shrine Club and Manager Willard Fawcett of the McCarthy Theatre at a matinee picture party which will climax anything of its nature ever held in this city.

It is expected that over 800 crippled children and their guests will be in attendance when the show gets under way on Friday morning.

Shrine members under the supervision of Shriner Chairman George McIntosh are completing plans for the occasion.

Admission by Ticket

Admission will be made by ticket only, these having already been given tickets to dispense to those kiddies who are eligible to attend the show.

Thanks to the generous gesture of Noble Willard Fawcett and his company, the use of the theatre and projection room which are being brought here from Toronto for the purpose, are being given free. Other members of the Shrine Club are deeply appreciative of this generous gesture.

The show will start at ten o'clock and members of the Shrine Club are requested to be on hand to help the committee with the handling of the large number of kiddies expected to attend.

Beside the show proper, the crippled kiddies and their guests will be treated to candies and ice cream and novelties. Each will be presented with a paper Shrine "fez."

Members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, a doctor and a nurse will be in attendance during the show to take care of any emergency that might arise.

Kinsmen Start Show Practices This Evening

Rehearsals for the forthcoming Kinsmen musical review "Hello Showboat," will get under way this evening, it was announced to members of the club at their dinner meeting at the Hotel Quinte Monday evening.

George Zarlus, director of last year's show "Showboat Days," which had a four-day run at the Belleville Collegiate, was on hand to give a rundown on this year's production. "Hello Showboat" will be the same fast moving type of show with new numbers added.

This year's Kinsmen show will be staged April 30 and May 1 and 2 with one matinee performance.

The club meeting was all business with no guest speaker scheduled. Orville "Doller" Lloyd reported on the trip of the Kinsmen Boys' Band members to the hockey game at Weston last Friday night, assuring that all had a good time. The boys were guests of the club for the game.

Elmer Lafarr reported on the swimming pool, asking for volunteers to get the pool and grounds into shape for the June 1 opening.

THEY WANT CHEAPER LABOR

A perfect example of what can happen if and when a government succumbs to the wishes of greedy and selfish pressure group is taking shape in California. California's ranchers are asking the United States government to import 100,000 South Koreans to perform "stoop" labor, that is, to harvest vegetables and other canning crops.

The ranchers say it is difficult to hire Americans to do this type of work; in other words, American-born labor is too independent and too expensive. For years, the ranchers in California and adjacent states have been hiring Mexicans for "stoop" labor. Many of these Mexicans enter the United States illegally. Also, there have been frequent complaints that they have been exploited and otherwise mistreated.

The California State Federation of Labor has protested the importation of Mexican labor. It has been ascertained that the incidence of tuberculosis among the Mexicans admitted legally was very high; it is feared that the incidence of the disease among those who come illegally is perhaps even higher.

According to the World Health Organization, tuberculosis is the most widespread of all diseases in Southern Korea at present. The annual death rate is said to be in excess of 300 per 100,000 of population.

Surveys made in Seoul, the capital of South Korea, showed that 84 per cent of college students had tuberculosis; 60 per cent of secondary school students and more than 33 per cent of the children entering primary schools have tuberculosis. Of 426 children admitted to the Red Cross hospital in Seoul, 314 per cent had tuberculosis. Mass X-rays have shown that more than two per cent of the total population of 20,000,000 of South Korea had active T.B. It is also said that 80 per cent of the South Korean population has venereal disease.

It remains to be seen whether the United States department of immigration will permit the entry of the 100,000 South Korean laborers which the California ranchers want. If the ranchers have enough influence to get what they want, the indications are that the state of California is going to face a heavy and continuing expense in providing medical attention and hospitalization for some of these South Koreans.

Before the U.S. had even achieved its independence numerous American ranchers, (or planters, as they were called in that day,) wanted a plentiful supply of cheap labor, too. They got it, and they prospered mightily, for a time. But in the end, their prosperity crashed about their ears in a fearfully destructive civil war, created by this same cheap labor policy. Furthermore, the importation by the Southern planters of cheap labor brought about grave social and economic problems which the United States has not solved yet, and may never solve.

There is, of course, a lesson in all this for any country people have to be wise enough to learn it and put it into practice. Some wise man once said that, while intelligence is the ability to learn from mistakes, education is the acquired ability to learn from the mistakes of others.

QUEBEC UNEMPLOYMENT WORSE

Spring has come, but that "seasonal unemployment" which we were many times told was going to vanish with spring's advent is still with us. There are even indications that it is growing worse.

The March figure for Quebec have been published. Quebec's unemployed now total 132,430, as of March 31. There has been an increase each month since December. Montreal alone has 39,717 idle.

Since the foregoing figures are provided by the Unemployment Insurance Commission, they include only those unemployed who are eligible for unemployment insurance. No one, apparently has any record of the unemployed groups, such as self-employed people, casual workers and farm laborers, who are not eligible for unemployment insurance.

In Montreal, it seems, the Roman Catholic Church and the Salvation Army are playing leading roles in providing for those who would otherwise be homeless and hungry. For example, the nuns of the Institute Bruchesi in Montreal alone are feeding 1,000 persons daily.

Perhaps most unerring judgment of stock market trends he had ever encountered. But when his classmates saw him at the fiftieth reunion, they were ready to fall over in a faint. He was dirty, unkept, toothless and apparently quite comfortable in mind. What they did not know was that he lived in a shack and at night went around picking up what ever he could find, later to sell it to the junk dealer and thus add to his savings account.

If the papers published all the people who, spiritually, lived the same kind of lives, they would have little space left to publish anything else. Many people of fine spiritual background are living the lives of miserable scavengers, trying to pick up a few satisfactions by means of unworthy or evil types of living. To themselves, their type of living may appear quite satisfying. According to mundane standards they may rate pretty high. But the universe frowns upon them. They are mere nobodies — and miserable nobodies at that.

POOR AMID RICHES

Some weeks ago the papers were full of the account of a Harvard graduate who had lived in poverty, employed his time as a scavenger, and died leaving a large amount of money, but no will.

It is utterly fantastic to read the account of this man. A banker said that this eccentric recluse had made many investments and of stock market trends he had ever encountered. But when his classmates saw him at the fiftieth reunion, they were ready to fall over in a faint. He was dirty, unkept, toothless and apparently quite comfortable in mind. Rain Forecast Poses New Threat To Capital City

Pierre, S. D., April 8—(AP)—Forecast of rain posed an added threat today for the capital city of 6,700 population, already girding itself against the bank bursting Missouri River.

Rampaging waters of the "Big Muddy" swept upon Pierre with the added volume of runoff from swift melting snowdrifts, cut down by yesterday's 70 degree temperatures.

Rain, pouring onto the still frozen ground, would add to the hazard.

Nils P. Jensen, Pierre Red Cross chairman, said the city was preparing for a water level of 22.5, seven feet above flood stage. Weather forecasters predicted it might reach 23 or even 24, for the worst flood conditions in 71 years.

Pierre officials were maintaining an around-the-clock vigil on river gauges. Hourly data made for evacuating, housing and feeding residents who may be forced from their homes. If forecasts hold true, about 20 blocks of Pierre's business section will be inundated.

Waters Drop Slightly

Flood waters dropped slightly last night at Bismarck, N. D., but large low-lying sections of the North Dakota neighbor Mandan were still inundated. Some 1,000 persons made home-on-ice floes when the Missouri hit its highest crest for 42 years Sunday at Fort Yates, N. D.

At Linton, 65 miles southeast of Bismarck, some of the 1,675 residents were forced from 20 homes last night when the swollen Missouri and tributaries swept from its banks to cover 1,200 acres to depths of seven feet of water.

Eastern North Dakota also faced flood threat from the Red River. R. W. Schultz, federal meteorologist at Fargo, said he would hit the 17-foot flood stage at Fargo today, and crest at about 34 feet next weekend. This would equal the 1943 flood, which was the worst flood in Fargo's history of record. The Red River flows north into Canada where Winnipeg suffered heavy damage from the river last spring. The river rose 18.1 inches at Fargo yesterday.

The big Sibux, a Missouri tributary, continued its slow drop at Sioux Falls, S. D., after smashing down an eastern dike to flood part of that city and drive 1,100 from their homes over last weekend.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

"The worst drivers in the world are to be found in ——"

You fill in the name of the city. Any city will do, of course. Sometimes, when you hear this remark, it is about the speaker's own city. Usually it is about some other city he has just lately visited in his car.

But in any city, anywhere, the drivers who are the bane of the towns and main streets from which its reputation derives are to a reasonable and considerable extent people visiting or passing through. Many of them are the motorists from towns and villages thirty to fifty miles away, who come in regularly to the city. Many others are tourists and frequent visitors from distant points, who are complete strangers to the metropolis, and are having no little trouble finding their way around.

Residents of a city, who know their way around it and have a definite objective and goal in view as they move in the traffic, are seldom those who ball up the situation. The worst drivers in any city are generally strangers to it. Aside from foreigners in a city, the worse the drivers.

Many will not agree with this generalization. But it probably has more sense in it than most generalizations. The point is not as that the worst drivers in the world are to be found in So-And-So.

Cities are very hard to generalize about. When a city harbors a string of murderers or bank-holdups, it becomes in the public mind a city of gangsters, and nobody reflects that all the murderers and gangsters are not natives of other cities or countries.

The bigger a city grows, the more accommodating it becomes to any definition you wish to attach to it. It can be hospitable or inhospitable, gay or grim, safe or perilous, prosperous or skin-flint entirely in accordance with your experience of it, or, indeed, in accordance with your prejudice you feel like wheeling up.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A "CHEER UP" FOR BUDDING WRITERS

The road to literary success is not one paved with roses! Many of our greatest writers have first "peddled" to publisher after publisher. Stephen Crane's first book "Maggie, a Girl of the Streets" got George Gissing's "Workers in the Dawn," no publisher wanted either. Even after the first edition was published and sold for $1.75 a copy, the first edition of the former later sold at auction for $3,700, the latter at $2,000 a copy.

A friend of mine recently showed me a letter that Norman Douglas, famous author of "South Wind" wrote to his son, as follows: "It may be years before anybody would print anything of mine. I have had to pay for the work. Booth Tarkington was 17 years before a publisher would touch his stuff; Milton got 5 pounds for his "Paradise Lost' and Carlyle 15 pounds for 'Sartor Resatus.' So cheer up!"

W. H. Hudson, one of the world's finest nature writers, author of "Green Mansions," nearly starved before he got recognition, and Thoreau had to take back from the publisher nearly all of the first edition of "A Week on the Concord and Merrimac Rivers," numbering thousand copies. And he slyly remarked in his Journal, "Such is fame!"

Several publishers turned down Thomas Wolfe's first novel, "Look Homeward, Angel," now considered as an American literary landmark, and when one critic has stated is "the closest thing to the great American novel." A friend (I am told it was John Buchan) gave Rudyard Kipling's first book, published by Mary Webb, the English author, to Stanley Baldwin to read, and he was so interested that he wrote an encouraging letter to the author, which made her famous over night! Few bought her early books, but they remain today as among the finest of English novels.

These are but a few instances of authors who had an uphill climb to fame as writers. It is no royal road, but if the thought and quality are there in a book the time will come when it will be recognized and published. To all writers, I would say: "Cheer up!"

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page, or 100 Words Long, Pertaining to Personal Health and Hygiene, Not to Disease, Diagnosis or Treatment, Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped, Self-Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

THE EVERREADY OPERATORS ARE UNTEACHABLE

Some readers are aware that this column has been at war with the ever-ready operators for years over the treatment of hemorrhoids, fissure and infected tonsils. It seems that doctors who still use nineteenth century methods exclusively cannot or will not admit that newer knowledge and newer methods can be better.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, nearly a century ago, made himself unpopular with the leaders, the authorities, etc. when he insisted that childbed fever was contagious — and implied, if he did not say that outright, that midwives and nurse carried the disease from one patient to the next on their unclean instruments and hands. Boy, was Holmes a so-and-so until the old timers died off and doctors with newer knowledge of medicine aseptis took over.

If any reader is under the impression that I say the ambulant (injection) treatment of hemrhoids (rupture, breach) or the office (injection) treatment of hemorrhoids (piles) or the diathermy (electro-coagulation) treatment of infected tonsils is applicable in every case, he has another thing coming.

What I do say is that I'd want the twentieth century treatment if I were the patient with hernia, hemorrhoids or infected tonsils. Of course the treatment might fail to cure — when any reputable surgeon guarantee that radical operation will cure! For me the modern method is the method of choice for three good reasons, namely:

1. Injection (ambulant) treatment of hernia or hemorrhoids and diathermy (electro-coagulation) treatment of infected tonsils are safer than hospitalization
2. The twentieth century methods have proved beyond the most vehement denials of the old timers
3. Ambulant treatment is always safer than radical surgery.

The diathermy (electro-coagulation) treatment of infected tonsils is applicable in any case and, indeed, it is sometimes the only alternative to surgery when the patient is a bad risk for the major operation.

Injection therapy is not applicable for external piles, only for internal, blind piles.

Ambulant, office injection treatment for hernia is not applicable in some cases, as Dr. Watson clearly explains in his classic on Hernia (3rd ed. Mosby Co., St. Louis). In more than 20,000 injections Watson had only 4 serious complications — these four patients were operated on and made uneventful recoveries. In a series of 1,000 private patients, small, indirect inguinal hernias gave 90 per cent of cures; small direct and recurrent hernias, 85 per cent.

In his textbook the author tells why he abandoned, years ago, all types of irritating solutions and now uses only non-irritating solution (never mind what, physicians can get the formula from the author) for adults, half-strength for children. Dr. Watson says of the treatment:

"Confident that the injection is painless, patients do not dread it. I have many who come to the office to take an injection during their lunch hour, returning to work almost immediately; others take it when their work is finished for the day and they are on their way home, thus avoiding streetcar ride or driving their own car. It does not interrupt routine. People past the active years do not complain, and I have been surprised that children take it so nicely."

Once more I tell the world that twentieth century ambulant treatment is a boon to victims of infected tonsils, hernia, or hemorrhoids, and especially to those who are bad risks for major operation.

FRANKFORD

Frankford — A bus load of members of the Frankford Free Methodist Sunday School journeyed to Marmora last Monday night to join in a fellowship evening with the members of the Free Methodist Sunday School there. These two Sunday Schools competed in a membership contest for a period of several weeks. Points and were added out in the contest and had to provide the program and social evening for the victors. This is the first contest Frankford has lost in several years of competition with the Sunday Schools.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lohnes visited Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wrightman in Trenton Friday night.

The Frankford United Church choir will present the Wooler United Church choir in its Easter Cantata Easter Monday evening in the Frankford United Church. This Cantata comes highly recommended and should prove extremely interesting.

Mrs. Adrian Babcock is visiting her mother who is ill in Kemptville.

The Frankford Boy Scouts held their weekly meeting in the Community Hall, with a good turnout. Several of the boys worked on hobby projects. Each patrol is building a patrol box to keep supplies in. In place of the regular meeting Good Friday night this week, the Scouts will be taking an afternoon hike, leaving the Scoutmaster's office at 1.30. The Scoutmaster is reminded that there are still a number of boxes of stationery

Red Cross Notes

"Mental health is no more or no less serious that physical health," School Inspector L. A. Kells told the Red Cross Homemakers at their monthly meeting which was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Brown, and explained that any individual might judge his own mental health's state, by applying six points of "screenings" which he discussed thoroughly: 1. Social Conformity, 2. Appropriateness, 3. Practicability, 4. Constructive Activity, 5. Practical Satisfaction, and 6. Zest for Living.

Belleville's branch of the Red Cross Homemaker's service under the guidance and direction of Mrs. J. A. Buchanan, R.C. Supervisor, is quite abreast with all the latest aspects of home care, nutrition, care of children budgeting and planning and cooking dietetics economical meals.

Pays Tribute

At the thirty-second annual meeting of the Ontario division of the Red Cross Society held March 19th last, at the Royal York Hotel, Mrs. J. Earl Lawson, chairman of the Ontario Homemaker service committee reported that this service not only aided women and children, "but has given counsel to school teachers, Home and School groups, Parent-Teacher groups, organizations and Public Health Nurses," and claims "a type of conversation repeated many times each year in hundreds of communities . . . where Red Cross branches operate the Homemaker Service . . . A Red Cross homemaker is coming to our house when the new baby comes. We had one when I was ill last winter and she was just wonderful. It was such a relief not to have to worry about the children." Any community is most fortunate to have access to this service. Phone 2211 for information concerning a homemaker service.

Whitney Red Cross branch sent word to Belleville Red Cross Secretary Miss J. Tickell, that electric power was turned on there February first; that a little four and a half pound pre - mature baby is being kept alive, thanks to the new incubator and oxygen tent and that by a series of card parties, funds were raised to send boxes to three Whitney girls residing in Korea. Whitney is the outpost "adopted" by Belleville Branch.

In view of the fact that Belleville will have the Mobile Blood Clinic here in May, it is interesting to note that at the annual meeting of the Blood Donor Committee reported a "successful termination of this service" last year in the operation of the National Free Transfusion Service. In fact it is interested from "seventeen centres holding clinics at the end of 1950 to twenty-three centres at the end of 1951 . . . as the hospitals contracted for the service. I think it is "worthy of note that donor procurement efforts, carried on alone, is a very much more difficult piece of work than it is . . . where the appeal is for both the local hospitals and the armed forces."

"The clinics are arranged so that the weekly income of blood is necessarily always greater than the weekly commitments to the hospitals. This allows for a sufficient assortment of blood types and groups to meet our commitments and a sufficient supply for plasma manufacture. If one or two branches fail in their clinic quota in one week, the successful operation of the service is in jeopardy. However, at no time has a hospital been refused its regular, or an emergency quota of blood or plasma, despite a poor record of the local branch in donor procurement. Clinic failures put an extra load on the Blood Donor Committees of other branches."

"The responsibility of the Ontario division is donor procurement. It cannot be over-emphasized that in a very real sense this is the most important part of the whole plan, for without donors there is no product. The success or failure of donor procurement will determine the success or failure of the service as a whole. This means that the success of thy service depends on the continuous endeavor on the part of the branch Blood Donor Committees." Do remember, blood donors are needed. Give and save a life.

He also mentioned, briefly, the diamond mining and the process of cutting and polishing these precious stones, as well as the mining of coal, copper and zinc.

In closing, Mr. Trainer told of the wild animals of that country and of how the ostrich is farmed, out by the Africans and of the different types of whales. He also paid special tribute to the late Field Marshal Smuts.

Quinte Branch Ontario Field Naturalists View Colored Bird Life Films

Last evening about 40 bird lovers and naturalists of the Quinte Branch of the Ontario Field Naturalists, met at the Entomological Laboratory, Bell Estate, to view with keen interest and much pleasure, the beautifully colored movies, pictures of nature in her various aspects: scarlet-tinted maples and flaming Sumacs, spring torrents, the Canada goose, birds and bees, fragrant lilies, skiing on the Madoc hills, and wood-cutting, or timbering. These were shown by Miss M. Moorcroft, who acted as her own narrator.

Dr. Morris Smith, of the Entomological staff, presided as master of ceremonies, and prior to the pictures, told of his recent visit to the Field Naturalists' conference held in the Royal Ontario Museum, Toronto, and of the several interesting topics discussed at that time.

First to Make Bird Observations

"The Hudson Bay Company," said Dr. Smith, "was the first to make observations of birds in Canada." He mentioned also that the Don Valley, Toronto, was a natural bird sanctuary, and here conservation traits might be set up. Another point of interest was the crater in Ungava 1,- 400 feet high and 550 feet above the sea level, formed by a meteorite. Here fish 25 years old, were only two feet in length and two thin, while the same fish, in other waters were much larger, and better proportioned. This was due to the fact that the water in the crater lacked the necessary food elements. The water here was also very cold, 36 degrees.

The highlight of the convention was the contribution of Lester Brindle, Field Naturalist, and drama writer for the CBC, as he told of California bird life.

"Sammy Jay"

Among the many lovely pictures displayed of the birds, was the feeding station where "Sammy Jay" was seen in all his sleek beauty, endeavoring to carry off more food than he could manage. This food, as Miss Moorcroft told her audience, was apparently cached somewhere else, also for the day of rest, as they seldom returned on that day.

Another interesting picture showed the Canada goose at rest, about 40 or 50 in one of the fields of Mr. Bradford's farm. These were also seen in flight. A killdeer was also shown excitedly trying to lure away a possible intruder to her private home; the fluttering wings, and running stops, she led the way distant, and then after about two hours did she return to the nest with its four speckled eggs which had been left in one concentric centre, the smaller end down.

Bees in swarming were interesting as was the fat bumble bee sipping nectar from the fragrant lilacs.

Miss Moorcroft told about the little sparrow, which spent all day gazing at his reflection in the window, and his antics as he gazed about during the hours were most amusing to see.

There were a few pictures of two black bears enjoying chocolate bars, eating mouls as children under the same circumstances. The skiing scene amid the lovely woodland, skimming down the winding trails, soaring over the slight rises, brought vividly to mind the days not so long ago, when this was a most exquisite thrill the patient knows, the wise-looking collie, all added their quota to nature's graciousness.

Following the showing of the pictures, a most enjoyable evening was culminated with tea.

Mrs. G.E. Currie Gives Talk on 'Fritz Kreisler'

The regular meeting of the Kingston Road Church Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. J. Parrott, recently. The president, Mrs. M. Ryan, was in charge.

Bible reading was taken from Isaiah 55:1-9. Rev. J. F. Everson led in prayer. The motion: "In the heart of the bulb is the promise of spring", was given by Mrs. F. Conboy. Mrs. K. Reid gave the report of the flower fund. Several members had been remembered during the month and $2 was sent to the "Crippled Children's Fund."

A visiting committee was organized.

Speakers

Mrs. J. Parrott introduced Mrs. G. E. Currie, who gave an interesting talk on "Fritz Kreisler." She told of his many discouragements during his career in that he was not encouraged by audiences and critics were severe until he resorted to a scheme to make his compositions popular.

He pretended they were re-arrangements of famous old compositions. In this way, his great talent was recognized.

Mrs. Currie played two beautiful selections of Kreisler's on the piano, accompanied by Mrs. Parrott at the piano.

Mrs. Lyle Jones gave a splendid review of the book, "North Pole Boarding House". Everyone enjoyed the highlights of the story.

Mrs. Fred Robinson and Mrs. J. Parrott sang a lovely duet.

Mrs. Ryan thanked the hostess and all those who had so capably taken part in the program.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. J. Parrott, Mrs. K. Reid and Mrs. R. Robertson.

Mrs. R. Gage Shows Bible Pictures by Use Of Flannelgraph

Bridge Street Woman's Missionary Society met for luncheon at noon on Thursday. Daffodils and potted plants decorated the tables. Mrs. Houston presiding at the meeting following, welcomed the many members and guests present.

After the reading of the monthly reports, she gave a few highlights of the Presbyterial held at Grace Church, Trenton. The speeches of Mrs. Gordon Watts on "Stewardship" and Miss Bessie French on "Opportunities Unlimited" were very briefly summarized.

To Build Training School

Mrs. Wood explained the project undertaken by the United Church women to raise the needed funds for the building of a new United Church Training School. The launching of this undertaking is to commence later in the month.

The theme for this Easter meeting was "Easter gave us the Bible". Mrs. Parker's and Mrs. Countryman's group was in charge. Mrs. Parker leading devotional with an Easter lesson. Miss Clark spoke on the "Good News of the Bible".

Guest Speaker

The speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. R. W. Gage, of the Salvation Army, who was introduced by Mrs. A. Davis. Using a flannelgraph, Mrs. Gage depicted in color two beautiful Easter Bible pictures, "Call to Prayer" and "Angels of Gethsemane". She also told of the part played by women at the time of the crucifixion; the ministry of Mary and the box of precious ointment, and deduced from the story that women were no mere onlookers at that time.

A poem "Have You Been In the Garden with Jesus" was recited by the speaker and Mrs. Houston sang an Easter solo "Garden of Prayer".

Mrs. Gage concluded her Easter message by telling at length the Easter story as told by one of the women.

This meeting was the occasion of the Easter thank-offering. Mrs. Feiferly and Mrs. Warren accepted it and Mrs. McTavish dedicated it with prayer.

Mrs. Fuke fittingly thanked Mrs. Gage for her timely talk and Mrs. Parker dismissed the meeting reading an Easter benediction.

Science against pain

Science progresses! For 50 years we have used little white tablets—acetylsalicylic acid—for the relief of pain. Today this familiar painkiller is available in a new form without the disadvantage of insolubility, acidity and bitter taste. It is called DISPRIN.

Why take DISPRIN?

Because DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) it permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief.

DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

Ready-Made Thank-You Cards Are a Vulgarity

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please straighten me out on this bothersome question of writing — or not writing — thank-you notes? When I receive a gift, should I in all cases reply with a letter or note thanking for the gift and adding some nice words of appreciation for the particular gift received? Or in some cases is it permissible to send a printed thank-you card with just my name signed to it? Or would it be proper to send a pretty thank-you card and write a personal note after the thank-you message printed on the card? —Grace.

In the thank-you notes you write, I would like to have you cultivate the Grace that is in that lovely name of yours. So . . . for definite suggestions:

Always to do: For every gift you receive, for whatever occasion, you must write a prompt and personal note of thanks expressing: (1) your appreciation of the giver's kind thoughtfulness; (2) your thanks for the gift (mentioning it specifically by name); and (3) your enthusiastic appreciation of certain features or qualities of the gift, the color perhaps, the design, its adaptability to yor needs, and so forth. Words to delight the giver-of-the gift!

Never to do: Never, never send a printed thank-you card to anyone for any present for any occasion. This is an inexcusably rude and callous thing to do . . . to be willing to send bleak, impersonal words (printed words 'concocted' by a stranger) to "thank" a kind friend for a warm-hearted, generous gesture. Anyone who stoops to sending printed (or even stylishly engraved!) cards of thanks will inevitably find . . . and deserves to find . . . that friends who have any grain of taste will stop sending presents. What possible joy or inspiration is there in sending a present, only to receive a discourteous and unworthy "acknowledgment" as a ready-made card of thanks?

Written Messages Always Welcome on Greeting Cards

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to add a message in writing on a greeting card that already has a message printed on it? Such as birthday cards, anniversary cards, graduation cards, Christmas cards, Easter cards, and so forth?—Elva C.

Yes, indeed! The one to whom you are sending the greeting card will cherish the personal message added to the printed message on the card . . . some longed-for news about the sender and his or her family, or a message of good wishes, or any other message that keeps a friendship "in repair" and flourishing. Some people have a wonderful knack of writing such welcome messages on the greeting cards they send that the cards becomes an added link in the Golden Chain of Friendship. So fill that card with messages!

Food for Thought

By Mary Moore

Sunny Daffodil Cake for Easter

On loan from a cooking buddy in Ottawa, for a year, I have a tome weighing six or seven pounds containing French recipes written in a kind of pidgin-English, and another one almost equally big from the Old Country. Just reading these strange cook books is an evening's entertainment for a simple soul like me. Last night I was chuckling over them when Pete said from his desk "What's so funny, Mum?"

I said "Listen to this." This is how to make an Egg Sponge. All of the bracketed comments are mine.

"Bring some water to the boil (what boil!) and stand bowl containing broken eggs (cracked!) over this using a whisk. (If you haven't a whisk shake the eggs out of the broom and use it.) Beat the eggs with 2 oz. castor sugar if possible. (Does it mean if you have the strength or if you can dig up any castor sugar—besides I thought everything castor was of!) Beat until mixture is thick and dark cream in color. Keep eggs away from sides of bowl or they will set. (Hatch? Will we have little chicks for Easter?)

(Now comes the pay off—you will need three hands for this.) Thoroughly sieve the flour and baking powder. Then fold it into egg mixture. This operation is quite difficult at first (impossible, first and last, I think!) as beating in flour would spoil texture of the sponge. Best way to learn the folding motion is to use a metal spoon or palette knife and while turning the flour in gently with the right hand hold your whist with the left. This prevents your being too vigorous. (I'd be paralyzed.) Fold in melted margarine and hot water.

Before removing sponge from oven (it's in the oven now—no wonder it had to get in the oven by itself with me holding hands with myself) press it gently but firmly (when I'm firm I'm not gentle). If no impression remains the cake is cooked. Presto! It's to take after all those antics. I think the author must be a cousin to Vera Vague . . . and somebody once wrote to me complaining because I neglected to say that flour should be sifted before measuring!

Another pipperino in the recipe is this: the amount of hot water was "1 good dessertspoon". None of your tin stuff—your finest sterling silver spoon and pile the water up too!

DON'T MAKE THAT CAKE!

Make this Sunny Daffodil cake for Easter. Now that I've stuck my neck out you can blast me with both barrels if I make a misstep.

No whisks. No wrist-holds. No cakes left sitting on the table. No sterling silver. But exact measurements, dears, and times and temperatures.

SUNNY DAFFODIL CAKE

Sift together 2 cups sifted cake flour and 2 teaspoons baking powder. Put on to heat to near-by boiling point 1 cup milk. Beat 4 large eggs in a bowl for 10 minutes with rotary or electric beater. Gradually add 2 cups sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt. Add 1 or 2 teaspoons vanilla. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in the hot milk and stir it quickly into the egg mixture. Sift the flour mixture over and stir it in quickly. Turn into 2 buttered and paper-lined layer cake tins and bake about 20 or 25 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr. When cool spread with between and on top: Mix together in saucepan 1 cup sugar, 4 tablespoons cornstarch, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup orange juice, 2 tablespoons grated orange rind, 1 1-2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons butter. Stir over heat until boiling and boil 1 minute stirring. Cool before spreading. Frost sides of cake with pale yellow butter icing but make petal-like scallops at edge on top of cake to simulate daffodil petals.

CLEAR ORANGE FILLING

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She wants to marry now—her parents say no—who's right?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Since last summer I've been going with a very nice fellow and we have fallen in love with each other. Because he is 23, and I am only 16, you will probably think that he only takes me out to take advantage of me, but I can honestly say he has never tried anything of that sort.

My parents don't approve of our relationship and recently demanded that I stop seeing him. For awhile we stayed away from each other, and for a whole month I didn't hear from him or see him. Then he called and told me that he had gone away to try and forget me but he couldn't, so he came back to me and since then we have been meeting secretly. We plan to get married this summer and are sure our marriage will be a success, since we have always gotten along well.

He has a steady, well-paying job and is able to support me nicely. The only problem is my parents. My friend is willing to talk to them and ask for their consent, but if they don't give it we are going to elope. Is there anyway to convince my parents that I am doing right, as I know I am?—B.A.

Dear B.A:

I doubt very much that there is any way to convince your parents that a girl of 16, who is presumably still in school, should marry now. It would be a little hard to convince me, too.

I would not think of trying to make you believe that if you gave yourself time, and would be willing to go out with boys who are your schoolmates, you might change your mind about this whole thing, as I am sure you would have nothing to do with any such advice.

What I hope you will do is at least to wait until you finish school before making an issue of your marriage with your parents. If you and this young man were to show a willingness to compromise, instead of insisting that you be married so soon, your parents would be much more likely to go along with you.

I suggest that you and the young man go to your parents together, and ask if such a compromise could be arranged. That is, ask them if they would consent to your seeing each other reasonably often, provided you let any idea of marriage ride until you are through school, and provided the young man did not monopolize all your free time that you engage in school activities and keep up other friendships.

This seems to me an entirely reasonable proposition, and I hope you will give it serious consideration.

Her daughter "runs around"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a daughter 30 years old who was divorced and has four children. Whether or not she was really married, I do not know, but she left the man after she had had three children. Now she runs around with different fellows, and for quite awhile she went steady with one boy. She always goes with men younger than herself. She goes out almost every night, leaving the children alone, and comes home all hours in the morning. I try to put her straight about things, but she does not want to see things my way, and I am getting sick over it. My friend is willing to talk to them and ask for their consent, but if they don't give it we are going to elope. Is there anyway to convince my parents that I am doing right, as I know I am?—B.C.

Dear B.C.:

I think the very best thing you could do about this problem with your daughter is just what you have already thought of yourself, and that is to consult the social service organization in your area. There is a very good one not far from where you live, so that it should be a simple matter for you to call them on the telephone and make an appointment to see someone who can talk the whole matter over with you and advise you just what to do. If your daughter is neglecting her children, it is quite proper for an organization of this kind to step in and take hold of the situation.

If you do not know just how to reach the social service agency, your clergyman should be able to tell you.

BEAUTY

HELEN JAMIESON

LEMONS AS BEAUTY AIDS

Girls who have to keep a weather eye on the beauty budget — and who doesn't these days? — will find good substitutes in the refrigerator. If the massage emollient jar is empty, the rich cream that the milkman brings will serve as a substitute. And it is surprising what can be done with lemons; they can be used in treatment of the skin, the hair, the hands and the fingernails.

For the complexion that has suddenly gone sallow and yellow, and does not respond to any external application, a glass of unsweetened lemonade, taken before breakfast, will have a whitening effect. It acts as an internal cleanser, may do something to the liver — we aren't sure about that — but, at any rate, it does clear up the dingy complexion. An extra glass before dinner will aid and abet the good work.

While taking the lemon cure, it is wise to cut down on fried foods, rich sauces and pastries. Stoke up on green salads, fruits and vegetables.

As a banisher of freckles, tan and liver spots, lemon juice has been a stand-by for many years. Combine the strained juice with an equal portion of peroxide; apply it to a clean skin surface with cotton, and yet it dry on.

The lemon rinse for the hair, so popular in beauty shops, is not just the blonde tresses as some women fancy. It puts a beautiful sheen on silky strands of any color, because it cuts away every particle of soap that the rinsing may not have dislodged.

For the girl with oily hair it is a blessing. If she does her own head-washing, she should use a blond liquid soap, diluted one half with hot water, and there should be three applications — each one followed by a rousing with hot water flowing from a bath spray. The spray does a more thorough job than the shower. Then she should half fill the wash bowl with warm water, add the juice of three lemons, and send the lemon rinse over her locks with a cup, lifting the strands as the water flows through them.

When hair is thoroughly clean, as it is likely to be after the lemon treatment, it takes a flimsy pin curl that survives until the next shampoo.

The homebody, whose hands are stained from preparing vegetables, will find that lemons will remove the discoloration. If the nail cases are extra soiled after doing heavy work — wiping up floors, washing windows, doing the kitchen range — plunge the fingertips into lemon pulp. They will be snow-white in a minute.

Trenton RCAF Flyers Defeat Marmora 7-1 To Win Trent Valley Title

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

HAIL, THE CHAMPS!

Trenton RCAF Flyers are the 1951-52 Trent Valley Hockey League champions and they won it in a decisive manner at Memorial Arena last night. Flyers came up with their best all-round display of the season, and were full value for their 7-1 victory over the gallant Marmora Millionaires. They compiled a hard-checking game with potent offensive thrusts that were dangerous throughout the game.

On the other hand the Millionaires appeared to be a mile too anxious. They could not get their passing plays clicking until the door was locked on them in the third period, and were woefully weak at times in front of the Flyers nets. But dagnabit you've got to give these youngsters credit. They gave all they had, went down fighting and were deserving of a better fate. But they couldn't match the Flyers squad last night and thereby hangs the tale of defeat.

Both squads did not lack for support. 2,498, to be exact, customers paid their way to cheer their respective favorites and the venerable roof of Memorial Arena echoed consistently with the cheers of the faithful. The crack drum and bugle band of the RCAF enlivened matters with sprightly tunes during the period interims. It was a colorful climax to a hard-fought series.

Flyers nearly mobbed Scott their goalie after the game, and well they might for that gentleman was one of their stars over the series. His log-tight tactics saved not a few goals for the Flyers and he came through with consistently fine performances.

Thomas Bata, president of the Bata Shoe Company, and donor of the Thomas Bata Trophy, emblematic of Trent Valley League hockey supremacy, presented the trophy to Flyers, Flt. Lieut. Ayshin, who in turn presented it to Wing Commander Mason, RCAF, at the presentation ceremonies following the game. Present were Arthur Duncan, Trent Valley League prexy and Bill Regan, boss-man of the Millionaires.

WESTON TONIGHT

The starry Weston Dukes, flushed with conquest since their 7-2 victory over the Junior Hawks at Weston last Friday night, will be in town tonight seeking their second straight victory in the best-of-seven OHA Junior "B" semi-finals. The Dukes and Hawks clashed in an old-fashioned knock-'em-down and drag-'em-out battle in the first first meeting of the pair and the penalties falling on the little "Maple Leafs". The Hawks are still smarting under that set-back and are grimly determined to come out with a victory tonight. Coach Doran has been working them strenuously since Friday and tonight should see the junior "B" classic of the season.

* * *

NEW PASTURES!

Apparently Kingston hockey authorities were not fooling when they said they would seek greener pastures to the east-ward, and let the OHA stew in its own juice.

Few up comers an announcement by name other than the well-known "Tarpay" Tommy Gorman, Ottawa sports impresario, to the effect that a new Big Four Ottawa and District Hockey League has been formed which will seek affiliation with the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and play off for the Allan Cup.

The big scandals of Ottawa, Kingston, Smith's Falls and Pembroke and will be a separate playing unit from all others playing off for the Allan or Alexander Cups.

While we are not cognizant of Kingston's plans for next season, it seems they have bitten off a hunky hunk of hockey chewing. Smith's Falls and Pembroke boast strong squads that have been organized for years, not to mention the Ottawa Senators, which, it appears absorbed a husky financial beating last season. We imagine Kingston would have to ice a mych better team than the 1952 Sacs to keep pace with the eastern squads, and that means money. It also means a far better calibre of return than that which greeted the Sacs last winter. And Kingston fans are as fickle as those in other centres when it comes to a losing team.

* * *

IT COULD BE!

If optimism is a stepping stone to success then the Cleveland Barons are a sure bet for a National Hockey League berth next year.

Rotund genial Jim Hendy, general manager of the Cleveland Arena Company which operates the Cleveland Barons in the American League, is highly optimistic over the club's chances to crack the select major league circle.

Asked if the "rumor" was true, Hendy told reporters the other day, "You bet its true. Cleveland is big league city in everything but hockey. We've got the Cleveland Indians in baseball and the Browns in the National Football League. Our fans think we should be in the big time in other sport, too. We've come to the point where we could win the American Hockey League championship for ten straight years with the Barons and it wouldn't impress the citizens because the A.H.L. is a minor league".

Formal application for admittance to the National Hockey League will be made by Hendy's group at the circuit's next semi-annual meeting scheduled for Montreal this spring.

He will present a strong array of facts and figures to show why the Barons belong to hockey's upper crust.

"There are only four cities in the league which are bigger than Cleveland right now" he said. "They are New York, Chicago, Montreal and Detroit."

The Cleveland Arena seats 9,676 and has room for 1,500 standees. During the 1945-49 season the Barons grossed close to $450,000 after taxes had been deducted and the highest priced seat cost only $2.50.

Hendy feels that if the Barons could fill the arena for 25 National Hockey League home games, not including standing room, they could do $700,000 net. He figures if Cleveland gets into the N.H.L. he could sell out 50 per cent of the house for the season before September.

WHITBY CAGERS HERE

Bill Scrymgeour, coach of the Business Girls' basketball team, current leaders in the "Y" League, said today that his squad will play hosts to the Whitby Business Girls' team in an exhibition tilt at the YMCA tomorrow night starting at 8.15. With possibilities of the local cage lassies entering a Kitchener loop next year, tomorrow night's game should give them some idea of outside opposition. The Business Girls form a smart cage squad and basketball enthusiasts should get miss this game.

Flash Best Display of Season To Register Decisive Victory Before 2500 Cheering Fans

By GEO. H. CARVER (Sports Editor)

Trenton RCAF Flyers won the Trent Valley Hockey League championship and the Thomas Bata Trophy here last night decisively defeating Marmora Millionaires 7-1 in the fifth game of the best-of-five final series.

Twenty-five hundred cheering fans stayed to see Thomas Bata, donor of the trophy, present it to the victorious Flyers, while players milled on the ice in congratulatory fraternization.

Flyers, playing one of the best, if not the best game of their seasonal career,were full value for their victory. They played consistent hockey throughout, taking full advantage of every opportunity tossed their way and hurling back the Marmora offensives with hard close backchecking and strong defensive work.

Scott Was Good

Marmora, on the other hand, did not come up with the display that featured their Friday night victory. They failed in following plays to their offensives and their shooting was weak at times. True they had none of the breaks but their passing was ragged at times and when they did get on the target, Scott, Flyers goalie, hurled back their pucks except for one occasion.

Flyers grabbed a two-goal lead in the first period, added three more in the second and outscored the Millionaires 2-1 in the hot third period.

The game was cleanly played with officials handing out eight minor penalties, six of them to the Flyers. Only once was there a display of temper, that coming near the end of the game but no damage was done.

The Beatch-Bowman-Attrill line was the best on the ice. Beatch, Flyers scoring ace, paced the pack with two goals and three assists. Attrill was through with two and two with Bowman getting a pair of helpers. McDonald scored a pair and Faulkner got the other.

Trumble scored the Millionaires lone marker taking Lavender's pass on the play in the third period to beat Scott from close in.

Flyers Score Early

Flyers took a leaf from the Millionaires Friday night hockey book with hard-close checking from the get-go. The millionaires took the offensive in the first period but were held in check by the Flyer lines and stiff defence work. The strategy of Bowman and both-way checking paid off handsomely, and Attrill fired the first goal from Beatch after a minute of play in the first period.

Marmora's passing plays were not clicking and they ganged the puck too much. They were in several times but couldn't find the net. Defensively they checked hard and fast and it was not until 1931 by the clock that Beatch fired the second Flyer goal.

The Millionaires batted desperately in the second period but could not match the passing plays of the Flyers. Beatch, Attrill and Bowman were in prettily with the former hitting the hemp after a minute of play. Bowman got the gate and the Millionaires drove back to the attack. Flyers, shorthanded, threw them back and McDonald drove the puck past Killian for the Flyers fourth counter.

McLean got the gate and for the second time with a man short Flyers broke away to score. Attrill took Beatch's pass and broke into the clear sailing in on Killian to make the count 5-0.

Tried Hard in Third

The Millionaires came to life in the third period and drove the Flyers behind their blueline with a series of hard-driving offensive plays. But they couldn't beat Scott nor the ganging defensive play Flyers staged at this point. Finally Trumble broke the ice for the Millionaires when he fired the rubber home from Lavender's pass.

Millionaires again drove to the attack but the sturdy Flyer defence staved off their efforts. McLean drew a penalty but Millionaires failed to capitalize on the extra man power. Then Beatch broke away at centre, raced through and slipped a pass to Faulkner who neared the sixth Flyer counter.

Maynes drew Marmora's first penalty of the game and the Flyers ripped to the attack with McDonald taking McLean's pass to score with a little over two minutes left. The game ended with Flyers all around the Marmora net.

The air crew mobbed their goalie Scott when the final gong rang to end the game and series.

Sport in Brief

The Ontario Sports Writers and Sports Casters Association has taken over $10,000 for crippled children's work in the province. The donation came from funds raised at the first annual sports celebrity March 23 and went to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

The dinner featured old-time greats like Jim Thorpe, Lionel Conacher, Joe Malone, Newsy Lalonde, Alfie Dhrubb and Bobbie Rosenfeld. A group of Toronto men paid the out-of-pocket cost of the $25-a-plate dinner so that all proceeds could go for the work of cripples.

Next year the dinner will open the 1953 Easter Seals campaign for crippled children and will be held March 5.

Entries for 42 days trotting races at Thorncliffe Raceway will close April 15, it was announced last night at Toronto. Featured will be Canada's richest harness racing event for the Canadian Cup. The meeting will open July 5 and close Aug. 23.

The Western Interprovincial Football Union announced at Regina yesterday it has adopted a negotiation list system to prevent clubs from subsidizing each other. Each team has agreed to send a list of the eight top players with which it is negotiating and will not approach any man who is on another team's list.

A crowd of 57,450 yesterday saw the glamor boys of British soccer, Arsenal, shut out Chelsea 2-0 in a replay of last Saturday's 1-1 tie.

Arsenal enters the finals of the soccer cup-tie trophy—biggest prize of the season—at London's Wembley Stadium May 3 against Newcastle United. Arsenal is seeking its fourth victory.

Southpaw Chet Nichols of Boston Braves was sworn into the United States armed forces yesterday shortly after he passed a draft physical. He had the best earned-run average in the National League last year.

Cincinnati Reds yesterday optioned catcher Hank Folles to Ottawa of the International League.

Two top British soccer teams plan tours of Canada and the United States this year. They are Tottenham Hotspur and Manchester United. A schedule of games is being arranged, it was announced in New York.

The Illinois State Athletic Commission yesterday demanded that the National Boxing Association disallow lightweight champion Jimmy Carter's bout with Lauro Salas in Los Angeles as a title defense. Luther Rawlings of Chicago, No. 1 lightweight contender, claimed Carter was stalling Rawlings' bid for a title shot.

This is the third and last of a series dealing with unusual Stanley Cup incidents.

One of the boasts concerning play for Canada's premier hockey prize, the Stanley Cup, is that it has never been unfinished, never halted the play. This, like many other claims made in sport, is not correct.

Nature halted the play in the nineties, when for two years, there was no ice available at the finish of the season. Death abruptly stepped into the Cup picture in 1910, when the Montreal Canadiens, champions of the east, invaded Seattle to play the Metropolitans for the Cup. Five games had been played, each team having won two, with one tied, when the black 'flu, which scourged the continent and left hundreds of dead in its wake, hit both clubs. Nearly every player was stricken, and one, Joe Hall succumbing, and that series never was completed.

But back in the misty past, in 1899, to be exact, there was an unfinished series, and viewed in retrospect, this fiasco has its humorous angles, though doubtless there was nothing funny about it at the time.

Champions of the east were the Montreal Victorias, representing one of the greatest truly-amateur clubs in Canadian sports history, an organization which disbanded in the thirties, when the press of professionalism became too great. The club refused to sacrifice its standards, and closed down completely. Champions of the west were the Winnipeg Vitorias, a great team and also completely amateur.

These two Victorias teams had fought out a grim battle in 1896, each winning a series. In 1897, the Montreal Victorias again won the Cup, defeating Ottawa, there were no challenges in 1898, but in 1899, the all-Victoria rivalry flared again, as the two teams met on Montreal ice, best two out of three games.

The Montreal team won the first, 2-1, in a rugged contest. The second was tied at 3-all, when the series suddenly collapsed.

Tony Gingras, Winnipeg star, was crashed across the knee by a Montreal player, and limped off the ice. No replacement was allowed in those hardy days, unless it was proven that an injured player was unable to continue. The argument concerning Gingras' fitness to play, raged hot and heavy. The debate grew stormy, and the referee, Jack Findlay, came in for much sharp criticism that he doffed his skates, left the building, and went home.

So when the teams finally agreed to play, there was no referee. A rink executive hastily summoned horse and sleigh, drove to the referee's home, found him in bed, urged him to return and carry on, and the official consented. He donned his skates and sweater. But the wild west was in the building. He was in between the two teams, and heard both denouncing him in terms of a torrid nature. So he tramped out of the room, jumped on the ice, skated right out of the rink. And this time, he refused to return.

So the game was called off, for lack of a referee, and then the entire series was abandoned, and the Winnipeg team returned home.

But the western club wasn't done as Cup contenders. The great Montreal Shamrock team ousted Montreal Victorias as Cup champions, and in 1900 downed Winnipeg Victorias. But the hustling westerners won the trophy in 1901 and 1902 in eastern invasions, then vanished, as a team, from the Cup picture.

Canadiens Slight Favorites Over Boston to Take Series

Montreal, April 8 — (CP) — Montreal Canadiens are slightly favored to defeat Boston Bruins in the deciding game tonight of their best-of-seven, semi-final Stanley Cup hockey series.

Word that Maurice (Rocket) Richard was romping in old-time form in the last meeting of the teams Sunday at Boston led Canadiens fan to believe the Montrealers can halt the Bruins. Richard reported a bruised knee after the game, but will be in uniform tonight.

In the last meeting of the two teams, Richard scored the tying goal in the game won by Canadiens 3-2 in the second period of overtime. Observers were cheered by the fact he showed sustained bursts of speed, missing from his attack since he was stricken with a groin injury sidelining him early in league during the regular season.

The Montrealers took the first two games of the series but coach Lynn Patrick had his team "up" for the next three which they took in fairly decisive fashion.

Centred in Rookies

Coach Dick Irvin will count heavily on Eddie Mazur and Paul Masnik, who showed to good advantage in the last game, Irvin called the pair up from the American Hockey League to bolster his injury-ridden front lines. Mazur scored the first Canadiens goal and Masnik fired the winner in the tilt that deadlocked the series 2-2.

Despite the fact, that Canadien forwards Didier Moore Berneille (Boom Boom) Geoffrion are playing on wobbly knees, it is felt the injury Sunday night to Sugar Jim Henry, Bruin netminder, is fatal to Boston's hopes, one which might well turn the title to Bruins of Montreal.

Henry's nose was broken by defenceman Doug Harvey's shot. After first aid, he returned to the goalkeeping chores but his eyes were badly inflamed and he was jittery and bobbled the winning Canadien marker.

Henry, with forward Fleming Mackell, has supplied the spark for the three Bruin wins.

Coach Lynn Patrick of the Bruins is expected to appear in an entirely different ensemble tonight.

The impeccably-dressed Patrick has worn, the same suit, shoes, shirt, socks, tie and hat, since the Boston team won its first series game from Canadiens. He said he wouldn't change while his team was winning, and was even willing to "suffer" with even through the finals with Detroit Red Wings," if his team took Canadiens.

Loss of Monte Irvin Severe Blow To N.Y. Giants' Pennant Ambitions

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, April 8 (AP) — A week ago today we were travelling across the western states with a pennant-bound ball club, New York Giants. It seems a long time ago.

If after a team exuded class and confidence, the Giants did. They had what it took, and there wasn't a man on the roster, from Manager Leo Durocher down, who didn't know it. There was great pleasure in moving from city to city with as happy an outfit as the Giants were.

Not even a series of close losses to Cleveland Indians had shaken their confidence a particle. Durocher, a hard loser, was grumbling a bit about his catchers calling for wrong pitches at critical times, but that was all. Leo always was a little worrier, they said.

Death of a Club

And then came Denver, a week ago tomorrow, Monte Irvin, the club's most valuable player and possibly its most popular, slid into third and suffered a fractured ankle. As the Negro slugger was carried off the field, you knew you had witnessed the death of a baseball club.

An unbroken silence settled over the Giants bench and they played out the final seven innings as though they were in a trance. Jersey said later that they felt numb. They were men who not only had suffered a friend painfully hurt, but had at the same time seen perhaps $6,000 apiece disappear into thin air.

There were no smiles and the usual banter was all gone as the Giants climbed aboard their special train for the next jump to Wichita, Kan. Fortunately, it rained steadily all the next day, or the Wichita fans would have witnessed a sad exhibition.

No one knew better than Durocher. The little manager made no effort to conceal his anguish nor said anything about maybe winning without Monte when he told of his emergency plan to return Bob Thomson to the outfield and send Hank Thompson to third. It seems a lot longer than five days ago when Leo said that his pretty wife, Laraine Day, had told him to get on his knees and pray.

It is not possible to compare any disaster which ever befell another club in that, while struck the Giants. There have been other serious injuries, even deaths, but none which almost as surely cost a team a championship. It was a painful thing to have witnessed and will not soon be forgotten.

Campbellford Honors Midget Champs, Leafs' Gus Mortson, Guest Speaker

Campbellford — Gus Mortson, star defenceman with the Toronto Maple Leafs was the guest speaker at the Rotary hockey banquet at the Parish Hall here on Friday evening, when the local club did honor to the newly-crowned Ontario Midget "C" champion hockey team which brought the Dr. Roger Matchett trophy to eastern Ontario Midget "C" champion hockey bantam team also sponsored by the local club, were present as guests.

Franklin S. Linton, president of the club was chairman for the evening and introduced Mr. Mortson. He described the hockey history of Mr. Mortson, saying Gus had first played hockey in Kirkland Lake, where his ability was spotted for Junior 'A' hockey. He was an immediate star with St. Michael's College famed Memorial Cup winners of the mid '40's. After a brief spell at Oshawa he turned professional and first performed in the moneyed ranks of the Tulsa (Oklahoma) Oilers of the United States Hockey League. A few years ago he reached the top, joining the Toronto Maple Leafs of the NHL.

Hockey Fine Career

Mr. Mortson talked to the boys about hockey as a career. He stated that a long stay in the NHL gave a young man a good start in life, and hinted that it was a worth while project financially. He described the Leafs' scouting system, headed by a former player, Bob Davidson, as the best anywhere, and advised the boys to play their best at all times, as they never know when a professional scout was eyeing a game for prospective future talent.

He told of the strict regulations of the training camp and told several interesting anecdotes which amused his listeners.

F. M. Rutherford thanked Gus on behalf of the boys.

Dr. W. W. Baker, chairman of the Rotary Club Sports' committee sponsoring minor hockey for the past few years, presented the handsome leather and cloth jackets to members of the team, their coach, Howard Wilson and manager, Lloyd Taylor. Music, Prayer, Kicks, Nips, Punches Highlight Siamese Boxing Bouts

(Editor's note: Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer with the Canadian forces in Korea, recently visited Bangkok, capital of Thailand and in southeast Asia. In this story he tells about the differences in the Siamese and western-style boxing.)

By BILL BOSS,
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Bangkok Thailand, April 8 — (CP)—They box to music here, and they pray and dance before they begin.

But once the gentle preliminaries are over there are no more niceties—except for that music.

The boxers and the crowd are out for blood and generally get it.

The main difference between the music in Bangkok's Rajadamnern Stadium and in North American arenas is that here the music starts when the boxing does, and stops with it.

"Stop The Music"

Boxer down taking a count—the music stops. Fighting stopped while a clinch is broken—the music stops. And during the final two minutes of the last round the tempo steps up furiously, adding to the tension in the ring.

During the five three-minute rounds in Siamese-style boxing just about anything goes. Only the beginner sticks to his gloves. The experts use elbows, knees, feet. They kick in the chest, the stomach, the armpits and even the opponent's face.

First thing in the ring, the boxers go down on their knees, foreheads to the canvas, and remain in an attitude of prayer for a minute or more. Then, raising their heads while still on their knees, they flex arm and chest muscles, lest the neck and twist the trunk. On their bare feet at last they go through a loosening-up dance that also is intended to strike fear into the opponent and annoy him.

While they are in their corners awaiting the starting signal, water is poured inside their trunks and canvas foot-and-ankle protectors. The fight is on.

A Free-For-All

You mustn't hit a man when he's down, but you may kick him onto the ropes (from fore or aft) and close with him—knee, elbow, knees and more kicks. You can give him a final back-kick as you break away.

A fetching bit of play is catching your opponent's leg as he kicks you and retaliating with a kick to the crotch.

Blood flows as toe-nails take their toll, and every kick draws roars from the crowd.

Fooled the Japs

Siamese say that Japanese soldiers showing off during the Second World War sometimes tried to put a judo hold on a Siamese. But they never succeeded because of Siamese ability to kick away extended arms from behind or in front.

Siam's most popular game is takraw. A hollow ball of rattan wicker, woven in a criss-cross lacework pattern, is used. Players are pained on opposite sides of the ring. Above the centre of the ring there is a hoop resembling a basketball net. The idea is to sink the ball into the net, which is about 15 feet above the ground.

Nobody wins. The idea, apart from netting the ball, is to keep it in play by hitting it with any part of the body. It sounds easy, but it isn't.

Where there is double talk, a bridge player needs to know all the answers. Because doubler's partner is expected to use signals that show whether his hand is weak or strong.

After a double, suppose there is an intervening bid. Partner of doubler simply passes to show his hand is not strong; bids or doubles to show a hand that is not weak.

In such a situation, which of these two kinds of responses will show the stronger hand; a bid or a double? In such cases, a double will show a stronger hand than would a responding bid.

Take a case where south opens with a diamond, west doubles for takeout, and north bids a new heart. East has enough for a bid of one spade or a double of one heart with this hand:

♠Q J 7 4 ♡ ♦A 9 8 7 6 2 ♣9 ♣6

With such a choice, which should east select? The one that is likely to give partner the most encouragement. And such a one here is double; a penalty double because partner has not passed.

If east bids one spade it would merely announce some strength. How much strength. About the same kind of strength that a player would show in south on an opening bid of one.

But if east doubles it will tell more. Much, more. It will say: "In answer to your takeout double, partner, my hand is strong enough to make a bid. But I also have stuff enough to beat opponents."

Is there any advantage in choosing to double? Yes, a favorable advantage. It gives partner a wide choice. He can bid more. Or he can help keep opponents doubled if it promises more gravy.

Remember that your side is always playing for the most points. If more points can be made by doubling opponents it is not making the most of your opportunities if you become the contractor.

Try not to scoff at making more profit.

Hollywood, April 8 (AP) — How do they do it—dancers like Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly and Ray Bolger?

Astaire still dances like a whirlwind at 52. Kelly reaches the 40 mark next August, yet he seems to float over the dance floor.

Bolger is back in Hollywood, doing some of his wonderful dances in "April in Paris." So I asked him for the secret on how he and his colleagues remain in such good form.

"The only thing I can suggest," he replied, "is that we learned to dance differently from the kids of today. When I started out, I first learned how to dance in wooden shoes. The clog taught me to dance on my toes. That was before the era of having metal taps on the soles of the shoes.

"Because of the taps, today's dancers learn to dance on the balls of their feet. That's a lot harder on them."

It's not the usual thing in show business to praise others in the same field, but Bolger expressed a high opinion of Astaire and Kelly.

"Fred is simply the greatest," said Bolger. "His every motion denotes class. Kelly is great, too, but in a different way. He has a fine athletic grace."

Bolger mourned the fact that newcomers do not have the training grounds that his generation did.

"Vaudeville is gone, and so is the repertory theatre," he remarked. "But the situation is not hopeless. There are still opportunities for young kids to get ahead. For instance, when I do a Broadway show, I have rehearsals for the understudies. Many of them have gone on to featured roles because of it."

Bolger was pessimistic about the state of the stage musical.

"We used to put on big musical productions for $75,000," he commented. "Nowadays, a straight play can cost that much. A musical runs from $200,000 to $300,000. Naturally, no single person can put up that much money.

"Since musicals are so expensive, they usually must run for two years or more before they pay off. It's too tough on an actor to play his heart out eight times a week for two years."

YOUR FAVORITE FUNNIES — TWICE AS FUNNY IN THEIR SECOND HIT.

AT THE CAPITOL — Warrior. Face markings are fiendish by natives found in a new country in the Philippines as seen in "Jungle Headhunters," factual feature film in print by Technicolor, which also stars headhunter rites. On the same program, "Tokyo File 212", a spy story filmed entirely in Japan. Both hits are first showing at the Capitol Theatre today and Wednesday.

A Filipino native in full ceremonial regalia, a picturesque character in "Jungle Headhunters," factual RKO Radio feature film in Technicolor, coming to the Capitol Theatre today and Wednesday. On the same program "Tokyo File 212". Both hits are first city showings. At the Capitol Theatre today and Wednesday.

AT THE McCARTHY — Richard Widmark and Jeffrey Hunter exchange unfriendly glances in 20th Century-Fox's Technicolor saga of the paratroop fire-fighters of the U.S. Forest Service, "Red Skies of Montana." The two stars play rival "Smoke Jumpers" in the action drama, opening Wednesday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars,

FOR WEDNESDAY, APRIL 9 1952

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—A day for conservatism and care to avoid unnecessary errors in business, private interest, personal conduct. Sound matters, investments—handled rightly—can advance.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—Not all promising for progress but with sensible management you can have benefits in your occupation. Follow wise procedure and good contacts. Act with forethought.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini)—Mercury's position now stresses more conscientious forethought in handling groups of people; all written matters, contracts, documents.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Either too helpful nor hindering tendencies. Limiter, beneficially situated. Helpful to all, engaged in honest work. Employ logic, reason, prayer.

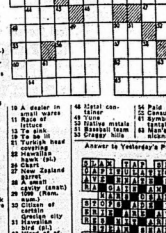
July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Your Sun here works against unnecessary changes in anything running smoothly, and which might be slowed up by changes. Go alone with faith.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)—A time for poise, quiet planning, sensible action throughout. Don't make promises or undertake what you cannot keep and do. Any achievement well done is accomplishment.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)—Similar indications to Taurus. Not a time for spectacular achievement but steady application to duty which will bring substantial returns and contentment.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)—Some matters may seem irritating, slow, but it is well occasionally to have such days to tighten the reins on us, make us realize our need for patience.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Your planet Jupiter in favorable aspect today. You should do a good day's work, and lend a helping hand to others. Make your day tops with honesty, gratitude in mind.



December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Activities and tasks that need courage, perhaps more force and endurance, have benefic Mars rays that can be helpful to you. Income, savings, prestige may be increased.

January 22 to February 28 (Aquarius) — More auspicious rays but you will need that inner urge (not strain, though) that gets things done more efficiently. Important you remember steadiness and prayer.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces)—Better take matters in your hands and use intelligent way. Don't fret for quick or big gains. Be content, if you do your best, that you may just keep up with your schedule.

YOU BORN TODAY: Bright nature, generous, brave. Natural leadership qualities, but may seek to dominate more than is good for you or your success. You must listen to others very frequently, for knowledge is not confined to any one individual. Develop rightly your God-given talents and ability; keep improving, but at same time recognize that others are advancing too. Fine advantages this year. Birthlast Chas. (Pierre) Baudelaire, French poet.

RICH Resources, Good Government Heighten Dollar

By JOHN TRACY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, April 8 — (CP) — Many who called the shot on the Canadian dollar months ago has gone out on the limb again—to predicts it will remain at a premium to United States currency for months to come.

He should know for he's none other than Canada's Revenue Minister McCann. The 65-year-old white-haired veteran parliamentarian spoke in a Toronto speech last year forecast the "jump" in Canadian dollar to the point where it now ranges around two cents above its American counterpart.

Dr. McCann confides that when he made that forecast he told colleagues in the cabinet were expected soon to "float" the "ever-optimistic." But he had faith in the Canadian dollar, based on good government control last year.

"Well, the prediction has come true," he said. "And I believe that the dollar will continue to stay near par. That is why I am not go much higher than the current quotation.

There were many reasons, said Canada's biggest money collector, why the Canadian dollar showed such great strength. One was the fact Canada was attracting money in actual economic development.

"You can't keep putting billions of dollars in munitions and expect your currency to remain strong. That's what the United States is doing. Munitions are not productive. They don't give you an economic return."

But, the Canadian meant, of course, that money put into armament has no economic earning power in the sense that it is used or distributed without payment.

Other Factors

He said there were other factors involved in the Canadian dollar climb. Canada, in the last few months, had a decided increase in her foreign trade and there were huge inward movements of foreign capital, invested in Canada's expanding economy.

But there were big supplies of American dollars in Canada and a smaller demand for them as the exchange markets. Apparently, too, there was a big demand for Canadian dollars and smaller supplies available. As any other commodity, the market price of untethered currencies depends on the ancient law of supply and demand.

Dr. McCann said the rapid fluctuation in the dollar was caused by a few speculative civilization headaches. Appraisals for what had to be expected to apply as the dollar changed.

And it was causing a lot of headaches in Canada's industry, especially some of the Canadian exporters who had to quote their prices in American currency.

For example, Canada's newsprint industry sold newsprint at $118 a ton for shipment and deliveries to the U. S.

That price must have been all right when the Canadian dollar was at a 10-per-cent discount, but

Lack of Folley Claimed

"It may be that the fall of farm prices is the thing that will be the breaking point in the prosperity which we have known," the Liberal House leader said in speaking on his motion charging the government with a lack of policy to meet the problem.

Debate on the opposition motion developed into a full-time discussion that lasted for most of the afternoon sitting.

The government's reply to Mr. Oliver came in an amendment to his motion which said the House supported government measures "to provide an economic environment in which there may be a better balance in farm income and way of life." The government amendment carried on a voice vote, and no vote was taken on Mr. Oliver's motion.

Attacks Federal Taxes

Public Works Minister Thomas, who moved the government amendment, used the topic to attack federal taxation on tobacco, which he termed "assinine."

The federal tobacco tax of $250,000,000 was five times as large as the province's biggest tobacco crop, said Mr. Thomas, a tobacco farmer.

Mr. Oliver urged the province to resume subsidies on premium bacon and cheese and to subsidize freight charges on lower grain for Ontario cattle raisers.

Mr. Thomas said nothing "fundamental" ever came out of a bonus.

"If you want bonuses, go and get your friends in the east to come and do it," he told the Liberals.

The Liberal leader urged an "active advertising campaign" to increase the market for surplus food and a reorganization of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph to make it more practical.

"If that institution is to serve the needs for which it was founded, it should be removed from political influence," Mr. Oliver said.

Agriculture Minister Kennedy said the province had had no control over the loss of beef, cheese and bacon markets. It had come to an agreement with federal government, however, to get a bulk offset some of the losses caused by the United States' embargo on beef following the outbreak of foot and mouth disease. And it was likely that Britain would sign a contract this year for Ontario cheese.

Send As a Gift

Farmers were producing more meat, milk and grain per acre than ever before in the province's history, and price increases had been negotiated this year for seven crops under the province's farm products marketing act.

W. J. Grummett, CCF House leader, introduced another plan for disposing of food surpluses. The province and the federal government should agree to purchase the surpluses jointly and send them to Britain as a gift.

J. N. Allan (PC-Haldimand-Norfolk) said surpluses were not so large that they could not be handled by the provincial or federal government, whichever was most directly interested. If the population increase continued its trend of the last 10 years, Canada would be faced with a shortage of food.

T. R. Dent (PC-Oxford), a prominent western Ontario cattle breeder, said he felt the beef and dairy cattle industry would return to normal as soon as the U.S. embargo ended. He felt that foot and mouth disease would be shown to be extinct in Canada in six months.

Peter Manley (L-Stormont) said the opposition motion was a plea for cash and cheese subsidies only as "emergency measures." As vice-president of the Stormont County Cheese Producers' Association, he said the cheese marketing problem would be severe in the near future. There were 30,000,000 pounds of cheese in storage and present production was 600,000 pounds.

Albert Wren (Lib-Lab.-Kenora) charged the government with "undue delay" in getting into binding they had "little or nothing to worry about." Farmers were "greatly concerned" over their welfare, and labor shared their concern because the farm conditions could hurt the entire economy.

During debate on an annual government bill to suspend for one year the operation of a statute which permits Ontario to collect the 5 per cent of the federal income tax, Mr. Salsberg charged premier Leslie Frost with "double-talk" in saying Ottawa owed the five per cent to Ontario.

Do Not Want Money

Ontario could have had $100,000,000 since 1947 if it collected its five-per-cent share. "We didn't because the government didn't want to. It is unfair to state the position is that we want the money but Ottawa won't give it to us."

Premier Frost replied there were "practical difficulties in the way" of Ontario collecting the tax. The "common sense" way, Mr. Frost said, was for Ottawa to collect all the income tax and agree to give Ontario a cheque for its five-per-cent share. This would avoid duplication of tax collection. The federal government had agreed with eight provinces to collect a number of provincial taxes such as corporation taxes, and pay them annual subsidies under the federal-provincial tax rental agreement. If Ottawa could do this, it could give Ontario and Quebec, which had not entered the agreement, cheques for their five-per-cent income tax share.

PRIME MINISTER

The upshot of this debate was that the chamber eventually adopted a motion by Mr. St. Laurent reconvening a special committee to consider the question of the chamber's hours of sitting and general procedure.

Mr. St. Laurent suggested the committee, which met last fall and recommended a shorter working schedule along with other modifications, might study Mr. Cleaver's motion.

Indicates Objection

In the divorce debate, Mr. St. Laurent indicated an objection to sending Quebec - Newfoundland divorces to a joint committee. It would be that divorce would be granted there on a legal institution to which one has a right if he established certain legal conditions.

A Roman Catholic, the Prime Minister spoke for Anglican M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, that there are religious denominations that do not admit of divorce.

He added:

"The majority should not force upon the minority who do not believe in the two principles of divorce as a legal institution.

"On the other hand, the larger minority should not force upon a smaller minority the position that there should be no divorce at all."

He suggested there is no point in making a change unless the change is for the better, and reminded the House that it is "no more disagreeable" for him to deal with divorce than it is for judges.

29 Bills Passed

Eventually, 29 of the 111 bills received second reading—approval in principle—and the other 71 were deferred until the committee has time to consider them.

The procedural debate produced objections to Mr. Cleaver's proposal by Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre), Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel), Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia) and other opposition members.

They agreed generally that there is room for improvement, but suggested Mr. Cleaver was too drastic.

Liberal members felt that Mr. Cleaver was right on one point—that speaking time for private members should be reduced to 30 minutes from the present 40. Some suggested the cut should be to 20 minutes.

George Cruickshank (L—Fraser Valley), urging a 20-minute limit, said: "There were not five members in the House who can deliver a speech that is either "interesting or entertaining."

Murray Refuses to Budge

Murray asserted the steel industry could grant his union's pay demands without raising prices a single, solitary penny a ton."

The only immediate industry comment came from Ben Moreell, chairman of the board of Jones and Laughlin Steel, Corp., who said "the companies have offered a reasonable compromise to avoid the strike. Murray still refuses to budge an inch."

Other industry sources have steadfastly maintained they cannot meet wage stabilization board recommendations for a 17 1-2 cent hourly wage increase, union shop, and fringe benefits unless they get permission to boost their prices about $12 a ton. No such permission has been forthcoming from the government.

Tells How to Win a Sweepstakes

Mr. Romeo Trepanier of aVlleyfield, Que., shown with his wife and daughter, Josette, won $137,500 on the Grand National Sweepstakes and believes it was his system that won for him. The system he explains it, is something like this: According to the Zodiac charts his number is two. He doubled up somewhere, making it two times two. He's 44 years old, which makes 22 of his lucky numbers. He has four children; the ticket he bought ended in four, and it was the fourth ticket he bought. And that is his formula for winning sweepstakes. — Central Press Canadian.

offered what it said amounted to a 16 cent hourly pay boost. Murray immediately rejected the offer, saying it amounted to only 14.4 cents.

Now only action by the government is seen as a possible way of keeping steel flowing to defence plants and producers of civilian goods.

President Truman can invoke the emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act. That would allow the government to go into court and ask for an order which would delay the strike for 80 days. The government also has been considering seizure of the steel industry.

The Peacock Path

By Edwin Rutt

"Forget it." I said, catching hold of myself. "And go to bed."

Her face, a kind of lovely mask, was tilted toward me. Her lips were red, slightly parted. I lost hold. I burned up that two feet of floor space. Then, like flowing thing and all, she was in my arms. For a moment, operations in the universe were suspended.

An awfully short moment, though, the pushed me away rather lightly. The slap she gave my forearm wasn't so gentle. It smarted.

"Now you," she said, "forget that!" And she was gone.

There was an inquest on Ames Warburton at 10 o'clock the next morning. The affair was so brief and so smoothly conducted that it almost looked as if the coroner's jury had been rigged. The verdict was accidental death.

On the way home I learned from Cravath that a cousin of Ames was on his way from New Hampshire to claim the body and take it away. Ames' mother had been widowed, as I knew, and this cousin was acting for her.

That seemed to dispose finally and a little pitifully, of brilliant young Ames Warburton.

It seemed almost as if we were brushing poor Ames off—Cravath myself, the whole bunch of us. Yet, with specific reference to the Warburton case, maybe, had we had to go on? Mrs. Ring's suppositions, and nothing else.

When we reached the house I went upstairs with Cravath and Dumont to find out what Dumont stood. Burroughs met us outside the Dumont's door.

"The doctor was in," Dolly now, she said. He was well satisfied with her patient. He had, he thought, no one would be permitted to see Mrs. Dumont until much later in the day."

So, with nothing special to do for the moment, I went to my room. It took me in the direction of the garage. Big Williamson, the chauffeur, was just outside of that, doing a wash job on a super-special sedan.

He hailed me. "How's Mrs. Dumont today?" he asked.

Better, I told him. And added, "by the way, how did you happen to discover her?"

He dipped a sponge into a pail of inky water, squeezed it into a semblance of dryness. "I was just taking a walk after my supper," he said finally. "Loafing around, like. And I came across her. Honest, you could have knocked me over with a straw."

There was nothing specifically wrong with the chauffeur's yet, it seemed to me, Williamson kept his eyes averted and sponged the car more assiduously than he had been doing when I'd first strolled up.

"You thought she was dead?" I asked.

"I sure did. I never seen nobody look deader. So I didn't touch her or nothing. I just beat it up to the house and sent Manila for Mr. Cravath."

I said, conversationally: She got a nasty crack on the back of her head. I've been trying to figure out what gave her that. Didn't see anything like a stick or a stone lying around out there, did you?"

He straightened up, looked me full in the eye then. "No sir. I did not see nothing. But it was kinda dark and . . . well, I was flustered all of a sudden. Didn't really think to look for anything at the time."

That afternoon Dr. Reeves came again. He went straight up to Dolly Dumont's room and a few minutes later Cravath sent Manila to summon me.

"Dreeves will let us talk to her for a few minutes," he announced. "Better come along."

It was a sobered and wan-looking Dolly who smiled at us feebly from a pile of big soft pillows. She wore a neat white bandage around her head and her hair was a dull-brown now, the rain having washed and beaten most of the henna out of it. No coquettish little lights lurked in her green eyes.

Dumont and the doctor were with her. Dumont's eyes flickered over me questioningly. No doubt he wondered why I was present, but Cravath had dragged me along.

"Now this has got to be brief," Dreeves had his watch out. "I'll give you 10 minutes. No more."

Dolly shook her head, cautiously, infinitesimally. "Might as well make it five, Doctor." Her voice barely reached the strength of a whisper. "Because I haven't much to tell."

I heard Jack Dumont's breath expelled in a kind of disappointed sigh. I felt like making the same sound. All of us, though apparently we hadn't exactly banked on it, had been hoping for a clarifying story from Dolly.

"You mean," Cravath drew a chair to the bedside, "that you can't remember anything? You must have some sort of recollection."

"As if I haven't tried! I've been beating what little brain I've got. But it's no use. I just pulled a complete blank yesterday. Some time in the afternoon."

"Do you remember where you were when you—ah, pulled the blank?"

"Yes. I know that much. Right here in this room. I'd been talking to Eve downstairs, but all of a sudden I felt headachy. So I came up, took two aspirins and started to lie down. I . . ." She checked it.

A little late, however. From across the room Dumont said, his voice slightly sharp, "Started Dolly?"

"That's what I said." Her smile became rather rueful. "I . . . You all know it already, so what's the use of stalling? I was very very drunk yesterday. I'm sorry, but there it is. And after I'd taken the aspirins, I decided to have just one more. And it must have hit me because I don't remember another thing."

Fear crept suddenly into Dolly Dumont's thin voice, "why would anyone want to hurt me?"

Cravath shot the doctor a quick look. "We don't think anyone, exactly, did hurt you, Dolly," he said soothingly. "You probably hurt yourself. When you fell."

"Well," she spoke slowly, "everything's terribly confused and hazy. But you say 'fell.' I've a vague recollection . . . I did fall."

"Or you were pushed," Dumont said, from the window now. "Try and think."

All at once Dolly struggled to sit up. Her eyes had opened again and they were wide and terrified. "I am remembering something," she said in a strange tone. "It's nothing to get excited about, anyhow. Just a—a dream I had, I imagine. But it was just as if I'd been grabbed hold of and was being rushed along somewhere. An awful dream. I thought that someone, or something, with strong strong hands had me by the back of the neck. And I had the feeling that it was taking me some place, some horrible place, very fast. So fast that my feet hardly touched the ground. I was running of course. The—the thing in back was making me run. And I couldn't do a thing about it. Couldn't break away or turn my head, because of that grip on my neck. Couldn't see who or what it was, and that had me. I did try to scream, I think. Maybe I even managed to. But"—her lips twisted with the effort of recollection—"it didn't do any good. That noise came and drowned me out."

"What noise?" Cravath's voice cracked like a whip. The doctor looked at his watch and grabbed impatiently.

Dolly put a wavering hand to her head. "I don't know exactly. Some kind of whirring sound. But very loud. Loud as thunder. It came just when I tried to scream. And then I did fall, I guess. Or something hit me. Anyhow, everything just went absolutely black."

Her voice rose with the final words. She was palpably getting over excited and Dreeves put a summary end to the interview.

I started for my room, with no fixed idea of what I was going to do next. But suddenly, a door on my right opened. Dave Sladen stood framed in the doorway.

Well, this was more friendliness than Slade had ever showed me before. And, as usual, I wanted a drink.

He had a light, cool room big enough to house a theatrical troupe. There was a bath off it and whoever planned the furnishings had used excellent taste.

I took rye for a change. He stayed with gin, poured a redoubtable hookers and watered them from the thermos jug which seemed part of every room's equipment here.

Then, without any shillyshally he began getting at the thing that was on his mind. "Mrs. Dumont make any interesting statements?" he inquired.

I sensed that he felt put out, probably because Cravath had taken me along to see Dolly and included him out.—It was also very clear that he wanted to pump me.

I told him what Dolly had said. I saw no particular harm in his knowing. In fact, if he were the grim operator here, Dolly's confessed ignorance might serve to put him off his guard. Beyond that, I was sure he'd get the story anyhow within the next few hours.

Dave Sladen sniffed at the whole wild tale.

"Lock Orth," he said, "that's so much eyewash. I know Dolly Dumont pretty well. She was a fifth rate actress once. In her cups, she still goes in for drama in a big way."

I ventured a cautious query. "You mean she's starved for attention? I thought everybody liked her. And Dumont seems to treat her—well, very decently."

"Dumont is good to her," Sladen said at once, "all things considered. I'm thinking about what probably goes on in her mind. My guess is that Dolly gets a cockeyed slant on things because she lives in a kind of half-world. She's part of the crowd, but not a very integral part. She doesn't be when she's in a daze most of the time. But I think she knows how she stands. And resents it."

I sipped rye, said "she can't expect to be taken seriously, under the circumstances."

"Sure," Sladen said "there's no reason in it. That's what I'm trying to say. It's simply befuddled half-world mind. My idea is that she feels shoved aside and unnecessary. But yesterday, she comes an opportunity to steal the show. So she steps it up."

"You're suggesting," I said, "that Mrs. Dumont popped herself in the back of the head?"

He looked at me as if I were the village idiot. "No, no," he said irritably. "I'm only suggesting that this business of somebody grabbing her and rushing her, and her trying to scream above some kind of fantastic whirring noise, is all bilge. If we knew the truth, she concocted that yarn after she woke up this morning. As for the crack on the head, maybe she did fall."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was in my room reeding my new Atomic Age Comic Book, and pop came in, saying, Benny, I said, and pop said, Well, well.

Yes sir, there it is on my bed, I said, and pop said, Well, well, so it is. There's a rule around here to put things back where you found them. Did you ever hear of it? he said.

Yes sir, I was going to put it back any minute, I said, and pop said, Any minute is like tomorrow, it never comes.

And he started to open the door again to go out with his hammer, and my lucky horse shoe got shook loose and fell down and bounced off of pop's shoulder and landed on the floor, and pop said, Rotes blanket to blazes, what kind of a booby trap is that?

That's no booby trap, pop, it's my lucky horseshoe, I said. I kept wondering why it wasn't bringing me any luck, and then remembered a horseshoe has to be hanging over your door if you want it to be lucky. That was just exactly what I needed your hammer for, pop said.

Yee gods, for a lucky horseshoe it's making a bad start, pop said. An 8th of an inch closer and I'd of got a good bop on the head, he said, and I said, Well jiminies, pop, that just proves it!

What does it prove for first sake? pop said, and I said, It proves it's really a lucky horseshoe, because it's a darn lucky thing for me it didn't hit your head.

I've got a surer test than that, pop said. I'll take charge of it, and if you're really lucky, you'll get it back, he said.

Aw heck, darn it, I said, and pop said, you express my sentiments exactly.

And he took it away with him, rubbing his shoulder where it hit him.

Truman Seizes American Steel Industry

Most of Big Mills Remain Closed Despite Order

Steel Executives Disposed To Fight Action in Court

Washington, April 8—(AP)—The United States steel industry fought in the courts today against President Truman's order for government seizure of its plants. Most of the big mills were closed. Workers stried "lockout."

The immediate outlook for continued production of vital steel was confused and uncertain.

It was plain, however, that steel executives had their backs up. They were smarting under the tongue-lashing the president gave them in a radio broadcast last night and were disposed to fight for what they consider their rights.

Commerce Secretary Charles Sawyer, designated to take over and operate the mills for the government, told reporters today he had received no acknowledgment from any of the presidents of 71 steel companies.

Sawyer said in a telegram last night, advising of the seizure order Truman issued because of the deadline in the U.S. wage dispute between the industry and the United Steel Workers' (C. I. O.). The union had called a strike for last midnight. Truman checked the seizure process as a move to head it off.

Sawyer said that the company officials acknowledge "by return wire" receipt of their appointment as operating managers of their companies on behalf of the government.

Receives No Word

Sawyer also said he had received no word that any steel company panies had taken steps to resume operations.

Phillip Murray, union president, announced last night that the steelworkers would work for the government.

Sawyer urged the industry to resume operations "pending a decision as to the legal rights involved, because of the vital need for steel for our national defence."

Sawyer was served with summonses in three suits brought by the Bethlehem Steel Co., Republic Steel Corp. and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., challenging the seizure order.

As to the suits, Sawyer said in his statement:

"If in these cases the courts should decide that the president has the power to take the action which he has taken, the mills will be promptly settled. If the courts should hold that he has not the power, further action will be up to the president and the Congress."

This was a suggestion that Truman would, in the latter case, ask Congress to confer the needed power.

John R. Steelman, President Truman's assistant and acting defence mobilizer, arranged mid-afternoon bargaining sessions with the industry and C. I. O. president Phillip Murray whose wage demands generated the crisis. Industry representatives predicted in advance the Steelman talks would be "absolutely unproductive."

Negotiations Collapse

Truman said it was his earnest hope the dispute would be settled promptly.

"I don't want to see the government operating the steel plants a moment longer than is absolutely necessary to prevent a shutdown," he said.

BODY RECOVERED

Walkerton, April 9 (CP) — The body of Alvin Hetzler, 41, was recovered from the Teeswater River a half-mile below the Cargill dam.

Hetzler had been missing from his Cargill home since early April 1 and was presumed to have drowned.

His body was recovered by his brother-in-law Allan Garland, after the dam had been closed to lower the level of the water in the river.

Motor Car Prices Will be Reduced By New Budget

Oshawa, Ont., April 9 (CP) — Price cuts ranging from $125 to $440 on General Motors vehicles are due as a result of the reduction of excise tax on automobiles.

"This is definitely a step in the right direction," William A. Wecker, president of General Motors of Canada Limited, said of the government's action announced in last night's budget speech.

However, Mr. Wecker said the combined sales and excise tax still remained too high.

He said the price reduction would mean a customer saving ranging from $125 on a Chevrolet to as high as $440 at the top of the Cadillac range.

Montreal (CP)—The executive vice-president of Ford of Canada today called the budget excise tax cut on passenger automobiles a "step in the right direction" but unfavorably over the entire national economy.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Montreal Advertising and Sales Club, Robert Emmert said the Ford Company was reducing the price of its $1,300 cars to $2,160. The reduction on a car in the $2,000 bracket would be approximately $185.

PERSIAN POEM SOLD

London, April 8 (Reuters) — The manuscript of a Persian poem, "Layla and Majnun", written about 1583 by Nizami, has been sold here for $1,500 by the Bodleian library of Oxford University. The manuscript, illuminated in gold and other colors, was used by James Atkinson (1780-1852) for his translation of the poem into English.

21 PERSONS RESCUED

Tokyo, April 9. (AP)—An American minesweeper rescued all 37 persons aboard a Japan Airlines plane which crashed and landed in lake 150 miles southwest of Tokyo, today the National Maritime Board reported. The plane, a Martin 202, took off from Haneda airport here on a 90-minute flight to Fukuoka, on Kyushu, Japan's main southern island.

Trying to Put Old-Time Aroma Back Into Syrup Problem Facing Producers

Montreal. (CP)— How to put the old-time aroma back into maple syrup is one of the problems facing producers today.

Present processing methods have all but eliminated the rich, sweet smell obtained by slow-boiling sap in a wood stove.

However, Quebec Agriculture department experts are hopeful that before long they will be able to recommend a new method of evaporating the maple tree sap that will leave a fully-aromatic syrup.

The maple syrup industry in Quebec, which produces more than one per cent annual gross income of $10,000,000, is safeguarded carefully by provincial specialists.

J. R. Methot, chief of the Maple Products industry division of the Agriculture department, recently outlined steps taken by his department to promote better production and improve marketing methods in the province.

Mr. Methot produced some statistics on the industry in the province. In 1941 producers showed 2,326,000 maple trees are tapped tap these reserves, he said.

CANADA TO BUILD FASTER JET SAYS CLAXTON

Engine To Be Crossbred With American Plane

Ottawa, April 9. (CP)—A Canadian jet engine will be crossbred with an American-designed, Canadian-built plane next year to produce an aircraft faster than today's fastest, Defence Minister Claxton says.

But, he told the Commons yesterday as it completed the first defence debate of this session, early hopes for exceptionally-quick production of the engine and of the first all-Canadian plane have died.

The engine is the Orenda Jet. The plane it will team up with to produce a plane faster than today's fastest is the F86E Sabre, the U.S.-designed aircraft being produced by the Canadair factory in Montreal. The Sabre holds today's speed record.

The Orenda is being built by A. V. Roe firm at Malton, Ont., along with Canada's first home-grown jet, the CF-100 Canuck.

"There was a time, the minister said, when both the F.A.F. and the Roe firm held high hopes that both the Orenda and Canuck would be in production in unusually quick time. (The Sabre is already in production.) Those hopes were gone now but both engines and planes would be in production in time any country would consider normal for such complex military equipment," they were started in 1947.

General Claxton were ready for delivery and assembly-line production of Orenda would begin in June and hit full capacity next year.

Point-by-Point Reply

The minister gave that picture as he launched a point-by-point reply to opposition statements about the defence picture, including some that the Orenda-Canuck program is not doing so well despite early fanfare.

U.K. Road Transport Industry Will be Denationalized Churchill Tells Parliament

London, April 9 — (Reuters) — Prime Minister Churchill today announced in the House of Commons that his government will denationalize the road transport industry and turn it back to its former owners.

His announcement came fast on the heels of pressure put on him by 46 Conservative members of parliament who had drafted a motion demanding the government fulfil its election promise to denationalize private enterprise.

The motion was also committed on the denationalization of the steel industry. Both industries were taken over by the late Labor government.

Gives No Date

Churchill gave no date for the transport action, but said it will be announced when parliament reconvenes after the Easter vacation. He reaffirmed his government policy to hand back the steel industry.

The road bill applies only to medium-and long-distance truck operators.

Churchill's statement, greeted by Tory cheers, took the sting out of the party rebels. Their move is regarded as the most serious split of internal discontent with the government since the October election.

Earlier this week there was another and smaller "revolt" in the form of a protest against the government's failure to lift the sales tax on clothing to help the hard-pressed Lancashire textile industry.

The sales-tax motion originally was put forward by Ralph Assheton, former Conservative party chairman, and four others. Now 18 Conservatives have signed it — and 16 socialists, including Bevanite left-wingers, have added their names to it.

Elections Shock Party

Purpose of the new motions is to pep up the government and underline party restlessness. It and the previous losses in the government elections have shocked the Conservatives.

Many party members take the line that the government's present tax cuts suffer if it does not soon carry out denationalization promises and other changes proposed in its manifesto at the general election last October.

SALES REPORTED DOWN

Toronto, April 9 — (CP)— The Ontario Agriculture Department said today that sales of fluid milk in the province in January were down .59 per cent compared with the same month a year ago.

It said it reported in error yesterday the drop was 6.9 per cent.

The department said sales of fluid milk and cream, chocolate dairy drink and culture milk during January were all slightly low in sales during the same month a year ago.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, April 9. (CP)—Synopsis—Skies were clear over most of the province this morning, except in southern counties. Southerly winds will bring warmer weather today to all but northwestern regions, where cold air has already settled into the province. As the cold air gradually pushes southeastward, showers or thundershowers will precede it. These will occur tonight in southern regions, followed by several hours light rain after the leading edge of the cold air passes.

MILITARY GOVT. IN BOLIVIA IS DEPOSED

Members Arrested But Soon Liberated

La Paz, Bolivia, April 9 (AP)—An army, police and civilian revolt broke out in this tin-mining country today and the revolutionists announced they had deposed the military government.

Hernan Siles, military government, headed by Gen. Hugo Ballivian who seized power in a bloodless coup last May, were arrested and then liberated, the announcement said.

The revolt was led by army and police officers cooperating with the National Revolutionary Party of Victor Paz Estenssoro, who is in exile in Argentina.

Illmani radio station in La Paz, owned by the government, began broadcasting that the revolution had succeeded soon after shooting broke out in the capital at dawn.

Almost simultaneously with the outbreak in the capital, uprisings took place in various parts of the country.

Direct Uprising

Ten. Antonio Seleme, acting with the support of most of the staff, Gen. Humberto Torrez Ortiz, and Hernan Siler Zuazo, a prominent member of the revolutionary Party, directed the uprising.

In Buenos Aires, where he is in exile, Paz Estenssoro, the candidate of Bolivia's tin miners who was prevented from taking office after winning the 1951 election, the May, 1951, presidential election, announced he was returning to La Paz immediately.)

(The U.S. embassy reported to the state department in Washington that truckloads of armed civilians moved on the presidential palace shouting "Viva" for Paz Estenssoro and Gualberto Villarroel, one of Estenssoro's Revolutionary Party president of Bolivia, was hanged from a lamppost in a revolution in 1946).

Quake Jolts Oklahoma

Oklahoma City, April 9 (AP) — An earthquake sharp enough to shake desks in office buildings today jolted Oklahoma and portions of Texas, Kansas, Iowa and Missouri.

There were no immediate reports of damage. The tremor occurred about 10.36 a.m. (C.S.T. a.m. EST).

Higher office building shook at Enid Holmes, Iowa, and light fixtures swayed. Radio stations reported tremors in Wichita, Kansas City and Independence, Mo.

OUT OF ORDER

United Nations, N.Y., April 9. (AP)—The Russians tried in vain to block admission of the Indonesian China from a U.N. Agency. This time it was the security council committee on non-governmental organizations. The committee voted 6 to 1 at its closed meeting that the Soviet move was out of order.

Consumers' Budget Given in House By Finance Minister

Defence Surtax Incorporated Into Basic Tax Structure

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, April 9 — (CP) — Tax cuts take effect today on a sizeable range of luxury and semi-luxury goods as a result of a consumers' budget placed before the Commons and the country last night by Finance Minister Abbott.

He reduced special excise levies on cigarets, motor cars, radios, television sets, washing machines, stoves, refrigerators, smokers' accessories, luggage and similar goods.

But, while he thus lightened the tax burden at the retail end, he performed a sleight-of-hand with the personal income-tax rates, announcing an apparent average six-per-cent reduction but actually leaving taxes higher than they were for 1951.

He incorporated the existing 20-per-cent defence surtax into the basic income-tax structure and then sliced tax payments by six per cent, effective July 1. But that still leaves the tax liability higher than in 1951, when the defence surtax worked out to 10 per cent over the entire year.

In addition, taxpayers will begin contributions July 1 to the new two-per-cent social-security tax, which goes to finance old-age pensions to Canadians 70 and over. This will more than offset the income-tax reduction.

Main Tax Cuts

Here are the main tax cuts:

1. The cigaret tax is reduced by three cents on a package of 20, back to where it was a year ago. The tax on raw leaf tobacco also goes back to its former rate of three-quarters of a cent a pound. The revenue loss for a full year is $11,000,000.

2. The special excise tax is reduced to 15 per cent from 25 per cent on motor cars, tires and tubes, cameras and photo equipment, cigars, electrical appliances, firearms and ammunition, fishing rods and reels, fountain pens and pencils, furs, golf clubs and balls, jewelry and clocks, lighters, matches, motorcycles and motors, phonographs, radios and tubes, slot machines, smokers' accessories, toilet articles and trucks and buses. Revenue loss: $64,000,000.

3. The special excise tax of 15 per cent on household washing machines, stoves and refrigerators is repealed. Revenue loss: $11,000,000.

4. The special excise tax is cut to 15 per cent from 30 per cent on soft drinks and to 25 cents a pound from 50 cents on carbonic acid. Officials said they think the reduction will absorb the tax reduction. Revenue loss: $11,000,000.

The immediate reaction from J. M. Macdonnell (PC—Toronto Greenwood), Progressive Conservative financial critic, was that Mr. Abbott has made the people "tax-angry" and that his budget showed "certain signs of repentance."

Mr. Abbott announced that he is budgeting for a 1952-53 surplus of $9,000,000, against a surplus of $555,700,000 last year, on the basis of revenues of $4,278,000,000 and expenditures of $4,270,000,000.

Then he warned taxpayers not to look for any further cuts. Even if lower taxes next year unless there is improvement in conditions both at home or abroad.

Friendly Spirit of Dolphin Reborn In Strange Fish Seen Off N.Z. Coast

Blenheim, N. Z. — (CP) — From six feet long, less than half the size of the great dolphin, but is even more high spirited.

That is the finding of an approaching engine brings him swimming out with a fine turn of speed from a lair in a rocky bay. He gambols and plays in the water and leaps into the air, rubs his back against the vessel.

The species has not been positively identified, for although he resembles a porpoise, he is not curious elongated snout. He is brown in color, with a white belly.

He has become a favorite with yachtsmen and though he has no act of parliament to protect him, they have become his unofficial guardians and have warned off youths seeking to catch or shoot him.

Six Federal By-Elections Will Be Held May 26

Ottawa, April 9 (CP) — The Commons has picked May 26 as the date for by-elections for six Commons seats now vacant, it was learned today.

The ridings are Waterloo North and Ontario in Ontario; Bromo-Missisquoi and Roberval in Quebec and Gloucester and Victoria-and-Haliburton in New Brunswick.

The Roberval riding became vacant yesterday with the resignation of A. Brynan Richardson, deputy speaker of the Commons, who, it is understood, will be appointed to Quebec court judgeship.

No date was set for a by-election for a seventh vacant seat, that of Cartwright-St. Jean, which had been held by former Postmaster-General Rinfret, who resigned and now is a Quebec judge.

Importance of High Quality Cheese For Domestic Sales Stressed At Cheesemakers' Spring Conference

The importance of high quality cheese being offered if domestic sales are to be increased, was stressed at the annual spring conference of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association held at the Hotel Quinte on Tuesday.

Speakers at the meeting pointed out that only by offering uniformly high quality cheese could Canadians be encouraged to increase their per capita consumption. Also there was much educational work to be done in the wholesale and retail levels which was said to be a weak spot in developing a home market for cheese.

W. C. Cameron, associate director of marketing services, told of experiments being made in regrading of cheese to determine the type which will improve with age. Mr. D. M. Beattie, Ottawa, also spoke briefly.

Talks of Defects

Cheese defects, such as openness and wet body were dealt with by Mr. Cameron who urged that close attention be paid during all cheese this year. With the possibility of more cheese going into cold storage stocks will be of great importance.

W. R. Stiles, professor of Dairying at O.A.C., Guelph, said that despite the present serious situation in the cheese industry Canada dairying in Canada would get bigger and better.

He quoted an authority which predicted that by 1955 the production of milk was just sufficient to supply needs and pointed to the increase in population most of which was urban. He estimated that by 1955 at least 350,000 additional cows would be needed in Canada to supply dairy requirements.

Must Cut Costs

Mr. Sproule said that generally speaking it appeared that Canadian farm product prices were out of line with other world nations and if there was to be any hope of continuing export markets some thought must be given to scaling prices down. He stressed this was not criticism but was merely a statement.

"We must cut the cost of production to a minimum," he said.

Weeding out of low producing cows was one way in which this could be done.

Jack Bain, chief dairy instructor for Central and Western Ontario, dealt with the openness

Margaret Wakefield, Vija Kazaks, Denis Burgess, Shirley McKeown, Beverly Blue, Norma Vaughan.

Corporal Morden, of the traffic division of the Ontario Provincial Police will address the above group after the Easter term on driving and accidents of today.

A package of 20 cigarets that sold for 42 cents is now selling for 39 cents and the former 52-cent package is selling for 48 cents. A flat fifty of the standard brands has been reduced eight cents.

Minimum Price Of Cheese Set at 31 Cents

A 1952 price of 31 cents per pound for Ontario cheddar cheese was agreed on Tuesday when negotiating committees representing cheese merchants and producers met in Belleville. The minimum price is 31 cents per pound for first grade cheese f.o.b. factories.

Great Britain's announcement of her inability to buy cheddar cheese at 31 cents instead of their lack of dollars, coupled with the outbreak of foot and mouth disease which prohibited sales of dairy cattle to the United States, has caused the drop in price. Last year's price to the producer was 39 cents per pound.

Cheese exchanges which recently have been postponed due to these emergencies, will immediately resume for the sale of March cheese.

Withdraws Resignation

Brantford, April 9 — (CP) — George H. Ross by unanimous request of the board of governors, yesterday withdrew his resignation as chairman of the hospital board.

Mr. had resigned March 27 offering "prevailing conditions over which I have no hope of control" as his reason for resigning.

The city council's $80,000 cut in the hospital's 1952 budget was the "last straw" he said.

Mr. Ross said he believed his resignation had focussed public attention on the serious situation at the hospital which would be only partially solved through construction of new facilities.
